"Sleds" is plural, but the contrivance was a unit. It was a bobsled to us, but the older folks termed it a set of traverse runners. These things were homemade, ironed at the blacksmith shop. The "hand shark" on front was joined to the hand shark on back by a length of stout ash plank, and the length of the plank indicated capacity. Twenty or so made a good number, as I recollect.

The engineering of a bobsled depended on the cross-connection between the front and rear sleds. This made it easy for a novice to tip it over, but it allowed an expert to evecute extremely interesting manoeuvres, some of which still cause my black hair to stand on end in tribute. The back sled did the opposite of the front one, and the steerer had to know what that would be. The steerer was not on front, because he had to brace his feet, and that left room for one or two in front of him. The foremost slider was the "headlight".

Starting off was a teamwork matter. Everybody pushed, got the thing going, and then as a flock of grackles wheel in the air by intuitive unanimity, we would all fling our heels in the air and come down on the ash plank. Then we squealed and yelled, leaned with the steerer, and sometimes piled off the road into somebody's field to wind the whole thing around an apple tree. Sometimes the fellow riding tail light would miscue, and come down on the snow and slide quite a distance with no sled under him at all.

But in those days we had hills to slide on. Today, the minute it starts to snow, the highway crew turns out with hydraulic scrapers and cleans the road down to the asphalt. Then, if they miss any, they come back and put sand on it. The automobile, the cause of this industry, is also a safety factor. In my day, we'd slide all night and never see one on the hills. Folks used to put them up for the winter. If we found a farmer out with his sleigh or pung, he was one to know about sliding and he either pulled off in the drift or got out and held the bridle on the off chance we might do what he was afraid we would do.

Sleighs and pungs were good for the snow and packed it down for sliding. If we could find a hill where someone was teaming logs or cordwood, we'd have a glare of smooth, frozen snow that would make the pompons on our stocking caps light up and send out sparks. Many times we were told not to slide on such a hill "unless somebody older does the steering". Even then, many times we came home carrying the broken sleds, too young to wonder what discerning force had wrecked the rigging but spared the riders.

Anyway, there was coasting, and now see where we are. As my lady pointed out, a bobsled wouldn't see much service around here now, and the lad would be better off to get a record player, or a new suit, or something he might find a use for. So I didn't make any traverse runners, and the lad didn't get any for Christmas, and that's the way a lot of things seem to be going.

Mayor Ayrhart, Campbellford, Outlines Plan

New York, Jan. 10 — (AP) — J. Ernest Ayrhart, mayor of Campbellford, Ont., who claimed that his gold strikes brought him more than $2,000,000 in two years, in an interview yesterday outlined what he termed a plan to alleviate Canadian and United States economic problems with an incentive system benefitting both workers and employers.

He said he has submitted "in brief form" to the Canadian government his plan whereby the government would encourage industry and other productive elements to "produce all you can, sell all you can and make all the money you can."

Given such conditions, Ayrhart said, profits would be earmarked as follows: "50 per cent tax free for expansion ever year; 20 per cent for a tax-free bonus to employees; and 30 per cent subject to regular taxation as "normal" profits.

He said the 50 per cent in the pool for industrial expansion would so increase production that the 30-per-cent profit figure eventually would yield the government greater tax revenue than the total yield before the "incentive" expansion.

Ayrhart, who said he was here to celebrate his re-election last Monday as mayor of Campbellford, told how he parlayed a $1,000 grubstake into rich claims in the Val D'Or district of Quebec which yielded $2,000,000 to him and a similar sum to his partner, Eddie Alford.

He and his wife told reporters of world-wide fan mail which they said flooded them after publication of get-rich-quick stories.

They said the letters, principally appealing for outright gifts of money, include requests for $10,000 to finance a couple's "dream home"; $300 for a divorce; $125,000 for a group of British army officers to start a business venture in India.

Housewives Cook Meals Over Fires In Backyards

Sydney, Australia, Jan. 10—(CP Cable) — Sydney housewives cooked over backyard fires again today as gas supplies to 300,000 homes petered out due to resumption of a pre-Christmas gasworkers' strike.

The strike came without warning and despite an undertaking by gasworkers in privately owned Sydney plants that they would remain at work under a controller appointed a week before Christmas by the New South Wales government.

Premier James McKell, mentioned prominently as the successor to the Duke of Gloucester as governor general, conferred with workers' representatives but there is no indication when Australia's largest city would have gas again.

Gasworkers here joined the idle ranks of Melbourne and Adelaide gasworkers who have been on strike since Dec. 12. Households in those cities have been getting only a trickle of gas for cooking and heating.

Melbourne housewives are now trying to arrange coal deliveries themselves to gas plants so that volunteers may keep up production which may fail altogether.

The gas dispute for higher wages and better overtime pay is one of several which has brought strikes or prospects of strikes involving many thousands of Australian workers. At the same time, Sydney is in the midst of a butchers' strike which has kept all but about 90 of the city's 1,000 butcher shops closed since it started a week ago.

Butchers are protesting against wholesale meat prices which they claim are higher than the controlled prices at which they have to sell.

Little Woman Cows Mean Thief

Chicago, Jan 10 (CP)—The proverbial meanest thief turned out last night to be a pretty poor specimen generally.

Mrs. May Porch, owner of a small South Side restaurant, told police a man about 35 and six feet tall, attempted to steal a charity fund box from the counter.

"You can't do that," she told the thief, then grabbed his arm and took the box away. The thief fled.

Mrs. Porch is only five feet tall. She's also 72 years of age.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

ASEPTIC DENTISTRY

The dentist at work on the patient was annoyed when the telephone on the desk behind him rang and his office-girl-technician-assistant was out—so he had to answer it himself, fumble around in drawers to find pencil or pen, make a note of the question, pick up something he dropped on the floor, and finally turn back to resume work on the patient. But right there the patient cried whoa. "You haven't washed your hands, Doctor?" The dentist smiled indulgently. "All, right, all right," he said, as he proceeded to wash them, "but I must say you're the fussiest patient I have about that ..." And being fairly well informed about the principles of asepsis the patient retorted that it was just reasonable precaution against infection—and the patient did not say, but in his own mind decided right there, that he would not be back.

It may not be quite the same thing, but it is to me if the dentist is working in my mouth. Suppose a surgeon operating on you, no matter whether it be a major or a minor operation, were to turn aside for a moment to answer a telephone call or to shake hands with a visitor or to adjust a light on the table or chair and resume work without washing his hands!

Medical, surgical, obstetrical or dental asepsis is freedom from infection. Aseptic technique in the practice of medicine means rigid cleanliness and remitting care to prevent the spread of infection, say with scarlet fever, syphilis or erysipelas.

Aseptic technique in the practice of obstetrics is the application of the same precautions to prevent infection of the patient by instruments, hands, dressing materials, linen, clothing or objects that may come into contact with the patient.

Aseptic technique in the practice of surgery (of course including dentistry) consists of intelligent, conscientious absolute cleanliness, of instruments, materials, surfaces that may possibly come into contact with the field of operation.

Disinfectants, other than boiling or steam pressure sterilization of instruments, dressings or materials, have no place in surgical technique. It is not safe to rely upon antiseptics, no matter how "strong" or "powerful" such agents purport to be, in lieu of good aseptic technique.

Plain water or salt water or disinfectant for the hands of physician, surgeon, obstetrician or dentist.

Plapin water or salt water or water containing a dash of any agreeable flavor is quite as efficient for rinsing the patient's mouth as any "anticeptic" solution can be.

Too many uninformed misinformed or half-informed people still live in the antiseptic era — the early twentieth century era of impressive odors (carbolic acid, iodoform and the like) white enamel, men in white, dramatic masks and all that sort of thing. This is the aseptic era. Our aim in all care or treatment of wounds, surgery, obstetrics, first aid and use of home remedies is or should be to keep germs out of the wound, not to try to kill them after infection has occurred. In circumstances where the old timers "took antiseptic precautions" or applied lime or more "powerful" (smelling) stuff to the environment, to repel the varmits —remember?—the wicked little imps the almanacs of yesteryear pictured and the insurance companies and similar philanthropic organizations picture in their slush propaganda?—in such circumstances today the aim of surgeon, physician, dentist, nurse or first aid or other attendant is merely to prevent or avoid infection, to keep germs out, to protect against contamination.

Now some elementary knowledge of bacteriology is essential for a thorough understanding and practice of aseptic technique.

Surgeons, obstetricians and physicians who treat infectious, contagious or communicable diseases generally use impeccable aseptic technique in practice. Dentists and all classes of nurses or attendants other than graduate or registered nurses generally do not.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did "calico" originate?

"Calico" is a corruption of "Calicut," the name of a city on the southwestern coast of India, where a simple variety of cotton fabric was produced by native weavers on such a large scale for export that the name of the place became identified with the product.

Calicut should not be confused with Calcutta, which is a much larger city on the opposite side of the Indian peninsula.

Calico, or "Calicut cloth" as it was first called, was introduced into England in 1631 by the East India Company. The English silk and wool interests were bitterly opposed to the use of the new fabric from India. They feared that their trade was threatened by the competition with the Calicut weavers.

In one English town men employed by the mill owners patrolled the streets and assaulted persons wearing cotton goods of Indian manufacture. The agitation became so great that numerous riots took place. Parliament finally intervened in behalf of the English weavers and passed what became known as the "Calico Act," which forbade the making, selling, buying, wearing and printing of cotton cloth and imposed heavy penalties for each violation.

This act destroyed the British market for Indian-made calico and the textile industry of Calicut dwindled to insignificance. It was not until 1831 that Parliament repealed the last restrictions on calico printing. The makers of silk and wool fabrics were unable to cope with the growing popularity of cotton cloth and in time England developed a great cotton textile industry.

"Calico" denotes different materials in England and the United States. In England the term is applied to plain white cotton cloth or unbleached muslin, while in the United States it is applied to a cheap, colored or "printed" cotton cloth. What the English call calico Americans call muslin.

Among the Bantus of the Belgian Congo calico is in such great demand for trading that it is used instead of money as a medium of exchange.

Charles Foster (1828-1904), of Ohio, Representative in Congress, Governor and Secretary of the Treasury in the Cabinet of President Benjamin Harrison, was known as "Calico Charlie" because in his earlier years he was in the dry goods business.

FOOTBALL LOOP ASKS STRINGENT ANTI-BRIBE LAWS

Would Make Bribery of Athletes a Criminal Offence Where Loop Has Team

New York, Jan. 10 —(CP)— The National Football League, moving to prevent a recurrence of the attempt to rig its 1946 championship playoff, intends to see that bribery of athletes is made a criminal offence in every state in which the loop has a team.

Following the speedy conviction, under New York State's stringent code, of Alvin J. Paris on charges of offering bribes to two New York Giants players, league commissioner Bert Bell acted swiftly today to press for federal, state and local legislation.

Bell said he has already asked officials of the Detroit Lions football club to press for action in Detroit and the State of Michigan. Similarly, he added, he will speak with officials of all other clubs in the loop to ask them to urge legislative measures.

The league commissioner announced his new move the day after suspending the Giants' Frank Filchock and Merle Hapes pending disposition of their base sometime next week. They face banishment from the pro game for life for failing to report the bribe offers to their club, league or police officials.

In Washington yesterday Filchock said he didn't tell the club of Paris' approach because, he said, "My life wouldn't have been worth a nickel if I had." He explained he feared physical harm from gangsters if he told of Paris' attempt to fix the outcome of the game.

Meanwhile, New Jersey authorities entered the continuing investigation after New York Assistant District Attorney George P. Monaghan, who prosecuted was an agent of a gambling syndicate possibly centring in New Jersey.

Washington, Jan. 10. (AP)— Farnk Filchock, New York Giants pro football star who was offered a bribe in a New Yorkers' attempt to fix a champion grid game, said today he had "done nothing wrong" and desires to continue in football.

"I was asked to do a dishonest thing," Filchock told a reporter. "I refused. Because I proved I was honest. Will it hurt my football career?"

A New York jury has convicted Alvin J. Paris of attempting to bribe Filchock and Merle Hapes, Giant fullback. Testimony showed that Paris wanted the Chicago Bears to win the championship game by ten points.

Back at his home in Washington hopeful that his temporary suspension will be lifted by Bert Bell, National Football League commissioner, Filchock told reporters he had failed to report the bribe attempt because he feared gangsters. Later he said no threat ever had been made against him.

He said that if he is barred from fobtball "I'll have plenty to say."

Edmonton Flyers Riding High In Western Hockey

Calgary Stampeders, Champions Last Year, Are Only Two Games Behind

(By The Canadian Press)

Edmonton Flyers, current leadership of the Western Canada Senior Hockey League, have served notice that they will be just as tough an aggregation in the second half of the schedule as they were in the first half.

The high-flying Edmonton club, ousted from the league leadership only once since they took over Dec. 3, have won 15 games, lost 5 and tied 2 for 32 points.

Calgary Stampeders, national champions last year, trail Flyers by two points. They have hung up 13 wins, five losses, and four ties.

Stamps took over the top rung for a 24-hour period last week, after they had chalked up five straight wins in as many games. But Flyers won their next two encounters to take undisputed possession of first place.

Lethbridge Maple Leafs, early pace setters in the league are in third place. The injury-ridden Leafs, defeated in their last three games, have 22 points, made up of 10 wins, 10 losses and two ties.

Alberta Too Tough

The Saskatchewan clubs, Saskatoon Elks and Regina Caps, have found the Alberta entries tough competition and are holding cellar positions. Elks, with 17 points, have a six point advantage over the cellar-dwelling Caps. The first victory of a Saskatchewan club in their swing around the Alberta circuit of the league was chalked up last week by the Elks when they defeated Leafs 6-3 in Lethbridge.

Edmonton Canadians are setting the pace in the northern division of the Alberta division of the Alberta League. Western finalists last year, the Canucks are playing in the city league with two intermediate teams and another junior club, Capitals. But their only rivals for the northern division championship are the Caps and although defeated once this year by the Caps they are almost a sure bet to cop the title.

Lethbridge Undefeated

Lethbridge Native Sons, undefeated so far this year are dominating the southern Alberta division of the league. The Sons have 14 straight victories to their credit to date including league and exhibition games with other highly rated Alberta and Saskatchewan clubs. Calgary Buffalos, although unable to defeat the Sons, have managed to get a tie after several close games. Drumheller Miners trail the league.

Regina Patricias are holding a slight edge over Moose Jaw Canucks for the leadership of the Saskatchewan junior league. Prince Albert Hawks and Notre Dame Hounds, the other entries in the league, haven't showed much over the powerful Pats and Canucks, although Hawks upset the dope recently by defeating Canucks.

THE BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

Last night' sole National Hockey League game served to send Max Bentley of Chicago and Roy Conacher, Detroit, into a fifth place tie in the scoring race with 28 points apiece. Bentley picked up a goal and an assist to increase his total to 12 goals and 16 assists while Conacher garnered a goal to boost himself to 15 goals and 13 assists.

137 Racing Days For Ont. in '47, Increase of 20

Two top Candian and United States racing associations last night announced plans for the 1947 racing season. At Toronto, the Incorporated Canadian Racing Association disclosed its 1947 Ontario racetrack season would be 137 days, 20 more than last summer, and at New York, the State Racing Commissior, acting on applications made by various associations, approved a racing season of 189 days, and in addition, it was stated a four-day charity meeting may follow the regular dates.

The Ontario season opens May 9 and closes Nov. 3, the New York season runs from April 5 to Nov. 11.

Toronto-born Ted Atkinson, last season's leading U.S. jockey with 233 wins, went down in a spill yesterday at Miami's Tropical Park when his mount, eight-year-old Bullrush, "got the staggers" and bolted through the wooden rail of the track. Atkinson was unhurt but the horse was so badly injured it was thought it would have to be destroyed.

Bill Taihert and Gardnar Mulloy, U.S. Davis Cup players who stayed on in Australia after the U.S. copped the cup, advanced to the finals of the South Australia tennis tournament yesterday at Adelaide and will meet for the singles title Saturday.

A list of 82 entries for the historic Grand National steeplechase at Aintree, topped by Lovely Cottage, 1945 winner, was announced at London yesterday. The National will be held March 28.

One of hockey's greatest goalkeepers, the late Charles (chuck) Gardiner, whose play highlighted Chicago Black Hawks Stanley Cup triumph in 1934, will have a permanent hockey memorial, following announcement yesterday by Bill Toblu, Black Hawks President, that the Charles Gardiner goalkeeper's memorial trophy has been donated by him to the United States Hockey Legue.

WE HAVE A FRIEND....

"who lives way back north, who only comes to Belleville once a year, to visit his daughter. He says that a couple of weeks in the city is all he can take .. But he always pays us a visit, to renew his acquaintance with the Plant. He says it is a pleasure to see where his clothes get cleaned regularly, because you see, even though our friend lives many miles from Belleville, our MODERN service also extends many miles from our Plant, and we have satisfied customers, all over the place .. Furthermore he is never tired, nervous or in a hurry. (Please dont misunderstand us; we love ALL our customers. But a smile and a bit of patience can get practically anything out of us.)

RAWDON

40th Wedding Anniversary Is Celebrated

Rawdon, (Special.) —Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Sarles, Salem, entertained about thirty guests to a dinner party in honor of Mrs. Sarles' parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Johnston, who were married at Mt. Pleasant, forty years ago on Christmas Day.

A special dinner, was served with a lovely wedding cake as a centrepiece. The honored guests were the recipients of a hall tree, an electric table lamp with ruby base, a reflector and rose bowl.

The guests included the bride's mother, Mrs. Emma Summers, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus Summers, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Thrasher, Mount Pleasant; Mr. and Mrs. James Sharp, Hoards, Mr. and Mrs. Boulter Johnston; Mr. and Mrs. Wilbert Hagerman and Harold; Mr. and Mrs. Murney Johnston and Dwayne; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Watson and Barbara; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Sarles and Mae.

As the occasion was also the fifth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Sarles, they also were the recipients of several lovely gifts.

The bride and groom of forty years ago were completely surprised but they accepted the gifts and spoke briefly expressing appreciation to their family and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston have a host of Rawdon friends who join in extending congratulations at this time.

Reception Held For Recent Bride, Mrs. S. Wonnacott

An interesting social event of the New Year was a reception in honor of Mrs. Spence Wonnacott, (nee Joy Putman), a recent bride, held Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Albert Wonnacott, 20 Green Street, when many friends honored the bride with their presence and good wishes.

The door was opened for the guests by Miss Ann Putman, younger sister of Mrs. S. Wonnacott. Receiving with the hostess, Mrs. Albert Wonnacott, were the bride and her mother, Mrs. Harold Putman.

Mrs. W. Oliphant invited the guests to the tea room, which was attractively lighted, with white candles. The tea table was covered with a handsome handmade lace cloth, centred with a bowl of roses on a reflector, and candles in silver candelabra.

Mrs. J. Ingram and Mrs. W. Wonnacott presided over the silver tea services, and were assisted in serving by Mrs. C. Burrowes, Mrs. N. Meldrum, Mrs. C. Lowther and Miss D. Wonnacott.

Mrs. C. Bishop was in charge of the Guest Book.

WOMEN'S ACTIVITIES

WALLBRIDGE W.A.-W.M.S.

Since the first Wednesday of January fell on New Year's Day this year, Wallbridge ladies held their joint meeting of the W.A. and W.M.S. on the second Wednesday, at the home of the W.A. President, Mrs. L. J. Ketcheson, with a good attendance.

Mrs. Ketcheson presided for the W.A. meeting, with Mrs. E. Harvey reading a New Year prayer. The Treasurer's report showed a substantial balance on hand. A discussion followed on ways and means of raising money, and it was decided to continue the use of the Birthday Box Contest in two six-months periods with Mrs.B. Hamann and Mrs. C. Sine as secretaries, the losers to entertain the winners at the end of the year. Other matters of business being discussed the meeting adjourned.

The W.M.S. meeting, in charge of Mrs. K. Kingston, followed immediately, being opened with a Worship Service as given in the Missionary Monthly. Mrs. Kingston was assisted in this by Mrs. H. Ketcheson, Mrs. Chas. Fair and Mrs. R. F. Elliott. The treasurer reported that the allocation of this Auxillary was reached for 1946. Four Group Leaders were appointed as follows—Mrs. S. M. Nicolson, Mrs. Harold Phillips, Mrs. Earl White and Mrs. W. Sine. Mrs. Kingston gave a resume of a chapter from the study book, the subject being "Labor and Industry in India". She said "There are many problems to face in India for many of the people are very poor there, and conditions such as Canadians cannot rightly understand". A quiz followed, bringing out the facts that great quantities of cotton, cement, rubber and other products valuable for export trade are produced, and although India is only about two-thirds the size of Canada, India can boast of almost equal railway mileage as our own Dominion. Another problem confronting the people is that of proper housing and of factory labor separating husbands from their families. The National Christian Council is doing everything possible to relieve the situation, but more help is needed.

The meeting closed with the National Anthem.

Annual Meeting of St. Thomas W.A.

The annual meeting of the Senior Branch of St. Thomas W.A. was held on the afternoon of Jan. 8th. in the Parish House, with the president, Mrs. S. Morton in charge.

Rev. A. Smith opened the meeting with a hymn and prayers, after which Mrs. Morton cordially welcomed the members and extended New Year greetings to all present.

During the business period Mrs. H. R. Gibson presented a report of all meetings during 1946, and the Corresponding Secretary reported the number of cards and letters sent to different members. Mrs. B. Feather, Dorcas Secretary, reported sending a complete outfit of new clothing for a boy of thirteen to the Elkhorn Indian Residential School, and two bales of good used clothes shipped to Mrs. Paul at Prince Albert, to be distributed to the needy in that extensive parish. Mrs. Feather spoke of the need of assuring the workers, who labor undr many difficulties and privations, that they are remembered in thought and prayers and that this be indicated by the generous gifts made to the W.A. Mrs. Morton spoke along the same lines, pointing out that it is essential to keep these facts before the members.

Mrs. Saunders reported thirty subscriptions to "Living Message", two gift copies being given each month to lonely women. Mrs. Wilkinson gave her report on the "Extra-Cent-a-Day" and as usual showed a substantial increase. She is starting on the 17th., year in this worthwhile department, and the W.A. members are deeply indebted to her for her faithful discharge of the duties devolving upon her. Mrs. Morton gave a concise account of how this money is spent, saying: "There are always unexpected things cropping up which need immediate attention, such as a leaking roof, and it is for these things that the 'Extra cents are used." Red Cross sewing was reported by Mrs. Harry Smith and Mrs. Saunders told of the work of the Junior W.A. under the supervision of Mrs. Gorham, Mrs. McNish and Mrs. Saunders.

Mrs. H. R. Gibson, leader of the Girls' Auxiliary, reported the girls working enthusiastically on a layette, the material being supplied by the Red Cross. Mrs. Holway and Mrs. Ketcheson are associated with Mrs. Gibson, and Mrs. Ketcheson intends giving lectures on "Baby Care" as a part of the girls' training.

The Treasurer, Mrs. Dilnutt, presented a comprehensive and gratifying report, the past year being financially successful, due in no small measure to the untiring efforts of Mrs. Dilnutt. The work with the "Little Helpers" is growing, the enrollment increasing throughout the year.

Rev. Arthur Smith congratulated the members on the work of the year, and asked for a report from the Nominating Committee, to which Mrs. Percy Geen responded, presenting the following slate of officers for 1947: Honorary President, Mrs. Ackerill; Hon. Vice President, Mrs. A. Smith; President, Mrs. S. E. Morton; First Vice-President, Mrs. P. Geen; Second Vice-President, Mrs. Cummings; Recording Secretary, Mrs. Harry Smith; Cor. Secretary, Mrs. G. Brunton; Treasurer, Mrs. H. Dilnutt; Secretary for "Little Helpers", Mrs. Dilnutt; Leader for Girls' W.A., Mrs. H. R. Gibson, Mrs. Holway, Mrs. Ketcheson; Secretary for "Extra-cent-a-Day," Mrs. B. Wilkinson; Dorcas Secretaries, Mrs. B. Feather, Mrs. J. Tilley; Junior W.A., Mrs. Saunders, Mrs. Gorham, Mrs. McNish; Secretary for "Living Message", Mrs. Saunders. The slate was unanimously accepted as presented.

Marmora

C. W. L. MEETING

Marmora (Special)—The January meeting of the Catholic Women's League was held in Sacred Heart School on Tuesday evening. The president, Mrs. J. Black occupied the chair and there was a good attendance of members. The meeting opened with prayer led by Rev. H. J. Farrell and the League Hymn.

In the absence of the secretary Mrs. Hugh Brady, Miss Florence Auger took over her duties and considerable correspondence was dealt with. Several thank you letters were read from sick members and shutins, who had received baskets of Christmas Cheer. The president advised that a box had been forwarded to the Sisters of Service, containing holy cards, pictures, puzzles, story books, religious calendars, medals, etc., to be used as prizes for children in catechism classes. The president also mentioned that a cheque for fifteen dollars had been forwarded to Rev. Father King, a missionary at San Dominigo and also that the national per capita tax had been paid.

The treasurer's report was given by Mrs. C. Crawford and reports were also read by the conveners of Social Welfare, Child Welfare, Red Cross and Study Clubs, Miss Mary Hughes convener of Red Cross work, gave out blocks for crib blankets and yarn for knitting for the members to take home.

Mrs. Black then gave a resume of the year's work commencing May 1st and it was noted that seven hundred and eighty-one dollars and fifteen cents had been raised in that time.

It was decided that two members would be appointed each month to visit the sick and shutins. Mrs. S. A. Stephens and Mrs. W. Pearson volunteered to make the visits for January.

It was also decided that the monthly meetings would be held on the first Tuesday of each month.

Plans were made to entertain the altar boys on January 22nd with a supper and a program of games.

Mrs. Black urged the members to continue their efforts in the coming year, and by their service store up merits for themselves in the world to come.

Rev. H. J. Farrell then addressed the members briefly. He spoke of the true meaning of Christmas and wished for all a fulfillment of their hopes in the New Year.

It was decided to send layettes to the triplets born recently to Mr. and Mrs. Davidson, near Maynooth.

The members practised the League songs which will in future be sung at the meetings.

Mrs. W. Shannon conducted a quiz contest which was won by Mrs. J. Belanger.

Miss Mary Hughes contributed a humorous reading entitled "Auntie Doleful's Visit."

A few games of bingo were played after which refreshments were served by the committee in charge, and the meeting adjourned.

Beauty Care for Your Neck

When you give your complexion its nightly creaming don't forget to do your neck.

By HELEN FOLLETT

MORE important than the facial treatment sometimes is the "neckial" that goes with it. One has to keep that ivory pillar white and satin smooth. A beautifully formed neck, graceful and unadorned, is more priceless than a necklace of pearls that encircles one that has gone saggy and fiddle-stringy. Don't let your neck go back on you. It will if you don't give it a little beautifying attention now and then.

Women who are not interested in head pose are likely to regret the bad habit of keeping the chin lowered. There are muscles designed for the purpose of keeping the throat in good condition. If they aren't given exercise—which they get when the head is held properly—they go into a state of dissolution. The woman who carries herself beautifully will find herself with few figure defects when she reaches the autumn of life. She had had due regard for the laws of health. Prolonged youthfulness is her reward.

The Nightly Creaming

When doing your nightly creaming of the complexion, have at hand a heavy emollient for use on your throat. It must be so firm that it will not permit the fingers to slip. Massage it in with an up and down stroke, the flattened fingers of one hand following the fingers of the other hand.

Have the strokes so firm that they will bring a glow to the flesh. Do quick slapping and patting movements. Run the finger tips along the jaw line from chin tip to ear lobes.

While the cream remains on give yourself an ice friction. Nothing like it to put ginger in the blood stream.

But don't forget to keep your head balanced. No tilting of the nose, no dropping of the chin. A level head is a good thing to have—level inside and outside.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Guest Gift

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I live in Texas, and friends of mine have asked me to be their guest in their home in a city near New York. In all I shall spend five weeks in their home. I thought perhaps it would be nice to bring a gift for the mother or my girl friend. Or since I shall be traveling across the country, I wondered if it would be all right if I bought something when I arrive there and so avoid packing and carrying another item. And in either case do you think the gift should be something personal for the mother, or can it be something for the home? What would you suggest as a gift?

Sue

This is such an important and generous invitation (a five-weeks visit these days is quite an undertaking for most hostesses!) that you should plan most carefully the gift you bring to your friend's mother. To wait to buy something when you arrive detracts, I think, from the thoughtfulness of the gesture. I think this particular gift should be something personal, perhaps a purse for general day-time use, or a medium-size envelope-purse for rather dressy afternoon wear. Then when you send your bread-and-butter letter you might send the hostess some article that you have observed, during your visit, would be especially welcomed by the family.

A Mother Writes to Teacher

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have recently entered my little daughter in a school here, and this school demands a note explaining every absence. The note, I have been informed by the school, is to be addressed to a child's room teacher. Will you please give me the correct form for such a note of explanation of a child's absence? And should I sign this note "Mrs. William Brown"?

C. E. B.

A proper form for your note is:

Dear Miss Smith,

Because of the storm yesterday and because Joan is so susceptible to catching cold, I thought it wise to keep her at home. Will you please excuse her absence?

Very sincerely yours,
Celia Eliot Brown
(Mrs. William Brown)

(Notice the correct form for your direct signature of this note; this should be your informal name. You add your formal name, in parentheses, for identification.)

Introducing Her Stepfather

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My mother has recently remarried. Most of my friends have not met my stepfather. How should I introduce him. Should I mention the word "stepfather" in my introductions? And should I mention his name?

Ruth.

Yes, you should mention "stepfather," and for a while at least, until your friends become more familiar with your mother's new name, I suggest you mention your stepfather's name in your introductions. For example, "Miss Marsh, this is my stepfather, Mr. Norman."

Only Proper Way to Eat Good Winter Apple

(By Grace Luckhart, in the Vancouver Daily Province.)

They were two small boys, standing at my door, asking for a shell out.

"Apples?" said I, producing a dish of Mackintosh Reds, polished and shining.

"Naw," said one. "We don't want any apples."

"Well," said the other, graciously. "I might take them home. My mother could make a pie."

"So could this mother make a pie," said I, closing the door on them firmly.

I suppose you can't blame the kids. But perhaps, some day in the future they'll find themselves living in a country where there are no apples. And they'll remember the taste and the smell of them.

I can't remember as children that we ever wasted apples. Every Ontario farm had its orchards, and also its pigs, with a taste for apples. Neither can I remember anyone raising them commercially. But—

* * *

I do recall that one Summer my mother gave a bushel of harvest apples to the minister. I wouldn't have minded sharing with him, but that was our whole crop of Yellow Transparents for the year. Mother silenced my grumbling by remarking that it ought to be a privilege to give our best apples to the Lord. I tried to picture God, sitting on His golden throne, eating our apples, but unfortunately I could see only the minister's kids, polishing off the whole bushel.

Those Ontario orchards really had character. Ours had been planted by Grandpa McLeod, not in orderly rows nor with any special plan. Just a Northern Spy, then a Snow apple, then a Russet and a Talman Sweet. We even had a Sheep's Nose, an apple with a core embedded in pure nectar, when you bit into it.

* * *

It was a nice happy go lucky arrangement. The trees needed pruning very badly, but had not been touched since the Spring my father had fallen out of the Red Astrachan tree. He seemed to take a scunner to the whole orchard after that.

The orchard was a lovely place, in any season of the year, but I think it was most beautiful in Spring, when its petals drifted down over the new green grass and the old stone fences.

Even in Winter there was a fascination about it, when the snow birds hopped about in its bare branches, and the snow piled high around the trunks of the trees, and the little mice and the rabbits made tracks in the snow like the fancy stitches on a crazy quilt.

At the top of the orchard was the apple pit. Not until the iron curtain of Winter had closed us in, was that treasure house opened. Then we dug through the snow and the frozen earth until we came to the yellow straw, with the apples embedded safe from the frost. The Talman Sweets, especially, were wonderful baked in the oven in the biggest bread pan, sprinkled with brown sugar and served with thick cream.

Out in Saskatchewan we literally starved for apples. We were forty miles by wagon from the nearest store, and there were no apples anyway until the variety came in from Ontario. When the harvest was over, the crop threshed and hauled in to Alameda, father would bring back a barrel of apples. Good hard Winter apples, you could whack on your knee until the whole side was soft and pulpy beneath the skin. Then you could suck it with loud noises that could be heard on the next quarter-section.

That, to me, was the only proper way to eat a good hard apple.

What's Ahead in Furs

By ALICE ALDEN

WE LIKE to see what's going on at mid-winter fur shows for the numbers offer more than a passing clue as to next year's fur fashion trends. At a recent fashion show we noted much interest in this Weinstein design, a boxy coat of Argentine nutria, a topper detailed with a long, double-breasted effect, with wide collar and revers, banded full sleeves and notched hemline. It has definitely a different fur-coat look, we'd venture to opine!

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Maybe This Girl is Just in Love With a Uniform

"Two months ago," writes a 17-year-old girl who signs her letter "Heartbroken Blonde," "I met a very nice sailor at a party. You can say it was love at first sight."

The young man was 18, and, after the fashion of many light-hearted seafarers, he devoted his stay in the girl's neighborhood to giving her an intensive rush, making such a thorough job of it that "he told me he loves me very much, and that when I am 19 he wants to marry me."

Unfortunately, this 17-year-old was not sufficiently wise in the ways of sailors to take all this with equal light-heartedness and the important grain of salt. So, when he shipped out on the heels of his protestations of love, promising to write her from his first port of call, instead of saying, "Goodbye; so nice to have met you!" and waving him gaily out of her life, she began to make watching for the mailman her chief interest.

"It has been two weeks, and I have not heard from him," she writes tearfully. "I'm almost going crazy. I can't sleep and I have lost my appetite. I don't care for going out or anything. All I do all day is think about him. Even my studies have dropped. I just cant seem to pull myself together. Do you think I should try and forget him, or just hope and pray that he will write to me? I know that he is going to be very hard to forget, because I love him so much."

In answer to this girl, I'm going to pass on to her the advice given in a letter just received from a young wife, who had her own experience of falling hard for a man in uniform and believing that it would be impossible to forget him. While her experience is somewhat unusual in that it ended far more happily than things of this sort are apt to do, she nevertheless learned from it some basic truths which would be helpful to other young people, if they would only be willing to accept them.

Here are some of the things she wrote me:

"When I was 16, I met a man of 20. He was my sister's boy friend's brother, and he wore a navy uniform, to boot. Looking back now, I realize how silly I must have been to have been attracted at first sight by a good-looking fellow in his country's uniform, when I didn't know the person underneath it.

"Of course I didn't let him know my feelings, and all during his leave I sat around the house too wretched and heartbroken to even think of going out with any other boy as long as I lived."

You see, 'Heartbroken Blonde?' Other girls, like you, have thought they had a case of "love at first sight." And this girl didn't even have the satisfaction of being noticed by the man. So her sailor went back to sea without having given her a second glance, and she proceeded to make herself thoroughly miserable, thinking about him constantly and telling herself, just as "Heartbroken Blonde" is doing, that it was impossible to forget him.

"But," she writes, "I found out it wasn't as impossible as I thought! He was away quite some time, and when I heard from his brother that he wanted me to write him a letter. I did, but I was careful of what I put into it. I wrote just a friendly one, telling little bits of news. And he never answered."

No letters either, "Heartbroken Blonde." Just like you.

But then, all of a sudden, the war was over, the sailor came home, and his brother brought him around again. "He was surprised to see I had grown up, and it was my turn to act a little aloof."

Well, maybe you've guessed the outcome. Anyhow, they're married now, and are busily engaged living "happily ever after."

Now I'm not suggesting, 'Heartbroken Blonde,' that your story is necessarily going to have the same happy ending. It might have by some miracle, of course, but frankly the odds are against it.

But what I want you to remember out of this other girl's experience is, first, what she says about it not being as impossible to forget as you think it is, and, second, this little paragraph with which she ended her letter. It puts that business of "love at first sight" right into its proper place.

"What you first feel for a person isn't love," she says. "Love isn't a matter of just looking at some one and deciding you love him. It takes time and understanding and a lot of other little things I couldn't mention here, but it goes much deeper than just good looks. It's the person himself."

So pull yourself up short and stop making yourself sick over your boy in a sailor suit, "Heartbroken Blonde," no matter how handsome and charming he was. If he meant what he said, you'll hear from him. If he didn't, and you don't hear from him, forget him.

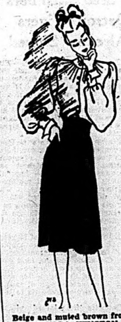
The Two-Piece Look



Beige and muted brown frock

By VERA WINSTON

THE ONE-PIECE DRESS with a two-piece look is a fashion whimsy that seems to have taken firm root for it appears again in everything from sports wear to dinner wear. Creamy beige and muted brown wool are used for this one. The blouse top is of wool crepe, and is collarless with a narrow yoke from which inside tucks radiate. The sleeves are full to the slim wrists with turn-back cuffs, that fasten with tiny gold buttons as does the bodice front. The skirt has a built-up midriff and is topped by a self belt. Gathers form the hip yoke in front only.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

What Do Your Eyes Say, Lady?

With a lovely pair of eyes and the kind of wit and wisdom that tell her how to use them, almost any girl can come pretty close to getting good beauty grades. It is not only the color and the shape, but also what goes on in those pools of mystery that counts. The little girl who couldn't make her eyes behave—because she didn't want to—must have had more suitors trailing at her heels than the gallant, handsome crew that followed the Merry Widow round about. Oh maybe you don't remember back that far.

The prettiest of girls falls far short of pulchritude par if her eyes carry a cold, steely, calculating expression. She's a "gimme" girl. You can't trust her.

Eyes constantly register the qualities of one's character. They can express fear, affection, sympathy, confusion, stupidity or the alert mind. If they carry a twinkle, they are bound to intrigue one. Laughing eyes carry the beauty banner.

Eyes don't need much care. All they ask is that they not be abused by reading or sewing in a dim light, and that they be given the aid of lenses when vision weakens. No woman pays as much attention to her eyes as she does to her complexion, her figures, her hair.

If a woman's health is not up to standard, the grey state of her complexion will worry her more than the condition of her eyes. If she is played out because of late hours and loss of sleep, it is her tired body that frets her. Yet from the standpoint of appearance the eyes are a surer barometer of fitness than any other part of the body. They take on a dull look. Little hammocks appear beneath them. Squint lines form. With such a state of affairs, a woman is likely to suspect that she is "getting along." That's nothing to yodel about.

We always get back to the fact that health and vitality are the mainstays of good-looks. We drive ourselves weary with activities of one kind or another and then expect that a couple of facials and a new outfit of cosmetics will put us all together again.

There is no form of vanity so senseless as the refusal to put on specs when the eyes are crying out for help and relief. Yet thousands of women are guilty of that mistake. Adopted early, it sometimes happens that glasses need to be worn but a short time, then may be discarded. If you postpone the wearing of glasses, the optical mechanism becomes more and more impaired. The entire nervous system may suffer. Headaches may result. And you can be very sure that turkey tracks will be with you in short order because you are partially closing your eyelids to protect your eyes from light or strain.

Fashion Flashes

COMING UP for Spring is the long-jacketed navy suit. Navy gabardine makes a smart suit with the long, fitted jacket cutaway at the front hem. Silver buttons fasten the front up to the shirt collar and there are double rounded flaps at the slanting hip pockets.

TOPPING OFF smart after-dark outfits are beautiful hats, such as the off-the-face scoop-rim bonnet of caramel beige hatter's plush which has aigrette fronds arranged on streamers to be draped, at will, in scarf fashion.

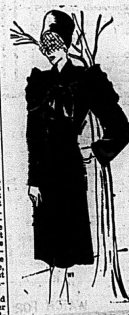
WE DON'T KNOW when we've seen such pretty frocks for junior teen-agers. Navy blue faille is used for a pretty afternoon frock made on svelte princess lines with flared skirt that is edged with a crisp pettitcoat ruffle of pink eyelet. V neckline in back and a laced sash and bustle bow of pink taffeta.

MID-SEASON fashions are always interesting because they are indicative of coming trends. This is especially true of millinery. A mid-season model encountered several times this week is the shallow, padre-type hat with a wide brim that is softly curled. A nice design is in pink felt with velvet streamers and much black veiling.

THERE'S WHIMSY to spare in some of the new silk prints. One design shows lively monkeys swinging through lush, leafy trees, some bearing cocoanuts. Another design shows vivid, stylized playing cards, poker chips and gold rope scrolled on an intense blue ground.

THE GLEAM OF GOLD adds interest to simple black frocks. A plain black silk crepe frock, cut on slim, short-sleeved lines, becomes festive when treated to a gold mesh belt that teams up with 10-button mitts of hand crocheted gold metallic thread.

Fashions Of Yesteryear



Coat with detachable shawl

By VERA WINSTON

DESIGNERS have gone to the wardrobe that is a repository of past fashions for many of their newest creations. For this coat, a variation of the old-fashioned shoulder shawl has been worked out, as can be seen from the sketch. The coat is black woolen, the detachable draped shawl is of the same fabric, and is caught with a black satin knot and tie-ends. The simple rolled collar closes casually above the self-buttoned front closing. The back has slightly more flare.

Food and Drink Aplenty And The Charge in Keeping

(W. H. Colclough, of Vancouver, in Stratford Beacon-Herald.)

"This is the 'Strip'," explained our friend, as he slowed his car in an intensively attractive street. "This section is not in the city of Hollywood, nor in the city of Los Angeles, but rather in between, and is controlled by the County. There is little police supervision and what would get you into trouble in the city goes by the board here."

The street was brilliantly lighted with multi-colored lights, and the section could not be distinguished from the adjacent territory.

"That place there," continued our guide, "charges $2.50 for a cup of coffee and a hot dog."

The street was lined with taverns and eating joints with top-notch luxury settings. We rolled to a stop in front of one of them. "This house is patterned after an old English Inn; let's go in and have dinner."

* * *

A palm tree sentinelled the curb and two great ferns arched the door. When we entered we ran directly into a D-shaped bar. The place was poorly lighted, with ten or twelve men and women lolling in swivel-chairs, drinking. It was early in the evening, but the place had a swilly smell reminiscent of the old bar days. But this was different. Instead of standing up with feet on the brass rail, young men and women were sitting in easy chairs, drinking hard liquor. "The old birds have either too much sense or not enough money to drink here," chortled our friend.

A porter directed us past the bar into one of several side rooms, decked out with tables partially set with silver and linen, and poorly lighted with candles and an imitation coal oil lantern hanging from a beam in the centre of the room. Curios of the 17th Century draped the walls and nooks, protected by two sets of armor, which the knights of old wore in battle.

An English waitress, born in Ireland took over, setting us down to a table in the corner. There were no menu cards. She simply spoke her price. Did we wish cocktails? Soup? There was no limit to the kind or quality of the cocktail offered, and the soup was excellent. With soup finished, we trotted out into the kitchen and joined some others from the various rooms in the house in a semi-circle before tables burdened with exceptionally well-cooked turkey, ham, beef, chicken, all hot and tempting, with cold meats as a second preference.

We indicated our choice, and then stood patiently looking on mutely, like a bunch of cows waiting to be watered. One fractious middle-aged dame got impatient and bolted, saying she wasn't going to be treated like a dog waiting for a bone. We carried our steaming order back to the table and proceeded under our own power. It was an abundant meal, well cooked, with no shortages of anything. Across the room a young fellow and his girl dawdled over their plates. The girl was obviously drunk, and the young man not very far behind.

When the main part of our meal had been badly mutilated, the waitress carried away the dishes and asked, what next? You had your choice of one or all of the desserts, many of them sauced with your own favorite brand of liquor, as much as you liked.

From the angle of the man who didn't drink, it was a good meal, and from the angle of the man who did drink it was a good meal. When the guests got up and staggered out, one could hardly tell whether it was too much whisky or two much plum pudding that made the glutton wobble.

The English waitress from Ireland brought on the bill which ran above—a whole lot above—what we used to get for an entire hog in the old days on the farm.

As we passed the bar we noticed that every seat was taken and some of the so-called cultured folk were getting noisy. "It's early yet," explained our friend. "It gets going properly around midnight, and beyond."

We made our way out through the ferns and palm trees and got a lungful of clean air, untouched by the woozy, bad breath of befuddled men; looked up at a thin moon, and realized that the best things in life are those which come to us without cover charge. We also remembered that the good ladies in the Presbyterian church at Avonton could put up a better meal for 60 cents—without the swilly smell.

Befuddled Dopesters Can't Figure Out National Hockey League Due to Many Upsets

Chicago Black Hawks Move Into Detroit and Take Wings 6 to 4

By SYD THOMAS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

After this week's developments in the National Hockey League, about the only sure thing the befuddled dopesters can bank on is that there isn't any sure things.

As if it wasn't bad enough for an apparently inspired band of Detroit Red Wings to upset the mighty Canadiens Wednesday night, the lowly and despised Chicago Black Hawks finally turned and pasted Wings 6 - 4 right in Detroit last night. Those were the same Hawks who took a 10-4 lambasting in Toronto Wednesday, and haven't been able to stop Canadiens all season.

The win didn't help the last-place Hawks much — they still are six points behind Detroit — but it lost Wings a chance to move into fourth place ahead of New York Rangers, who have a one-point lead on them.

Elsewhere, the standings were unchanged, with Toronto Maple Leafs floating along in first place five points ahead of Montreal and Boston Bruins in third, 11 points behind Canadiens and three ahead of Rangers.

Four in Two Minutes

Hawks struck hard, and fast last night to knock Wings for a loop. They scored four goals in less than two minutes — three of them inside of 56 seconds — as they practically sewed it up in the first period.

Hawks gave Wings an early gift goal as defenceman Jack Johnson accidentally deflected Pat Lundy's shot into his own cage with his hands.

Then Alex Kaleta caged Red Hamill's rebound at 9:09 and after Detroit forward Ted Lindsay was penalized, Max Bentley scored at 10:04, Bill Mosienko at 10:16 and Adam Brown at the 11-minute mark.

Former Hawk Leo Reise scored for Detroit at 6:45 in the second, but Bill Garson got that back at 13:02 before Sid Abel of Detroit netter another at 15:44.

Roy Conacher put Wings in shooting range at 5:08 of the 3rd, but Clint Smith made it certain with 29 seconds to go.

A Quick Shift

Canadiens meet Hawks at Montreal tomorrow night, and then flip back to Chicago for a return engagement Sunday. The two teams have made arrangements to travel by special train to make sure of getting to Chicago by game time.

Leafs play Boston and Rangers in their week-end chore.

Canadiens are hoping to give themselves a present by making it seven in a row over Hawks after handing a gift Thursday to Senator Donat Raymond, president of the Canadian Arena Company.

As defenceman Butch Bouchard remarked in presenting the Senator with a miniature Doberman, from coach Dick Irvin's select doggery:

Busher's Comeback Attempt Features $50,000 Handicap

Arcadia, Calif., Jan. 10. (AP) —A couple of major turf questions are slated to be answered tomorrow in the $50,000 San Pasqual handicap at Santa Anita.

1. Can Busher make the comeback grade?

2. How will the field shape up for the $100,000 Santa Anita handicap March 1?

On the first item, it seems definite that this finally is it as far as Busher's aspirations are concerned. The filly champion of 1945 has reached the put-up-or-else stage.

She has been brought along cautiously by owner Louis B. Mayer and Trainer Graceton Philpot with the hundred-grander very much in mind. In her first start last week since her breakdown nearly a year and a half ago, the mare (she's turned five) ran well behind in a six-furlong sprint.

But Jockey Jackie Westrope had her rolling in the stretch after a virtual standstill start. It was little more than a workout and the former queen of the turf may find the mile and one-sixteenth distance tomorrow much to her liking.

Busher will pack 120 pounds and probably will be coupled with be faithful, another five-year-old mare which may be the horse to beat.

A field of more than 15 eligibles for the $100,000 handicap is expected to go in the San Pasqual, and tomorrow's results should help to give a line on March 1 chances.

Others, whose hopes should be decided one way or another: W. D. Rorex' Texas Sandman, N. W. Church's Quick Reward, Sunshine Stable's Buzfuz and Let's Dance, Abe Hirschberg's Occupy, Rolando and Stempel's Abrogue and possibly Main Chance Farm's Lord Boswell and Knockdown.

GIANT ROOKIE APPEARS CERTAIN TO BE POPULAR

Clint Hartung Purchased for $25,000 and Four Players

By JOE REICHLER

New York, Jan. 10. (AP)—Clint Hartung, 23-year-old New York Giant Rookie, appears certain to become one of the most publicized newcomers to the big leagues in the 1947 Spring Training season.

Even if the big, raw-boned native of Hondo, Tex., for whom the Giants parted with $25,000 in cash in addition to four players, fails to come anywhere near his terrific buildup, he should prove a bargain buy: If nothing else, he is sure to bring the Giants close to a million dollars' worth of publicity.

Everybody is anxious to see the 215-pound, six-foot, five-inch almost legendary figure in action. So many stories have been told about his amazing prowess on the diamond that he has become somewhat of a character.

Not all the tales told about him are true, but if only a fourth are fact, then the Giants have come up with a player who is a second Jimmy Foxx at the plate, can pitch as fast as Bob Feller, run like Pete Reiser and throw like Tris Speaker.

"He sounds too good to believe," said Mel Ott, Giants' manager. "I've never heard such raves about a kid player. The first thing I'll do when he reports to Phoenix, Ariz., next month will be to put a bat in his hands and see if he is real. I don't know where he fits into my plans simply because I don't know whether he is a pitcher or a hitter. If he is half as good as they say he is I may use him three days in the outfield and the fourth day on the mound."

Hartung's biggest booster is Eddie Dyer, manager of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals.

Dyer saw him play army baseball in Houston and vows he hits balls out of sight beyond fences that no one else can reach. Dyer tells about a game in which Hartung played first base and accounted for the only run of the game with a tremendous homer. Along about the sixth inning the pitcher tired and Hartung relieved him. He faced 13 men, walked the first, made the second batter foul out and fanned the other 11.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

If the calibre of hockey as played by the bouncing buckaroos of the Intermediate "B" group at the Hume Arena the other night is a sample of what can be expected during the season, then the box-office need have no fear of creeping paralysis. For the lads of the surrounding district, to wit, Trenton Flyers, Mountain View Bombers, Bloomfield Sky Chiefs and the Picton Combines, chucked the book out of the figurative window and cut loose with a bruising heavy-hitting type that warmed the cockles of the fans' hearts.

* * *

Don't get us wrong. It was not the blood and thunder brand of hockey that is so usually associated with the teams from the outlying districts by the wiseheimers of the city. In fact there were consistent flashes of good hockey especially in the Mountain View-Bloomfield tilt with some outstanding individual efforts and neat passing plays. The Trenton Flyers, too, produced some classy plays and at times perfected inside blue-line combination tactics that weren't bad to gaze at.

* * *

But there were no panty-waist methods used. There was no kiss-and-make-up tactics. The lads laid on the body and the stick with abandon, and that type of hockey is what the average Mr. and Mrs. Fan likes. Show me a hockey addict that doesn't love a fight, and I'll show you a guy who is either a prevaricator or, who has been married too long.

* * *

And the boys got away with plenty. In the first game Referee Herby Colliver of Picton, apparently loves a fight or likes to watch one with the result that the boys took advantage of every opportunity to get in the sly digs. Knees, elbows and fists were brought into play and it wasn't until the third period that the official cracked down on the Donnybrookers. But it was good to watch, so the fans opine.

* * *

Referee Mike Finnegan, on the other hand, held the boys down to a certain level in the Bloomfield-Bomber tilt, but there was a lot of roughing that eluded him. Feelings were high in this game, especially in view of the fact that the squads were more or less evenly matched. The Sky Chiefs' best forte in this joust was their back-checking. They skated a mile faster than the Bombers, and not a few breakaways were checked by fast-skating Chiefs before the Flying Bomber could get his shot away.

* * *

There might be lots of coffee in Brazil, but Moe Jackson, the chunky scion of the Picton Jacksons today thought that the Brazilians were pikers as far as rubber in Belleville is concerned, rubber pucks, that is. Jackson is the hockey Horatius who held the goal-bridge against the fury of the Trenton Flyer attacking lines, and although he struck out on twelve straight pitches, he deserves the leather medal for bravery under fire.

* * *

Forty-nine plus twelve, count 'em, pucks were rained at the Man in the Iron Mask. On one occasion he stopped 9 lethal biscuits in a space of a few seconds. He speared 'em with his feet, his ears, his eyebrows and on one occasion impaled the rubber with an outflung toenail. How that guy did it, Houdini knows.

* * *

And to rub it in, more or less, when Jackson picked that rubber doughnut in the dying minutes of the game, he noticed that some one had inscribed on it "Kilroy was Here."

* * *

However, from this corner it looks as though this Intermediate "B" loop is in for an interesting season. Personally we wouldn't bet a coke slug on either Mountain View, Trenton or Bloomfield, and if Picton gets the players she is after and gets in some more practice and teamwork, the loop will be catch-as-catch-can. The first three are evenly matched and there will be some rip-snorting tangles before playoff time rolls around.

* * *

Right now Trenton is leading the loop with a brace of wins having nudged out Bloomfield in a stirring conflict in Wellington earlier in the week by a 4-2 count. Mountain View travels to Picton tonight and on paper they should take that tilt.

* * *

Flyers are back here in Belleville against Mountain View on Monday night with the same teams going back at it again on Wednesday eventide. Both these games should be productive of some heart-warming hockey and the fans should not miss these rugged tilts.

* * *

But these are only early season games and the hockey will be better as time goes on. However, officials should be on the job as these boisterous affairs with the boys having a yen toward mayhem on the side, with a little unorthodox dentistry and beak-busting thrown in, might easily lead to serious injury. The referees the other night were a trifle lax, we thought, and could have checked more of the rough stuff. Just a tip, fellas.

* * *

In the old days of hockey when men were men and clouted the foe over the noggin with the ice shillalagh with more or less aplomb, and the victim took it in his stride went off for repairs and returned to complete his chore of sixty minutes on the ice, it was purely elementary, Watson. In fact it was a nightly occurrence. Tough hombres, those oldtimers.

* * *

Kingston sports writers are going into raves over the feat of the Kingston Lions who on two occasions had only six men dressed and these Leos worked the full sixty minutes with no charge for overtime in both instances, and won the jousts egad. The never-say-die Numas did a startling chore true and now they have more sobriquets than Arty Shaw had wives. They have been dubbed the "Mighty Six" and such superman monikers, and their herculean feats in remaining upright during sixty minutes of "gruelling" hockey has been the theme of plenty of newspaper space.

* * *

Well, the doughty Lions can't keep up that pace, and perhaps by the time the intermediate "A" group starts they will be whittled down to Belleville's size. Which puts out the columnar neck for the bromidic retort courteous "We don't need any more than six men to beat yuh, pal."

* * *

On Saturday night in John L. Sullivan's grog shop, a stranger stood talking with a little old man at the bar. The stranger was praising Sullivan's fighting prowess.

"Now wait a minute," the little old man interrupted, "John isn't so much as a fighter. Why, I can lick him myself. What's more, I'll punch him in the nose anytime I feel like it."

"I'll bet you twenty you won't," replied the stranger.

* * *

No sooner said than done. The stranger snorted as the little man looked around the room, suddenly whirled, and walked over to where Sullivan was chatting with a group of friends.

From the floor, the old man swung a hard right to John L's great jowls. The stranger gaped—and waited for the worst. But Sullivan only laughed uproariously and turned back to his friends.

* * *

The little man walked across the room to collect his bet. The stranger paid the little man his money, then buttoned his coat and walked out. But he should have stuck around for the sequel.

* * *

Later in the evening John L. grabbed the little man and swung him to the top of the bar. "Boys", he roared, "take off your hats to a grand old man—Michael Sullivan—me father!"

Three Members Detroit Tigers Already Signed

Detroit, Jan. 10 — (AP)—With only three members of their 1946 American League runners-up signed for next season, Detroit Tigers today were preparing to mail 1947 baseball contracts to approximately 40 others and anticipated little difficulty in rounding up the balance of the signatures.

Such a high-priced star as Hank Greenberg, major league home run champion who reputedly earned baseball's highest pay cheque a year ago — approximately $60,000 — and southpaw pitcher Hal Newhouser, who took down an estimated $45,000 for his third straight season as a 20-game winner, headed the list of players for whom contracts will be placed in the mail.

Billy Evans, veteran of 22 years as an American League umpire and former general manager of the Cleveland Indians, took over his newly-acquired post as vice-president of the Tigers this week and immediately signed catcher George (Birdie) Tebbetts to 1947 terms.

Tebbetts thus joined pitcher Virgil Trucks and second baseman Eddie Mayo, previously signed.

Greenberg has not made known his plans for 1947 but it is believed likely that he will be back in the outfield post he patrolled before the war. Previously it was hinted that the big slugger may retire from baseball.

Sports Roundup

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 10 —(CP)— Let's go back to 1897 for a story you probably never heard before about John Honus Wagner, the whimsical, awkward-moving Dutchman who could play any position in baseball with the best of them...long since retired to the coaching ranks at Pittsburgh, Honus was playing first base at the time and startled the fans by gesticulating wildly for the pitcher to hold the ball...the flinger, nonplussed, carried through with the delivery and the batter sizzled a grounder to the shortstop, who relayed a peg to first...Honus, hunched mysteriously with left hand in his hip pocket, stabbed the ball with a bare right hand, danced with pain and raced for the clubhouse... it developed that Wagner had taken the glove off his left hand to delve for tobacco and caught the flipper in the pocket lining... the manager off Wagner's team had to use a pen knife to cut the lining away from the Dutchman's hand.

Another old time ball player, Joe Tinker, 62-year-old former Chicago shortstop of the Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance combination, will enter hospital in Orlanda, Fla., early next week to have his left foot amputated ...Tinker has been bothered by a foot infection since last October...if Joe will pardon the levity, we'd like to spring the one original joke in our collection about the baseball manager praising his new double-play, trio, Tinker-to-Evers-to-Jones.. the audience off course, says he means Tinker-to-Evers -to -Chance, and the manager crushes them with the punch line; "our team never leaves anything to chance."

Paddock Patter

Running a race track like betting on the races run there is an expensive proposition..when Hialieah opens at Miami, Fla., Jan. 17, more than 1,000 employees, drawing a weekly pay total of more than $75,000, will be on on hand to greet fans.... a crew 'round keep Hialeah's grounds primped, preened and polished and although the industry operates only 40 days a year, the track is considered a year-round show place and is a regular stop on conducted sightseeing tours.. the theme song in Canada may be "Let It Snow, Let It Snow," but at Hialeah miles of hibiscus hedges have been trimmed, acres of lawn cut and strutting pink flamingoes in the infield lake squawk happily... R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa has a stable of sharp thoroughbreds at nearby tropical, but so far his only winner has been the three-year-old Imperator, which scored his first victory last Saturday at $41.70 after being touted in New York newspapers — before the race—as a Paddock tip... McLaughlin's top three thoroughbreds, Gregalach, Wee Admiral and Kingarvie, have been knocking at the door.

PROVIDENCE REDS TRADE PLAYERS WITH ST. LOUIS

Manager Claims He Will Rid Team of All Trouble-Makers

(By The Canadian Press)

Shakeup of the American Hockey League Providence Reds is under way with Billy McComb and Bus Brayshaw traded to St. Louis in exchange for Carl Liscombe and Roland (Rosie) Rossignol.

First hint that a shakeup in the Providence club was imminent came after Pittsburgh shellacked the Reds 8-1 Wednesday and owner Lou Pieri first threatened the team with a drastic shuffle. Announcing the McComb Brayshaw trade last last night Pierie said the house-cleaning would continue "until we've cleared the squad of every troublemaker."

St. Louis meanwhile with three markers in the final frame gained a 4-4 tie with Indianapolis Caps last night in a free-swinging, 12-penalty grudge game.

In the busy but scoreless first period, the Flyers' Eddie Bush and the Caps' Hugh Miller continued their scrap in the penalty box until a policeman joined them. St. Louis' Bill Allum drew three minor penalties in the same period.

The Caps took a 2-0 lead in the second on goals by Gerry Couture and Cliff Simpson. Couture added another and Dan Summers scored, giving the Caps a 4-2 lead early in the third frame. Then Pat McCreavy added his second tally of the game and Eddie Olson counted twice for the tie.

New Haven trailed 3-1 at the end of the second period in the only other league game last night but came back to down Springfield 4-3 with Jean Paul Denis scoring the winning goal. Norm Tustin pacing the Ramblers with two goals and Alex Shibicky added the other Rambler marker. Bill Gooden, Billy Cupolo and Ray Voll scored for the losers. League standing was unchanged.

RUTH QUITE RESTLESS

New York, Jan. 10 — (AP) — Babe Ruth has had no callers except his wife since he underwent a serious operation on his neck last Monday.

While French hospital reported early today that the former home run king's condition was still "satisfactory and unchanged," it was reported that he had been suffering considerable pain since the operation and had been restless.

The former New York Yankee star has been in the hospital since last Nov. 26.

Rolled or Ground Grains—Which is Best?

The relative merits of crushing or rolling grain, compared with grinding, have been much discussed. From recently conducted surveys it was quite evident that more and more of the better cattlemen preferred Rolled Grain for their cows and horses. Feeding experts claim that Rolled or Crushed Grain is less apt to cause colic than is ground grain.

For your pig feed, we are equipped to grind your grain to any degree of fineness you wish.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE mewk(
By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Leaping Lena serves up her bridge with a hop-skip, and a jump. Toby the Trimmer is a regular corner-cutter. The best bridge is where partners touch all the bases, jumping only for needed signals.

Back we are to this pair of hands:

SOUTH
♠4
♥A Q J 5 4 3 2
♦7 4 2
♣Q 6
NORTH
♠A 6 5 2
♥K
♦A 6 5
♣A K 10 8 3

South passes. North opens with a club. South responds with a non-jump takeout to one heart. With tricks enough to help make a game, an immediate one-jump would also show two sure tricks.

So far as north has found out to here, south may have no more than three tricks. With only seven tricks in his own hand, north has not yet seen 11. His second bid must be without a jump.

Bids follow the order of choice in T-A-N; takeout, assist, and no-trump. He has no new biddable takeout suit. But his club suit is rebiddable and his second bid is thus two clubs.

When there has been no jump by either partner, the rebid of a suit does not force. So, south may pass unless he has something new to show. With plenty more, he will certainly bid again.

South has six tricks. With what north has shown, south already sees tricks enough for game or slam. He comes back with a jump rebid in his own suit; saying three hearts.

Although this jump gives north slam ideas, a trump suit must be determined. Until then, north must be content with a game. With no other bid available, his bid in this spot is three no-trump.

South then comes in with a bid of four hearts to show his suit is re-rebiddable. North now has adequate support for hearts with his lone king. He is ready to go slamming.

Shall he try for a small slam or a grand slam? If he knew how many aces and kings are held by south, it would help him decide.

Tune in and hear what else they have to say.

The Movie Column

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Sinclair Lewis, the pillar of American literature who has half a dozen significant and best-selling novels behind him, is being lured to Hollywood to write the screen play for Leo McCarey's production "Adam and Eve." This is the author's first crack at screen writing.

The play, a comedy-drama, will involve only two human characters, originally announced a year ago. Ingrid Bergman and James Stewart were selected tentatively as the stars. Both withdrew from the venture and Lewis will rewrite the photoplay completely.

Bergman Honored.

Miss Bergman, presently on Broadway in "Joan of Lorraine," got official recognition from her native land when King Gustav of Sweden awarded her "Literis et Artibus," highest Swedish award for prowess in the arts and sciences. It is given to both Swedes and foreigners.

Its presentation to Miss Bergman was, for her "outstanding acting and her dignified way of representing Swedish art in the United States."

Another Swede, Frank Sundstrom, will make his screen debut as Peter Ilich Tschaikowsky in the biographical film of the Russian composer's life, "The Tragic Symphony." Sundstrom, a graduate of the Royal Dramatic Theatre of Sweden, was seen on Broadway in 1945 in "The Assassin."

Mason Signs.

James Mason has broken down and signed a two-picture contract with Sir Alexander Korda, under the terms of which the films are to be made in the country most convenient to the star and the producer. The first one may be made this year in Hollywood, London or perhaps France. No story has been selected yet.

CHAPTER 2

"But it does, tremendously." He took her hand and looked at her. "I'm going to suggest a solution. You can't go back home to stay. It's out of the question. Sooner or later you'd run away as you have this time. You don't want to marry a boy for a refuge, and you want all your pretty illusions made real. I have a sister in New York," said Renny, "who needs a social secretary. She has a passion for entertaining and she's always losing addresses and telephone numbers, and neglects her correspondence miserably. She's rich enough to pay you a good salary. You'd be more than a secretary. Louise has a fairy godmother streak in her and she'd undoubtedly show you a good time and introduce you to no end of people."

"It sounds too good!" said Arlen, brightening at once. "Who is she?"

"Louise's husband, Richard Brandon," he said and smiled at her eagerness, "has his fingers in several prosperous industries."

"But I don't know the first thing about being a secretary . . ."

"And she won't know the first thing to do with one. I'll write her tonight and after she has taken you to parties and led you a merry chase, you may be able to make up your mind about the boy at home."

"No, I couldn't. It wouldn't be fair!" She pushed her blowing hair from her face. "I couldn't have hoped for a solution that sounds so adventurous and exciting." Arlen laughed. "Are you going back home after you've finished tucking Mr. Winstead in bed?"

Renny smiled again. "I came to see him on business. He's an astonishing old soul. He heads a large corporation but his men manage it while old Winstead nods in his desk chair. He doesn't know the first thing about the papers he signs, but he refuses to retire and nothing can pass without his trembling signature. I'm going back in a few days. I'm afraid his valet will have to tuck him in after that."

"Back where?"

"To New York."

"You live there, too?"

"When I can't get away. Shall we go back now?"

"Where I'll spend an absolutely sleepless night thanking kind Providence for sending you here for one of Mr. Winstead's trembling signatures."

"Not sending me to Mr. Winstead," Renny corrected gently. "Sending me to you."

Standing beside the door of her room, her coat off one bare shoulder, she said seriously, "There is a reason why you understand, particularly why you understand women so well. But I shall never ask you."

He grinned handsomely in the half light of the narrow hall.

"I'm sorry. You're confidence really deserves mine."

He turned and went to his room, leaving Arlen to a sleepless night in a strange bed, weaving hazy dreams of a new life. In those dreams one person was very clear—Renny's tall angular figure, his deep-set eyes, the way he smiled, and the very masculine gesture of putting his pipe between his teeth. Dawn was breaking over the ocean and making colors on the water when excited exhaustion put her to sleep.

Renny wrote to Louire of Arlen's domestic difficulties. Knowing her, he did not expect her to either understand or sympathize. He wrote:

"I could send her to you as your guest because she'd be a credit to you and your famous parties. But she's too proud to accept and insists upon working for her keep. No romantic impulse prompts this noble gesture of mine, my dear Louise. She's a beautiful girl with plenty of spirit, and you know so many unattached young men. Perhaps after a sophisticated fling she'll settle down with the practical youth who obviously bores her. I am, as you know, twice removed from any romantic feelings toward any woman, even one as lovely as Arlen Leeds.

"Did you see Christa abroad this Summer? Probably at a bar with her latest annexation. Allison is still with Mother in Maine. She's fine. I'll call on you when I get to New York.

"Arlen will probably have to have the final scene at home, and her poor frustrated father who married a gold-digger will think she's met the Big Bad Wolf in a white linen suit who is going to lead her to perdition."

* * *

During the next few days, while Renny tried to coax a signature from Mr. Winstead, Arlen had leisure to contemplate what was finished and what was about to begin. There were few devoted ties to sever when she accepted this unusual offer Renny had made. From the past she would take only the sweet memory of her mother and the memory of an ordinary, uneventful childhood and early girlhood. Her friends would miss her a little. Most of them were planning either trousseaux or layettes, having made comfortable niches for themselves in cozy apartments and suburban cottages.

Arlen, at twenty-one, had often been a bridesmaid, and most of the brides she had attended had flung their bouquets at her over white staircases. But there was not one man among her wide acquaintance who stirred her in the least, no man whose presence made her a little breathless or whose approach caused her heart to leap. Her safely married friends said, "You'll get over that, my dear," but she knew she never would. Love could not be a dull smug thing. It had to be high breathless ecstasy. It had to make the world whirl around your head. It had to sweep you, make an ardent flame in you.

Philip. . .she would miss him, miss his steady companionship, his loyalty, his devotion. While he declared there was no other girl for him, he would marry a girl who appreciated his fine practical qualities and live in a lovely house furnished by his wealthy parents. Lacking imagination, high ecstasy to Philip meant home and home fires and the sight of Arlen's yellow head.

Although she was with Renny a great deal, although they talked both sense and nonsense while they swam or sat on the beach or walked the boardwalk at night, she had never been able to prick the invulnerable armor he wore. He was by far the most amusing and interesting man she had ever known. He had a wealth of knowledge about everything, and though he never directly talked about hmiself, by words carelessly dropped in conversation ,she knew that he had come from an impeccable New England family, that Harvard was his alma mater, and that Paris and London were as familiar to him as New York.

Not once did he overstep the bounds of friendship. Had he been older, less handsome, his frank unconcern of her as a pretty girl would have been less disconcerting. There was but one answer to that and Arlen guessed it. He was either in love or some woman had hurt him. Renny, being what he was, would shed no tears and ask for no pity. That strong determined jaw was not for nothing.

The past, she thought, sitting on the beach at six o'clock one evening when every one else had gone in to dress for dinner, was over. Let the future begin. Arlen let the sand run through her fingers. Suddenly she saw Renny descending the sandy bank. Heedless of immaculate white flannels, he sat down beside her.

"Here's a special from Louise," he said. "I'll read it to you. Her handwriting is as bad as mine. I hope yours is good."

"It's very modernistic," said Arlen ,uttering a solemn prayer of hope.

Renny scowled as he read. "By all means," she writes, "send me a social secretary. I never thought of one before and it's a perfectly splendid idea. You can tell Miss Leeds that I shall pay her thirty-five dollars a week for reminding me of my appointments, going shopping with me, balancing my personal accounts, and attending my parties. There's a dearth of new faces among my acquaintnaces and a pretty new one will be delightful. Richard says he's very glad I'm to have a social secretary because I'm always late and half the time forget where I'm going. You didn't inherit your sister's absentmindedness. Tell Miss Leeds also about Toby Sanner, will you, Renny? I think she'll like him. Christa. . . ."

He stopped. His voice went suddenly flat.

Arlen conquered the desire to question, "Who is Christa? What made you look like that when you read her name? Why did your voice stop—and fall?"

She said, "I'm delighted, Renny. Your sister sounds very amusing. I know I'm going to meet a lot of amusing people."

He folded the letter, looking solemn. "Louise is absent-minded. I thought I'd better warn you. She isn't —how shall I put it?—sensitive, isn't very understanding. She has a passion for pleasure, the passion of a bored woman married to a man she doesn't love."

"Then she's to be pitied."

"In a way, yes. But she's incapable of love. She has everything she wants, all the material things ,and she's perfectly satisfied. Love isn't in her scheme of things."

Arlen hugged her bare knees.

"It's in mine. It's quite the biggest thing in the world to me. Renny," she asked, "is it in your scheme of things?"

"Mine toppled," he said, trying to be casual, "and I'm in the ruins."

"I'm so sorry."

He patted her hand. His jaw had never looked more determined. "Look here, you're not going glum on me, are you?"

"Who is Toby Sanner?"

"A very engaging fellow," said Renny with some of the pain gone from his eyes. "Quite a fellow, in fact, except for his mother. We are getting into it deep, aren't we? My opinions of people may be a little distorted. I think they are. You will see for yourself. Are you cold?"

"A little. I've been blowing taps over my past."

He took her by the shoulders, pushed back her blowing hair. Her face had the pensiveness of a child's. Her eyes were clear and wide. He looked into them but somehow he could not penetrate their depths. Though they were close, barriers stood between them, barriers and . . . other eyes.

"My dear," said Renny, "don't make a mistake about love. Don't fall in love with a pair of dark eyes, an engaging manner, and a chap who dances well. You know, I feel quite a responsibility toward you."

"Do I impress you as the sort of person who is going to be blinded by bright lights and new faces? Believe me, I won't be. I shall never do anything you don't want me to do."

Twilight seemed to be closing in on them. Arlen got to her feet and Renny put her robe around her. When she looked up at him, he bent down and put his lips against her forehead. Her eyes told nothing, but it was as near as he had come to a caress.

"Renny, when do you want me to go to New York?"

"As soon as you can."

"I'll go home tomorrow."

"I'm leaving on the midnight train tonight."

At midnight that night she raised her hand briefly in farewell as he boarded the train. Arlen walked back in the cool of an August night ,knowing that even were there not a job waiting for her in New York, she would have to go where Renny Maynard was. To rise above the ruins of her wrecked home, his was the strength she needed. Out of the ruins of his love for Christa, perhaps she would come to mean something to him.

* * *

Lights gleamed on the smooth green lawn when Arlen stopped her roadster before the house in Ruxton the next day. Since her mother's death a year ago, she never looked at the gray stone house or the garden in the rear that she did not think of the plans and work and dreams her mother had put into them. To look at the garden, once a burst of fragrant blossoms, now stifled with spreading weeds, the buds shriveled before bloom, all but wrung her heart. In the Spring she had worked over them, wiping tears from her eyes. But without the magic touch of Kathleen, the flowers had lost the desire to grow and flourish.

She felt a stiffening of her back when she walked up the stone path and opened the door into the long living room. She felt alternately hot and cold. Her cheeks were flaming. The palms of her hands were icy.

Karen was lying on the divan, her red hair sleekly waved against her small head, a crimson-tipped finger holding a cigarette. Her father, a man of middle height with thinning dark hair, who had taken to wearing gay suits and brilliantly colored neckties since his second marriage, was puffing on a strong cigar. Their emptied cocktail glasses were on the small mahogany table.

Arlen, her white linen suit wrinkled and dusty, put her bag on the white steps that led upstairs. With a tired gesture, she pulled the absurd little hat from her tangled hair.

Karen bristled, ready for another attack. George Leeds looked first at his hostile young wife and then at his rebellious daughter, wondering, if the storm broke out afresh, with whom he should join forces.

"So you're back," he said. "I was worried about you."

She looked at him with cool pity and smiled. "But not for long, Father. I'm going away tonight. I'm going to New York.

"New York!" echoed Karen.

"Yes. I have a job waiting for me. It happened in the most extraordinary way."

Karen looked at her with sulky blue eyes. "You didn't let your father know where you went . . .after . . ."

SEIZED

"This is the only statement to which the trial judge referred in his charge?" asked Mr. Justice R. E. Laidlaw.

"Yes," replied Mr. Robinette.

He said at the conclusion of the drive on April 12 Mrs. Dick was provided material with which to make a written statement but no such statement was made.

"Then there was no statement?" queried Mr. Justice T. W. Henderson.

"Oh yes, your Lordship," said Mr. Robinette.

"This was the crucial statement."

He explained it was admitted as trial evidence after a voir dire—a session in the absence of the jury and added:

"I attack as powerfully as I can the admissibility of this statement."

No warning had been given Mrs. Dick until after the drive in which she told them the murder story.

This statement in short, was that Evelyn drove the borrowed murder car March 6, while her tram-driving husband rode beside her in the front seat.

In the back seat, she said, was William Bohozuk, with a gun provided by her father and when they reached a lonely road 15 miles from Hamilton Bohozuk shot John Dick in the back of the head.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 10 — (CP) — Stronger pre-opening bidding failed to hold up the Toronto Stock Exchange market today and by noon prices sagged all along the line bringing recessions in all groups.

The industrial list showed numerous losses in fractions and points.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—The stock market today suffered one of its sharpest stumbles of the last month after an early selective recovery attempt failed to follow through.

Dealings again quieted and extreme setbacks were reduced in most cases near the fourth hour.

The Canadian group joined the morning trend to lower levels Distillers Seagrams was off 7-8 at mid-day and Hiram Walker lost 5-8. C.P.R. was down 1-4, Dome Mines 1-8 and McIntyre 1-2.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 10 (CP). — Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were unchanged at Brantford, $22.35 delivered; unchanged at Hull, $23 delivered; unchanged at Stratford, to farmers $21.85, to truckers $22; up 25 cents at Barrie, $22.25 delivered, in markets reporting early today; Peterborough was unchanged, $21.40 plus transportation.

FEAR PHEASANTS MAY DIE FOR LACK OF FOOD

Woodstock, Jan. 10 (CP). — Fearful that pheasants may die because of lack of food, brought about by present weather conditions, the Oxford Fish and Game Society has decided to scatter feed for the birds in all county areas where the pheasants may be suffering.

People Can Veto Royal Marriages

Princess Elizabeth will spend her 21st birthday on April 21 as the guest of the people of South Africa, says The Ottawa Citizen.

The added interest that has been attached to the private and public affairs of the Princess has been occasioned in Britain and abroad not entirely through the imminence of her 21st birthday. Stories and rumors, none of them substantiated, have circulated freely during the past few months and have been printed in the newspapers.

Date Is Topic

The most forthright of these reports appeared in a London evening paper which said, "Discussions among intimate friends of the princess and prince (Prince Philip of Greece) are no longer concerned with the probability of marriage. The main topic now is the date on which the announcement will be made."

This was quickly followed by an official announcement from Buckingham Palace prepared by Sir Alan Lascelles, saying, "Princess Elizabeth is not engaged to be married. The report published is incorrect."

Such reports as these cause Princess Elizabeth and the Royal Family, much annoyance. As the Imperial Review pointed out in a recent series of articles on the Princess, "One day she will fall in love and become engaged. When that happens the people will be told, as any other girl annnounces the happy news of her choice. Then, of course, the empire will have a legitimate and public interest in the man who is to be her consort. Meanwhile, she hopes that what she does outside her public life will be respected as her own."

Man of Influence

Now the husband of Princess Elizabeth will one day be consort and although in no official position of authority will potentially be a man of great influence. Prince Albert, husband of Queen Victoria, was such a man.

Despite all the gossip in the newspapers the position of a Princess who is heir to the throne is neither known, understood nor properly appreciated.

There is a Royal Marriage Act which governs royal marriage in England. It was passed in 1772 to guard against undesirable marriages which might affect the succession to the throne. It prescribed that the marriage of an descendant of George II—and Princess Elizabeth, and all the royal family, are his descendants — who is under the age of 25, is null and void unless the consent of the King is obtained. Princess Elizabeth is 20.

On attaining the age of 25, however, the member of the Royal Family may mary without consent, but only after giving a year's notice to the Privy Council and provided that during that year Parliament does not expressly disapprove of the marriage.

In the case of a young prince or princess the King has the sole authority to approve or disapprove of a royal marriage. But when a princess or prince has attained the age of 25 and permission has not been given, the people, as represented by Parliament, expressly have the authority to disapprove of a proposed marriage or to approve of it by making no objection.

Act of Settlement

The title to the Crown derives from the Act of Settlement of 1701.

The crown goes to the eldest son, or if there are no sons to the eldest daughter of the monarch—though the King in Parliament may alter the succession. So since the abdication of James II in 1688 the title has been hereditary but is handed on by permission of Parliament, for Parliament—which means the people—could at any time alter the succession.

The Act of Settlement excludes from the title to the Crown, Roman Catholics, or those who marry Roman Catholics.

No heir to the throne can simply follow his or her own heart—however much it may be regretted for sentimental reasons—and still succeed to the throne. At the time of the abdication of King Edward VIII there was much discussion about a morganatic marriage. It was stated that King Edward wished to marry the present Duchess morganatically. Male members of certain royal families of Europe have been able to contract legitimate marriages with women of lesser rank but the titles and estate of the husband were not shared by the wife or their children.

Unknown in Britain

But morganatic marriages are completely unknown to the law. If any woman marries a British king, then she is Queen.

In Britain the marriage partner of royalty need not be of royal blood. During the last two or three centuries it had become, until recently, the custom for princes to marry their equal rank but this was never obligatory in law, though it became a convention having almost the force of law.

There could be no legal objection if, as some have hoped, Princess Elizabeth fell in love with a Canadian, Australian, South African or New Zealander. If public good alone were the consideration, some diplomats have pointed out that the most useful link would be with an empire country.

By law the King alone could now give permission for Princess Elizabeth to marry. As he is a constitutional King, however, he would consult the Prime Minister and other leading ministers of the crown and Commonwealth Prime Minister before giving his permission.

Canadians Must Thank Britain For Full Butter Ration

Ottawa, Jan. 10—(CP)—Canadians today had ration-short Britain to thank for the comfortable prospect of a full six-ounce butter ration during the coming 'lean months.'

Assurance that the butter ration would not fall below that figure during the seasonally short period of February and March came yesterday with the announcement that the United Kingdom has agreed to divert 12,000,000 pounds of New Zealand and Australian butter — approximately a pound per person — into Canada from her own imports.

The diversion, arranged by agreement between Britain and the South Pacific dominions which normally ship their entire surplus to the U.K., was announced last night in London and New Zealand. Most of the shipments will arrive between Jan. 31 and April 1.

It did not mean that the average Briton will find less butter on his table. His weekly quota of six ounces of butter and margarine will be maintained.

But it did mean that Britain hid virtually dipped into her own reserves to the extent of 12,000,00 pounds, since the butter normally would have gone to that country.

Two Reasons Advanced

Two reasons were advanced here and in London for the move. The first was that, with rationing no longer in effect in the United States, Canadian officials did not feel a ration of less than six ounces could possibly be maintained.

Last year the Dominion's ration fell to four ounces for a few months, but officials stated that anything below six ounces would be "dangerous."

The second was that the Canadian position was due partly to the "diversion of milk to the manufacture of cheese specially for the United Kingdom.

It was pointed out in London also that Canada has no Margarine to supplement her ration.

"In effect," said an Ottawa spokesman, "we pointed out to Britain that we were running short of butter because we had been using our milk to make cheese for Britain and said we would appreciate some butter to maintain our ration. The British came through."

Little Norwegian Girl Sends Thanks For Pair Mittens

Rayburn Twiddy, son of Foster Twiddy, 269 Station St., has received the following letter from Vestsmola, Norway, expressing thanks for mittens which were sent during the summer. The writer is a girl 9½ years old.

Vestsmola, Nov. 16, 1946

Dear Rayburn:

I have just received a gift from the Red Cross, one pair of mittens and in them was an address. My school teacher read it for me and you wish to hear from me.

Thank you so much for the gift, it is good for us Norwegian children to receive clothes. Would like to tell you a little about myself.

I am 9½ years old and used to live in Kris Tiansund. When the gruesome war came the Germans bombed our city, our home and everything we owned went up in smoke. In 1942 my dear father died and mother was left alone with seven children and it has been very sad for us.

Mother died in 1945 and I am living with an aunt, my mother's sister. The others are looking after themselves. I miss my dear parents so much.

I would like to hear from you again. I am lonesome for a girl friend. Lots of love and thank you for my lovely gift.

Inger Wahl,

Ontario Cheese Producers Held Annual Meeting

Toronto, Jan. 9 — (CP) — John I. Ballantyne of Atwood was named president of the Ontario Cheese Producers Association at its annual meeting here yesterday. Others elected to the executive were Hector C. Arnold, Campbellford, vice-president; A. E. Hicks, Kinburn, C. E. Harkness, Iroquois and L. D. Crooks, all executive members.

Poor Economics Says J. P.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 9—(AP) — Associate Professor John R. Huber, who teaches economics at the University of Washington, pleaded in defence of a speeding charge that he was hurrying home to relieve the baby sitter with his children.

"That's poor economics," said Justice of the Peace Roy DeGrief. "It's penny wise and pound foolish to pay out $10 for a fine to save 50 cents for a baby sitter."

Two Million Dollar Fire Reported At Goose Bay Airport

A Number of Buildings And Three Planes Destroyed

St. John's, Nfld., Jan. 11 (CP). —Damages resulting from a fire reported yesterday to have destroyed a number of buildings and planes at Goose Bay Airport, Labrador, have been estimated at $2,000,000.

Reports reaching here said the fire, cause of which was not known, destroyed a hangar on the United States side of the airport and two United States transport planes together with buildings containing maintenance equipment of American Overseas Airlines and Pan-American Airways. There was no mention of casualties.

(At Halifax, Flt. Lt. Philip Michel, R.C.A.F. pilot of 426 Squadron, said last night on his return from Goose Bay that one large maintenance hangar, a B-17 Fortress and two C-54 Skymasters had been destroyed in the blaze. He said that although he could make no accurate estimate of the loss, he believed it would run "around $1,000,000 or more.")

Reports of a blast at the outbreak of the fire were unconfirmed.

The base, an important transport airdrome and hopping-off place for Europe during the second world war, now is operated by the R.C.A.F. with space provided United States Army Air Forces.

During the war, thousands of planes were gassed up at the huge field of tarmac, which lies near Northwest River, about 150 miles from the Labrador coast.

Faction Italian Socialist Party Leaves Ranks

Rome, Jan. 11 — (AP) — A large faction of the Italian Socialist party deserted it today over the issue of collaboration with the Communists. The leader of the anti-Communist faction, charging Italian Socialism had been subjugated to "foreign forces," said the split raised "the spectre of civil war."

The anti-Communist leader, Giuseppe Saragat, said the pro-Communist leadership of the party involved "a cold and methodic subjugation to the principles of foreign forces" and held the danger of "international war" also.

Saragat, constituent assembly president and former diplomat, though usually suave and practiced on the rostrum, seemed nervous and unhappy as he appeared before the party's 25th national congress.

His opponent, and dominant force at the Congress, was pro-Communist party chairman Pietro Nenni, Italy's foreign minister who also is acting prime minister during Premier Gasperi's current visit to the United States.

DERAILED TRAIN KILLS GIRL STANDING BY TRACK

Burke, Va., Jan. 11 —(AP)— The Tennessean, southbound Southern Railway passenger train, was derailed here today and a passenger reported a girl standing beside the track was killed and at least two persons aboard were severely injured.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Jan. 11. (CP).—Overcast skies with milder temperatures prevail in Southwestern Ontario this morning. Temperatures are in the high thirties. In Eastern and Northern Ontario snow is falling ahead of and to the north of a storm centre east of Lake Superior. This fast-moving storm will move into Western Quebec early this evening. Strong winds are general within 500 miles of the centre. Cold air is moving into the Lake Superior region behind the storm and will sweep over all Ontario by evening.

Foreign Office Rejects Any Implications

London, Jan. 11. (AP)— The Foreign Office last night rejected any implication that Britain's Ambassador to Poland plotted with an underground organization the purpose of which was to overthrow the Warsaw government.

At the same time the Foreign Office announced that the Ambassador, Victor Cavendish-Bentinck, had been called to London for consultations on the forthcoming Polish elections, subject of protests from the United States and Britain.

Commenting on testimony of a defendant in a Warsaw high treason trial that the Ambassador was in contact with the underground group and received state and military secrets from its agents, the Foreign Office said:

"We have read the news agency reports of the opening days of the trial of Count Grocholski n Warsaw. We have not yet received the comment of His Majesty's Ambassador in Warsaw on the allegations which have been made

"We are, however, satisfied that Mr. Cavendish-Dentinck has not been engaged in any improper activities, still less in activities directed against the Polish State."

Wallace Says He Is Alarmed Over Condition

Washington, Jan. 11 (AP)— Henry Wallace expressed the opinion last night that the United States or Great Britain "would use the atomic bomb against Russia in an aggressive way under certain conditions"

Wallace, former vice president, and until recently Secretary of Commerce, made his comments in a "Meet the Press" program broadcast over the Mutual network.

"The most certain way of going to war with Russia is by being tough with her," Wallace said.

Wallace said Winston Churchill, former British Prime Minister, had said in a recent article that there is a schism between western civilization and the communistic state which is too great to be bridged.

"His program," Wallace added, "seemed to invite all the nations of the world to fight and encircle the Soviet Union, and I am exceedingly alarmed by this condition."

Prices Board Chairman Claims Beef Shortage Only Temporary

Ottawa, Jan. 11 — (CP) —Donald Gordon, chairman of the Prices Board, charged today that statements were being made, particularly in Toronto, which were intended to "create the impression" that the current temporary beef shortage was the result of black market operations.

He said the shortage was seasonal and temporary and stressed that if a serious scarcity developed in any part of the country the Board was in a position to see that meat was shipped into those areas.

He said, "far too much" stress had been placed on the shortage in newspapers and this prompted prudent housewives to go out and buy more meat than they actually needed.

He added:

"I think statements are being made, particularly in Toronto, which are intended to blow this thing up and create the impression that there is a black market."

He did not elaborate.

Mr. Gordon made the statements at a press conference at which he and Finance Minister Abbott supplied background to today's announcement of relaxation of price controls.

ABANDON HOPE OF RESCUING 14 ENTOMBED MINERS

Workers at Pit-Head Go Through Practice Drills to Seal Off Burning Level

West Calder, Scotland, Jan. 11 —(CP)—Officials of the Burngrande shale pit in which 14 miners are trapped and feared dead, today denied the portion holding the trapped men had been sealed off to prevent the flames spreading to other parts of the mine.

Standby rescue workers at the pit-head, however, went through practice drills with heaps of sandbags preparing to seal off the burning level if necessary.

Practically all hope has already been abandoned for the men, trapped by an explosion last night.

Weeping wives and children of the 14 men watched the practice, knowing that all possible hope for the men will be gone when the piles of sandbags begin descending the mine.

It was this practice work, apparently, that gave rise to earlier reports that the mine had been sealed off.

Company officials said "further effort" will be made to rescue the men before the final sealing-off order is given.

Rescue crews earlier today managed to get within 100 yards of the spot where the men were believed to have been when the explosion occurred.

But they were driven off by the heat and fallen rock and it was then that most hope was abandoned.

The accident occurred at the mine's 450-foot level, and shortly afterwards word of the disaster was flashed on the screen of the small local cinema which quickly emptied as families of the miners rushed to the pit-head.

Miner Thomas Reid crawled out of the flame and rubble after the explosion and later the rescue squad recovered one body some distance from where the rest of the men were believed working when the blast occurred.

Mine officials said they believed fire damp was responsible.

In addition to Reid, 38 other miners managed to reach safety.

Corporate Thanksgiving $4,237,000 Raised In Anglican Appeal

Toronto, Jan. 11—(CP) — On the eve of a Sunday of corporate thanksgiving for the success of the campaign, treasurer H. H. Loosemore of the Anglican Advance Appeal announced today that $4,237,000 of the $4,300,000 objective had been raised in the Dominion-wide drive. He expressed belief that the balance would come shortly from dioceses which have not reached their objectives.

Most Rev. Derwyn T. Owen, Archbishop of Toronto and Primate of all Canada, has proclaimed tomorrow as a day of thanksgiving and it will be observed by Anglican churches across the Dominion with special prayers and devotions.

Control Highlights

Ottawa, Jan. 11—(CP)—Highlights of today's announcement of price decontrol:

Ceilings lifted on many types of household goods and supplies, including some appliances and radios.

Ceilings retained on rentals, fuels, automobiles, restaurant meals, most primary products.

Consumer credit regulations withdrawn.

Controls removed from canned fruits and vegetables other than large staple items, along with some imported foods.

Controls removed from such services as barbering and hairdressing but retained on laundry services.

Motion picture admission prices decontrolled.

Individual items decontrolled number thousands, but a long list remains under control.

The government keeps control over housing evictions.

No spectacular price increases expected as the result of decontrol.

HENRY WALLACE CRITICIZED BY PREMIER DREW

Condemns U. S. Politician for His Attack on Winston Churchill

Peterborough, Jan. 11 (CP).— Strong criticism of Henry Wallace, United States politician who condemned a third world war, was voiced by Ontario Premier George Drew in an address here last night.

Premier Drew, who declared Churchill's was the voice of freedom during the darkest days of the war, asked what Wallace was doing at the same time.

"When Wallace expressed confidence in Russia he should remember the Nazis started the war in 1939 because they had a treaty with Russia and the only reason Russia entered the war was because their friends turned them down," he declared.

Premier Drew said the courage of the Russian people was unlimited but that this should not be confused with the vile doctrines of Communism under which they live.

"Churchill today is again saying the path of appeasement is the path of destruction. He is saying there is friendship for all if Russia accepts the principles laid down by the Atlantic Charter but there won't be peace if there is an extension of Communism by forces through Europe.

"There is no difference between the Red Fascism of Russia and the Black Fascism of Germany.

"If we believe in the system of government exemplified by this meeting (Premier Drew was speaking at a meeting honoring Hon. Harold R. Scott, newly appointed Ontario Minister of Lands and Forests) let us stop our woolly thinking that there is any difference in dictatorships. Let us meet such statements as were made by Wallace at once, and remind them that all of us looked to Churchill once as the voice of freedom," he said.

WILL GET NO REPLY ABOUT PFITZNER

Prague, Jan. 11 — (AP) — The editors of the Biographical Encyclopedia of the World won't get any reply to their letter addressed to Prof. Joseph Pfitzner, Dean of Deutch University in Prague and mayor of Prague under the German occupation, asking for his latest photo and a brief article on the education of youth. Pfitzner's latest picture, taken just after the liberation, showed him hanging from a Czech gallows.

DECISION ON TORSO APPEAL MAY BE GIVEN ON MONDAY

Counsel Says Statement Given Police By Mrs. Dick Should Never Have Been Admitted

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 11 — (CP) — A decision by late Monday appeared possible today in the appeal of Mrs. Evelyn Dick from conviction as the torso-killer of her husband, John Dick, in Hamilton last March 6th.

Near the end of the second day of the hearing of her appeal her counsel asked flatly for a new trial, contended that on any one of nine points of alleged error or non-direction during her trial there was basis for a new trial of the 26-year-old widow.

The court, which resumes Monday morning, did not sit today. Monday may see the Crown put forward its case at conclusion of the appellant's plea, put forward by John J. Robinette of Toronto.

He held yesterday that statements given police by Mrs. Dick should never have been admitted as evidence at her trial and that Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow, the trial judge erred in his charge to the jury.

"It would be a scandal in the administration of justice if this conviction against Mrs. Dick were to stand and subsequently Donald MacLean were convicted of the murder," declared Mr. Robinette.

Called Crucial Statement

Most of the day was taken up with Mr. Robinette's reading of Mrs. Dick's final statement — he called it the "crucial statement"— which formed the basis of her conviction on circumstantial evidence and Mr. Justice Barlow's charge to the trial jury.

Mr. Robinette pictured his client, on the basis of the very evidence used to convict her, as nothing more than a spectator at the slaying of her husband after which John Dick was dismembered and his headless, legless, armless body tossed on Hamilton's mountainside.

Her's was, at most, a role of "passive acquiescence," said her counsel. And the trial judge had not made clear to the jury that such a role did not constitute aiding and abetting. She should have

Control Comes Off Credit Buying On January 13th

Ottawa, Jan. 11 —(CP)— Government control comes off all credit buying in Canada Jan. 13— but Canadians may never again see a return to the old pre-war days of "a dollar down and a year to pay."

In his general announcement on lifting of many price controls today, Finance Minister Abbott said while consumer credit regulations had "served a useful purpose," their continuance now appeared less necessary and since their effective administration would constitute a heavy burden, the government did not feel justified in retaining them.

But the credit controls the government clamped on in 1941 as part of its wartime control policy have found favor with various retail organizations across the Dominion. Most merchants found in the regulations requiring one-third down with only so long to pay, a measure of protection of their accounts.

Now British Columbia and Saskatchewan already have consumer credit legislation by which they could take up the controls to be dropped by the federal government. And its just possible other provinces may take similar action.

Wide Variety of Goods And Services Taken From List in Decontrol Program

Order Becomes Effective Monday, Statement Issued

By GEORGE KITCHEN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 11 —(CP)— Lifting of price ceilings on a wide variety of goods and services with the retention of these controls on foods, fuels, textiles and rents — the all-important "big four" of the anti-inflation fight — was announced today in a relaxation of the government's price stabilization policy.

The announcement, another vital step in the post-war decontrol program which extensively slims the list of goods and services still under control by removing those in good supply, was made in a 1,500-word statement issued by Finance Minister Abbott.

In brief, the main points of the new program, which becomes effective Monday, follow:—

1. Ceilings are being removed on some types of household equipment and supplies, including furniture, small appliances, radios, pianos and clocks; tools and garden equipment; handbags and leather luggage; paints and varnishes; ice; fresh fruits and vegetables except apples; most kinds of fish and a number of building supplies.

2. There will be no change in prices on rents, most of the basic foods; practically all articles of clothing; fuels, major household appliances, motor cars, tires and gasoline, household laundry services, restaurant prices and freight rates; and a variety of basic materials such as steel, copper, rubber, lumber and pulp, and farm machinery.

3. Certain imported foods, such as tapioca, fruit juices and peanuts, are being decontrolled as well as canned fruits and vegetables other than the large staple items.

4. Among the textiles, carpets and linoleum are being made control-free.

5. Of the services, there no longer will be controls on barbering, hairdressing and motion picture admissions.

6. Consumer credit regulations are being revoked because their continuance now seems less necessary and their effective administration would constitute a heavy burden.

7. The government has no intention of removing eviction control during the present "acute" housing shortage.

8. For the majority of items being decontrolled, the government does not expect "significant" price increases but where these do occur it is emphasized that they could not be avoided even if control had been maintained.

List to be Issued

Accompanying Mr. Abbott's statement was a 2,000-word list of the goods and services still under control, including many of the basic goods, clothing and certain basic materials which he said would increase "very substantially" in price if all controls were lifted.

There was no complete list of the goods and services being freed from control but Prices Board officials said the individual items numbered in the thousands.

Mr. Abbott stressed that the items being decontrolled were receiving this treatment because they were in good supply or, while not fully plentiful, showed signs of improving further. On some items, it was necessary to maintain control over exports to ensure sufficient stocks for the domestic market

Of the intention to retain eviction controls, Mr. Abbott explained:-

"The government is well aware of the vital importance to the tenant of security of tenure while the present emergency continues and no changes are contemplated in the special protection now being contained in the regulations for the tenant of housing accommodation."

Prices Board officials said the list of goods and services still controlled would be published in all Canadian newspapers Monday and suggested consumers retain it.

Fourth Major Step

This latest relaxation is the fourth major decontrol step in the stabilization program since the war ended and follows close on the removal last December of controls on wages and salaries.

It also was regarded as a prelude to the government's program of legislation which it will present to parliament at the session opening Jan. 30 to give statutory form to controls which it believes should be continued. In effect, the current steps clears away dying controls in preparation for the legislative bills.

Montgomery Feted by Jos. Stalin In Scenes of Warm Friendship

By EDDY GILMORE

Moscow, Jan. 11 (AP).—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery planned to begin a flight back to Britain today after two meetings with Prime Minister Stalin, who he said appeared to be in excellent health.

Stalin was host to Montgomery at a state dinner in the Kremlin last night. British quarters said a warm atmosphere of friendship prevailed. Earlier in the day the two talked in the Kremlin for more than an hour.

Montgomery reported himself "highly satisfied" with their talk. In a statement, he declared he was grateful for "the opportunity to develop in peacetime that comradeship between our two armies which was formed during the struggle against the treacherous German army."

Yesterday the 59-year-old Field Marshal, last year created Viscount Montgomery of Alamein, first was taken on a tour of the Kremlin.

Then he called on his official host, Marshal Alexander M. Vasilevsky, chief of the Soviet general staff. Vasilevsky gave Montgomery a fur hat, a pair of general's boots and a squirrel-lined overcoat such as Russian Marshals wear.

Montgomery himself, devout son of an Ulster Episcopal Bishop, is a teetotaler. But when he went to see Stalin, a case of whisky was seen being put into an automobile which then headed toward the Kremlin. This was assumed to be his gift to the prime minister. He was known to have given Stalin two books and to have received Stalin's autograph.

In his statement to the press, Montgomery thanked the Soviet army and Vasilevsky for being "most friendly and generous". He said Vasilevsky had accepted his invitation to visit the British army and he hoped to see him in London with other Soviet marshals early next summer.

EXPORT BACON PRICE UP $2 PER 100 POUNDS

Increase Starts Monday and Will be in Effect Until September 1st

Ottawa, Jan. 11 — (CP) — An increase of $2 per 100 pounds in the export bacon price for grade A1 sizeable Wiltshire sides and similar increases for other export bacon will go into effect Monday.

This was announced yesterday by the Meat Board, which said the new prices would be effective on bacon produced from hogs slaughtered in inspected packing plants on and after Jan. 13.

The increase will be in effect until Sept. 1 this year, when an additional upward adjustment of the same amount will become effective until the end of 1948.

The announcement made no mention of an increase in domestic prices for bacon and pork products which Agriculture Minister Gardiner said a week ago would accompany the rise in export prices.

Mr. Gardiner made that statement at a press conference at which he also announced that the British Food Ministry had agreed to advance its bacon contract price from $25 to $29 per 100 pounds to provide an incentive aimed at increasing Canadian hog production, now on the downgrade.

The $4 increase, when it becomes fully effective this September, will represent an increase of approximately $5 a hog over floors based on the present British contract.

A steady fall in Canadian hog production since 1945 has resulted in Canada failing to meet her commitment of bacon shipments to Britain this year and has threatened the Dominion's position in the post-war British bacon market.

11 Are Ordered For Voluntary Statement

Montreal, Jan. 11 (CP).—Eleven Witnesses of Jehovah, charged with publishing and distributing a seditious and libellous pamphlet were ordered yesterday by Judge Omer LeGrand for voluntary statement, while similar charges against two others were dismissed after Crown Prosecutor Henri Monty told the court the prosecution had no proof to offer in their cases.

At the same time the cases of 14 other Jehovah's Witnesses involving the same accusation were postponed until Jan. 16 after the Crown announced that important prosecution witnesses were unable to appear in court for the preliminary hearings yesterday.

Of the 11 ordered for voluntary statement, one will appear Jan. 17 and the others Jan. 22.

All 27 of the accused before the court yesterday were arrested in police raids during the past several months.

PICTON

Fifteen Stitches Required To Close Wound

Picton, Jan. 11 (Special) — Struck by a falling piece of ice which fell from the roof of the Oddfellow block, Mrs. E M. Bull suffered a gash on the head which required fifteen stitches to close. She was wearing a heavy felt hat at the time or the wound would have been more serious. Mrs. Bull was walking down Ross Street when the ice fell from a distance of fifty feet. She staggered into the office of The Picton Gazette were the flow of blood was staunched until a car was secured to rush her to the office of Dr. J. H. Walmsley. She was later removed to the home of her brother, O. A. Burley.

Chief of Police Bert Biddle was called to investigate and it is reported that another piece of ice fell, narrowly missing him. Workmen were busy on the roof of the block at the time.

As a result of the accident, police are checking on buildings where there are icicles which might endanger the public.

Turn Hotel Into Hall

Plans for turning the old Quinte hotel into a Legion Memorial Hall were discussed at a meeting of Post 78 Thursday night. Nearly one hundred members were in attendance and pledged their support in the forthcoming drive to raise funds. The building was purchased for $10,000 and $1,000 in cash paid. The remainder has been raised by borrowing and a mortgage. The county will be asked to make a donation as this will take the place of an additional war memorial. The building will not only contain halls for use of the Post and Ladies' Auxiliary but a rest room for use of town and county people, and apartments on the second and third floors.

Retiring president, John Guest installed the slate of new officers which is headed by Lt. Col. Gerald Allison, M.D.

Organize Basketball

Organization of the Bay of Quinte Intermediate "B" Basketball League was completed at a meeting held at the Recreation centre here Thursday night. Teams entering the loop are Trenton RCAF, Mountain View RCAF, Picton and Belleville Y. Ted Burley of Picton has been appointed convener and will be assisted by Recreational Director Reg Fox. At the conclusion of the schedule, the two leading teams will play home and home games with points to count. The winner will proceed into the Ontario playdowns.

The league will open on Jan. 13 with Mountain View at Belleville, and on the following night, Picton will visit Trenton.

65th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. William A. Head are today marking the 65th anniversary of their wedding, at their home, Ontario Street. Mr. Head is in his 92nd year and Mrs. Head is 83 years of age. Both are in good health and continue to be active about their home. The event will be quietly marked.

Mr. and Mrs. Head were married at Milford and have spent all their lives in Prince Edward County. Mr. Head sailed for nearly fifty years and can recall many interesting experiences of schooner days. During the war years, Mrs. Head did a great amount of knitting for the Red Cross.

Among those who will join in felicitating them are Mr. Head's sister, Mrs. Andrew Welbanks, who was bridesmaid at their wedding.

Saturday Market

The local produce market was again slimly attended on Saturday as only a few farmers turned out. The mild weather permitted many vendors to take up their stands on the outside market while others occupied their customary stands in the market building.

Eggs were slightly easier with grade "A" bringing 45 cents and a few extra-weights at 50 cents the dozen, mediums and pullets sold from 43 cents down to 38 cents. Fowl sold generally at 40 cents the pound, while capons brought up to $3 each for well finished birds.

Winter apples such as Salomes, McIntosh and Spies brought 90 cents the peck, while Sweets sold at 75 cents the peck. Potatoes sold at $1.50 per bag, while winter vegetables brought customary prices.

Geo. Wishart Named Chairman Of Board of Education at Its Inaugural Meeting of Term

Member of the board for the past two years and previously acting for four years as a member of the advisory vocational committee, Mr. George Wishart was named chairman of the Belleville Board of Education at their inaugural meeting held Friday evening.

Mr. Wishart defeated W. H. Finkle for the chairmanship with last year's chairman being the only other man nominated. Voting was by ballot in the open board meeting.

In nominating Mr. Wishart for the chairmanship after Mr. Finkle's name had been placed before the board, Mr. Harold Seldon told the board members that he was not in favor of a two-year term for the chairmanship. "There is danger of establishing a precedent," stated Mr. Seldon, "and continuity of effort means nothing if the board members are not behind the chairman. I feel that the chairmanship is an honorary position and as such should be passed around among the members.

In opposition to this Mr. E. A. Geen stated that no precedent would be established in re-electing Mr. Finkle for his second term as several previous chairmen had held the office for two years.

Escorted to Chair.

Following election of Mr. Wishart, the new chairman was duly escorted to his chair by Alex Nathan and Dr. R. W. Tennent, two new members of the board. E. A. Geen was named as vice chairman.

There was also an election for the chairmanship of the Collegiate Management Committee with Miss Josephine Tickell winning out over Mr. H. Fetterly. Mr. Fetterly was named public schools management committee chairman while Alex Nathan is chairman of the property supply committee.

Board members appointed to the advisory-vocational committee were Mr. Fetterly and Mr. Seldon with Mr. David Martin representing the employers' interests and Albert H. Jones representing employees.

Principal Everett Fairman was named to the High School Entrance Board, while L. A. Kells, Inspector-Administrator was named to the Public Library Board.

Board member B. C. Sisler officially tendered his resignation from the board pending his transfer to St. Thomas, this being formally accepted by the board with Mr. Geen and the board chairmen expressing the regret of board members. Speaking for the public school principals, Mr. C. I. Frederick added regrets stating that Mr. Sisler since coming to Belleville had always shown a definite interest in educational matters.

Member For 13 Years.

In tendering his verbal resignation, Mr. Sisler voiced his regret at leaving the board stating he had been a member for 13 of his 15 years in Belleville.

Occasional teachers of the public schools staff formally requested a raise in remuneration from the present $6 to $7 a day, giving as the reason for their request the increased cost of living. The matter was referred to the public schools management committee.

A communication was also received from the Ontario Secondary School Teachers Federation requesting increased salary schedules asking $2,000 as the minimum salary for a secondary school teacher in Ontario.

Will Furnish Trophies.

The matter of inter-school sports came up for brief discussion following reading of a communication from the Inter-Service Club Council stating that this body would furnish challenge cups and trophies for such activities. Principal Anderson stated that this was already in effect in the schools, while Miss Tickell felt that inter-school sports were not ideal as it tended to build up strong teams. On the other hand school sports would get all the pupils playing. There was possibly a need for both, she admitted.

"As long as inter-school sports do not take the place of school sports, then I think the matter should be considered," stated Mr. Kells.

School principals present pointed out that school sports were encouraged wherever possible, while Principal Anderson stated there was a skating rink in operation at Ann Street School, giving Mr. Wallace much credit for the work of getting the rink into operation.

Try to Secure Time

According to Principal George E. Currie there will be no attempt this year to get an outdoor skating surface ready on the collegiate grounds as the one last year had not proven entirely satisfactory. Instead it was recommended that efforts be made to secure time at the Hume Arena on as many mornings per week as possible. A committee of Mr. Wishart, L. A. Kells and Mr. Homer Townsend was appointed to interview council regarding the matter.

A communication regarding the forming of junior humane societies in the public schools was referred to the public school management committee, while a communication from a local insurance company regarding liability insurance for school pupils was filed.

Alaska Highway to be Maintained By Defence Department Says Paper

Ottawa, Jan. 11 (CP). — The Ottawa Journal said Friday Defence Department plans call for maintenance of the Alaska Highway and northwest staging routes by civilian rather than military control as one of the steps towards slicing defence estimates in the forthcoming budget.

The paper said estimates to be placed before the Defence Council today would also curtail the Navy's proposed expansion of its aircraft carrier establishment; divest the R.C.A.F. of its fleet of sea-going ships; wash out R.C.A.F. plans to equip summer camps for the training of its air auxiliary with Vampires and jet-propelled aircraft; cut Army plans for "elaborate equipment" for airborne troops.

No comment was forthcoming from Defence Minister Claxton on a story which repeated a report yesterday that defence estimates would be slashed by some $238,000,000 from last year's $488,000,000, leaving them at $250,000,000. This total, the Journal said, would cover "little more than half the requirements the services consider indispensable."

In both cases, it added, the Alaska highway and the staging route would be dropped as Army and R.C.A.F. charges, respectively, and would fall within the authority of the Resources and Transport Departments. Together they would mean a saving of some $12,000,000 for the services.

The elimination of the R.C.A.F. sea-going fleet was said to follow a recent headquarters check which found "some had been sunk, others were high on rocks and reefs and still others were in a state of disrepair due to faulty and inexperienced operation."

Wartime performances of British aircraft carriers were said to have been cited against Navy plans to have a two-ship carrier force.

The Journal said:

"Defence council has been bluntly advised that carriers would be of doubtful value in the Arctic. . . . Discussions of the Navy's plans for a larger carrier fleet have reached such a pitch that Air Vice Marshal Robert Leckie, Chief of Air Staff, has refused to discuss the subject with Mr. Claxton except in the presence of Vice Admiral H. E. Reid, Chief of Naval Staff."

Leckie's complaints that "everybody but the R.C.A.F. would be flying" also curtailed Army plans for airborne developments.

Great Progress Made In Reducing Defence Estimates

Ottawa, Jan. 11 — (CP) — The job of reducing defence expenditures has made "very great progress" since the war, Defence Minister Claxton said last night, and peacetime organization and consolidation are proceeding with the objective of maintaining the three services at "the same high standards as prevailed during the war."

In a statement issued after nearly a month in office, the former health minister said the time since his appointment had "been spent in planning the extension of the work of organization and consolidation already begun."

He added that a first step in combining the three departments into one department of national defence was to get all the headquarters of the three services and their departments in a single set of buildings in the heart of the capital.

This would put the minister in the middle of offices containing chiefs of staff Lt.-Gen. Charles Moulkes of the army, Air Marshal Robert Leckie of the R.C.A.F. and Vice Admiral H. E. Reid. They will concentrate in the temporary building used as navy headquarters during the war.

Mr. Claxton said "Steps will be taken progressively to amalgamate civilian services and to consolidate some of the auxiliary and other services where the jab can be done more efficiently and economically that way. Satisfactory progress is being made with the full co-operation of everyone in the department and the services."

The minister denied newspaper stories that there had been "difficulties" between himself and Air Marshal Leckie. He is expected to hold a press conference next week to make known some of his plans and decisions.

Michael Levine, Dr. G. L. Brown, Fined $1,000 Each

Conspiracy cases involving the export of ineligible cattle to the United States with substitute ear tags and which have been heard in Picton and Belleville this week were concluded in Belleville Friday afternoon when M. Levine, Belleville cattle drover, and Dr. George L. Brown, Selby veterinarian, were convicted and fined $1,000 each.

At Picton on Thursday morning, Fred A. Scott, local buyer and Dr. Stanley H. Shipsides, Wellington veterinarian, were fined $1,500 each following pleas of guilty on conspiracy charges.

Defence Counsel R. A. Pringle moved for non-suit at the conclusion of the Crown evidence against Mr. Levine claiming that the Crown had failed to prove a prima facia case. No defence was offered by defence counsel Pringle nor by defence counsel Rowntree of Toronto who acted for Dr. Brown.

"I don't consider a cattle drover as guilty as a professional man involved in the same irregularities," commented Judge W. S. Lane of Picton as he passed sentence on Mr. Levine. "However, you went out to circumvent regulations intended to maintain the standards of export cattle and have thus jeopardized the export business of the Dominion. Some drovers apparently feel that if export regulations can be circumvented it is fair game."

No Evidence Substitution

In sentencing Dr Brown, Judge Lane pointed out that in the evidence presented there had been nothing which showed substitution of blood samples as had been the case against Dr. Shipsides of Wellington.

"However," he continued, "you knew what was going on; you knew of the substitution of ear tags and assisted in it to a degree. As a professional man, the certificates you make out do not warrant that kind of work. Your offence has been one against the Belleville district and against the cattle export trade."

In the conspiracy charge against Mr. Levine and against Dr. Brown the Crown alleged that cattle bought in western Ontario had been brought to Prince Edward county and exported almost immediately to the United States. Regulations call for such cattle remaining in the county for 60 days and undergoing two tests before being exported.

Holley Greaves, R.C.M.P. investigator, told the court that in this "the ear tags had been kept the required 60 days but the cattle had not."

College St. Houses Assigned to Vets

At a joint meeting of representatives of Branch 99, Canadian Legion (Belleville Branch) and The Veterans Land Act, held in the office of The Veterans' Officer, Thursday Jan. 2, various veterans were selected as eligible for establishment in the houses constructed by the Veterans Land Act on the property known as the Tracey property and situated on North College St.

On Thursday these veterans were taken over the properties, and given their choice, and it is understood that they will occupy these houses immediately. It is understood also, that on this property there is a house for sale to a veteran and the balance of the acreage will be disposed of to veterans for building purposes in lots from ½ acre to three. The V.L.A. representative gave the Legion to understand that all purchasers will be given top priority for materials with which to build homes on these properties.

Further information on this project can be obtained from Everett Liddle, Veterans' Officer, at the City Hall, Belleville, or any officer of the local branch of the Legion.

Obituary

MRS. IDA (WHITE) HARRISON
(Picton)

Picton, Jan. 11 (Special)—One of Prince Edward County's oldest residents, in the person of Mrs Ida Harrison died late Thursday night at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mossie Harrison. She was not feeling well when she retired and died in her sleep. Up until recently she enjoyed remarkable health and last summer took a trip by taxi to Oshawa and Brooklin to visit her nieces, Mrs. R. S. McLaughlin and Miss Louella Mowbray.

Daughter of the late Dr. and Mrs. Nathaniel H. White, she spent all her life in this district. She enjoyed walking and attributed this activity as one contributing to her longevity. Her husband, Edward I. Harrison died many years ago. Mrs. Harrison is an only daughter

The funeral will take place at Cressy United Church Sunday afternoon with interment in Cressy cemetery.

ONLY SMALL CHANGE TAKEN IN BREAK-IN

Police reported that Lattimer's Drug Store was entered some time Friday night with the night patrolman finding the hasp of the rear door unfastened. A check by the store proprietor revealed that nothing of importance had been taken with the exception of some small change.

WIDE VARIETY

The minister said the burden, expense and complexity of administration, when viewed against the lessening risk of serious price advances, threw the balance towards decontrol in some fields.

In the case of some imports, such as tapioca, arrowroot and peanuts, it was necessary to choose between the alternatives of letting the going world price be reflected in Canada, of maintaining ceilings by payment of substantial subsidies, or of going without such imported commodities. In these circumstances, the course of decontrol was chosen.

Expansion Delayed.

In effect, said Mr. Abbott, the list of goods and services under price control now will be those of basic importance in the costs of living and of production. This was in line with the government's policy to eliminate war-imposed restrictions "just as promptly as is consistent" with the prevention of the sort of boom and collapse of prices which followed the first world war.

He reported that "marked progress" had been made in establishing a high rate of peacetime activity, although industrial disputes in Canada and the United States had somewhat delayed the expansion in production which would have reduced inflationary pressures. External pressures, indeed, had increased pressure on Canadian prices and delayed decontrol.

Now, however, production was "increasing rapidly", though it still was hampered by shortages of materials and the effects of industrial disputes. While there still were many shortages—some of them serious — competition was increasing and producers were less inclined "to assume that the market will readily absorb price advances".

Many countries had been experiencing soaring prices but there were signs that the boom was running its course.

"The outlook for a better balance between supply and demand is therefore beginning to brighten," said Mr. Abbott. "The menace of soaring prices is beginning to recede in some directions. Nevertheless, it is only too evident that the time is not yet ripe to remove all price controls.

Continued Protection

"Prices of many basic foods, clothing, certain basic materials and rentals would increase very substantially if all controls now were removed."

He said the list of items remaining under control "affords continued protection to the consumer in the places where the risk and the effects of rising prices are greatest."

Giving the reasons behind the choice of items released from control, Mr. Abbott said:

"When supplies are good, and particularly when they are sufficiently ample to produce prices below established ceilings, as in the case of a number of fresh vegetables, there is every reason for decontrol.

"When supplies of goods which are not fully adequate show every sign of improving further and when competition is increasing, as in the case of many household articles, there is also strong reason to remove price control.

"When competition in world markets is becoming keener and supplies are fairly satisfactory, as is generally the situation with fish, removal of price control is justified, though in some cases it remains necessary to maintain control over the quantity of exports to assure sufficient supplies in the domestic market."

Turning to administrative problems, he said:

"To an increasing extent, the relationship of prices as between standard and new lines in some businesses appeared to be having the effect of encouraging the production of new lines at the expense of output in lower-priced standard lines.

Could Not Be Met

"This problem existed in regard to furniture and some household appliances, and could not, at this stage, be entirely met under the general price control policy.

"Then again, there were a number of fields in which necessary price adjustments were pending. When this was the case and when it was believed that competition was growing and consumer resistance likely to develop to any event, decontrol seemed to be the best course.

Mr. Abbott said there also was a risk that ceiling prices might come to be regarded as "minimum prices—as the prices which the government authorized sellers to charge."

"Accordingly, in some cases where the threat of sharp price increases was passing, the government was disposed to withdraw from price control and to let the trade consider its own longer-range position without any suggestion of government intervention."

The Minister said the government's policy of controlled readjustment recognized the probability of some increase in prices and living costs and added that during the last year it had been necessary to face higher prices abroad and increased costs for labor and material had driven the official cost-of-living index up seven points to 27 per cent over the pre-war average.

But, he continued, while the Canadian cost-of-living went up seven points in that year the American index rose 23 points, a record in which "Canadians may take some pride."

DEATHS

TIGHE — At Hotel Dieu, Kingston, on Friday, January 10th., John Tighe, formerly of Point Anne.

Resting at the Corrigan and O'Brien Funeral Home, West Moira Street, whence the funeral will be held on Monday, January 13th., to St. Michael's Church for Mass at 10.00 a.m. Interment St. James Cemetery.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of the late Mrs. Phillip Flagler wish to thank their friends and neighbors for kindness and sympathy during the illness and death of their mother; also for the many spiritual and floral offerings, and use of cars at the funeral.

We wish to thank all who contributed to the comfort of our parents during their recent illness in Belleville General Hospital, also friends and neighbors for their kind assistance and expressions of sympathy in the loss of our parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Comerford.
—The Comerford Family.

Orderly Process. ....

The government's intention is to continue the "gradual and orderly" process of readjustment. Other price changes will be required from time to time as a result of this policy and the removal of subsidies and of readjustment to higher levels of costs and prices both at home and abroad.

"It is well to remember, however, that external prices have been reflecting acute, and in many causes, temporary shortages," said Mr. Abbott. "It should not be assumed, therefore, that the Canadian level will ultimately reflect the very high prices which at the moment prevail in the United States and elsewhere.

"There are good grounds for the view that world prices of many primary commodities may settle at more reasonable levels than those now prevailing. The goal of the government's stabilization policy has always been and still is to preserve orderly conditions with a view to cutting off the disrupting peak in post-war prices and to avoiding or at least greatly lessening the drop which inevitably follows."

FRENCH AMBASSADOR OPENS EXHIBITION

Toronto, Jan. 11 (CP)—Count Jean De Hauteclocque, French Ambassador to Canada last night formally opened the exhibition "The Spirit of Modern France" at the art gallery of Toronto and commented that the display "would constitute an event of grandeur, even in Paris." The exhibition includes 84 paintings, from 1745 to 1946, designed to present traits of the French spirit through the years.

IN MEMORIAM

KEEGAN — In memory of a dear sister, Joan Keegan, who passed away January 12th., 1946.
Her memory is as dear today
As at the hour she passed away.
—Fondly remembered by Cis and Alex.

KEEGAN — In loving memory of our dear mother, Joan Keegan, who passed away January 12th., 1946.
In our hearts your memory lingers,
Sweetly tender, fond and true.
There is not a day, dear mother,
That we do not think of you.
—Sadly missed by sons, Charlie and Dan.

MASSEY — In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Ella Bertha Massey, who passed away January 12th., 1946.
Upright and just in all her ways,
Faithful and true to the end of her days.
In silence she suffered, in patience she bore
Till God called her home to suffer no more.
—Lovingly remembered by her Husband and Family.

KEEGAN — In memory of a dear mother, Mrs. Joan Keegan, who passed away January 12th., 1946.
—Sadly missed and ever remembered by her son, Bill, daughter-in-law, Phoebe and grandchildren.

ROOT — In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Stillman Root, who passed away January 11th., 1942.
Some day we hope to meet him,
Some day we know not when,
To clasp his hand in a better land,
Never to part again.
—Sadly missed by Wife, Daughters, Son and Grandchildren.

FIRST TYPHOID CASE

Brockville, Jan. 11 (CP)—The first typhoid fever case to appear here for three years is under treatment in a local hospital, it was reported today. Health officials are endeavoring to trace the source of the disease in a railway employee who has had no outside contacts.

MUSIC:—

Music has a magic power to express the deepest emotions of the human heart. In happy hours it sets a rhythm for our joy; when sorrow comes, it reaches the inmost core of our being to give consolation. Mindful of the value of the music as a means of lending dignity to the last rites, we have made every provision for this important feature of our service.

VARIOUS FACTORS SNARL BRITAIN'S HOUSING PROGRAM

By STUART UNDERHILL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, (CP)—The progress of Great Britain's housing program in the last year has won much criticism and little applause and it may be approached from a new angle in 1947.

Instead of encouraging builders to start new construction, the government is likely to tell them to hurry up and finish what they've already begun.

A hint of this was given by an editorial in Labor's Daily Herald, which complained that delaying factors in building now were supply of materials and the actual rate of work on the job, and added:

"Indeed, there is some evidence that so many new houses have been started as to delay the completion of those half built. It may be wiser in 1947 to put some restraint on the rate at which further new houses are started in order to reduce the time and cost of construction.

"The government will have to consider this very carefully, and adapt its decision to the many other urgent demands on the nation's resources."

The government dates its housing program from April 1, 1945. To Nov. 30, 1946, it reported 128,531 houses completed, of which 48,276 were permanent and 80,255 temporary. Houses under construction at the same date totalled 214,242, of which 195,727 were permanent and 18,514 temporary.

A "Good Start"

Health Minister Bevan, who is responsible for the work, says a "good start" has been made and that "the number of houses under contract to be built will soon be approaching the half million mark.

"This part of the work has indeed been done so quickly that at the moment the building industry has been given more work than it can handle."

Figures for December have not yet been released but there is little doubt that the target he set in September—to rush to completion more than 30,000 houses which then were up to roof level—has not been realized. The delaying factors are endless—shortage of supplies, indifferent quality of labor and the diversion of workmen to other less essential jobs.

"There is something really obscene about the large number of people having their houses decorated at the expense of those who otherwise would be getting new houses," Bevan recently told the Building Industries Congress.

He added that the slow rate of building in London "frightened" him and urged the builders to adopt "higher standards of morality". The government would aid them, he said, by providing monthly estimates of the building material available, which would allow them to plan ahead.

In a further effort to direct all available materials to the provision of new homes, the government has ordered heavy cuts in the number of licences to be granted for repair and maintenance work in many areas.

Bevan sticks to his original plan of making local authorities responsible for housing. Their task, as defined by him in an interview, is to build homes "which will be let at reasonable rents to those in greatest need, and not houses for sale to those with the money to buy."

Emiel Leslie Welte, formerly assistant superintendent, Belleville Division, whose appointment as superintendent, Stratford Division, Canadian National Railways, with headquarters at Stratford, was announced today by N. A. Walford, general superintendent, Southern Ontario District.

Jobs Go Begging In New Zealand

Wellington, N.Z., (CP)—New Zealand's unemployment has reached the lowest level in the country's history. At the end of November there were only 146 men and nine women enrolled with the National Employment Service as seeking employment. With a total male working population of about 520,000, the male unemployment rate is only .03 per cent, which is believed to be the lowest of any country in the world.

As against this low unemployment level, there are 10,000 vacancies for males and 12,351 for females notified to the Employment Service and still not filled so that in the total there are far more jobs offering than labor to perform them. Acute labor shortages are largely in the main industrial areas of Auckland, Wellington, Christchurch and Dunedin. The position in secondary centres and rural areas is reasonably good.

'MAIL' BY RADIO GREETED AS BOON BY ARCTIC FOLK

By EDWARD CHANTLER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

To the lonely father sitting before his radio in a snow-buried cabin thousands of miles away in winter-bound Liard River Valley MacKenzie District, came the wistful message:

"Daddy, can you send a pair of silk stockings, size 9 1-2, to give Mommy for Christmas? . . . I blow you a kiss."

Whether the little lad who had the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation Northern Messenger Service send his plea was made happy or not, officials as yet don't know. However, they offer this as an example of upwards of 207 messages sent weekly from CKY, Winnipeg; CBK, Watrous, Sask., and CBA, Sackville, N.B., from loving kin to men and women on the ice-top of the world.

Northern Messenger Winter Service has the keenest listening audience anywhere. Lack of surface mail or airmail during the long cold winters of just below and within the Arctic circle, has made it a welcome boon to traders, trappers, missionaries, doctors, nurses, and Eskimos and Indians.

Operated since 1933, the 30-minute broadcasts are sent early every Saturday morning from Winnipeg and Watrous while the Sackville station sends the messages again Saturday evening.

From Far Afield

Messages sent not only come from Canadian relatives and friends of Arctic citizens but from as far afield as Holland and East Africa.

George Anderson, a Royal Canadian Mounted Police constable at Pangnirtung, Franklin District, receives messages twice monthly from his mother at Dar-es-Salaam, Tanganyika, Central East Africa.

Maneus Bird, an Eskimo youth at a Gravenhurst sanitarium for consumptives, had the service radio Christmas greetings to his parents at Weenush, Hudson Bay, while Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hettash, missionaries, at Main, Labrador, received season's salutations from their children in Haarlem, Holland.

Northern Messenger folk chuckle when they recall the plea of a young Arctic swain to his Maritime girl friend for "plenty of mushy" messages via the service. She did—for months. "The messages got mushier and mushier," said a CBC broadcaster. "A few months later he came back to civilization—they're happily married now."

Too, they remember the French Canadian trapper who lost his false teeth during midwinter. To his anguished written pleas came the service with a note from a Toronto dentist saying "Your impressions received, new teeth on way via Arctic supply ship Nascopie."

And, in poetry, came the following message from a Winnipeg family to a friend on Baffin Island:

"Greetings sincere we send to you,
Enough to last the whole year through.
We hope that Christmas had plenty of spice
And New Year's time held something nice."

San Francisco Girl Disappears With Brother and Sister

San Francisco, Jan. 11 (AP).—Crooner Bing Crosby may get a telephone call any time now from Gloria Priest, 15-year-old San Francisco girl who, her mother disclosed today, disappeared from home Wednesday with her small brother and sister.

Mrs. Celia Priest said she had no idea her daughter planned to leave home but a close friend informed her Gloria was obsessed with the idea her sister had movie talent and said she was going to take her to Hollywood.

"She had Bing Crosby's private telephone number," Mrs. Priest said.

Airmen V.C. Plans Novel Communities

By J. D. HOLDSWORTH
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Perth, Australia, (CP)—Group Captain Leonard Cheshire, V.C., wartime British flying ace, is planning to set up Australia's first "Utopia"—a self-governing, self-supporting, co-operative settlement—in Western Australia.

He has already established two "Utopia" colonies in England, and is flying to Australia this month to complete negotiations for the lease of a 58,000 acre estate about 50 miles from Perth, capital of Western Australia, on which he intends to set up another.

Cheshire plans that the colonists will be mostly Australians with a few Europeans, who will be highly-qualified "displaced persons" of Baltic origin.

The Australian colony will be operated on similar lines to the British colonies. Colonists will pay Cheshire a small "entrance fee" to cover the cost of leasing the estate, and will then move into an allotted section of the colony.

They will build their own homes, and work at agriculture and light industries, and at crafts inside and outside the colony.

All revenue will go into a common pool and wages will be paid according to work done. Basic minimum wage in England is $9.60 a week for a single man or woman, and $3.20 a week for a married woman living with a working husband.

Cheshire began the establishment of his colonies six months ago when he appealed through a London newspaper to stranded ex-servicemen to help themselves by getting together and working together with wartime energy.

He received hundreds of replies and set up his first colony on a Leicestershire farm estate, which he obtained rent free for the first year. Then he established a second colony in the Hampshire village of Greatham.

Apart from the Australian colony planned, Cheshire is organizing another colony in Holland, and considering the setting up of other colonies in British-administered countries close to Australia, beginning with Malaya, for which he hopes to recruit many Australians.

Pleads Essential Construction Only Be Permitted

Peterborough, Jan. 10 —(CP)—John Caufield Smith, architectural editor of Chatelaine magazine, said last night that "thousands of houses standing unfinished across Canada constitute a shameful indictment of our failure to control construction."

He told the Engineering Institute that current housing needs could not be met without curtailing less essential construction, which he said few cities attempted to regulate. "Houses, schools and factories must compete for desperately scarce materials with bowling alleys, theatres and service stations."

"Even Wartime Housing, a government agency enjoying every priority, was unable to complete more than one-quarter of the houses it started in 1946," he said.

Mr. Smith concluded that the Dominion government ought to exercise its emergency powers to see that municipalities permitted only essential construction, as well as spur production of materials and see that they reached buildings for which they were intended.

Three-Way Rioting Causes 13 Deaths

Bombay, Jan. 11 (AP).—Three way communal rioting in Bombay brought death to 13 persons and injury to 110 more in the 24 hours ending at 6 a.m. yesterday, a communique said.

Ten of those slain and 30 of the injured, the communique said, were victims of stabbing. Police fired on mobs 17 times and reported 15 cases of arson in addition.

An earlier communique said the new outburst of communal violence was climaxed when two trucks crashed into a funeral procession, killing three persons and injuring 50.

Believed Victim of Monoxide Gas Poisoning

Haileybury, Jan. 11 (CP).—Believed to have died from carbon monoxide poisoning, Barry Ashby, of Haileybury, was found dead in his car yesterday on a side street here. The motor was still running when the discovery was made.

While driving home, Mr. Ashby apparently became stuck in a snowbank. After repeated efforts to extricate the car, it is thought he decided to take a nap and carbon monoxide fumes then seeped into the car, causing death.

An R.C.A.F. veteran, he was married and formerly lived at Sesikenika Lake. Funeral services were held yesterday with interment in Kirkland Cemetery.

MARMORA

Laymen's Assoc. Of St. Paul's Ch. Holds Meeting

Marmora, Jan. 11 (Special).—The January meeting of St. Paul's Laymen's Association was held in the parish hall on Wednesday evening, with a fair attendance of members. The new president, Don Robertson, took the chair and Rev. J. M. Brownlie opened the meeting with prayer.

Refreshment and program committees were appointed. Other matters of interest to the association were satisfactorily concluded and the president called upon the Deanery president, Mr. W. J. Cottrell, to make a few remarks relative to the association and its functioning in the Deanery. At the conclusion of his short talk Mr. Cottrell acted as chairman for the presentation of the program which was introduced with community singing, with Rev. John L. Hutchinson of Madoc at the piano.

Rev. J. M. Brownlie contributed a solo, "The Lord's Prayer" which was much appreciated. The guest speaker for the evening was Rev. John L. Hutchinson, who will shortly be moving to St. Peter's in Brockville. He gave a most informative address on The Royal Canadian Navy. Having been a chaplain for two years with that branch of the services, his contact with the various ranks enabled him to give a very interesting outline of the lives of Canadian sailors. He was heartily applauded at the close of his talk.

Refreshments were served by the committee in charge.

It is proposed to hold the next meeting of the association in Deloro Hall, Wednesday, Feb. 12.

Slips Under Wheels of Truck, Fatally Injured

Guelph, Jan. 11 (CP).—Slipping beneath the wheels of a truck from which she was alighting on Perth street last night, Mrs. James Costigan suffered fatal injuries. She died while being removed to hospital in the police ambulance.

The truck, driven by William Clayton, 41, stalled in deep snow. Mrs. Costigan, who with Clayton's wife were in the cab along with the driver, stepped out to assist in shoving the vehicle. As she did so she lost her balance and fell beneath the dual wheel, which was spinning. No decision has yet been made regarding an inquest.

Breakfast---London Luncheon--New York

London. (CP)—Breakfast in London and lunch in New York will be the program for air travelers in the "not too distant" future, Peter Masefield, director general of long-term planning at the Ministry of Civil Aviation, told the Royal Empire Society.

"London and New York now are only 17 hours apart by regular air services," he said, "and the journey has been done in little more than 10 hours 'with the wind'."

Warning on Highway Toll

"For every 13 hours that passed in 1946, one Ontario citizen was killed in a motor vehicle accident."

That statement by the Hon. George H. Doucett, Minister of Highways this week, must strike home in every reader the necessity for the use of every precaution and care by motorists and pedestrians to assure greater highway safety.

The Minister in making an urgent appeal to everyone who has occasion to use the highways. He explains that a preliminary compilation of last year's accident statistics shows a total of 670 known deaths, more than in any year since the record high of 1941, when 801 people lost their lives.

Here is the tragic fact to which the Minister points, that the toll of deaths in 1946 was taken "despite the fact that unexpectedly few new cars came on the market to swell the traffic. But now, with an end to production limits in sight, the provincial traffic outlook calls for a maximum of safety-consciousness on the part of Ontario drivers and pedestrians if the rate is to be kept down."

Schools, radio, press, community organizations have made every effort to make the public more safety-minded and Mr. Doucett reminds everyone that despite such co-operation, a decrease in the traffic accident rate rested with the drivers and the pedestrians themselves.

Here is the warning by the Minister to the people:

"All the improvements made in provincial highways, stricter law-enforcement and newer cars on the road will not keep down traffic deaths and injuries unless motorists and pedestrians alike use more care, common sense and courtesy in their driving and walking. Drivers must realize that driving is a privilege which can be forfeited for improper use. The average car weighs about 13 times as much as the average person and with the added power of modern engines it can do tremendous damage before the driver can prevent it. For this reason, pedestrians must avoid acting in ways which motorists cannot anticipate."

French Birth Rate Rising

France expects that the end-of-year figures for 1946 will show a total of births considerably above 900,000 which was the number of births exactly fifty years ago. According to information as yet unpublished officially but derived from the most authoritative sources the number of births during the three quarters of 1946 reached 720,000. Last year the birth total was within 2,000 of being equal to the number of deaths. With the lowering of the infant mortality rate the birth figure in 1946 will be the highest that France has known, says French Information Service.

The rise in the rate is encouraging.

Recently the French Weekly "Four and Three" published figures showing the effects of the wars of 1870, 1914-1918 and 1939-45 on the birth rate. In 1876 with a population of 38,367,000 there were 1,021,956 births. The number of these births in excess of deaths fell from 38 per 10,000 to 15 per 10,000.

Figures during the war 1914-18 show that that struggle cost France 2,635,000 lives. In 1914 births totalled 753,000 and deaths 1,130,000, the excess of deaths over births being 90 per 10,000 of population. In 1915 births fell to 480,000 against 1,065,000 deaths or a drop of 144 per 10,000 of population. Deaths declined in 1916 and births fell to 382,000 for a similar drop in population of 144 per 10,000 for that year. Births increased in number in 1917 to 410,000 and deaths declined to 855,000, a further drop of 112 per 10,000 of population. In 1918 there were 470,000 births and the highest number of deaths namely 1,115,000 meaning a further decline in population of 165 per 10,000.

In 1920 just after the World War I births rose to 833,518 and deaths were 671,057, marking an increase amounting to 42 per ten thousand of population. In 1934 there was an excess of births over deaths of 43,805 or 11 per ten thousand. Thence births gradually fell until in 1939 there ware 583,677, deaths at the same time being lowest at 619,435.

During the Second World War years births decreased especially in 1941 and deaths increased especially in 1940 and 1944 and the deficit was considerably increased. In 1944 the French population was given as 37,200,000. Its highest within the periods considered was in 1938 namely 41,960,000.

Restoration of London Churches

Of the twenty City of London Churches destroyed or severely damaged during the war, eleven are to be restored, if proposals made in the final report of the Bishop of London's Commission are carried out. The Commission also recommended in a recently published document that four of the remaining nine should be used as the sites of parish or diocesan institutions incorporating features of the old churches, and that the sites of five should be sold.

Most of the eleven to be restored are churches rebuilt by Sir Christopher Wren after the Great Fire of 1666; among them are some of the most notable done by that architect, such as St. Mary-le-Bow, St. Bride, Fleet Street, and St. Lawrence, Jewry. St. Giles, Cripplegate is also recommended for rebuilding.

In an interim report presented in 1944, as well as in the current report, the commission suggested that no Wren church be removed if there were a possibility of restoring it, and that all the churches which survived the Great Fire should be retained in their entirety, if possible. Twenty-seven City churches survived this war with little or no serious damage and are recommended for retention.

All of the churches whose sites are proposed for sale were badly damaged or completely destroyed.

It is likely that, if the proposals are accepted, the eleven churches will be restored to their original form, although the secretary to the Ecclesiastical Commissioner points out that after the Great Fire, Wren was not directed to copy the mediaeval originals which has been destroyed.

In the coming months the plans will be fully developed and criticized before a final decision is taken. In any case, it will be perhaps two years before any program can be carried out, and the United Kingdom Parliament will have to pass legislation to support the reorganization of the City Churches.

Never Fast Enough

Why is it that mail never travels fast enough? asks Cleveland Plain Dealer.

We who take for granted present-day communications can sympathize with the sufferings of the ages when ships were propelled by erratic winds and carriages drawn by horses. Wars could end but the fighting continue, distance blacking out the intelligence so eagerly awaited.

We can even understand the experiments with balloons in the last century. Although the steam engine had narrowed the oceans, land travel had made litle progress since Caesar was a visitor in Europe. It was but natural, therefore, that as soon as the balloon was devised attempts would be made to send the mails over mountains by that method. If successful, letters could be delivered in a few hours to places that were some days distant by circuitous mountain roads.

But in the meantime the airplane has cut the ocean down to a river. The radio, telegraph and telephone have eliminated the distance factor entirely. A letter can be sent across the continent in a few hours by plane. Ordinary railway service will carry letters from Celeveland to New York overnight. If that isn't adequate we can pick up the telephone and talk.

But the mails aren't fast enough. In New York experiments are being made with helicopters from the central airfield to near-by cities and to distribution points within New York City. When this service becomes established air mail time will be reduced by the difference between truck and airplane travel from the airport.

However, it won't be many moons until experiments with rockets are begun. We're never satisfied with the speed of mail.

FOR THE FAINT-HEARTED

"Son," my father often said,
"This is manhood's test:
Did the boy who ran ahead
Beat you at your best?

"Victory proves the better lad,
And 'tis right it should,
If you've given the best you had;
Tried as best you could.

"Losers, when the race was run,
Bitterly have sighed,
Knowing that they might have won
Had they truly tried.

"Run your race whole-heartedly,
Do the best you can.
Make your rival prove that he Is the better man."

With Canada's Naturalist

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto, Jan. 11. (CP)—The tinkling music of bells so rich in tone it seemed as if a host of aerial sleighs were riding the clear, crisp sky, recently gave forestry student Arthur Ghent a winter thrill while trudging ski trails at Sundridge, Ont., 200 miles north of here.

Young Ghent first heard the weird music a half mile from the village. Looking about, he failed to see a solitary sleigh. Stopping for a breather in the deep snow, made brittle and crusty by 27-below zero temperature, he noted an undertone of whirring wings accompanying the strange music.

Looking up, he was amazed to see upwards of 100 snow-buntings, brilliant white save for brown bars on their upper parts, winging in a body from a clump of birch trees. Spiralling high overhead, then gracefully settling on a nearby field, their bell-like sounds echoed clear and sweet over the white, sparkling winter playground.

Snow-buntings, also known as snow-birds, snow-flakes and snow-larks, breed on Arctic shores and only fly south when deep snows of home haunts bury food. Usually they appear in southern Canada in October, flying north again in February.

Naturalist John Burroughs compared their song to the laughter of little children, but to Arthur Ghent it had an uncanny likeness to tinkling sleigh bells.

Have you ever sought fish by the light of aurora borealis? It can be done, says one ardent angler, a fifth form student at a Toronto high school. He describes a recent experience from a northern section of the province:

"Last night the northern lights were really in technicolor. Green hues were vivid, as were all other tints. Every water droplet on the grass bordering the lake reflected the shimmering borealis.

"It was so bright I took my fly-rod over to the creek—more to be able to tell the gang at school I had gone fishing by the glow of the northern lights, than in hope of catching fish—but on my fourth cast from shore I picked up a two-pound, 17 3-4-inch Kamloops trout."

With a nostalgic, if not presently frost-chilled glance to coming of Spring, we present the quaint intermingling of flora and fauna in names of many plants and flowers.

For example, adder's tongue, catnip, dogtooth violet, butterfly bush, lamb's quarters, fleabane, oyster plant, goat's beard, ragged robbin stag-horn, cobra plant, buffalo gourd lizard tail, frog water lily, calf's-head, oxalis, pig weed, pussy willow, gooseberry, larkspur, snapdragon, monkey flower, dogwood, spiderwort, elk-wood, wormwood, cowslip, horse chestnut, alligator pear and dandelion.

Winnipeg Policeman Wins Coveted Medal

Winnipeg, (CP)— The King's Police and Fire Service Medal, awarded only on rare occasions in Canada, will be given to a former Winnipeg city police constable, James S. Gray, now of Vancouver.

The King approved the award to Mr. Gray for outstanding service performed in Winnipeg in February, 1937. Arrangements for its presentation are not yet complete.

In February, 1937, Mr. Gray, riding in a patrol car in Winnipeg with Constable James Davies, followed a car which, on sighting the trailing cruiser, picked up speed and raced away over icy streets.

The two constables gave chase until the escaping car smashed into a snow drift and two men jumped out. One man swung a rifle in the constables' direction and ordered them to "stay where you are or I'll plug you." The officers recognized him as an escaped convict.

In complete disregard of the armed man's warning, Constable Gray advanced. The man fired and the bullet tore through Gray's heavy clothing but luckily did not wound him.

Constable Davies entered the fray and fired at and fatally wounded the bandit. The second man fled but was captured shortly afterward.

Chief Constable George Smith of the Winnipeg police recommended Gray for recognition, but the award was not approved by the time Gray retired from the force in 1939. The matter was later taken up at Ottawa.

Mr. Gray was advised recently that the award was approved.

Higher Prices For Farm Products Are Advocated

Toronto, Jan. 11 — (CP) — Higher prices for farm products and the removal of all price controls on agricultural produce were some of the changes proposed Thursday at the annual convention here of the Ontario Federation of Agriculture.

Ontario Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy told members the sooner all controls were removed "the better it will be for the farmer."

"Removal of controls would be the best thing for the farmer, the consumer and the province as a whole," he said, adding that it would finish the black market in agricultural produce by restoring the balance of supply and demand.

The value of government subsidies to the farmer was upheld by Kenneth Betzner, federation president, who said removal of subsidies without an increase in basic prices would be an injustice to the farmer.

H. H. Hannam of Ottawa, president of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture supported the formation of a world food organization by the United Nations.

He said the chief value to farmers everywhere would be the institution of floor and ceiling prices on the world market for farm produce.

The Dominion government's plan to import 12,000,000 pounds of New Zealand butter to ease a possible lag in production was criticized by H. H. Scott, of Norwich.

He urged the Federation to protest this policy as unfair to Canadian butter producers who "can't get the cost of production for our butter."

Agriculture Minister Kennedy in a statement earlier had blamed the meat shortage on the uncertainty about price controls on livestock, which he said led farmers to withhold their cattle from the market. He told the Federation: "If the controls were off, the farmer would have certainty of mind. We cannot produce the maximum yield so long as there is uncertainty."

Maj.-Gen. Vokes Refuses Reply To Col. Campbell

Oakville, Ont., Jan. 11—(CP)—Maj.-Gen. Chris Vokes, general officer commanding central command and the officer who commuted Maj.-Gen. Kurt Meyer's death shooting sentence to life imprisonment, refused comment Friday to a speech delivered in Montreal Thursday by Clarence Campbell.

Formerly a lieutenant-colonel in the Canadian Army's war crimes investigation unit and now president of the National Hockey League, Campbell had asked why no explanation had ever been given for the commutation of sentence, saying that "the reason . . . will not be found in the pages of evidence of that trial."

The court which tried Meyer at Aurich, Germany, in a three-week session which began Dec. 10, 1945, threw out three charges which would have fastened upon him direct responsibility for ordering the massacres but held him guilty of indirect responsibility through the chain of command.

Meyer's petition for clemency was based, not on the finding or sentence of the court, but for humanitarian consideration for his wife and five children.

General Vokes felt those grounds insufficient to justify reversal of the courts decisions and threw out the appeal.

He then proceeded to review the trial proceedings, as required by army law. In his opinion evidence at the trial did not justify Meyer's being shot on grounds of indirect responsibility, and instead of confirming the sentence, he commuted it to life imprisonment.

It is felt in army quarters that Canadian parliamentary regulations for the handling of Canadian war crimes trials, which required consideration of the petition before review of the trial proceedings, may have confused the public mind and led to the dismissal of the appeal being considered the equivalent of confirmation of sentence.

Today General Vokes' headquarters said "all questions about the Meyer case should be referred to Ottawa."

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

TOO MUCH MEDICAL IMPROPAGANDA

In today's mail there were two letters that illustrate the astonishing credulity of the intelligentsia in matters of health or illness.

First is a letter from an attorney who sends an article taken from a popular magazine. In the article the reader finds that the problem of heart disease is now practically solved—it is all due to foods that contain cholesterol. So if I will be good enough to tell the credulous attorney which foods to eliminate from his diet... This half-baked article does bear the name of an author, but no hint or clue as to the qualifications or responsibility of the author. The reader being a credulous person, may take it or leave it. In this instance the reader takes it—but not with any assurance from me. All I know about cholesterol in the diet and its relation to heart disease, arteriosclerosis, rheumatiz, high blood pressure or what have you, is literally what I read in the magazines. That is all anybody knows about this It is only a theory.

Next, a letter from a chemist who, I believe, is the chief chemist of a large industrial organization. The chemist, too, incloses an article from a popular magazine, this one purporting to be written by a Doctor of Medicine, whose name I cannot find in the blue book that lists more than 200,000 physicians in the United States and Canada — but that doesn't necessarily prove the name is a phony.

The chemist asks whether I have not said that in certain conditions it is beneficial to breathe a mixture of pure oxygen with pure carbon dioxide? He is worried because the doctor who wrote the magazine article asserts it is the excess of cargon dioxide that piles up in the blood and tissues that poisons, rather than the lack ow sufficient oxygen, and upon that assumption suggests that people must learn to exhale—for men never forgets to inhale, the unidentified doctor argues, what he forgets and neglects is exhaling and so the doctors and physical education instructors were wrong when they ordered "inhale!" — the proper command to give is "exhale!"

Let the chemist and any other member of the great American intelligensia who may be worried about "poisoning" by carbon dioxide, be of good cheer. It doesn't happen.

In the treatment of asphyxiation by gas, or poisoning by alcohol or other narcotic, administration by inhalation a mixture of pure carbon dioxide, 5 to 7 per cent, with 93 to 95 per cent. pure oxygen or just pure air, is well established in practice. The carbon dioxide stimulates breathing in the unconscious or semi-conscious or weakened subject and hastens "blowing off" of the alcohol or other poison. Inhalations of a similar mixture of carbon dioxide and oxygen or air will bring prompt relief in many instances of incessant hiccough. If the gas cylinder and inhalator is not available a similar effect is readily obtained by simple re-breathing—holding an ordinary paper bag over mouth and nose and breathing into it for half a minute at a time.

The unidentified author of the article asserts that tests of the blood of policemen in a large city showed that those on duty amidst heavy traffic had too much carbon dioxide in their blood and police on duty in outlying districts had no more than the normal blood content of carbon dioxide. I'd like to bet that the author was confused about that. It was carbon monoxide, not carbon dioxide, that such tests showed present in excessive amount in the blood of persons much exposed to air polluted by automobile exhausts.

What beats me, though is the great credulity such people have for health or medical impropaganda.

It is a Yanke trait.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Nobody's Corn Cure

A large drug company here claims to have exclusive rights to dispense your corn cure. I supposed you just published the recipe of formula so that anybody could make it up and sell it.

(W. K.)

Answer—You are right and the drug company or anybody else who claims any exclusive right to make or sell anything I suggest is bamboozling the public. Anyway the "corn cure" in question—a solution of thirty grains of salicylic acid in one-half fluid ounce of flexible collodion—was more or less standard long before I began wearing long pants. You paint a coating of it on wart, corn or callus once a day, keeping it off from surrounding skin. After a week or so the corn, wart or callus softens so it may be wiped away.

Incidentally, anybody who uses my name as prescribing recommending or advising his product or method is a pirate, for I have never given anybody permission to do so.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

At what age do the wisdom teeth appear?

The third molars — the hindmost tooth on each side of the upper and lower jaws — are called "wisdom teeth" because normally they are not "cut" until a person is between 18 and 25, when he is supposed to have reached the age of wisdom.

"Wisdom teeth" is a translation of Latin "dentes sapientiae." Equivalent phrases occur in Greek, Arabic and other languages.

"To cut one's wisdom teeth" signifies to reach the age of discretion. When a person says or does a foolish thing we say he has not yet cut his wisdom teeth.

But the cutting of the wisdom teeth does not indicate that physical or mental growth in the individual has ceased.

There are cases on record of the wisdom teeth erupting as early as the age of 14 and as late as the age of 65.

In fact, about 40 per cent of people never have any wisdom teeth at all.

The canine teeth in the upper jaw are called "eyeteeth" because their roots project upward nearly to the orbits of the eyes.

In both the deciduous and permanent sets the eyeteeth are cut later than most of the other front teeth.

Hence to cut one's eye teeth means to be a baby no longer, to be up to snuff or to have one's weather eye open.

To draw a person's eyeteeth means to take him down a notch or two, to take the conceit out of him or to fleece him without mercy.

Actually the eyeteeth have no closer connection with the eyes than with the other upper front teeth.

Aussies to See Canuck Exhibit

Sydney, Australia, (CP)—Canada will be represented by a $35,000 display at a British Empire exhibition to be staged this year in connection with Sydney's Royal Agricultural Show.

An official of the Canadian Directorate of Exhibitions is expected to come to Australia this month to supervise lay-out of the Canadian section which will feature a map of Canada showing the location of air force centres at which Australians trained under the Empire air plan.

Britain, New Zealand and India will also be represented and if the Empire section is successful it may become a regular department to the show held annually in Sydney.

Rusnaks See Alleged Slayer Again Remanded

St. Catharines, Jan. 11—(CP)—Mr. and Mrs. John Rusnak Friday saw in court, Sidney George Chambers, who is charged with murdering their nine-year-old daughter, Marion who disappeared from the doorstep of her home Dec. 22.

It was the first time the Rusnaks had come face to face with the 34-year-old stationary engineer who, police say, has admitted strangling and cremating the child in the boiler of the Lake Street canning plant.

As Magistrate H. D. Hallett, at the request of Crown Attorney E. H. Lancaster, remanded Chambers in custody in the Lincoln county jail for another week, Mrs. Rusnak wept and was consoled by her husband and her sister who has been staying in St. Catharines since the tragedy befell the Rusnak household.

Chambers' second court appearance on the murder count lasted less than a minute and the crowded courtroom got only a brief look at the man, who is married and father of a four-year-old daughter.

The accused, who served in the Canadian Army in Canada, stood rigidly at attention as Magistrate Hallett advised him of the remand. It has been indicated by Crown authorities that the preliminary hearing will not be held until at least Jan. 24. One month from that date, Feb. 24, the Supreme Court Assizes is scheduled to start in Lincoln county.

Accused's Face Expressionless

Chambers made no comment and his face was expressionless during his court appearance. He wore a windbreaker and matching trousers, and uniform which, it is understood, he obtained when he was employed as a bread delivery salesman in Toronto and Collingwood.

Following his court appearance, Chambers asked authorities to arrange for an officer of the Salvation Army to visit him at the Lincoln county jail as a religious counsellor. This has been done.

Detective J. S. Anderson and Inspector C. W. Wood are continuing their efforts today preparing evidence for presentation at Chambers' trial. Inspector Wood returned Thursday from Toronto, where he had taken samples from the ashes removed from the canning factory boiler.

EXTRA EARLY NEW TOMATO Early Chatham
"EARLY CHATHAM" TOMATO

Earliest Quality Tomato Yet Developed —Valuable For All Parts of Canada

Of immense value for the North and West and other short season districts. Highly desirable for all other areas too as an extra early sort producing fine quality ripe fruit as much as two weeks or more before most other varieties. Has been a sensation on the Prairies since 1943, including such districts as Lethbridge and Brooks, Alta.; Indian Head and Swift Current, Sask.; Brandon and Morden, Man. Around Calgary, where first distributed under the name of "Alberta", gardeners were simply "wild" about it. At Lethbridge Early Chatham ripened a week to twelve days before other extra early varieties. At Morden, Man., it has yielded as much as 20% to 40% greater crops than other good earlies. Early Chatham is dwarf, non-staking, and may be planted as closely as two feet each way. Fruits uniform, fine shape and colour; delicious quality. Average about 2¼ inches across but frequently larger. Order direct from this advertisement. (Pkt 15¢) (oz 75¢) postpaid.

Finds Irish Have Nothing to Sell

Dublin. (CP)—Marcel J. Adler, Argentina importer, came here with £400,000 ($1,600,000) to spend and took it all away again.

He wanted high-class Irish goods—tweeds, linen machine tools drinking glasses electric light bulbs and other things.

"But there has been nothing", he told reporters. "Just like England—nothing, nothing, nothing. I am going away now, to Holland and other parts of the Continent. They do much business there.

"I am not interested in rubbish and the 'take it or leave it' way of doing business does not appeal to me."

Adler said he had made some business contacts "but they all say they have no export licence and cannot do anything at present."

'Monty' Takes Sightseeing Tour Through Kremlin

Moscow, Jan. 10 (AP).—Field Marshal Viscount Montgomery took a sightseeing tour through the Kremlin today and was asked to reserve this evening for a probable state occasion at which an important person might be present.

(This dispatch did not name the "important person", but earlier dispatches suggested Montgomery might see Prime Minister Stalin during the visit.)

Montgomery expects to end his visit tomorrow and return home by plane if weather permits.

The Field Marshal was guest at a British Embassy dinner last night at which Deputy Foreign Minister Vishinsky, in a speech, referred to Montgomery as "Monty" and said the Soviet Union was pleased to have him as a guest.

Marshal Ivan S. Konev, commander of the Soviet ground forces, praised Montgomery as a war leader.

In response, Montgomery stressed the contacts he had made with the Soviet Army and talked of the growing collaboration he expected.

Soviet newspapers continued to give Montgomery much attention, devoting hundreds of words to his talents as one of the world's outstanding commanders.

Police Prepare For Royal Tour

Pretoria, South Africa, (CP) — The most intense task of planning ever undertaken by the South African police is nearly completed in Pretoria, where all aspects of al tour are being carefully worked out.

The plans cover the duties to be carried out by the force ranging from motor cycle escorts to the commissioner of police himself, Maj.-Gen. R. J. Palmer, who will travel with the royal party. In order to give policemen an idea of their duties during the tour, a film of the royal visit to Canada is being shown the force's duties during the royto them. The Canadian government film gives every stage of the King and Queen's travels in Canada.

The police will also be helped in their duties of controlling crowds and maintaining security by South Africa's "Home Guard", called the Civilian Protective Service.

Scotland Yard is to co-operate with the South African Police on the security plans and six men from the Yard have been assigned for this purpose. One of them is Superintendent Leonard Burt who during the war was seconded to military intelligence as head of the anti-sabotage division.

PROBLEM OF DISTRIBUTION

Victoria, B.C., Jan. 11—(CP)—Reports concerning a current shortage of meat in Canada were termed "completely false" by Dominion Agriculture Minister James G. Gardiner here yesterday.

"There is 30 per cent more meat now in Canada than there ever was, even before the war, and certainly not a shortage," he said.

Asked why, in the face of such supplies, that meat rationing must be continued, Mr. Gardiner replied that the problem was "one of distribution," not supply."

FOG BAFFLES THE EXPERTS

London, (CP)—No method of preventing fog has been discovered despite a three-year survey by the Atmospheric Pollution Research Committee, it was reported by Dr. G. M. B. Dobson, committee chairman.

However, much useful knowledge was gained, he said. It was learned that the frequency of fogs was not increased by the presence of smoke, although smoke made them denser.

There were three requirements for the presence of fog: nuclei on which water vapor might condense; stagnant atmosphere and the cooling of air near the ground.

The two latter conditions arose most frequently when there was an anti-cyclone or area of high pressure. Weather experts had found that from November to January Britain's air supply, coming from the Atlantic or North Sea, arrived nearly 90 per cent saturated with water vapor.

E. L. Hawke, secretary of the Royal Meteorological Society, said that since the beginning of this century there had been a marked decrease in the number of fogs in Britain. He said he believed this was due to an increase in the number of built-up areas which lessened the quantity of moisture rising from the ground.

Western Marshes Provide Setting For Documentary

Regina, (CP)— The documentary film, depicting the unglamorized ways of the world, has turned its scrutiny toward the marshes of Saskatchewan and focussed on the beaver and muskrat.

"From Marsh to Market", the first production of the Saskatchewan Film Board, organized under the provincial education department last February, is a two-reel assignment for the natural resources department. The 800 feet of 16-millimetre film follows the process from the trapping of the fur-bearing animals to the final auctioning at the province's fur marketing agency in Regina.

Applications for loan of the film have already come from Australia and England and enquiries have been received from Holland and Mexico.

Scenes of the habitat and the hunting of muskrat were shot in the marshes of the southern part of the province. The beaver's and its trappers' ways are shown in scenes of Saskatchewan's lake-covered north, some filmed from an aircraft.

For Rural Circuit

Appropriatel yenough, George Gabe, film board cameraman, was in charge of production and E. F. Holliday, acting film commissioner supervised the script. The film has a commentary and will be exhibited in the Saskatchewan rural circuit, administered by nine field representatives of the National Film Board. They conduct rural programs sponsored by local community organizations.

The film will also go to most of the 350 schools in the province which have film projectors. Eight school units employ "audio-visual" teachers who are qualified to show films.

Closely allied with the Saskatchewan board is the National Film Board which has a library in its Regina office of 1,300 films on subjects including agriculture, health, irrigation, community activities, fishing and rural electrification.

Officials emphasize that the films are not for entertainment, but to further particular projects of various communities. The Saskatchewan Film Board which employes 23 persons has started work on a film outlining the fishing resources of the province and one on highways and another on the larger school unit system are nearly completed. Others planned will deal with credit unions and co-operative farms.

Vancouver Loses Musical Barber

Vancouver, (CP) — Vancouver is losing one of its more colorful citizens and a landmark in Carrall street will soon be just a place to get a haircut.

For Alexander Bdytzun—entertainer, wrestler, musician, magician and barber—is leaving his barber shop. Come spring, Boytzun will go on a two-year concert tour of Alberta and Saskatchewan, alternately performing on his violin and mystifying the audience with his magician's art.

But the customers who came in, not only to get the "works" but to hear Boytzun discuss music, or wrestling or the art of legerdemain will miss their versatile friend.

They remember how Boytzun, using one of his barber chairs for a podium, rehearsed a group of youthful musicians directing them through the intricacies of the most difficult classics.

The rehearsals took place usually on Wednesday afternoons when the barber shop was closed to the public. This young musical group —the average age was 12—later became well known as the Ukrainian ensemble.

Though Boytzun is a magician of some note and a one-time Canadian middleweight wrestling champion, he gets more pleasure from remembering that he was once a member of the Vancouver symphony.

His cherished violin—which he hopes is a 1726 Stradivarius—was given to him by an 80-year-old woman, who had been impressed by the work he was doing teaching young boys and girls to appreciate and play good music.

If you question the authenticity of his "1726 Stradivarius," he will probably say: "Once I went to see Yehudi Menuhin when he was playing at one of the local theatres. I was with him for about an hour. I played on his violin. He played on mine. He had this to say of my Stradivarius:"

"'Boytzun,' he said, 'what does it matter if it is really a Stradivarius that you have here. You have a beautiful instrument. It has everything.'

"That is the way I feel about it myself. Would knowing for certain that it was genuine give it a more beautiful tone?"

Boytzun satisfied his early ambition to be a musician by practising surreptitiously on his brother's $2.50 violin. After learning to play by ear his talent was discovered and he graduated to his own violin and proper lessons.

Defence Estimates Will be Slashed

Ottawa, Jan. 10 (CP)—Defence department estimates, slashed by more than $1,200,000,000 for the current fiscal year, are expected to be reduced again next year as a result of moves to coordinate the three services under one minister, it was learned yesterday.

Just how much the reduction might amount to officials are not yet prepared to say, as estimates for the 1947-48 fiscal year still are under preparation. Defence Minister Claxton said that any speculation on the size of the reduction would, at this time, be premature and unjustified.

When the estimates for the defence department were tabled during the last session of parliament it was disclosed that army, navy and air force expenditures were expected to total $1,707,000,000, as compared with $2,938,000,000 in the previous fiscal year, a reduction of $1,231,000,000.

Meantime reports have spread that Mr. Claxton in his economy drive plans to cut down on the comforts, such as cars and drivers, allowed some officers during the war years.

Within the last month the National Defence Department for air was abolished and the R.C.A.F. was brought under the jurisdiction of the defence department, which had control over the navy and the army. In the shake-up, Mr. Claxton was appointed minister in charge of the three branches of the forces.

New Vice-President For National System

Maynard A. Metcalf, C.B.E., executive assistant to the president, Canadian National Railways, has been appointed vice-president and executive assistant.

Beginning as a junior clerk at Toronto when he was in his 15th year, the new vice-president has served the National System for nearly 37 years and in his long career has become one of the most popular of Canadian transportation men, known throughout the business community not only of Canada but of the United States and Great Britain. For his part in the large-scale contribution made by the C.N.R. to the Allied cause during the war, he was honoured by His Majesty the King last June when he was created a Commander of the Order of the British Empire.

Mr. Metcalf was born at Toronto Junction, Ont., in 1895 and began railroading, as a junior clerk in the operating department of the Canadian Northern in February, 1910. Hard work, a keen interest in railway affairs and an attractive personality, qualities which stood him in good stead throughout the years, brought him early recognition and advancement.

He was Mayor of the Town of Mount Royal, residential suburb of Montreal, for four years, following four years as alderman.

Mrs. C. Barnett Conducts Meeting Of Women's Assoc.

Tweed.— The first meeting of the Women's Association for the New Year was held in St. John's United Church on Thursday p.m., with a good attendance. Mrs. Claud Barnett, newly appointed president, was in the chair with Mrs. Stanley McCullough as secretary. On opening the meeting a hymn was sung and the president spoke a few words on the new year. She urged all to work together in peace and harmony to remember the good in others and to forget the bad as God forgives and forgets. She said "what a grand opportunity was ours today". "Let us put our hand in the Hand of God and press toward the mark of high calling which is in Christ Jesus". Mrs. Barnett then led in prayer. Mrs. C. E. Way read a New Year's greeting given by Mary J. Maddocks, president of the Dominion Woman's Association Council, taken from the church paper "The Observer". Mrs. Dales' solo, "Who Could It Be", given here was much enjoyed. A short business meeting followed. Minutes of last meeting was given by the secretary, the leaders of the four groups reported as to money raised which was very gratifying. Mrs. Frank Bowers, treasurer of the W.A., also gave a good report Mrs. C. Sharpe reported for the flower fund. It was decided to hold the congregational meeting the last week in January with a pot luck supper. Some of business was left over for next meeting. A hymn was sung and Mrs. A. L. Sisco closed with prayer.

Ladies' Auxiliary, Sons of Jacob Hold Rummage Sale

Main floor of the "Armouries" was a bee hive of activity this morning when the ladies of the Auxiliary of the Sons of Jacob Synagogue sponsored a Rummage Sale, all proceeds of which are to be used for the relief of displaced persons overseas.

This is the first venture of its kind under the auspices of the Auxiliary, but if it proves a success, the ladies hope to make it an annual event, and at an early hour today all appearances pointed to favorable result.

Beside a great assortment of clothing, many articles of furniture had been contributed by interested individuals and by several stores in the city. The committee in charge wish to express thanks and appreciation to all who have donated anything to the sale, and to the Commanding Officer of the Argyll Regiment for his influence in securing the use of the Armouries.

Boudoir Beauty

By ALICE ALDEN

ONE OF AMERICA'S best lingerie designers, Odette Barsa, turned to famous paintings for her newest collection. Inspired by Raeburn's "Portrait of a Lady", Miss Barsa designed a beautiful buodoir ensemble of gown and robe. She fashioned the divine duo of imported white net and pure silk satin. Four scalloped tiers form the billowy sleeves which highlight the low decolletage edged in tiny white satin leaves. The hand-made leaf borders a scalloped double flounce repeated around the hemline. This would make an exquisite bridal gift.

Three New Films Purchased By Foxboro Board

Foxboro.— The Foxboro and District Film Council at its annual meeting held in Foxboro Public School, Wednesday evening, purchased three new films to be added to the Foxboro District Film Library.

The motion to purchase the three films, a Walt Disney creation in technicolor entitled "Water—Friend or Enemy", an entertaining short called "Underwater Champions" and a fascinating and charming film in color on "Jasper Park", climaxed a brisk discussion following the showing of these three films by Mr. Ron Ward, of the National Film Board.

Mr. Ward gave a comprehensive report of the work of the Foxboro District Rural Film Council which compared favorably with the work carried on in the smaller city councils. Mr. Ward said that although there had been only one outdoor showing during the Summer months that reports showed a total of 144 showings for 1946 with a total attendance of over 7,000.

A Rural School Circuit including six units has regular classroom showings every two weeks using teaching films secured from the Department of Education.

Rev. L. Shorten spoke on plans for 1947 and as a result of his suggestions a district social is planned for February 12, in Foxboro United Church Sunday School room. The committee in charge which will attempt to interest the entire district, consists of Mr. Frank Tummon, chairman; Rev. L. Shorten, vice-chairman; Miss Rhea McCullough, Mrs. Geo. Rikely, Mr. Doug. Ketcheson, Mr. Harry Lott, Mr. Stan Sherry, Mr. Jas. Campbell, and Councillor Carmen Frost as members.

Officers Elected

The election of officers took place as follows:

President, Mr. Morley Sine.

Vice President, Mr. Lawrence Ketcheson.

Secretary Treasurer, Mrs. Wanda Sine

Assistant Secretary, Mrs. Frank Tummon

Executive Committee, Mr. Ronald Ward, Mr. Harry Lott and Mr. Jas. Campbell.

Each of the five churches, five schools, four Women's Institutes, Women's Association and Foxboro District Co-operative represented on the Council were asked to send in the names of their representative for 1947.

A social hour with delicious refreshments served by the members brought the Foxboro and District Film Council's most successful meeting to a close.

Linen Shower For Miss Kellett, Bride-Elect

On Thursday evening, Mrs. J. T. Goodfellow, and her daughter, Miss Beverley, were co-hostesses at their home, 303 Dufferin Avenue, for a linen shower in honor of Miss Winnifred Kellett, bride-elect of this month, when fifteen friends gathered to express felicitations and present gifts.

The rooms were tastefully decorated in a pastel color scheme, the gifts, wrapped in vari-colored parcels, being presented in a decorated basket, under a parasol in corresponding pastel colors.

After having opened her gifts Miss Kellett graciously expressed her appreciation to her friends and to the hostesses for their kindness and for the useful and beautiful gifts.

Delectable refreshments were served by the hostesses, and a social hour enjoyed.

Women's Activities

W.I. MEETING

Marmora, (Special.) — The January meeting of Marmora Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. H. W. Sabine on Wednesday evening with a good attendance. The President, Mrs. W. D. Lavender, was in the chair. The meeting having opened in the usual manner, the roll call was answered by members telling of "ways of making newcomers welcome". A letter of thanks for a donation made to the Hospital for Sick Children was received from its management.

Donations were reported from Marmora Village Council and Marmora Agricultural Society towards the expenses incurred in the transportation of the Girls' Cooking Club to Peterborough last month.

It was decided to hold a euchre party and dance in the Town Hall during January. Dr. H. Crawford, as guest speaker of the evening, gave an interesting address on "Hospitalization".

The program was then presented commencing with community singing. Mesdames P. Gray and L. R. Rundle sang "Let the rest of the world go by", which was followed by a solo "The Old Lamplighter" by Mrs. L. R. Rundle. The program concluded with a short reading by Miss M. Brown and refreshments were served.

BETHANY W.M.S.

The January meeting of Bethany W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. W. Doxtator on Wednesday. The meeting opened with the Doxology after which The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison. Business was discussed and it was decided to send for the new Study Book. The worship service was in charge of the President, Mrs. G. Sills, the theme being "Fulfilling Our Church Membership by Witnessing for Christ". A letter was read by Mrs. C. Eggleton from Mr. Hayward, who is a returned missionary. Several portions of Scripture were read by Mrs. G. McPherson, Mrs. G. Kerr and Mrs. P. Osland. Mrs. Sills closed this part of the meeting with prayer. Mrs. W. Casey took charge of the program which followed. A reading "The Wise Men of Old", was given by Mrs. O. Beer. A solo contributed by Mrs. W. Mifflin, "God Who Touches Earth with Beauty", was enjoyed by everyone. Readings were given by Mrs. H. Casey, by Mrs. W. Clarke on Christian Stewardship, "Will He Have Anything of Mine" and by Mrs. F. Walker on New Year's Resolutions. The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction.

ST. PAUL'S W.A.

Stirling. (Special.)—On Tuesday afternoon, the January meeting of St. Paul's W.A., took the form of a membership tea held at the home of Mrs. Gordon Bailey, with twenty-seven of the thirty-five ladies present becoming official members of the organization for 1947.

The program opened with the theme song, and prayer by the president.

During the business period communications received during December were read 37 cards and one letter having been sent out during the month. The annual report revealed that 173 cards and 16 letters had been sent during 1946, and 223 calls made. Mrs. J. L. Good and Mrs. Walter Elliott will act as the Visiting Committee for January.

A complete and satisfactory annual financial statement was presented by the Treasurer, Mrs. J. B. Thompson, with Mrs. A. E. Good presenting the report of the Parsonage committee. The energetic Friendly Workers' group had an encouraging report read by Mrs. W. Preston. This group donated another $10 making a total of $90 given to the Association since their inception last February. The auditors' report was read by Mrs. J. L. Good.

Mrs. Gordon Bailey voiced her appreciation for the assistance and co-operation of the members during the past year and then vacated the post of president to the incoming officer, Mrs. Walter Elliott.

Another business period followed during which plans were made for the annual congregational meeting to be held this month. Mrs. W. Preston was named convener for the Sewing Department, Mrs. C. I. Hatton for the Wool Department, and Mrs. Bradburn and Mrs. A. E. Good to be in charge of the Quilting Department of the Friendly Workers' group. On motion of Mrs. N. Wescott it was decided that the W.A. sponsor a bazaar in the Autumn of 1947. A vote of thanks was tendered the retiring executive for their efficient work during 1946.

The River Valley ladies had charge of the afternoon's program, with Mrs. Roy Bush reading the Scripture lesson, following same with devotional comments. Prayer was offered by Mrs. A. Armstrong. The speaker for the afternoon was Mrs. John Villetorte, who with her family resided in France during World War II. She gave a concise account of conditions throughout France, as she witnessed them, and all who were privileged to hear her will long remember some of the facts she disclosed.

A hymn and the Mizpah Benediction closed the meeting, with the appreciation of the W.A. expressed by Mrs. R. A. Patterson to the hostess, the guest speaker, and the ladies in charge of the program.

Marmora

Cooking Club Meets

Marmora (Special)—The meeting of the Girls' Cooking Club was held in St. Andrew's Hall on January 7th at 7.30 p.m. with a large attendance.

The president, Miss Virginia Robertson opened the meeting. Agnes Forestell was called upon to read the minutes of the last meeting which were accepted as read.

The girls decided to hold a "bake" sale in the near future to repay the Women's Institute for their generous loan which enabled the girls to charter a bus to Peterborough. As there are 34 girls in the club, it was decided to divide them into three groups under the leaders Mrs. E. C. Prentice, Mrs. M. Kouri and Mrs. W. Chrysler.

The leaders offered the girls the hospitality of their homes.

The next meeting will be held in the leaders' homes at an early date.

V.O.N. News

One of the services of the Victorian Order of Nurses which is, perhaps, not as well known as other phases of their work, is that of regular care for the chronically ill. This type of patient includes those who will be confined to their beds for a long time, through a slow convalescence, or old people who are bedridden. For these, the service of a full time nurse may not be necessary, but they would find great benefit and ease from the weekly ministrations of a skilled nurse whose care would supplement the daily devotion they receive from someone in the home.

Then, too, in addition to the professional treatment which the Victorian Order Nurse can give, her presence is welcomed by such patients as another contact with the busy life in which they can no longer take an active part. The Victorian Order Nurses are prompt to answer calls of this kind and to arrange by those in charge of the invalid the kind of visiting schedule which is best suited to that particular need.

At the Kiwanis Centre next Thursday, Jan. 16, the regular toxoid clinic will be held at 3.30 under the direction of Dr. G. S. Cronk, Medical Officer of Health. There will be no dental clinic next week.

Rev. A. M. Laverty, for seven years minister of St. Paul's United Church and Carmel, who has recently been appointed Chaplain of Queen's University, Kingston, left on Sunday to assume his new duties there.

Mrs. Morris Rose and family of Anson have moved to Stirling and have taken up residence on Mill Street in the home recently vacated by Mrs. Mary Potts.

The New Military Figure

Katharine Hepburn is an oustanding example of the attractive modern type of girl

By HELEN FOLLETT

OUR new military type of girl is interesting. Strange to say she doesn't look masculine. She has square, broad shoulders due to good posture and regular exercise. Also, due to her faithfulness to muscle activity, she has a trim waist and small hips. Katharine Hepburn is an outstanding example of this type. Her movements are graceful. She is pleasing to the eye. Let's not forget, members of this good looks class, that a lovely figure is quite as attractive as a beautiful face. To artists it is even more so.

In direct contrast is the fluffy girl. You'll see her in photographs showing the latest fashions. She is willowy, and that's all right. But she is too slinky. She has a figure that follows the lines of a question mark. The tummy protrudes, arms have a forward pose. No doubt there is a certain appeal in this model type, but, if you see it around the house every day, you'll want to slip it on the back, tell it to stand up like a man, and look alive.

Out of Step

The trouble with the slinky girl is that she looks helpless and useless. She is out of step with the times. Women are dong things these days they never did before. They are intensely interested in national and international affairs. When they gather on a street corner with the baby and a lot of groceries in the pram, they're as likely as not to talk politics as well as the prices of food.

Let us be decorative but also let us look capable and efficient. Many of us are bustling for our frocks and, thank goodness, they don't have to be of black silk as in grandmother's day but can be as gay as a rainbow.

Miss Fluffy Girl is getting herself ready for retirement. So, good bye, baby. You'll look lots niver when you aren't overdressed with too many ruffles, ribbons and flowers.

WHAT DOES A DICTATOR DO WHEN HE ISN'T DICTATING — OR ORATING FROM BALCONIES?

These photos give you an intimate glimpse behind the scenes into the private life of Generalissimo Francisco Franco, El Caudillo (the leader) of Spain. We say "lives" advisedly. For the Generalissimo is apparently a man of many parts. In top, at left, Franco the angler, looks like any businessman relaxing with rod and reel. He doesn't seem the least bit sinister. You will note he carries a camera to provide pictorial proof of his fish stories. Top right, Franco the Picador, devotee of Spain's national sport, bull-fighting. The lance he carries is a pic, used to goad the bull before the star matador puts on his killing act. The horse on which El Caudillo is mounted is "Rocaille," a race horse presented to Franco by Edmond Veil-Picard, French breeder. Franco posed like this during the annual testings of young fighting bulls. Bottom right, Franco the hunter nestles in a craggy "blind" as he waited for a shot at a mountain sheep or goat during one of his hunting expeditions.

Chatham, Ont., suffered the loss of a second [illegible] a blaze, fanned by a strong wind, almost completely gutted the Chatco Steel Products plant at a loss of more than $200,000. Several explosions occurred, causing nearby residents to become alarmed. Photo shows some of the damage after the fire was extinguished.

"AXIS SALLY"—WOMAN WITHOUT A COUNTRY?

Huddled against a cold stove and eating a piece of bread in a Frankfurt, Germany, hotel, Mildred Gillars, 37-year-old American musician-actress arrested in Berlin last March on suspicion of treasonable activities in behalf of the Nazi propaganda ministry, wonders what the future will bring. Known as "Axis Sally" in her wartime broadcasts, she has been given her freedom, subject only to periodic reports to military authorities. The U. S. Department of Justice apparently has decided not to prosecute her. She doesn't know whether she is still an American citizen since her passport was taken away in 1941. She is not even sure she can obtain German food rations until her nationality is clarified.

Sermon-Writing Habit Kept Up After Retirement

Brockville, Jan. 11 (CP).—Preparation of a weekly sermon during his 52 years as a minister of the Presbyterian Church in Canada became such a habit with Very Rev. N. A. MacLeod that he kept it up after his retirement from the active ministry.

Last Sunday this practice by the former moderator of the church's general assembly was put to good account. Dr. MacLeod had a sermon all ready when he was called upon unexpectedly to preach in place of a Brockville minister who was ill.

TORONTO LEAFS MEET BOSTON AT THE GARDENS

Bill Cowley of Bruins Has a Shoulder Injury and Will Go Home

(By The Canadian Press)

The old rivalry between Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League looked today like a two-team argument for absolute domination of the circuit.

The Leafs currently are riding five points ahead of the Canadiens. What makes the ancient feud dominant over all other teams is the fact that Boston Bruins, 3rd-place contenders, now are without the ace play-making services of veteran Bill Cowley.

The Bruins arrived in Toronto yesterday for their tilt against Leafs tonight and after further medical consultations it was decided that Cowley had a shoulder separation which required attention and care. So smiling Bill, who's engineered more plays than a bingo conductor, said adieu to his team-mates and left last night for his home in Boston.

The only other game tonight sees the hapless Chicago Hawks at Montreal. Goalie Paul Bibeault of the Hawks, who saw 11 pucks flutter past him in Toronto a few weeks ago, and another 10 on Thursday there, wasn't saying a thing. But he was probably muttering "They can't be worse than Leafs."

Aubrey Clapper, Bruins' coach who was born in Peterboro at least 40 years ago, is going to be out on the ice with his stick at the alert tonight as a result of Cowley's absence. If it gets any worse, perhaps even Art Ross will get out there and skate. The Bruins have won only two of their last nine games.

Ross said at Toronto last night that he's keen on Edward Barry, native Bostonian and 27-year-old coast guard veteran, who makes his N.H.L. debut in Boston next week. Barry has 21 goals and 13 assists in 30 games in the Eastern United States Amateur Hockey League.

Ross didn't say anything about Bill Cowley going back home. He figured the results would do all the talking. And the Leafs, dizzily riding in an unaccustomed lead, weren't talking either. All figured that anything might happen.

SPORT SHORTS FROM BRITAIN

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 11. (CP)—Canada's Olympic representatives will receive a few extra amenities during their stay in Britain—because Field Marshal Viscount Alexander is a member of the South London Harriers.

The Harriers, who recently celebrated their 75th anniversary, received a message of good wishes and a donation from an old member now in China, with the suggestion the money should be put to whatever the club thought best.

The club "adopted" Canada and, through Canada's governor-general, have offered hospitality to Canadians coming to the Games, using the money for that purpose. The Dominion's representatives will be entertained and quainted with Britain.

Betting on horses, greyhounds and football in many of the big factories in Birmingham has grown to such an extent that a number of street bookmakers have given up their "stands" and found jobs in the factories so that they can do business on the spot. Stakes are small, but plentiful, and the bookies have found it is a profitable move.

Factory officials say they know betting is going on but said it is impossible to check it. One official said that in his factory more than £1,000 ($4,000) changes hands over bets transacted "under our very noses".

A bookie said his profits increased one-third a week due to the "under-the-bench" transactions.

Designs of three trophies for this year's (1947) Ascot Hunt meeting —the Ascot Cup, King's Gold Vase and the Hunt Cup—are to be chosen from entries for a competition operated by the Worshipful Company of Goldsmiths.

The competition is open to all British designers and winners will be responsible for supervising production of their designs. Prizes are £100 for each trophy accepted.

Courtly Combat, a greyhound exercising for a race at White City stadium in London, was scratched and the official reason was: "bitten by a squirrel".

While exercising, the dog saw the squirrel, jumped a fence and chased it, but the pursued, unlike the hare at the tracks, turned on him and took a bite out of the dog.

BOBBY FELLER SURE HE WILL WIN 30 GAMES

Appears in Excellent Condition and Will Soon Leave for Florida

Kansas City, Jan. 11—(AP) —Fireball Bobby Feller of the Cleveland Indians has set his goal for the 1947 baseball season at "30 victories."

Feller, who won 26 for a weak Cleveland club last season, stopped over here tonight to visit co-owner Tom Baird of Kansas City Monarchs. He is en route from Dallas, Tex., to Van Meter, Ia., for a brief visit with his mother and sister before joining his wife and 13-months-old son Stephen in Chicago Monday.

"We are going to have more strength at Cleveland this summer and I'll be in there firing for 30 victories," Feller declared in an interview. "Of course I'll try for them one at a time and do my best for Bill Veeck, who is a great guy and a real executive. You just can't help playing your best for Veeck."

Feller, who went to Honolulu for a rest after completing his post-season exhibition tour, appeared in excellent condition and said he and his wife and son would go to Florida for a few weeks of "rest and golf" before reporting for spring practice.

There will be another baseball tour next fall, Feller said, "if Cleveland doesn't win the pennant."

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

The signing of Leo and Vern (Jumbo) Geyer by the Madoc entry in the Trent Valley League seems to have reopened an old sore with the lads of the mid-county loop. The Geyer brothers were the outstanding players in Madoc's win over Norwood last week and their entry into the Trent Valley loop fold as "imports" has raised a protest from teams in the league.

* * *

Sam Curry, editor of the Tweed News carries some timely notes in his column "Hockey Briefs" and Sam's words speak for themselves. Here they are:

Madoc have signed Leo and Vern Geyer of Belleville for their Trent Valley entry and the pair, practically carried the mail for "Jud" McGowan's crew in the first game against Norwood. Vern popped in five goals with brother Leo setting up the plays while Leo banged home the other odd one as Madoc trimmed Norwood 6-3. "Big Jumbo" as Vern has been known in Belleville hockey circles, has been a star in that city for some years. Without them, Madoc would have absorbed a licking when they pried the lid off.

* * *

However, the wisdom of "importing" players is questionable. The T.V.L. was at one time one of the most flourishing rural leagues in the province. The teams were composed of home-brew players, the public took a tremendous interest in the games, the rinks were packed, and special trains were run on the slightest provocation. First one team, then another, began to bring in outside players; the salaries paid were more than small towns could stand, and eventually the league went on the down-grade. The profits from the games dwindled with a good share of the receipts going into the pants' pockets of these out-of-town imports.

* * *

These were great days in the T.V.L. but it spelled ruin for the league and for some time it was practically dormant. Last season, a splendid start was made toward a revival of things appear to be shaping up nicely for a return of the old-time interest. However, Madoc seems to be the first town to bring in players and their move will probably cause other clubs to do the same thing. Hockey moguls should realise that it does not work out. The crowds are not sufficient to pay expenses and bonus the players as well. The committee in charge of hockey in the neighbouring village should consult Tom Caverley, Tom Rupert, "Fudge" Moon and some of the old-timers, and they will probably be told just what "importations" can do to a hockey club. It will lead to league bickering, protests and plenty of trouble and headaches for the league executive. President Art Duncan and his colleagues have done an excellent job so far in putting the league back on a sound basis and they should be supported.

* * *

Coach George Faulkner's Belleville Esquires Intermediate basketball squad will tangle with the Mountain View quintet in the loop opener at the Y.M.C.A. next Monday night, according to an official schedule released here today.

• • •

The loop is composed of teams from Belleville, Mountain View, Picton Club 56, Trenton Flyers and possibly the Belleville juniors.

• • •

Coach Faulkner has gathered about him a galaxy of former college and collegiate court stars and it appears to be the strongest squad to come out of Belleville in a decade. His probable starting line-up will consist of Ralph McCabe, baseball and basketball star; Johnny Hayman, formerly of the Western University Mustangs, Jack Dickens, Harry Coppell, Bill Wright, Bill Pigden, Jerry Hyde, Don Mason and Jack Whiting.

• • •

The squad has been practising faithfully under the keen eyes of Coach Faulkner and they have a couple of exhibition games under their collective belts. All home games of the team will be played on Monday nights and it is hoped that in the near future the facilities of the Collegiate gymnasium will be secured.

• • •

Reports from the other teams indicate that they too have at least potential strength, and present prospects point to one of the hardest-fought group series to be played here in some time. Basketball fans are assured of some outstanding tussles and it will be well worth their while to see these squads in action.

• • •

Ted Burley, convener of the group called his meeting the other night in Picton and drew up the rules and regulations also the schedule. Each team will play two home games with home games being played in Belleville on Mondays, Trenton on Tuesdays, Mountain View on Thursdays and Picton on Fridays.

• • •

Playoffs will consist of home and home games between the two leading teams at the end of the schedule and it is reliably reported that a handsome trophy has been awarded for the loop competition.

• • •

Each team will carry twelve players on its roster but can only dress ten for each game. Due to sudden changes which may occur in the service teams special strength allowances have been made for them. Players applications must be submitted to the convener by Jan 15 also the teams' entrance fee of $5.00.

• • •

Protests will be made directly to the game referee who shall forward the protest to the convener within 48 hours, and he shall decide the validity of the protest. Ed. Shortt was named convener of referees. Home teams will supply one official timer and scorer.

• • •

These you have it. Basketball, like other sports in this district is coming into its own, and with the quality of the game as is evidenced in the 1947 Intermediate group hereabouts, no doubt it will attract a lot of fan attention.

Sports Roundup

By ALAN HARVEY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 11 —(CP)—Among the quaint and curious phenomena dredged up in the wake of war — bobby soxers, singing commercials and fountain pens that write under water — none enjoyed a dizzier vogue than Kilroy, the man-about-everywhere . . . Well, the Kilroy legend is threatened now by an elusive character named McCaffery, whose genesis is traced to Shibe Park in Philadelphia . . . Seems the tail-end Athletics put on such depressing performances that the press box boys had to do something for excitement, so they took to following the out-of-town scores . . . The Morse operators obliged, reports Red (N. Y. Herald Tribune) Smith, by singing out at intervals such salient stuff as "DiMaggio hit one," or "Greenberg got another, two men on."

Mighty McCaffery.

"That's how McCaffery was born," relates Smith. "Somehow or other, somebody got to calling out 'McCaffery hit another, bases full' and finally somebody asked who McCaffery played for . . . The answer might be McCaffery was a rookie from Wilmington, Del., a sure-fire hitter but a trifle slow . . . Then somebody else picked up the argument, saying McCaffrey "actually was very fast but moved with such effortless grace he looked slow" . . . From there, of course, there was no stopping McCaffery . . . His fame grew daily . . . He could bat like a Ruth, run a hole in the wind.

Legend Comes to Life.

And now, to get to the point of this thing, Smith says that McCaffery will report to the New York Giants this spring at Phoenix, Ariz., under the name of Clint Hartung . . . "Authorities agree Hartung must be McCaffery," says Smith, "because he is at least 98-per-cent legend" . . . About the only known facts are that Hartung, although he has appeared in fewer than half a dozen triple A baseball games, is the most publicized rookie of the post-war era . . . That he will be released from the army at Honolulu next week and that if he lives up to even the preamble of his publicity, this flesh-and-blood native of Hondo, Tex., will be the greatest discovery since Walter Johnson.

Hondo Houdini.

Hartung, weighing 215 pounds and standing six foot five inches, has been tagged the "Hondo Houdini" by Bill (N. Y. Journal-American) Corum, who wonders whether the National League shouldn't pass a special rule insisting that Hartung tie one hand behind him . . . Corum quotes Giant publicist Gerry Schumacher as confiding this dreamy picture of what may happen when Hartung faces fireball Bob Feller in exhibition games at Phoenix: "Bob won't be throwing anything except fast balls that early in the spring, and the air out there is light. Suppose Clint should boff a couple off Feller right at the start!"

Yessir! The handwriting seems to be on the wall for somebody—and this time the name's not Kilroy, but Clint (McCaffery) Hartung.

Results of Athletic Contests Held at "Y"

Successful athletic competitions were held at the Y.M.C.A. by Athletic Director Ed. Shortt during the holiday session, between boys and girls of the association. The idea worked out very satisfactorily and Mr. Shortt as well as his athletic proteges were highly satisfied with the results.

Events included broad jump, high jump, 60, 100 and 225 yard runs, 3 potato race, pull-ups, sargent vertocal and the Burpee test.

The scoring chart was designed so that the average child should get about 7.00 points on each event. The group average of the boys was 7.15, a highly credible performance, while that of the girls, including a 10 per cent bonus, was 7.15. Similar events will be held during the Easter holidays.

Toronto, Jan. 11—(CP)—Smiling Bill Cowley, top play-maker of the National Hockey League, needs only three points to set two N.H.L. scoring records.

Until last night it appeared that smiling Bill would easily get those points in Boston's games against Toronto Maple Leafs tonight and at Detroit on Sunday. But a shoulder operation has put him on the shelf for at least five days.

Further medical advice while Cowley was here with the Bruins Friday resulted in Bill leaving last night for Boston, figuring on staying home until he's ready to attack the lifetime mark set by Syd Howe of Ottawa who in 16 N.H.L. seasons had 528 scoring points in regular play and another 44 in play-offs for a total of 572. Both are league records.

Cowley, now in his 13th league season and in his 12th with the Bruins, needs only three points to beat Howe's regular play and lifetime marks. His current totals are 526 and 570 respectively.

A native of Bristol, Que., who learned his hockey in Ottawa and made the jump to professional ranks from the Halifax Wolverines, Cowley already holds two assist records — 338 in league play and another 32 in play-offs for a lifetime figure of 370.

Cowley led the league in scoring in three seasons — 1938-39, 1940-41 and 1942-43. Twice, in 1941 and 1943, he won the David A. Hart Trophy as the most valuable player to his team. He placed on the Canadian Press all-star team in five seasons — four times on the first team and once on the second.

Chip: Jack (London Free Press) Park provides a progress report on the doings of George Hainsworth, Jr., which indicates that the young man from Kitchener is indeed a chip off the old block. Son of the former star goalie of Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs, young George is playing with the University of Western Ontario hockey team in the London city league. He has allowed one goal in three games. Incidentally Park hints that when London gets its new rink, possibly by 1948, Western may enter a team in the intercollegiate senior hockey series. Hainsworth, now a freshman, would still be around.

London expects to get into Ontario Hockey Association junior "A" hockey in two years, with a team sponsored by Boston Bruins. Park reports that agreement has been reached between the Boston club and the London Amateur Athletic Association and the agreement is to be formally signed in Detroit Feb. 1.

Akron, O., Jan. 11 (AP).—John Richard (Dick) Hardgrove, 95, former baseball catcher who caught the first major league game pitched by famed Denton T. (Cy) Young as a member of the Cleveland team before the turn of the century, died at his home yesterday.

A major league player for eight years, Hardgrove was a member of the Milwaukee club before joining Cleveland. He later suffered a broken right arm in a train wreck and completed his major league career with St. Louis as a left-handed throwing outfielder.

The Kibitzer

The bonus for making a slam is worth going after. This is the only excuse for reaching beyond a game contract. As in the case of this pair of partnership hands:

♠4
♥A Q J 5 4 3 2
♦7 4 2
♣Q 6
NORTH
♠A 6 5 2
♥K
♦A 6 5
♣A K 10 8 3

The bidding has progressed this far:

SOUTH	NORTH
Pass	1 C
1 H	2 C
3 H	3 NT
4 H

By now the north hand has enough information to try for a slam. With a re-biddable heart suit in south, he has found a satisfactory trump suit for their pair.

His only worry is a matter of aces and kings. So, he bids four no-trump; the convention signal for asking partner how many aces and kings he has.

A south reply of five diamonds is the code for showing one ace. Hearing this, north goes to small slam in hearts. A south diamond can be sluffed on a club. There may even be a grand slam.

In The Kibitzer convention, the five diamond reply not only shows one ace. It also denies having any kings. So, north knows right now that opponents have two kings.

Using the Blackwood convention, five diamonds shows one ace without giving any king information. To learn of kings, north must bid five no-trump and south replies six clubs to show no kings.

In this deal, neither convention has an advantage. There was plenty of time to learn about kings. They were going to a slam in any case. But there are times when it could make a difference.

The bigger rewards are worth going towards.

The Movie Column

Chips Rafferty, the lanky six-foot-six Australian cowboy star of "The Overlanders," whose real name is John William Goffage, seated himself in a dainty chair in his suite at one of New York's luxury hotels, rolled himself a cigaret and said of acting, his 42nd job:

"I was always broke so I worked at whatever came handiest." He was a carpenter when "a magician whose tricks were getting shabby" asked him to freshen them up "I redid them for him. When it was all over I knew all his tricks; I started out as his stooge."

Of his favorite job as a drover (Australian cowboy): "I don't suppose there's anything in the world that equals the pure exhilaration of getting on a horse in the early dawn light—the horse bucks a bit because it's built that way—and galloping along. You can't help yourself, you screech out loud."

About Australia's west: "I should imagine our western country now is very much like the American west, say 50 years ago, without all the shooting, and out west is bigger. There's a station (cattle ranch) in Northern Territories that has 22,000 square miles."

"What kind of songs did the stockmen sing in camp?" he grinned, "naughty songs, not 'Waltzing Matilda'." This song was a genuine Australian song about the bush, he added, but not rugged enough to suit the drovers.

What made cattle stampede? "Cattle are like women. Anything will disturb them. Screeching cockatoos, a man coming on them too suddenly. One minute they're nice and peaceful, chewing their cud. Suddenly some noise will startle them and you have to race after them, find the leaders and turn them back, find out if you've lost any and go back and look for them."

He now is on his way back to the peaceful life in Australia where he is happy with his present job with Britain's Ealing studios because he works only in action pictures.

Katina Paxinou, who hasn't had a good role in Hollywood since her academy award-winning performance as Pilar in "For Whom the Bell Tolls," has finally been signed to one worthy of her talents in "Mouring Becomes Electra." She will play Christine Mannon, opposite Raymond Massey, the role created on Broadway by the late Nazimova. Miss Paxinou now is in London for her part in the J. Arthur Rank picture, "Uncle Silas."

In Manhattan

New York, Jan. 11. (CP)—There's no rest for the wicked, the old adage says, and there's no rest for the drama critic hereabouts at this season either.

After one relatively quiet week, the new year got under way with a burst of new openings at Broadway playhouses this week, including a new version of Elmer Rice's hit play, "Street Scene"—this time converted into a dramatic musical.

Other openings include "Finian's Rainbow", billed as a captivating new musical; "The Big Two", a comedy starring Claire Trevor and Philip Dorn, and a return engagement of the popular musical, "Bloomer Girl".

"The Big Two", presented jointly by Elliott Nugent and Robert Montgomery—notable figures of the stage and screen world—was written by L. Bush-Fekete and Mary Helen Fay. Along with "Finian's Rainbow" and "Street Scene," it will be discussed in this column next week.

Nostalgia Touch

"Bloomer Girl", currently back at the New York City Centre for a six weeks' revival, adds a bright and slightly nostalgic touch to the musical comedy aspect of the season. The cast includes some of the stars who in 1944 made a hit Broadway show of this entertaining study of the feminist movement of 90 odd years ago in the United States. Among them are Nanette Fabray, who took over the role of Evelina from Celeste Holm when the show was originally on Broadway; Matt Briggs, Mabel Taliaferro and John Call. Baritone Dick Smart plays opposite Miss Fabray as Jeff Calhoun.

Aisle Jottings

Jane Kean this week took over from Betty Garrett the lead feminine role in the successful revue, "Call Me Mister". Lenore Lonergan will play one of the important parts in "The First Hundred Years", the Patricia Coleman play now in rehearsal and due to open on Broadway, Feb. 18, after a short road tour. . . Jimmy Savo, pantomimist who recently lost a leg in an operation, appeared in person this week at Page One Ball of the Newspaper Guild of New York to receive one of its awards to notables of the year. . .

Beatrice Lillie, Toronto-born British comedienne, is on the Pacific coast now following her arrival in New York last week from London. Tentative plans are in the wind for her to appear in a musical comedy on this side of the Atlantic but nothing definite has been settled as yet.

AT THE BELLE — On the Boardwalk — Vivian Blaine, June Haver and Vera-Ellen find Frank Latimore, George Montgomery and Charles Smith ready and eager to take them places in "Three Little Girls in Blue," the new 20th. Century-Fox Technicolor musical opening today at the Belle. As it turns out, their roller-chair course proves much smoother than the path through which their exciting romantic adventures lead them.

BORDER BALL LEAGUE TO MEET

Ogdensburg, N.Y., Jan. 11—(CP)—The Border Baseball League office here announced yesterday that the circuit will not have clubs in Granby and Sherbrooke, Que., for the 1947 season, but will move the franchises to other locations.

Club owners of the league will meet at Kingston, Ont., Jan. 19 to work out final plans for the coming season. One of the new franchise locations has been selected already and will probably be announced next week. The other is still pending, with Massena, Malone and Geneva, in New York, mentioned as under consideration.

The League operated in 1946 at Ogdensburg, Watertown and Auburn, in New York, Kingston, Ont., and in Granby and Sherbrooke. Although present plans indicate a six-club league in 1947, a strong possibility exists that the circuit may be able to expand to eight franchises.

Baseball writers and sports editors of the newspapers in league cities have been invited to attend the Kingston session to organize a Baseball Writers' Association.

Little Benny's Note Book

Ma was watching pop drinking his coffee behind his newspaper this morning, and after a while she said, Really, William, I mean really.

I dont quite follow you, my dear, pop said, and ma said, I declare I haven't seen your face since you sat down with that newspaper. I admit it's one of my principals that a man's newspaper in the morning is his cassle, and he should have the right and privilidge to retire behind it if it suits his fancy. I have no simpathy for the women who demand every moment of a man's time during the few minutes he snatches for his breakfist, but my goodniss, William, you dont need to withdraw from private life altogether for land sakes, she said.

Oh, I see what you mean, pop said. As a matter of fact I was just coming out to pay you a little visit, but I ran across an unusually intristing little item here. I'll read it to you, he said.

Which he started to do, saying, The Gallop Hooper poll shows that among the prominent werld figures who cut their faces while shaving during the passed week are Joseph Stallin of Russia, King George of England, Shang High Check of China, and Clark Gable of the United States of America.

William Potts, I can see right through you as though you were a transparent baby, ma said.

And she quick reetched and pulled the paper away from pop's face and sure enough he had another razor cut on his face again, and ma said, How many more years do you think you'll have to practice before you can shave yourself without cutting your face to practical ribbins?

I can think of a more intrigging question than that, my dear, pop said. Why do they call them safety razors? he said.

Not being quite the end of the subject.

Cost-of-Living Only Slightly Up

Ottawa, Jan. 11 —(CP)— Admittedly the cost-of-living has risen substantially in Canada during the last year, but it is nothing compared to the rise in other countries, particularly the United States.

In his general statement on the lifting of some price controls, Finance Minister Abbott today gave these significant figures comparing rising costs in the two countries:

Canada's cost-of-living index rose from a level of about 20 per cent over the pre-war average on Dec. 1, 1945 to one of 27 per cent over that average on Dec. 1, 1946.

Romance, Preferred

CHAPTER 3

Arlen's eyes were abnormally bright with the fever in her. Defiance and arrogance that had masked a young girl's hurt, a young girl's defence against tears, were gone.

"But, my dear," protested her father, "I won't want to see you go off to strange places alone. Your mother would . . ." and drew in his lips as Arlen's lashes swept her cheeks.

"My mother is dead and all that I loved went with her. I can't stay here because this isn't any longer my home. It seems strange to me now, and I wonder if ever I lived here. I don't want to argue or make another scene. You can't please both Karen and me. You can't be faithful to the old tie and the new."

Karen bit her lips on her suspicions. George Leeds said, "Arlen, you're very young. It's still my duty to look after you. Aren't you going to tell me where you're going?"

Karen smiled. "I'll bet a man has something to do with this."

"Yes. There is a man. I'm going to be secretary to his sister. He is Renny Maynard, a New York attorney. His sister is Mrs. Richard Brandon." She turned to her father again. "You didn't seek my approval, you didn't even prepare me for the blow, when you married Karen and brought her here. I'm not a child. I know what I'm going to do, even if I have to oppose you. I've been very unhappy. I know I've said some beastly things, but I don't think I should apologize because all that I said was true."

"I'm not turning you out," her father said drearily.

She laughed curtly. "Does that help your pride? You're not actually turning me out." She turned on her high heel quickly, determined that they should not see her cry. "I'm going to pack a few things. You can send the rest."

In her room she did not pause to regret or think of what she had said nor event to notice the room about to be forsaken for a strange room with strange people. Dresses, hats, lingerie, slippers, were snatched up and put in two large travelling bags. There were so many other things, gifts, trinkets, that had grown up with her, photographs, books and etchings. She would send for them later. Surely she would not be refused those personal things. Her hands were trembling as she strapped the bags tightly. Stubborn tears rolled down her hot cheeks.

After a bath, she put on a dark travelling dress and a recently purchased Fall hat with a saucy feather on it. She telephoned for the train schedule and finding that she could get no train for an hour, called Renny's New York apartment. He was out, the servant said. Arlen told him to tell Mr. Maynard that Miss Leeds would arrive about midnight.

For an hour Arlen sat in loneliness in a room that had once been her nursery. It was a young lady's room now with green taffeta draperies at the broad windows and a green taffeta skirt around the dressing table. This room held the wild fancies of a younger Arlen who had attended her first college prom and donned her first evening dress. From the broad windows she had often seen her mother working in her garden. She had seen the seasons swiftly change, each one adding to her understanding and maturity. She had laughed and danced and waved her arms in this room. In it also she had wept bitter tears.

Perhaps Karen would make it into a guest room now, adding gaudy touches, and on the bed that had always been so much her own bed, strange people would sleep after one of Karen's parties.

Some one knocked. It was her father's voice that said, "May I come in?"

"Of course, Father."

Didn't this room mean anything to him, she wondered, or had Karen robbed him of all sentiment toward things that even a strong man could feel sentimental? He looked old and tired—like a tired man trying to play a child's game.

"I can't bear this," he said. "I feel that I have failed you."

"Let's not go over that again. I'm going to be all right."

"But I'd like to see you safe. ."

"And married, married to Philip. She laughed dryly. "I'm afraid I can't be shelved like that. I'll write to you, of course. I'll drive my car into town and you can get it at the station in he morning. I won't need it in New York."

He crushed a fifty-dollar bill into her hand. "You may need this," he said with an embarrassed smile, "if the job doesn't materialize. You can always come back, you know."

"Thank you."

When she stepped into her car, she looked back at the gray stone house, safe and homelike with its friendly lights. If ever she did come back to hang her clothes in its empty closet and sit once more at the stripped dressing table, it would be in defeat and failure. A lump rose in her throat at the wreckage she was leaving behind—her father, tired, bewildered, playing the part of a youth, caught in a hopeless passion for a beautiful shallow woman, emeshed in a marriage that could mean only bitterness, perhaps tragedy for him and end by making an old man of him.

The world had never seemed so wide and free as it seemed tonight, and yet a little frightening with so many things yet undiscovered and unfelt.

"Where am I going?" she thought. "To what?"

Arlen set her eyes bravely ahead, knowing that it was neither the promise of a job nor freedom that made her pulse quicken. In New York was Renny Maynard who laughed at the same things what amused her, who could, bcause he was wise, laugh at himself, who was, as she had known since the first day, the well from whch she could draw everything that she wanted in life.

"Renny, I'm coming to you," she thought—"though you may not think it or want me. Perhaps some day I can take away the pain in your eyes that Christa put there."

At the station in New York Arlen was jostled by returning vacationists and sunburned, weary weekenders. While she was debating whether to go to the hotel for the night or call upon Louise Brandon at midnight, she saw Renny, taller than any one else, distinguished looking in a dark suit, peering anxiously over many strange heads. Arlen smiled a smile of satisfaction and relief.

"Here I am," she said. "Renny, I was never so glad to see any one."

"Oh, here you are." He smiled down on her. "You didn't suppose I was going to let you tackle the big city alone, did you? You look splendid. "He took her by the arm. "We'll get a cab. My car is being overhauled."

In the cab Arlen laughed quietly. "Renny, I'm about starved. I forgot to eat dinner. I suppose while I was picking, Father . ."

"And you were crying. . ."

"A little —over so much that will never be the same again."

He gave direction to the cab driver and turned to her. "Was it very bad—the parting? I knew you wouldn't change your mind."

"I pitied my father and felt upset over what I'm leaving him to."

"The younger generation very often has better judgment than its elders. You've been in New York before, haven't you?"

Arlen looked out the cab window at the surging traffic.

"Twice before, to be exact. Once with some girls from school properly chaperoned, and once on a business trip with my father I felt so grown up shopping for clothes."

Over a restaurant table her eyes were suddenly moody. The daring thing had been done. Ties at home that had been sheltering and strong had been severed once and for all. The faces of people in the restaurant were cool and impersonal. Everywhere she would turn in this spectacular busy city she would encounter cool impersonal faces. At home almost anywhere, at a football game, in a department stores, in restaurants, she saw familiar faces. The magnitude of her daring weighed down on her. Her face reflected her thoughts.

Renny's warm hand covered hers. His dark eyes were kind and concerned.

"I did not promise you happiness, Arlen. I did not promise anything but new people and new places. Happiness isn't pleasure. It's a thing you have to create yourself from a peace of mind."

"If you weren't here, I should be afraid. It's not often I admit I'm afraid. Now tell me about your sister. The waiter is coming with my dinner and I'm too hungry to talk."

He lighted a cigarette and squinted through the smoke.

"I've been to see her today and she's delighted at your coming. You're going to like Louise but I'm not sure you're going to be fond of her."

"Why?" Arlen asked, looking up from an enormous salad.

She takes but she never gives anything of herself. She really has nothing to give. She superficial, pleasure loving. Her absent-mindedness is forgiven by her friends, friends who bow and scrape to her because she's rich and generous." He smoked thoughtfully. "I'm painting rather a ghastly picture of my only sister but these things she knows and admits. When you're happy she adores you. When you're serious, you're the last person she wants to see."

"I shall do all my confiding to you, Renny."

"You're bound to like Richard. He's considerably older than Louise and he has the look of tolerance that has come from putting up with her caprices for twelve years."

"You're portraits are clear," said Arlen. "Now who is Toby Sanner?"

He smiled. "I shouldn't be at all surprised if you fell in love with him. He's slightly mad. He comes from pretty mad stock."

She took a cigarette from his case and bent forward as he clicked on the lighter. She did not lift her eyes, knowing that he was looking at her with an expression that would puzzle her. He must never guess how she felt toward him—how, in the station the sight of his dark close cropped hair, the already familiar frown, the mouth that was stern even when it smiled, caused strange new currents to stir in her. She gave no thought as to how she would fit into the lives of Richard and Louise and Toby Sanner. And, what was more important, to what extent she could fit into Renny's life and whether she could draw him from a past to which he was obviously bound.

"Shall we go?" he asked. "I don't think Louise and Richard are in yet. I have a key to the apartment and I know the room she's assigned to you. They'll be in later with people."

In an elevator in an imposing apartment house he said "Penthouse" to the uniformed boy. Arlen felt her head slightly whirl; she was grateful that Louise and Richard were out. It would give her sufficient time to get acquainted with her new surrounding and to calm her excited nerves. She was sure that Renny, a man at home in any atmosphere, had no idea of the broad space she was spanning—from the gray stone cottage in Ruxton to a penthouse in New York. In the dizzy ascent she felt that surely this must be unreal and that she must be dreaming a fantastic glamorous dream.

The room into which she stopped with Renny was not fantastic but certainly glamorous, a glamorous room for glamorous people. It was modern to the last degree, a great white room. Mirrors were everywhere. Though it was empty now except for her and Renny, she could see in the mirrors imaginary reflections of exquisitely dressed women, tall men, and hear soft music, the murmuring of voices of poised worldly people. The windows were flung open and from the height Manhattan was like a miniature mechanical city.

Diet Change Brings Cut in Death Rate

Hong Kong. (Reuters)—Substitution of vitamin-rich wheat flour and blue peas for highly-milled rice, a staple diet which was deficient in Vitamin B, is credited by health authorities here for causing a decrease in the Hong Kong death rate.

Deaths, which in 1941 averaged 175 a day, now run at about 50 a day although the population is increasing steadily. It is estimated the total number of deaths for 1946 will be about 16,000 compared with 48,000 in 1939 and 61,000 in 1941.

Anti-epidemic units have also played an important part in lowering the mortality rate by preventing severe outbreaks of disease.

A campaign to make consumers vitamin-conscious has been hammered home and police report thieves who raided warehouses took vitamin foods and tablets in preference to sacks of foodstuffs.

FAIL TO CRACK SAFE

Oshawa, Jan. 11 (CP).—Thieves last night failed in an attempt to break into a safe at the National Employment Service office here. They damaged the combination and the door of the safe and tried to smash the concrete lining but left hammers and crowbars behind them when they fled from the building.

DECISION ON TORSO

been considered an accessory after the fact and the jury should have been instructed it could so consider her.

There had been no direction to the jury pointing out that much evidence at the trial pointed not to Mrs. Dick as the killer but to her father, Donald MacLean, who, with William Bohozuk, one-time friend of the convicted widow of the Hamilton street car driver, is to stand trial for the murder on Jan. 20, some 17 days before Mrs. Dick is scheduled to be hanged.

Flouts Question

Mr. Robinette held Mr. Justice Barlow, in putting portions of Mrs. Dick's statements together with some circumstantial evidence had "flouted the question" in the jurors' minds as to whether the statements were true. Further, the judge's direction had been contradictory in that he said the jury must decide in some instances whether the statements were voluntarily given whereas, by admitting them to evidence, he had, in effect ruled them voluntary evidence himself.

Nor had the judge directed the jury to possible motives for MacLean killing the 40-year-old tram driver though he did discuss possible motives for Mrs. Dick doing the killing.

"I submit that for the reasons I have advanced in respect to errors of the learned trial judge there should be a new trial," said Mr. Robinette who earlier had stressed the fact that prior to the taking of the last statement of Mrs. Dick, the key to her conviction, she had been given no warning.

Open to Interpretation

That statement was made April 12 during a motor drive over the murder route with police officers who narrated as testimony — it was called a statement by Mrs. Dick at her trial — their questions and her answers on the trip. Not until she was returned to headquarters and provided with materials for writing a statement was she warned, Mr. Robinette contended on the basis of trial evidence, and then she decided not to make one.

"Then there is no statement?" queried Mr. Justice Henderson.

"Oh yes," said Mr. Robinette, outlining the manner in which the police had read the question-and-answer narrative at the trial. "It is called a statement for want of a better name."

And Mr. Justice J. B. Aylesworth suggested that the manner of the police had been such that Mrs. Dick might have viewed her remarks as merely a conversation during the motor ride which would not be used against her as would a written statement.

Mr. Robinette agreed that the evidence was open to that interpretation.

OIL COMPANY ANNOUNCES NEW EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENTS

C. G. JOHNSTONE

R. ROSEFIELD

One of Canada's largest independent oil companies, Good Rich Refining Co. Ltd., of Port Credit, has recently been purchased by Trinidad Leaseholds Limited of London, England. Mr. C. G. Johnstone of London, England, is President and associate managing director of the new concern. The original founder of the company, Mr. R. Rosefield, has been appointed Vice-President and will serve as associated managing director in charge of sales and marketing.

Does Life Insurance Give Good Value?

"Good value" to most of us means "getting our money's worth." These days particularly, each dollar spent must contribute substantially to the family's welfare.

But the family budget has its limitations—some things we cannot afford to buy; other things we cannot afford to do without.

In planning for the future, life insurance is as necessary as food, clothing and shelter. Place it high on your list.

MAY PRODUCE NEW CAR

Boston, Jan. 11 —(AP)— The Ford Motor Company will produce a completely new, low-priced automobile in 1948, that will be "the greatest change since the introduction of the Model A," John R. Davis, vice-president of the company said yesterday.

The new vehicle will be lighter in weight and cost less than the present-day Ford automobile, Davis added.

Davis is attending the New England sales management conference here.

SCHOOLBOY ROWE THINKS 1947 WILL BE HIS BIG YEAR

Believes He Will Have No Trouble in Signing With the Phillies

Charlotte, N.C., Jan. 11. (AP)—Lynwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, who admits his biggest baseball thrill occurred more than 12 years ago, came up with a 36th birthday prediction today that 1947 will be one "of my most successful years in baseball."

The Schoolboy has been throwing 'em past the best in both leagues for a long time. Baseball records show he should be celebrating only his 35th birthday today, but Rowe says that isn't true.

"I'm 36, and I might as well admit it."

Rowe stopped in Charlotte last night en route to Philadelphia where he plans to talk things over with his present owners, Philadelphia Phils. He hasn't signed his 1947 contract but figures he'll have no trouble coming to terms with Bob Carpenter and company.

The tall, lanky Arkansasan made a spectacular comeback with the Phils last season, ending up with a won and lost record of 11 and 3, and an earned run average of 2.12.

His fine effort was cut short in the latter part of the year when a pulled ligament in his left leg sent him to the sidelines.

The leg is in good shape now, Rowe reports, an da few additional treatments at Hot Springs, Ark., before Spring training should put him in excellent condition.

"I've slowed up a lot since 1934 and the (Detroit) Tigers," Rowe admitted, "but I'm pitching with my head now."

It was in the 1934 World Series that Rowe experienced his biggest thrill. He retired 22 consecutive St. Louis Cardinals October 4, and finally came up with a 12-inning 3-2 decision.

JANIRO DEFEATS TONY PELLONE

By SID FEDER

New York, Jan. 11 (AP)—Baby-faced Tony Janiro, who had a high old time at his "coming of age" Madison Square Garden party, what with a win over Tony Pellone and a slice of a $75,000 pie, was in line today for what could be just as fancy a fuss next month — a bout with ex-lightweight champion Beau Jack.

Up to the start of this year, the 19-year-old Youngstown, O. boy was too young—under New York rules—to box more than eight rounds. Since 1947 will mark his 20th birthday, he now is able to go the 10-round distance, and he celebrated the occasion last night by giving New York Tony a boxing lesson to come home with the decision in a rough-and-tumble that saw such gentle manoeuvres as low punching, bulling with the head, heeling, wrestling and landing with the elbows.

Altogether 14,021 customers contributed to a gate of $75,552 which gave Janiro a good bundle of take-home pay for his first Garden outing since last June.

And the folks seemed to enjoy it so much that Nat Rogers, chief operator for the 20th Century Sporting Club during the illness of Promoter Mike Jacobs, immediately opened negotiations for the jamboree with the jumping jack from Augusta, Ga.

Now, Pellone is no Beau Jack, as probably even his closest friends and sincerest boosters will agree. But the way Janiro tied the New Yorker up in knots from the fourth through the seventh round last night then came on with a rip-and-tear rally in the 10th, after practically getting his ears knocked off in the eighth and ninth, would have even given the bouncing Beau a bit of trouble.

Charlie Conacher May be Named Coach of Flyers

St. Louis, Jan. 11. (AP)—Charlie Conacher, of Oshawa, Ont., conferred yesterday with officials of St. Louis Flyers on the possibility of being named coach of the American Hockey League Club for next season.

A spokesman for the Flyers, last-place team in the League's Western Division, said Conacher, coach of Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Hockey Association's Junior "A" Group, talked things over with General Manager George Carson at a noon meeting.

"They discussed whether Conacher is willing to come down here and whether he will fit into the picture here," the spokesman said. He added that the 36-year-old Conacher, a member of the "kid line" of Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League 17 years ago, probably would not return to Canada for about a week. A right-hander and right winger, Conacher was noted for his bullet-like shots on goal.

Carson said last month the Flyer management had a "verbal agreement" with Conacher to coach the team next season and that a contract probably would be signed this month.

Ralph (Bouncer) Taylor was released as the Flyer coach last month and Bob Davidson, loaned to the St. Louis Club by Toronto Maple Leafs, was named to succeed him for the remainder of the season.

Barney Ross Wins Battle Over Narcotics

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 11—(AP)—Scrappy Barney Ross, one-time king of the welterweights and survivor of tough Pacific fighting, has scored another knockout — this time over the narcotic habit.

The much-decorated veteran of Guadalcanal won his latest bout in four months. The scene: the huge United States public health service hospital in the rolling blue grass horse country near here.

Dr. Victor M. Vogel, medical officer in charge, announced last night Ross would be discharged Tuesday. Ross declined to discuss his immediate plans.

Ross had voluntarily asked admission to the hospital. He told how drugs had been given him by well-meaning friends while he suffered war wounds and malaria, and how he continued using them after his discharge from the United States Marines as he suffered recurrent headaches.

His victory over narcotics came sooner than expected. When he entered hospital, Dr. Vogel said the average period needed to cure an addict was about a year, and that much depended on the patient's co-operation and physical condition. Ross' physical condition and courage which carried him through the ring and the war paid off.

Dr. Vogel said Ross would return for brief observation before final discharge within 60 days.

Ross, 37, entered the ring as an amateur in 1926 and turned professional after winning a Golden Gloves title in 1929. He won the lightweight title from Tony Canzoneri in Chicago in 1933 and took the welterweight crown from Jimmy McLarnin of Vancouver in New York in 1934.

Ross lost the welter title to McLarnin in a return match six months later but regained it when he again defeated McLarnin in 1935. He retired from the ring after losing the championship to Henry Armstrong in New York in 1938.

Haifa's 95,000 Inhabitants Held In House Arrest

Violent Blast Wrecks City Police Station Killing Four

By CARTER L. DAVIDSON

Jerusalem, Jan. 13 — (AP) — Haifa's 95,000 inhabitants were held under virtual house arrest today by a British curfew imposed last night after a violent explosion wecked the city's police station, killing four policemen and injuring more than 142 other persons.

The casualty list showed two British policemen and two Arab temporary constables dead; 62 policemen — British, Arab and Jewish — hurt; 48 civilians in hospital; 32 given first aid, and many more cut, bruised or shocked.

The blast — set off in an automobile load of explosives planted outside the station—shook Palestine's main seaport throughout, sent glass splinters flying for as much as a mile, disrupted traffic and the telephone system and started fires that raged for half an hour in nearby buildings.

The government said that the six-storey headquarters was 'virtually levelled.'

Officials reported that three men, one in police garb and the others in raincoats, drove the bomb-car, labelled "police," up to the building and fled into a tangle of streets and alleys. Guards fired after them and, noting a blazing fuse in the automobile, gave an alarm to clear the station.

About 15 policemen got out before the blast three minutes later. Debris blocked the waterfront parkway and glass littered streets for blocks.

Curfew Imposed

Immediately guards on public buildings were doubled, Bren gun carriers took strategic posts and roadblocks cut off the neighborhood of the explosion. At 11 p.m. the curfew was imposed.

An hour after the blast, the secret radio of Irgun Zvai Leumi, Jewish underground group, broadcast a denial of rumors current all week that the underground was withholding violence to await the outcome of negotiations for an independent Jewish state in Palestine.

A veteran British officer said, "It looks as if the Stern boys are at work again." (The so-called Stern gang is an offshoot of Irgun Zvai Leumi.))

An Arab leader declared that "while we are trying to solve this age-old problem as statesmen . . . these Jews resort to gangsterism." He hinted at reprisals.

Meanwhile, a reliable Arab source reported yesterday that the Palestine Arab higher executive committee had accepted a British invitation to a London conference on Palestine's future government scheduled for Jan. 21.

Prior to a committee meeting, Dr. Hussein F. Khalidi, secretary, said that the London conference obviously was aimed at bringing a British impasse in Palestine 'into the open and paving the way for referral to the United Nations.'

Court of Appeals Affirms Conviction Of James Curley

Washington, Jan. 13—(AP) — The United States Court of Appeals affirmed today the conviction of James M. Curley, 72-year-old mayor of Boston and former member of Congress, and two co-defendants on mail fraud charges.

The white-haired Curley, veteran of a half century of politics, was sentenced in Federal court here last Feb. 18 to 18 months in jail and a fine of $1,000 for his alleged activities as president of Engineering Group, Inc. The government contended the organization profited to the extent of $60,000 by representing itself as able to obtain war contracts for clients.

Donald Wakefield Smith of Pittsburgh, former member of the National Labor Relations Board drew a four to 12-month jail sentence and a $1,000 fire as treasurer of Engineers Group. A trial defendant, James G. Fuller, received a 16-month to four-year sentence as executive vice president. Fuller now is serving a 5-year sentence in another mail fraud case.

Both Curley and Smith have been free on bail since their conviction and trial last winter.

Curley was elected mayor of Boston during the trial. He continued as representative in Congress from his district. Previously he had been governor of Massachusetts.

$1.00 FOR HAIRCUT, SHAVE

Vancouver, Jan. 13 (CP)—A haircut and shave in Vancouver will cost more starting today. At a meeting of the Barbers' Union last night the price was fixed at $1.00—65 cents for a haircut and 35 cents for a shave.

GOTHAM VISITORS J. Ernest Ayrhart and his wife display gold ore at their New York hotel after Ayrhart was re-elected mayor of Campbellford, Ont. In 1939 Ayrhart was a laborer in Toronto. In 1944 he was reportedly a millionaire after making a gold strike.

AIR DISASTERS BRING DEATH TO MORE THAN 35

Three Big Airliners Crash in Different Parts of the World During Weekend

Treacherous winter skies over the world's air routes brought another tragic weekend of air disasters as a number of widely-separated crashes including those of three big airliners, brought death to more than 35.

Only last weekend the death toll in flying mishaps was more than 40.

Major crash of the weekend was early Sunday when an eastern Airlines transport came down in a driving rainstorm in Virginia killing 18. Only one man survived the crash after the plane struck the tops of trees near a cemetery and gouged a 500-yard path of destruction.

The survivor, William Keves of Florida, owed his life to prompt work by Lawrence Mays and Ted Delt, who live near the crash scene. They pulled him from the wreckage shortly after the crash when fire had started.

Plowed Into Hill

As a thick winter fog hung over Britain's southern counties, a British Overseas Airways plane plowed into a hill in Kent Downs Saturday, killing three passengers and two crew members, and fatally wounding a third member of the crew. A Labor Member of Parliament from Cornwall, T. L. Horabin was aboard the plane.

The plane, which left England for West Africa, had flown for seven hours in fog seeking a landing before its fuel ran out.

The other airliner crashed in the South China Sea off southern Luzon Saturday and six persons were missing and presumed lost. Heroic efforts by a rescue plane saved the 36 survivors who had spent nearly 24 hours afloat in rubber dinghies.

Fog Is Blamed

Here again fog was blamed for the crash. The plane was bound from Shanghai to Hong Kong and when fog closed in on the destination field the aircraft tried to reach the Philippines.

Five persons died in the collision of two private aircraft at a Miami field when the planes attempted to land on opposite runways. In another Florida accident, two United States Army fliers were killed in a training crash.

A small private plane crashed near Detroit, taking two lives and one man was missing and presumed dead after the wreckage of his private plane was found off the United States west coast. He too, was trapped by fog.

Mrs. Dick's Statements Properly Taken, Says Deputy Atty.-General

By ALAN RANDALL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 13 — (CP) — Counsel for Mrs. Evelyn Dick of Hamilton today completed 11 hours and 10 minutes of argument in her appeal from conviction as the torso-murderer of her husband John Dick, last March and immediately Cecil Snyder, Deputy Attorney-General, put forward the Crown's contention that the widow's statements were properly taken by police and that in their use to convict her last October, the statements had been properly admitted as trial evidence.

Mr. Snyder immediately started the citation of cases in which, he said, the judgment supported his contention that Mrs. Dick's statements were proper evidence.

Earlier, in the closing stages of his argument, John J. Robinette, Toronto counsel for Mrs. Dick, pointed up what he said were "nine inconsistencies" in her statements and held there were grounds for a new trial on the basis of misdirection and non-direction of the jury by Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow and an allegedly improper admission of her statements as evidence because she was not properly warned before giving them.

Mr. Robinette said that if the Court of Appeal agreed with his submission that the statements were not proper evidence then there was no circumstantial evidence on which a "properly-directed jury could return a verdict of guilty of murder."

He asked that the Appeal Court under Chief Justice R. S. Robertson quash the guilty verdict against the Hamilton woman and substitute a "not guilty of murder" verdict, which, he admitted left the way open to charge Mrs. Dick with being an accessory after the fact.

Before today's proceedings started it was learned that Mrs. Dick, if she so desires, could attend her appeal hearing.

IDENTITY, CAUSE OF MAN'S DEATH STILL A MYSTERY

Found by Boys Rabbit-Hunting and Believed a Victim of Gang Vengeance

Toronto, Jan. 13 — (CP)—The body of an unidentified man, possibly shot through the forehead and with a rope tightened around his neck and ankles, was found by rabbit-hunting boys Sunday in a culvert beneath No. 27 highway three miles north of suburban Malton.

Police said they believed he was a victim of gang vengeance, and that a hole in his forehead "could have been caused by a bullet." They said, however, it might have been caused by an instrument and not until the body is thawed out could they be certain of the cause of death.

The body was that of a man about 55 years of age, medium height, grey-haired and clean shaven. It was frozen solid and chief coroner Smirle Lawson has ordered an autopsy.

"The man had apparently been strangled, and there are also evidences he may have been shot," Dr. Lawson said. "That will be decided by the autopsy, however."

One arm which had been covered by the body was not frozen, leading to the assumption the body had not been long in the culvert.

Found Feet Protruding

Feet protruding from the culvert attracted the attention of Nelson Moody, 16, and Louis Thibodeau, 15, who live on near-by farms and were hunting rabbits. It was eight miles from the scene where the body of Louis Wernick, 42 — declared a victim of a gang killing — was found 2 years ago this month, after snows had melted.

"We went closer and in the half-light we could see two feet sticking out," recounted Moody. "We went around and came in the other side of the culvert and saw they were feet all right, wearing red socks without any shoes. I told Louis it was a body and we ran back to my house and told my uncle, Russell Madgett."

Mr. Madgett called Thistletown police and didn't touch anything until police arrived, he said. "We could see that it was a rope tied in knots around the neck and feet. I don't know who he was. I never saw the face before but it sure didn't look like suicide."

Police Chief J. A. McConnel of Etobicoke said, however, the ropes merely were lying near the body. Inspector W. J. Franks of the Ontario Provincial Police said there was dried blood on the man's face.

MUST LEARN IRISH TERMS

Toronto, Jan. 13 —(CP)— To four Canadians, winners of the International Plowing Match at Port Albert, Ont., this fall, it will be a "horse of a different language." When they stop to compete at a plowing match in Ireland shortly they have to learn the Irish equivalent for "gee," "haw," and "whoa-back" because the horses they will use don't understand the terms used in Canada.

GOLD PRODUCTION IS UP 11.74 P.C. IN 11 MONTHS

Ontario Output in 1946 to End of November at $59,958,448

Toronto, Jan. 13 (CP)—Production of Ontario gold mines for the first 11 months of 1946 was valued at $59,958,448 an increase of 11.74 per cent over the same 1945 period, the Ontario Department of Mines announced today.

November output was valued at $5,348,568 compared with $5,279,708 in November 1945 and $5,391,540 in October 1946.

During the first eleven months 1946 6,620,590 tons of ore were milled against 5,612,701 in the 1945 period when production was valued at $53,656,778.

Statistics for the 11 months showed:

Porcupine, $30,957,340 from 3,646,433 tons compared with $29,106,789 from 3,249 848 tons; Kirkland Lake-Larder Lake belt $18,577,667 from 1,770,212 tons compared with $16,694,817 from 1,511,246 tons; Matachewan-Sudbury $1,430,863 from 385,910 tons against $1,175,280 from 328,357 tons; Northwestern Ontario, including Algoma, Thunder Bay, Patricia, Kenora, Rainy River, $8,992,578 from 818,035 tons compared with $6,675,909 from 523,250 tons. Miscellaneous production in the 1945 11 month period was valued at $983 with no figure for 1946.

November production, with comparative figures for November, 1945, in brackets follows:

Porcupine, $2,807,033 ($2,785,643) from 323,919 tons (316,827); Kirkland Lake-Larder Lake belt $1,600,907 (1,761,531) from 162,676 tons (151,513); Matachewan-Sudbury $140,548 ($175,226) from 46,098 tons (41,621); Northwestern Ontario $797,080 ($557,308) from 72,415 tons (46,709).

During November the grade of ore rose from $8.60 in October to $8.82. Daily average showed 20,204 tons milled, 5,072 ounces gold recovered highest since November 1943, 850 ounces silver recovered and value $178,186.

Eva Tanguay Dies

Los Angeles, Jan. 13 (AP)—Canadian-born Eva Tanguay who earned $2,000,000 a one of the big names of North American vaudeville only to spend her declining years in poverty, died Saturday of a general hemorrhage. She was 68.

One of Florenz Ziegfeld's discoveries, Miss Tanguay was a sensation in 1910 in "The Chaperones," and became known as the "I Don't Care Girl" for the song of the same name that she made famous.

Miss Tanguay was born in Marbleton, Que., but moved to Massachusetts at an early age.

At the peak of her success, she earned $3,500 weekly, but the stock market crash and the decline of vaudeville reduced her to poverty after she was forced to sell her $45,000 home and its $50,000 worth of furnishings at near-by Toluca Lake.

Sight Failed

Failing sight dogged her for years. Fifteen years ago one red bulb burned in the midst of the white footlights so she could locate the centre of the stage.

TROOPS PREPARE TO HANDLE FOOD, STRIKE CONTINUES

2,300 Food Handlers Quit Work in Protest To Use of Troops In Wages, Hours Dispute

By NORMAN CRIBBENS
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 13 — (CP) — The government today moved in troops to bring food to London — cut off from food supplies for 8 days by the "unofficial" strike of 20,000 truck drivers — and immediately other workers began walking out.

As the long convoys of army trucks moved into Smithfield market with meat, fish and other foodstuffs for the hungry city, 2,300 food handlers walked out. Half an hour later the trucks were greeted by the walk-out of 3,000 employees in Covent Garden market, the city's largest fruit and vegetable market.

Rank and file members of Foreign Secretary Bevin's Transport and General Workers union, Britain's biggest labor organization, quit work in protest to the use of troops in a wages-and-hours dispute.

Fifteen minutes before the 8,000 troops began hauling the food to Smithfield market, strike leaders agreed to move meat from the market on "condition that all troops be withdrawn."

Walkout May Spread

The strike leaders said that the walk-out might spread throughout the country. Already 80 employees of one London firm failed to report for work and in Bristol 1,000 employees of the city's 15 largest haulage firms did not report for work.

More than 100 slaughter house employees in Liverpool left their jobs while discontent was reported by bus, streetcar and subway workers in London. However, a union spokesman said that no "sympathy action" meeting had been called.

After unsuccessfully attempting yesterday to talk the strikers into returning to work pending negotiations, union leaders today planned to ask the employees of the Borough and Spitalfields markets to remain at work.

Walkout of the Covent Garden employees threatened the city with a potato famine and stocks were described as "very low."

The British press yesterday stood behind the government's moves and laid much of the blame for the strike on the union leaders. The Conservative Daily Telegraph declared that a divergence between the workers and their leaders appeared as early as 1937.

One of the major complaints of the workers is against the negotiations machinery. They maintain that the authorities have had nine months to consider their demands.

A truckload of celery arrived today at Covent Garden and was returned to the grower. Railroad cars shunted into the market left empty.

The situation was quiet at the docks, scene of recurrent labor disputes during the last year. A spokesman for the port of London authority said no troops had gone to work at the docks.

More than 50,000 tons of oranges and tangerines, expensive luxuries for London, were piled high and spoiling in the warehouses at the West India dock.

The Financial Times, leading newspaper of the banking section, demanded that the government recognize the "necessity for a national wages policy" to solve this and other strikes. It declared the road haulage wage board, created by Parliament in 1938 of representatives of employees, employers and three public members, was "antiquated."

Charge Hitch Hiker Stole Club Bag of Friendly Motorist

Kirkland Lake, Jan. 13 (CP)—A hitch hiker who repaid the friendly motorist who gave him a lift by allegedly stealing his club bag—Walko Hertsch, 24,—of Kirkland Lake, was arrested by local police Saturday and charged with being in possession of stolen property. He will appear in police court, Thursday.

Police said R. I. Insmay, of Kirkland Lake, a commercial traveller, told them he picked up Hertsch, in Val D'Or, Que., last Wednesday and gave him a lift to Rouyn. He said he left the accused in the back seat of the car while he went into a Rouyn Hotel to register. When he returned his clothes were dumped out of a club bag and both Hertsch and bag were gone.

Supreme Court To Become Final Court of Appeal

Privy Council Judgment Needs Parliament Approval

By JAMES McCOOK

London, Jan. 13—(CP)—A privy council judgment handed down today opened the way for the Supreme Court of Canada to become the final court of appeal for the Dominion.

The judgment meant, in effect, that the privy council would cease to be the final resort for Canadian court cases as soon as the Canadian parliament adopts legislation implementing the decision.

The judicial committee of the privy council ruled that bill nine, introduced to the Canadian Parliament in 1939 under the title "an act to amend the Supreme Court Act" but never adopted, was intra vires.

The judgment, handed down by Lord Wright, said the Supreme Court of Canada, if the bill becomes law, shall have "exclusive ultimate appellate, civil and criminal jurisdiction within and for Canada, and the judgment of the court shall in all cases be final and conclusive."

The Attorneys-General of Ontario, British Columbia, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, with Quebec joining in, appealed to the privy council to determine the validity of the bill.

Today's judgment said "it appears to their lordships that it is not consistent with the political conception which is embodied in the British Commonwealth of Nations that one member of that Commonwealth should be precluded from setting up, if it so desires a Supreme Court of Appeal having a jurisdiction both ultimate and exclusive of any other member."

Regulation of appeals was the prime element in Canadian sovereignty which would be impaired if, at the will of the citizens, recourse could be had to a tribunal in the constitution of which it had no voice.

Lord Wright read the decision without emotion a moment after tributes had been paid to the memory of the late Lord Russell of Killowen, by Lord Thankerton, after the council met.

The Privy Council thought it irrelevant to say the question was one which might have seemed unreal at the date of the British North America Act.

"To such an organic statute the flexible interpretation must be given that changing circumstances require it and it would be alien to the spirit which the preamble to the statues of Westminister is instinct to concede anything less than the widest amplitude of power to the Dominion Legislature under section 101 of the (B.N.A.) Act."

(Section 101 provides that the Parliament of Canada, nothwithstanding anything in the Act, may provide for 'constitution, maintenance and organization of a general court of appeal for Canada and for the establishment of additional courts.)

Premier McNair Ready to Join In Discussions

Fredericton, Jan. 13. (CP)—Premier McNair of New Brunswick announced today he was leaving for Ottawa to join Premier Garson of Manitoba and Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan in financial discussions with Finance Minister Abbott. He leaves tonight.

Premier McNair a week ago suspended taxation negotiations with the Dominion because he said the Federal government had given more favorable treatment to British Columbia.

Today he announced, without elaboration, that he had accepted Mr. Abbott's invitation to join Mr. Garson and Mr. Douglas in the Ottawa talks.

Chick Hatchery At Napanee Burns Loss is $50,000

Napanee, Jan. 13 —(CP)—Fire destroyed the M. B. Mills Chick Hatchery, one of the largest in Eastern Ontario, early today with damage tentatively estimated at $50,000.

The fire was one of the most disastrous in years in this town, some 25 miles west of Kingston. Firefighting activities were directed by Fire Chief Frank Mills, who also manages the hatchery. A foot of ice coated the standing brick walls this morning as firemen continued to pour water into the gutted interior.

The night watchman spotted the blaze at 1:30 a.m. when he smelled smoke. He found it had started in the boiler room just to the rear of the six incubators which have a capacity of 80,000 eggs. All six were destroyed along with the first batch of 13,000 eggs just put in incubation. The company had already received orders for 200,000 chicks for 1947 delivery.

Firemen used four hose lines in pouring water on the blaze which raged for three hours before it was brought under control.

Woman Burns In Ohsweken Home

Brantford, Jan. 13 —(CP)—Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson, 78, was burned to death early yesterday when the home of her son-in-law, Jim White, R. R. No. 1, Ohsweken, was gutted by flames. Mr. and Mrs. White's eldest child, 10-year-old Bruce White, led four younger members of the family to safety.

Mr. and Mrs. White were at church when about one p.m. flames from a kerosene stove in the kitchen ignited nearby curtains. The house became flame-swept. Mrs. Wilson, upstairs at the time, was unable to escape.

Her five grandchildren, who were on the ground floor at the time fire broke out, made their way to safety. Neighbors saw the flames and rushed to the scene, but it was too late.

The family is staying at the home of Mrs. White's sister, who resided near the scene of the fire.

R.C.M.P. at Ohsweken are investigating. Crown Attorney F. E. D. Wallace stated today there would be no inquest.

The home of Frank Froman, R. R. No. 2, Ohsweken, about three miles northwest of Ohsweken, is reported to have been destroyed early today by a fire originating in the chimney. No one was injured.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Jan. 13 —(CP)—Synopsis: The circulation over Ontario this morning is from the southeast. Warmer air from United States is spreading slowly over southwestern Ontario. Skies in this warmer area are overcast. A belt of snow extends from southern Michigan northwestward to the southern Prairie Provinces. Freezing drizzle is also occurring in some parts of southern Michigan. This precipitation belt is moving slowly east and northeast.

Col. Vanderwater Named Chairman

The annual meeting of the Hastings County Agricultural Committee was held in the Department of Agricultural Office in Stirling last week with Col. Roscoe Vanderwater of Foxboro being named as chairman.

Vice chairman is J. Chester Sills, of West Huntingdon, while the executive committee is comprised of Allen Ketcheson, Madoc; Herbert Watt, Foxboro, and Ed. J. Pyear, Stirling. Harry W. Burns, assistant agricultural representative, was appointed secretary treasurer, protem.

The members discussed the calfhood vaccination project for Hastings, it being decided to contact the various veterinarians in the county to decide on a feasible fee for their services when vaccinating calves.

The question of a public health unit was also brought to the attention of the meeting and a resolution was sent to the Hastings County Council in connection with the forming of a committee from the county council to investigate the possibility of forming a county public health unit.

Keyes Supply Co. Staff Enjoys Social Evening

What is hoped to be the first of a series of congenial get-togethers was held in the Bar-B-Q Restaurant on Friday evening when the combined staffs of the Belleville and Kingston branches of the Keyes Supply Co. Ltd. held their first joint banquet.

The Belleville branch of the company were hosts to their colleagues from out-of-town with the local manager, Mr. L. E. Vaughan, extending a cordial welcome to all.

Guest speaker for the occasion was Mr. A. T. Squires of the McQuay, Norris Manufacturing Company Ltd., of Toronto. Mr. Squires gave an outstanding outline of business conditions as pertaining to the supply companies, as well as business in general. Also present among the guests was Mr. R. L. Wiginton, manager of the Kingston branch of Keyes.

The remainder of the evening was spent in social amenities with business reminiscences and comparisons forming the main topics of conversation. About twenty representatives of the company were in attendance.

POLICE BLOTTER

Slippery streets were responsible for several minor motor accidents over the weekend as fender clashes were reported.

In one instance there was a hit-and-run driver who crashed into a car owned by William A. Carney, 177 Dundas Street, and which was parked in front of his home. Driver of the moving vehicle did not stop to ascertain what damage had resulted.

In a second clash William Vaughn, Bleecker Ave., was turning right from Pinnacle Street onto Bridge when his vehicle was in collision with another car driven by Colin Cameron, 161 Albert Street. The Vaughn car was damaged to the extent of $30, while the Cameron vehicle suffered $150 damage.

In a third accident Mrs. Charles Wood, Colborne, left her car parked on Victoria Ave., hill, only to have it start down the grade to crash into another parked auto.

William Bean, reported an attempted theft of his car from 331 Front Street. The would-be thief had attempted to cross the ignition wires to get the vehicle started but had been unsuccessful.

There was a break-in at Elliott's garage on Cannifton Road with a back window being broken to effect entrance to the building. A quantity of cigarettes, two .22 rifles and about $1 in change were reported missing.

Lt.-Col. Sisler, Manager of Dominion Bank Here, Transferred to St. Thomas

Veteran of First Great War Was Active in Military Circles, Boy Scouts, and on Board of Education

LT.-COL. B. C. SISLER

Mr. B. C. Sisler, manager of the Belleville branch of the Dominion Bank for the past twelve and one-half years, has been transferred in the same capacity to the St. Thomas, Ont., branch, it was officially announced here today. Mr. Sisler is succeeded by Mr. John Walton, for the past five years manager of the Madoc branch. Mr. Walton assumes his new duties here next Monday.

Mr. Sisler, who leaves for his new home on Sunday next, entered the service of the Dominion Bank at Uxbridge, Ont., in December 1911. He served there until 1915 when he joined the Canadian Army serving with the 20th Battalion, CEF, for the next four and one-half years. After seeing much action in France and other overseas theatres of war, he returned to Canada and rejoined the bank service being associated with the Hamilton, Montreal, Orillia and Brampton branches as accountant.

Served at Mount Forest

Eighteen years ago he was transferred to his first managerial position at the Mount Forest, Ont., branch serving there for six years, then coming to Belleville where he has remained since.

Mr. Sisler has always taken an active interest in the community in which he lived. He is one of the four men who originated the Kinsmen Club in Hamilton years ago and has always taken a keen interest in that association. He is also the District Commissioner for Boy Scouts. His municipal interest was such that he was elected to the Board of Education here on which he served for twelve years.

He never forgot his interest in things military and soon after his arrival here he became associated with the Argyll Light Infantry. By dint of ability and perseverance he rose through the officer ranks until three years ago he was appointed commanding officer of the unit. His place will be taken temporarily by Acting C. O. Major Milton Davidson.

Mrs. Sisler Active in Women's Organizations

Mrs. Sisler also took an active interest in the city and its women's organizations. She is president of the Women's Canadian Club and was for years associated with the Women's Association of Bridge Street United Church. She also played a large part in the wartime activities of the regiment and of the Blood Donors' Clinic when it was in operation here.

Col. Sisler will be tendered a farewell dinner by the officers of his regiment in the officers' mess in the Armouries on Friday night.

Mr. Walton, his successor has seen much service with the bank. His first managerial position was with the Larder Lake branch later going to South Oshawa. For the past five years he has been manager at Madoc. He is married, has no children, and was born in England.

A. E. Bates, Roslin, Elected Chairman of N. Thurlow School Area

First meeting of the newly-elected board of trustees for the North Thurlow School Area was held at the Maple Leaf School on Thursday when A. E. Bates of Roslin was elected chairman of the board. Clifford Ray was elected vice chairman while Richard Cranston acted as temporary secretary.

Members present included Richard Cranston, Clifford Ray, Clayton Hall, Erie Sayers, A. E. Bates and School Inspector R. H. Macklem.

The trustees voted that school supplies be furnished free to all pupils in the area, while tenders will be called for the position of secretary-treasurer. The matter of fire insurance will be dealt with at the next meeting on January 23.

Shortage of Light Housekeeping Rooms at Most Acute Stage

"Never in the five years of the life of the Belleville Rooms Registry has there been such an acute shortage of light housekeeping accommodation in the city as there is today," Mrs. J. A. Kerr, registry secretary said today.

Contributing to the situation is the fact that householders are demanding high rentals and the people who are most desperately in need for this accommodation are men of the RCAF who have joined the service as LAC's and who are not getting the money they received in wartime.

Another factor is that there are a number of rooms available on the outskirts of the city, but it is room accommodation in name only. It is practically impossible for these young people, most of whom have babies, to travel all the way downtown for meals.

What is desperately needed, Mrs. Kerr stated, is light-housekeeping accommodation or rooms with kitchen privileges, at moderate rentals.

Can Oust Undesirable Room Tenants

Mrs. Kerr was of the opinion that a number of people who have rooms to rent are afraid of the six months rental clause. "Undesirable tenants can be ousted," she remarked, "but a lot of people are not aware of the fact."

Her office, she said, takes care that none but the best tenants will be sent to those who have accommodation.

"One-half of the city," she went on, "has no idea of the hardship and suffering as regards housing accommodation that is going on under its very nose." She quoted specific cases where young married men and their wives and children are separated because of their inability to secure suitable accommodation.

Ninety-one applications for accommodation were received by the Registry Office during the month of December, the secretary pointed out, "and these applications represented 191 people." Upwards of 333 people made personal calls while telephone inquiries amounted to 448. Placed persons in the month of November and December amounted to 313.

Taxi Stolen When Driver Calls For Passenger

The brazen theft of a locally-owned Checker Taxi when the driver left his vehicle unattended for a few moments while picking up a passenger, was reported to the local police department over the weekend.

Owner of the taxi firm, Mr. Kenneth Smith, reported to police that the driver had driven to the north entrance of the Armouries to pick up a passenger and had stepped inside the door to ascertain if his customer was ready. When he returned outside the machine was missing.

The Checker Taxi display was prominently shown on the side of the vehicle, while the illuminated taxi sign was also in place on the top of the car. Up until the noon hour today no word had been received of the vehicle although district police officers were notified of the theft.

HICCOUGHS FOR FIVE WEEKS

New York, Jan. 13 —(AP)— Anna Mayer, 21, was hiccoughing at one-second intervals during the weekend after five weeks of constant hiccoughing. About two years ago she underwent an operation — cutting of the phrenic nerve — after three months of incessant hiccoughing, and recovered for a time, with only occasional mild attacks.

The girl cannot eat normally or sleep without heavy sedatives, which stop the hiccoughing only for a few hours at a time. Doctors believe the hiccoughing may be the result of one of several other operations she has undergone, including an appendectomy and two operations performed after she swallowed foreign articles.

CURB CRUISER SNATCHES PURSE

Tilbury, Jan. 13—(CP)—Purse-snatching in comfort has been reported here. A curb cruiser who drove his car near Mrs. Thomas Taylor, snatched her purse Saturday and then drove away when his victim shouted. Mrs. Taylor was walking along the road because of icy sidewalks.

Obituary

MRS. LEAH A. FARRELL
(Moira)

Mrs. Leah Albertha Farrell, wife of Mr. John F. Farrell, Moira, died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Eugene Hitchon, 116 Catharine Street, on Saturday. Her illness was of four weeks' duration and she was a patient in the Belleville General Hospital for a time, prior to being removed to the home of her daughter.

The late Mrs. Farrell was born at Wellman's Corners and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Pauley. For some years she lived in Rawdon township and for the past seven years she made her home at Moira. She was a member of the United Church at Moira.

Surviving her are her husband; her parents, one son, Wesley Farrell, Moira; two daughters, Mrs. Eugene Hitchon and Miss Doris Farrell, both of Belleville; one brother, Louis Pauley, Wellman's Corners; two sisters, Mrs. William Hutcheson of Seymour township, and Mrs. Fred Thrasher of Wellman's Corners; four grandsons.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

LATE SHIRLEY PALMATEER
(Gilmour)

The funeral of Shirley Palmateer was held Saturday afternoon from the home of his daughter, Mrs. Burton Carroll, St. Ola. The service there and at St. Ola Cemetery was conducted by the Rev. F. Wicks, of the Associate Gospel Church, St. Ola. During the service a solo was rendered by Miss Forrester.

The bearers were David Mawson, James Sprackett, Arthur McMurray, Clayton Smith, John Freeman and William Baker.

MORLEY P. MEYERS

Morley P. Meyers of this city died in the Belleville General Hospital on Saturday after an illness of four weeks' duration.

Born in Prince Edward County seventy-eight years ago the late Mr. Meyers was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Byron Meyers. For some years he lived in Toronto and for the past fifteen years he resided in this city. He was a member of the United Church.

Surviving him are one brother, Earl Meyers, Toronto; two sisters, Mrs. George Latta of Thurlow township, and Mrs. Alfred J. McCrodan of Toronto. His wife, the former Nettie Pearsall, died some years ago.

The funeral was held Monday afternoon from the Thomas C. Thompson Funeral Home, 38 Everett Street, and interment took place at Belleville cemetery.

LATE MALCOLM C. McLENNAN

The funeral of Malcolm Charles McLennan, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Ray McLennan, 132 Dufferin Avenue, was held Saturday afternoon from the Martin Funeral Home, Church Street. The service in the chapel and at Belleville cemetery was conducted by the Rev. C. V. Freeman, pastor of the Alliance Tabernacle.

LATE JAMES S. ST. LOUIS

On Saturday morning the funeral of James Stephen St. Louis was held from the home of his son, Mr Fred St. Louis, 137 Station Street, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, V.G.

Interment took place in St. James cemetery and the committal prayers were said by the Rev. Father J. Carley.

The bearers were A. Mansfield, J. Alexander, G. Milne, P. Milne, L. Amo and T Ladoucier.

LATE E. FRANKLIN CASEY
(Tyendinga Township)

The funeral of E. Franklin Casey, late residence, 5th. concession of Tyendinaga township, was held Saturday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street. The service there and at Victoria cemetery, where entombment took place was conducted by the Rev. J. R. Trumpour of Cannifton United Church Circuit.

The bearers were Ernest Leavens, Guy Leavens, Arthur Balcanquel, Orland Burtrand, Robert Gordon and Bartley Welsh.

The late Mr. Casey is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Charles Huffman; one son, Clinton, and one brother, William R. Casey, all of Thurlow township. His wife, the former Isabel Purdy, died some years ago.

JOHN TIGHE
(Point Anne)

The funeral of John Tighe, Point Anne, who died in Hotel Dieu, Kingston, on Friday last, was held Monday morning from Corrigan & O'Brien Funeral Home Moira Street west, to St. Michael's Church where Requiem Mass was celebrated by the Rt. Rev. Monsignor Nicholson, V.G.

Interment took place at St. James' cemetery and the committal prayers were said by the Rev. Father J. F. Carley.

The bearers were Robert Bell, Thomas Bowler, Thomas Bennett, Roy DeForge, Manson MacDonald and Norman Blough.

The late Mr. Tighe, who was in his 62nd. year, was born in Tyendinaga township and was a son of Domine Tighe and his wife Julia Hannifan. For some years he lived at Read and for the past thirty-seven years he lived in the Point Anne district. He was a member of St. Michael's Church and in connection with the parish he was a member of the Sacred Heart. His illness was of six months' duration. His wife, the former Annie Summers, died two years ago.

Members of City Council, Board Representatives And Special Guests Attend Divine Service

Members of the City Council, civic officials, representatives of the Provincial and Federal governments, officials of Hastings County, Mr. Justice Cameron, Judge J. C. Anderson the new county judge for Hastings, Byron O. Lott, Grand Old Man of Hastings, representatives of the various boards and commissions of the city, were guests of Mayor F.S. Follwell at Divine Service at Christ Church on Sunday morning and later had luncheon at the Hotel Quinte. This has been the practice of the Mayor since his inauguration as Chief Magistrate three years ago.

A most instructive sermon was delivered by the Rector of Christ Church, the Rev. J. Grant Sparling who took his text from Romans 12 and the first verse. He was assisted in the service by Rev. Everett Smith and the boys' choir of the church sang Sir Gilbert Parry's "Jerusalem" as an anthem. The first lesson was read by His Worship and the second by Alderman Harold Armstrong.

Luncheon At Quinte

At the conclusion of the service the guests repaired to the Hotel Quinte and a social hour was spent before they were ushered to the main dining room for a most delightful turkey dinner served by Mine Host Gerald Jenkins. Mayor Follwell presided and called upon Mr. Justice Cameron to introduce the new County Judge, J. C. Anderson and in doing so stated how much he regretted leaving the city but was sure the law was in good hands with the acquisition of Mr. Anderson. The new judge stated he had been cordially welcomed to the city and hoped that he would contribute something of value to the life of the community.

George H. Stokes M.P., Fred Wilson M.P.P. Harold D. Bateman City Comptroller, Ex-Mayor Glen E. Thompson, Ex-Mayor Harry Rollins, Dr. G. S. Cronk, Medical Officer of Health and Byron O. Lott, Elmer Sandercock and Alderman Harold J. Armstrong spoke briefly, all congratulating the Mayor for a splendid gesture.

Rev. J. Grant Sparling in his sermon said—

It is a big job to govern a city like Belleville, and because the mayor believes that it is too big a job for men to do successfully by their own initiative, he has invited the civic officials to come and worship with him this morning, that in the days when all the telephones are ringing at once, when Mr. East Hill says, "Can't you do something about the smoke from the factories?" and Mr. West Hill says, "It is a pity we cannot have a decent place on the waterfront for our children to swim!"; and Mrs. Live-on-Dividends says "Whatever you do, don't raise the taxes," and Mr. New Idea-Every-Day says, "To keep this city progressive we must spend more money, raising the tax rate, well, when there are the constant calls on the finance of every civic official, they will know that there is One wiser than they, standing at their elbows to give them the directions they will need. No man can do a big job well without the aid of the Great Authority Himself. Some people try, and that is the reason we have such a mediocre civilization.

Great Temptations

I believe there is another reason the mayor has brought the civic officials here today, and that is because they all realize they will have great temptations this year. The mayor and several of the council have gone into office with colossal majorities, which means that large sections of the community have put them in power. The great temptation to the Mayor and to the Councillors will be to listen too often to the voice of the people. This is the temptation of all leaders in democratic organizations. I have pointed out before that in the democratic state leaders seldom lead,—they are shoved by public opinion. The voice of the people is not the voice of God, and I know that the Mayor feels that he and his council may be tempted to think with it,—so our text warns you gentlemen not to be conformed to this world.

Tempted at Beginning

It may help you to know that our Lord's great temptation was the very same as yours. He was tempted at the very beginning of His ministry to conform to the world. The devil said,—"Give the people all the bread they want, yea, more than they want; turn the stones into bread, and you will have all the followers you need." The devil did not say that bread only, is a poor unhealthy diet, but it was what the people of that day thought they wanted. You are going to be tempted to do likewise,—keep the tax rate down,—give the people something for nothing, forgetting that people who get things for nothing rarely appreciate them That is why we are such an ungrateful lot.

Our Lord was tempted to conform to the world by doing something sensational,—by casting Himself down from the pinnacle of the temple,—people would then follow Him, because people always love a sensation. I do not believe that the Mayor and Council are planning a running-broad jump from Pinnacle St. tonight but one temptation will be to give the people in their sensation for the moment, and tickle their surface nerves.

Tempted to Worship the Devil

Our Lord was tempted to worship the devil himself in order to win men "all the kingdoms of the world" could be His, if He worshipped evil. What is the devil?—Life without God,—Godless living. Mankind has never, as a whole, been satisfied with Godly living. He has wanted what he calls "manly living," which reminds me to tell you that it was God's intention that men should be like Him. He created man in His image, but unfortunately ever since then man has been trying to return the compliment by creating God in man's image. You will be tempted to cater to the lower element in order to retain popularity.

I am convinced that you gentlemen are all aware of the temptations, so you have come here to pledge yourself to the One who said,—"Get thee behind Me, Satan."

Your temptations have always been the temptations of the Church too. It was the great temptation of the Church at Rome in St. Paul's day. The people there wanted to be powerful, and to be so they thought they must have popular support, so there was danger that they might bring down their morality and their devotion to the standard of the program around them in order to receive it. St Paul knew that it is Godliness that makes people strong, and not numbers, so he hurls our text at them in a warning. "Be—ye not conformed to this world." It has proved to be true, for the Church took a great step forward at the time of the European when Christianity became an official religion and all government officials must give it united conformity.

That was the day when it really commenced to absorb worldliness and to love its moral power in the world. The church was strongest when it stood in defiance of the world, and would have no compromise with it.

Quality Carried Day

After Dunkirk, when we had no weapons in England except pitch forks and meat cleavers and carving knives, and the Canadian Corps, what made us start to win from that day? Was it numbers? No! It was lack of numbers, but an abundance of the God-fearing spirit—a few thousands who believed that they were on God's side, and that He would never let them down in the last analysis. It is quality, not quantity that carried the day. At no one time in all the six years did we ever have superiority of arms or men, over the enemy. It was because the people refused to conform to the world. It will be moral quality, rather than mundane quantity which will give men power in your great task of serving in this community.

When St. Paul warned the Church at Rome not to be conformed to the world, he tells them to be transformed by the renewing of their minds, that they might know what the good, and acceptable and perfect will of God is. You know what it means to be transformed. A husband said that to his wife after she returned from the beauty parlor. She had not had her mind renewed, but she did have her complexion renewed. A woman said that to her husband who had just returned from five years in the army. He had been very fussy about his food before he went away, and on his first day home she said, "Honey, what would you like for supper?" and he replied, "Sweetheart, anything that you will prepare will be o.k. to me."

Man Transformed

She said, "How you are transformed!", and he was, by the renewing of his ideas about food, after having had to put up with six years of grub, grease and cockroaches. So to keep ourselves from conforming to the world, we must be constantly renewing our minds, but we know God's will and live the transformed life. You arrive at the transformed life by much the same method as the "conformed" life. i.e., find out the people's will by testing their opinion in the street, letters to the press, and what they tell you they heard in the beer parlor or in the pool room, or at the club, or you learn by testimony.

You learn the will of the Canadian Criminal Code by studying and restudy of the statute books in the library of the Law Society.

You learn what the will of the Mayor is by visiting the place of business and talking to him personally as often as you possibly can.

Now gentlemen, if you are going to give Belleville the wonderful government which I believe you want to give—if you want to transform the whole face of the life in Belleville, then it is by the renewing of your minds and ideas by sitting at the feet of God and listening to Him. This business of listening to God is worship; I won't call it going to church, because people can go to church and not worship; but you cannot worship adequately without going to church because some of the essential aids to worship are found only in the church. For one hour you come into a building that is different. The ceiling is pointed; so are the windows, to lift up your heart to God. You hear God's word being read in an atmosphere where the telephone bell doesn't ring and the baby doesn't cry. You can pray without being interrupted because everyone around you is praying. You can praise God as loudly as you like in the hymns without the fellow beside you thinking about you, because he is doing the same thing. For one hour you do nothing but listen to and commune with God, and you discover His ideas and mind.

Must Answer Question

The ultimate issue to which every man must, in the last resort answer "Yes", or "No", is the question whether he will worship God or money.

Is that true? If I do not worship God, will I certainly worship myself instead, and conform to the world? Why is it true? Because I am always present to myself, and so seem important to myself. Unless I correct this by the worship of God, I shall get to thinking of myself as the centre of the universe, which is a mind of madness. Unconsciously I believe and I have the last word, as well as all the answers.

But, may I not worship my fellow-man, instead of God? No, because your fellow-man is no more Godlike than you are yourself, and so in worshipping humanity you are only worshipping a sort of reflection of yourself, and are acting as though the human race is the mainspring of the world, which is mundane and conforming to the world.

Non-Worshippers a Drag

Some of you civic officials come to worship in this church every Sunday you are in the city; some of you worship in other churches of the city; some of you seldom go to worship with your worshipping fellow citizens,—you conform to the world. The weight of the good government of Belleville is being carried by those who regularly receive the transforming power of worship, and know what the will of the Lord is. The non-worshipper is a drag on the community. None of us want to be that; none of the civic officials want to bet that Belleville deserves the best. She can have it when her citizens seek the transforming power by the frequent renewing of their minds by talking to, listening to, God. Your mayor has led you into the way of it this morning.

The Royal Bank of Canada Annual Meeting

Sydney G. Dobson, President, declares increased industrial output, co-operation between management and labor and substantial tax reductions would provide bedrock of future prosperity—"If business, labor and government keep their heads, there is no reason why we should not complete our delayed reconversion plans this year and prepare to step forward in future."

James Muir, General Manager, reports assets at record level for sixth consecutive year — notes increased financial assistance rendered business and individuals — deposits at $1,963,103,951 reach new high point — foreign branches valuable aid to traders.

Warning that lavish government expenditures provide no assurance of good times, and that living standards cannot be raised through less production and higher wages, was voiced by Sydney G. Dobson, President of The Royal Bank of Canada at the bank's Annual Meeting.

On the other hand he declared that increased production and whole-hearted co-operation between management and labor would provide a solid basis for prosperity. He also noted that the present level of taxation was a drag on business and that substantial tax reductions would give an incentive to individuals and to industry, encourage expansion and new ventures, encourage greater production and lower prices and, therefore, prove an aid to a higher standard of living.

CANADA PLAYS FULL PART

Stressing the increasingly important role of Canada in world affairs, Mr. Dobson said: "Canada is playing her full part in the peace organizations and served on nine international bodies. She was the second largest contributor of food and the third largest contributor of money to UNRRA. She has the largest store in the world of the basic essential of atomic energy—uranium. I believe that though in numbers the Canadian people carry small weight in the world, when the account of world well-being comes to be added up it will be found that the weight of Canada's influence was a big factor in whatever success is attained."

"I think that experiences of the past few years have brought homes to all of us the fact that business and industry exist to satisfy the needs of the people.

"There are many wants, such as political and economic security, facilities for improvement and relaxation, competent health services, and wider education, but I shall speak particularly of the business aspects. I believe that prosperous business conditions will be the bedrock upon which the people will satisfy most of their other wants.

SUCCESS NOT MADE OF DREAMS

"There have been all sorts of plans laid out by advocates of improvement in our economic affairs, but it is becoming clear that many of the old principles of sound economics will survive, and some that had been abandoned must be returned to. On the whole our Canadian people are sensible and sound. They are entertained by pictures and stories of Utopia, but they know that success is not made of dreams. The story of Canada's advancement is one of people and resources, and the ingenuity of the people in using the resources.

"Roughly 68 per cent of our population are under 40 years of age. That means that the numerical bulk of the people is not yet 'set' in its ways, but is of an age to demand the latest, or better than the latest, in devices, comforts and services of all kinds. It is a thought to keep every business executive on the alert, because people's wants rule the market and decide the profit or otherwise of production.

"Given an intelligent approach by business executives who are trying in a sincere way to develop a better knowledge of what the consumers want, there is no reason why Canada cannot look forward to a period of great expansion, profitable business, and higher standards of living.

"I regret very much the irresponsible outlook many persons have regarding work and wages. I am one who believes that the time will come again when possession of a job will be considered an asset, when having a little money as a standby will loom larger in people's minds than leisure hours. True satisfaction can be found only when the worker values mainly the work he does, and not how much he is able to compel his employer to pay. I believe in a high standard of living for everyone, and in leisure, but I am sorry to say that too many of our people today make high wages and plentiful leisure the greatest aims of their lives. They pay too little attention to the fact that every producer is also a consumer, so that what they gain as producers they lose as consumer. It is wholly false to say that less production and more pay per worker can assure us of prosperity; just as false as to think that raw material and labor costs can be increased without at least a corresponding increase in the cost of living."

FOREST WEALTH

Reviewing Canada's fortunate competitive position, Mr. Dobson pointed particularly to Canada's 813,000 square miles of productive forest wealth and urged that active steps be taken to assure its conservation. "Canadians are generally surprised," he said, when they learn that their pulp and paper mills take only about 23 per cent. of the annual forest crop, while fuel wood takes 31 per cent., lumber and miscellaneous products take 41 per cent., and pulpwood exports use over 5 per cent.

"Though pulp and paper creates more employment than any other manufacturer and is the largest single item in Canada's export trade, yet fire, insects, and disease consume 60 per cent. more wood annually than do the pulp and paper mills. Other countries have succeeded in practically eliminating wastage due to nature. In Sweden, with less than 8 per cent. of Canada's forest area, there are more than twice as many forest engineers as in Canada.

VALUE MULTIPLIED

"I wish to draw one fact particularly to your attention. In 1945 the pulp and paper industry took pulpwood valued at $122 million, and converted it into products which had a gross value of $400 million. In other words, the industry multiplied more than threefold the value to Canada of its pulp wood cut, in course of that process, its mills gave employment to 40,000 persons and paid them $80½ million in salaries and wages. In addition, it supplied workers in the woods with employment and their wages amounted to $75 million. When you add the purchase of materials and supplies, $184 million, you realize how important the industry is to the whole economic life of the nation.

"That this industry could be further expanded is evident when we consider that the pulpwood shipped out of Canada in a raw state in a year would supply a large paper-making industry.

"The lumber industry which includes production of sawn lumber, shingles and boards, has been increasing steadily. As in the case of the pulp and paper industry the value of the forest cut has been much increased by processing, in this case almost doubled.

NEW PRODUCTS FROM WOOD

"In addition, new horizons are opening up for the use of our forest products, such as in the manufacture of plastics and textiles. This field so far has only just been tapped, and holds tremendous possibilities. We cannot, therefore, afford, to waste or to see carelessly destroyed any portion of our great forest resources.

"Throughout the responsible financial press during late months, we have seen articles to the effect that today more than ever increased industrial output is a necessity. We need the best co-operation possible between management and labor. The high rate of productivity which would result would be the only effective influence I know of against inflation."

Dealing with the question of taxation, Mr. Dobson noted that war expenditure was down to 35 per cent. of what it was in the peak year. "Yet the government is collecting in this taxation year an amount equal to 24 per cent. of the approximate 1946 national income compared with 11.05 per cent. in 1938. The Finance Minister set his requirements at $2,769,000,000 in his last budget, compared with $534,400,000 in 1938.

DRAG ON BUSINESS

"Now it doesn't matter where that revenue is accumulated by the government, or how it is taken, the withdrawal of this money constitutes a drag upon business. Substantial reduction in taxes would give an incentive to individuals and to industry, encourage expansion and new ventures, encourage greater production and lower prices, and therefore prove an aid toward a higher standard of living.

"Some will say the government needs the money for social welfare and subsidies and so on, but I would point out that lavish government expenditure has been unsuccessful in creating prosperity. "A 'let the government do it' attitude will not get us anywhere, and necessity alone should be the decisive factor in judging whether to retain some of the wartime controls and practices. In some cases the manufacturers' profit has been squeezed between rising costs and the price ceilings. I approve the policy of removing controls gradually, but as quickly as goods and services become available, and I am hopeful that world and domestic conditions will soon permit us to return to a free economy.

"This country reached maturity through its war effort, politically and industrially. If business, labor and government keep their heads there is no reason why we should not complete our delayed reconversion plans this year and prepare to step forward in future."

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS.

In presenting the bank's 77th. Annual Report, Mr. Muir, General Manager, stated that for the sixth consecutive year the total assets of the bank, which now stood at $2,131,974,316, had reached new record levels. 'New records had been established in many departments of the bank's business. Liquid assets totalled $1,609,742,166 representing 81.69 per cent of the total liabilities to the public.

"The volume of commercial loans in Canada is up by $25,789,321," said Mr. Muir, "but this does not give a true picture for the reason that at November 30, 1945, a Victory Loan campaign was in full swing; nor is the loan total a complete index of the financial assistance which is being supplied by the bank to our clients in their post-war business activities. Included under the heading 'Other Bonds, Debentures and Stocks' are many millions of dollars representing the purchase by the bank of short- to mid-term bonds and debentures issued by clients to enable them to carry out expansions and improvements of a capital nature.

"In addition, the smaller class of customer continues to take substantial advantage of our facilities. This is demonstrated, for example, by the fact that during the past year we have made a total of nearly 150,000 loans of $500 and under for personal purposes.

"Our loaning business abroad has also continued to expand as is illustrated by a well diversified increase of $16,623,715 in commercial loans."

RECORD DEPOSITS

The General Manager noted that total deposits had increased by more than $74,000,000 to the new all time high point of $1,963,103,951. The number of deposit accounts in operation continues to grow and as a matter of fact has increased in Canada alone by 116,000 during the year bringing the total in operation up to 1,670,000.

"The profits for the year were $903,244 greater than for the preceding twelve months' operations.

"As you will have observed from the Directors' Report, it had been decided to transfer to the Reserve Fund of the bank $5,000,000 from the amount at credit of Profit and Loss Account.

"There will still be left the substantial sum of $1,467,414 to be carried forward.

"You will also note that the Reserve Fund has been further increased by the addition to it of the sum of $15,000,000, bringing the Reserve Fund of the bank up to $40,000,000.

"It may be recalled that in the depression period of the middle 30's it was decided to transfer $15,000,000 from the Reserve Fund to inner reserves. Time, however, has shown this to have been an overly conservative precaution. Consequently the entry has simply been reversed."

AID TO FOREIGN TRADERS

Discussing the wide network of branches operated by the bank, Mr. Muir referred particularly to the useful role played by the bank's foreign branches in facilitating foreign trade.

"The unique position which we occupy," he said, "as the Canadian bank with the most extensive chain of foreign branches, enables us to render exporting and importing clients a banking service which cannot be paralleled."

Mr. Muir spoke in highest praise of the loyalty, ability and interest of all members of the staff. "Your bank is not the handiwork of any one man," he said, "nor even of any small group of men. On the contrary, it is a monument to the co-operative effort of many, each one serving with enterprise and enthusiasm in his or her particular sphere of duty.

"I cannot commend these men and women too highly to you, nor, as I see it, can the Management of the bank render a greater service to you than that they should at all times try to ensure that a staff such as I have described is fostered, encouraged and maintained."

Gardiner Favors Western Europe Commonwealth

Victoria, Jan. 11 (CP). — A Commonwealth of Western Europe based on unity with the North American nations, has been advocated by James G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, as a means of achieving world peace.

"Europe must be brought together in one world force by persuasion or some day someone is going to utilize the powers of force to unite it under a totalitarian regime," Mr. Gardiner warned in an address made yesterday in conjunction with Victoria's Canadian Citizenship Week celebrations.

"We want emphasis placed on the things upon which we agree and not on the things in which we do not," the minister declared. An international government was the ideal organization and hope for its eventual formation "has been greatly stimulated by example of the British Commonwealth of Nations."

After the First World War, "the League of Nations failed because of the ignorance and isolationism. We have a second chance, and only through co-operation will world peace be achieved."

Quarter Million Dollar Fire In Truro, N.S.

Truro, N. S., Jan. 11 —(CP)— Firemen in ice-encrusted oilskins continued to pour water on the smouldering ruins of two buildings today after a fire on Truro's main street caused damage estimated at $250,000.

The fire, which broke out early today, gutted a three-storey building on Prince Street owned by Fred D. Whitman and housing the Robert Simpson Eastern Limited store then ate its way to the adjoining Royal Bank building.

Several of the 75 volunteer firemen who turned out in below-zero weather were cut by falling glass, but there were no serious casualties.

Deputy Police Chief Ira Boss said the fire apparently started in the Whitman building when an explosion hurled plate glass onto the sidewalk and shattered windows across the street.

The flames, seen five miles away, attracted hundreds to the streets. Police set up fire-lines to keep them from under a high tension power line which ran close to the buildings.

Bank officials called to the scene made arrangements to reopen for business later today in an office across the street. Although the top storeys of the bank building were burned out, only water damage was done to the bank premises on the ground floor.

Br. Preference Restored June 30 Abbott Announces

Ottawa, Jan. 11 (CP).—Canada's British preferential tariff schedule, many itmes of which were reduced or removed altogether during the war, will be restored to its pre-war basis June 30, Finance Minister Abbott announced today.

The move is being undertaken, Mr. Abbott said in a statement, to permit Canada to negotiate on the basis of its normal peacetime tariff structure at the resumed sessions of the International Conference on Trade and Employment to open at Geneva April 8.

Purpose of the Geneva discussions among 17 governments is to negotiate reciprocal trade agreements directed toward substantial reduction of tariffs.

The minister said the Canadian government has advised the United Nations it will negotiate, both as to preferential and most-favored-nation rates, on the basis of the tariff as it existed July 1, 1939.

The British preferential rates were cut in 1940. At that time, to conserve American dollars for essential purchases in the United States, Canada imposed import restrictions against non-essential goods entering this country from the U.S.

To offset shortages this move might create, the government reduced the tariffs standing against the sterling countries, since the Dominion was well supplied with sterling funds.

About half of all items in the tariff list coming into Canada from the United Kingdom was allowed to enter free of duty. For another long list, the preferential tariff was slashed 50 per cent. Imposts on woollen goods were reduced 25 per cent.

TOOK BATH IN WATER

Sudbury, Ont., Jan. 13—(CP)— Out to prove that the northland raises "men what are men," three Sudbury residents yesterday took a bath in the chilly waters of Trout Lake as a large crowd of admirers watched. The trio, Wilf Salo, Eino Maki and Mel MacMillan, first chopped a large square hole in the ice.

Study Traffic Control

A municipal judge in a United States city has taken a new method of impressing upon a man charged with speeding the history of accidents on highways and roads in his own county. The court asked the accused if he read the newspapers and knew how many persons had been killed by automobiles in his county. The motorist had to say "no" to both questions.

Thereupon the judge directed him to catch up on his reading in this respect and report on the traffic toll after ten days.

This is one man who will know after the ten days what the situation of accident fatalities is in his own district.

The suggestion is worth thinking about. Reading up the record of driving accidents and their causes should make a driver take every possible step to protect himself and others on the roads. The difficulty is to appreciate from even the records of fatalities on highways what an accident really means and why it takes place. Such events seem so distant or hard to bring close enough to oneself to leave an abiding impression that will mean careful driving by every one. Nobody intends to have an accident and everyone intends to avoid accident but mishaps and accidents do take place.

In trying to learn the lesson of accidents it would be well if every driver would place before himself the question, "If I had been driving one of the cars that figured in such and such a crash would I have done the very thing that caused this accident?" or he might ask himself, "How much of the advice given for the prevention of accidents have I myself disregarded?"

It would mean that the man was putting himself on the witness stand and being examined by himself as to his style of driving and his shortcomings.

If every driver would so question himself and bring the situation 'home' to himself these could not help being fewer accidents for drivers would be safety-conscious and would have the satisfaction of knowing that nothing they are doing would be the cause of a collision or other form of accident.

Monoxide The Creeping Killer

"One of the great hazards of carbon monoxide is that it gives no warning of its existence," states a pamphlet headed "Carbon Monoxide the Creeping Killer," issued this month by the Industrial Prevention Associations.

Warning that carbon monoxide does not come only from the exhaust of motors, but exists, in some degree, in all industries and every home, the pamphlet says, "It is vital to remember that continuous exposure to a very low concentration of carbon monoxide, over a sufficient length of time, can produce the same toxic effect as short exposure to a higher concentration."

As the most common form of carbon monoxide in garages and in the use of automobiles, the pamphlet lists preventative measures for this hazard, as follows:

See that there is reasonable ventilation in the garage.

Do not run the engine in a closed garage.

See that the carburetor and motor are in proper condition, so that there will be a fairly complete combustion of fuel.

All cars should be inspected regularly for leaky exhaust connections, loose and broken floor boards, exhaust pipes and mufflers.

See that the exhaust pipe extends beyond the rear end of the body of the car.

See that there is reasonable ventilation in your own car, and avoid sealing the car by closing all windows and vents.

Get out of your car and into the fresh air at the first sign of headache, smarting eyes, dizziness, sickness or drowsiness.

Burma Frontier Areas

The Burman Delegation invited to London for discussions on the issue of full self-government of Burma was due to arrive by the end of last week. It has been arranged for talks to begin on January 13th.

One of the questions which is bound to come up for discussion is the future regime of the frontier areas, those areas inhabited by the Kachins in the Northeast, the Shans in the East, the Karens in the Southeast, the Nagas in the Northwest and the Chins in the West. These communities with a total population of nearly 3,000,000 compared with 9,000,000 Burmans, are administered under the Burma Act of 1935 by the Governor personally outside the Burma Constitution.

The White Paper of May, 1945, envisaging an advance by stages to the full self-government of Burma, within the British Commonwealth—a plan which Mr. Attlee on December 20th declared was not unchangeable—says of the Frontier Areas "the administration of the Frontier Areas, that is the Shan States and the tribal areas in the mountainous fringes of the country inhabited by peoples differing in language, social customs, and degree of political development for the Burmans inhabiting the central areas, would for the time being be subject to a special Regime under the Governor until such time as their inhabitants signify their desire for some suitable form of amalgamation of their territories with Burma proper."

In the political program of the Burman Anti-Fascist Peoples Freedom League is included a demand that the Frontier Areas shall enjoy the same freedom as Burma proper, implying their speedy inclusion in a future independent Burman Federation. On the other hand, Mr. U Aung San, the leader of the Burmese delegation to London and Deputy Chairman of the Burman Executive Council, has been reported in press telegrams from New Delhi as favoring autonomy for the Frontier Areas.

Here then is a question which the "Manchester Guardian" in a recent leader calls one of Burma's greatest problems.

The Guardian justly recalls the debt that the people of Britain owe to these hill communities who, as has been officially recorded, throughout the two Burma Campaigns showed outstanding spontaneous loyalty, and fought hard and suffered heavy losses, both as guerrillas and as levies and as members of the regular Armed Forces.

"We must," says the Guardian "without qualification see to it that in the settlement of Burma the hill people have their place and are content. It is known that they view with apprehension the transfer of full power to the Burmese leaders, fearing perhaps the touch of a hand less deft than that of the administration under which they have now lived for so many years. The frontier tribes ask for little. For the most part they wish to pursue undisturbed their remote village life, preserved from the coils of officialdom and the clutches of the money-lender." "If U Aung San is prepared to meet these wishes," concludes the Guardian, "if he intends a genuine measure of autonomy and if he speaks with authority, he has in one stride taken his countrymen a long way on the road to fruitful enjoyment of their independence."

Industrial Accident Figures

During the past year industrial accidents in Ontario increased more than 20,000 over the 1945 figures, reports the Industrial Accident Prevention Association from Workmen's Compensation Board records. Part of the increase is credited to the extended coverage made by the Board in 1946. For that reason it is not possible to make a strict comparison between that and other years. However, the figures are given as follows: During 1946 there were 138,570 accidents, including 435 fatal cases. In 1945 the figures were 118,220 and 467, respectively. The 1946 awards for compensation and medical aid were $16,502,023.89. In 1946 they were $13,135,938.38.

Commenting on the 1946 awards, the general manager of the Industrial Accident Prevention Associations, said, "When Compensation awards average well over a million dollars a month, it is evident that Workmen's Compensation costs have become an important item in our industrial economy."

GOOD INTENTIONS

Against the little we have done
Lie countless deeds we meant to do.
Piled high, they mounted, one by one,
All things we'd good intent to do,
But some excuse to self we made;
Too late to do them we delayed.

Oh! there are smiles we might have seen,
Had long-lost friends had sight of us;
And so much greater we had been,
Had time not taken flight of us.
We had the thought the deed to do,
But lacked the will to see it through.

Thus, what we are will never reach
As high as what we meant to be.
Though priest and parson weekly preach
What all to earth are sent to be,
We lose the chance of being great
By letting good intentions wait.

Perhaps Most Basic

The decision had been awaited as perhaps the most basic in the history of Canadian jurisprudence since the passing of the British North America Act in 1867.

Bill nine was introduced by an opposition member, Hon. C. H. Cahan, former secretary of state. It received the formality of first reading and in April, 1939, was referred to the Supreme Court of Canada for an opinion on whether it met constitutional requirements.

In January, 1940, the Supreme Court in a ruling supported by 4 members — Sir Lyman Duff, then chief justice, and Justices Thibaudeau Rinfret, A. B. Hudson and Patrick Kerwin — upheld the bill's constitutional position. Mr. Justice Oswald Crocket held the bill was invalid and Mr. Justice T. G. Davis held it was invalid in part.

Further legal action was then suspended.

The bill proposed: "That the Supreme Court shall have, hold and exercise ultimate appellate civil and criminal jurisdiction within and for Canada; and the judgment of the court shall, in all cases, be final and conclusive." It proposed, too, that the "royal prerogative permitting appeals to his majesty-in-council should not be exercised in any case brought from any court established within Canada."

Some Supported Bill

The attorneys-General of Canada, Manitoba and Saskatchewan supported the Bill.

For six days, the seven law Lords headed by Lord Chancellor Jowitt heard the Canadian and British Counsel submit arguments for and against the proposed bill in the Privy Council's lofty Downing Street Chambers, against a background of ponderous legal volumes.

F. P. Varcoe, deputy Canadian Justice Minister, appeared for the Attorney-General of Canada, Hon. Charles Russell, London lawyer, presented the case for Manitoba and Saskatchewan.

C. R. Magone of Toronto, appeared on behalf of the Attorney-General of Ontario; Wilfrid Barton, London lawyer, for British Columbia; Frank Gahan of London, for New Brunswick and Emery Beaulieu of Montreal for Quebec.

Judicial Rights

Many of the arguments referred to a section of the B.N.A. Act which defines—without going into detail—the judicial rights of the provinces.

Mr. Russell submitted that the "question is one simply of the contruction of the British North America Act."

"Plainly," he said ,"this matter is in a field allotted to the Dominion and not to the provinces."

Mr. Varcoe contended that the people of Canada "want an independent, self-sufficient judicature". He held that the Canadian Parliament's power to "legislate for the good government of Canada overrides provincial rights of appeal to the Privy Council."

Not English Body

Mr. Magone argued that the Privy Council is not an English body in any exclusive sense, since it councillors might be from Canada, India, Australia, or other countries. The system of appeals to the Privy Council was an integral part of the administration of Justice in Ontario.

Mr. Barton asserted for the Attorney-General of British Columbia that "only the British Columbia legislature is competent to abolish appeals to His Majesty-in-Council."

Mr. Beaulieu, submitting that the provincial law of Quebec permitting appeals to the Privy Council was enacted prior to Confederation, quoted extensively from Section 30 of the Judicature Act for Lower Canada of 1794 which said that the judgment of the Court of Appeals in Quebec should be final "in all cases where the matter in dispute shall not exceed the sum of value of £500."

In cases exceeding that sum, said Mr. Beaulieu, the Act provided right of appeal to His Majesty-in-Council.

Mr. Gahan, for New Brunswick, said: "No Parliament can compel the Privy Council in London to hear appeals from any court in any sovereign state."

Counsel for the appellants quoted extensively from the dissenting Supreme Court judgment by Mr. Justice Crocket, who contended the bill was ultra vires of the Canadian Parliament because it "terminated the long-established prerogative of the reigning Sovereign to grant special leave to appeal to His Majesty's Privy Council."

Majesty's Privy Council."

OLD FOSSILS DO NOT CHANGE

This one came in yesterday's mail:

I have read your column for several years and have gotten a great deal of good information and instruction from it. Occasionally I disagree with you, as for instance when you say young children should be the judges of when to go barefoot or leave off wraps. Most of them would be willing to freeze if they thought they were like the rest, and girls in their 'teens never can be trusted to use any common sense—it is fashion or looks alone that they think of.... In my opinion it is time to cover bare legs when the temperature goes down to freezing.... However, I usually find these is good common sense back of everything you say and I do enjoy your column more than.... (Miss S. F. A.)

In the same mail came this one:

My little girl (aged 5) likes to go barefoot in the house. The neighbors say "Put your shoes on, you'll get pneumonia — or rheumatism—or rheumatic fever or rheumatic heart etc." I let her go barefoot because she likes it. I follow your teachings. My boys always wears what they like or go without whatever they had rather not wear, and on even the coldest days they generally prefer to wear only the lightest undies and no overcoats. This has been the rule at our house for ten years and nobody has had pneumonia, rheumatism or other dread consequences of such carelessness yet ....(Mrs. F. J.)

Let me congratulate your children, Mrs. F. J., on the high I.Q. of their mom.

If anybody reading this is willing to take a chance following my advice, I'll give my advice here:

Any child of any age who is not really an idiot knows when he or she is cold. So it is always best to leave to the child's own judgment the question of how much clothing he or she shall wear, indoors, in any kind of weather, for comfort. If the child with bare legs or not coat or no hat feels comfortable, it is if anything better for the child's health to go barefoot, bare-legged, coatless, hatless or with the lightest clothing than it would be to compel the child to wear excessive clothing and any clothing that makes one less comfortable under any condition is excessive.

Beware of the nineteenth century almanac quacks and nostrum mongers and their twentieth century successors the subsidized "specialists" who still plump for long flannels and all that sort of thing.

For health's sake let the youngsters wear what they like or leave off what they don't want to wear. Don't' be an old fossil.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

How to Sterilize

Please tell how to sterilize a pin, needle or other sharp implement to use for taking out a sliver, for example. (C. F. McA.)

Answer—Plunge the point into ordinary wet soap or hold it for a moment in a flame.

No Help

Problem of bed-wetting—doctors say the child's health is perfect but the child just does not care. We have tried sincerely to help—gifts, promises, patience, punishment, even severe, but to no avail. (Mrs. G. W. V.)

Answer—Patience my eye. Heaven help the child subject to your patience—it is the patience of the cat waiting for the mouse to move another inch. On written request, accompanied with a stamped self addressed envelope, I'll send parents or other responsible guardians a pamphlet "The Bed-Wetting Habit"—if I believe they have the child's interest at heart.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is the largest species of deer?

The American moose (Alces americus), a native of northern North America, is the largest member of the deer family, living or extinct, and has the heaviest, longest and most massive antlers.

It is much larger than the caribou and the reindeer and considerably larger than the elk (Alces alces) of northern Europe and Asia to which it is closely related.

Occasionally a full grown bull moose attains the height of seven feet at the shoulders and a total weight of 1,600 pounds. The antlers, which occur only on the males, may have a spread of six and a half feet.

The moose is purplish gray in color. Though imposing in appearance, it is an ungainly animal and awkward in gait, because its shoulders are higher than its rump and its front legs are considerably longer than its hind ones.

The moose is a browser and normally feeds chiefly on the bark and lower branches of trees. Its upper lip is extended and forms a proboscis adapted for browsing. In the north woods this muffle is considered a delicacy and the tid-bit of the entire carcass. The moose's legs are so long and its neck so short that the animal has to kneel to graze.

"Moose" is both singular and plural. We speak of one moose or ten moose. The term is derived from Narragansett Indian "mus" or "moosu," meaning "he strips" or "he cuts smooth," alluding to the animal's feeding habits.

"Buck," "doe" and "fawn" are not applied to moose as to many other deer. A male moose is a bull, a female is a cow, and a young one is a calf.

A thick, pouchlike fold of skin hanging on the throat of the bull is known as "the bell." A place where moose gather in herds in winter to tramp down the snow to get feed is known as a "moose yard." A moose call is a horn of birch bark used by hunters to imitate the roar and bellow of the bull. Hunters themselves disagree as to whether the bull moose is ever fooled by a moose call.

The secret fraternal society known as "Loyal Order of Moose" was organized at Louisville, Ky., in 1888.

Men Most Careless Lose Booze, Pants

Winnipeg (CP)—Figures do not lie. Statistics of the Winnipeg Electric Company lost properties department show the male of the species is the most careless. As for the small fry, they trail the field.

Every thing that can be lost, from man's long underwear and unobtainable shirts, two-way stretches and ladies lingerie, to dogs, cats and the occasional child pass through the lost properties department daily.

Umbrellas, lunch kits and sports equipment of varying types lead the parade of more than 1,000 articles monthly. Hats, pens and pencils, gloves, trousers and books run a close second.

Less frequent, though more amusing, items that find their way to the lost property counter are artificial teeth and an assortment of liquors, ranging from cases of beer to the very occasional bottle of scotch.

Three Ottawa Railwaymen Hurt In Rear-end Crash

Pembroke, Jan. 13 —(CP)— Three Ottawa railwaymen were recovering in hospital today from injuries suffered when an eastbound Canadian National Railways freight plowed into the rear of a standing train at Pembroke junction last night.

Those hurt, none seriously, were P. H. Button, engineer, who suffered scalds and cuts; E. L. McElroy, fireman, scalds, cuts and shock, and J. A. St. Onge, head-end brakeman, bruises and shock.

Part of the moving freight jumped the rails following the collision and the engine buried itself deep in an embankment beside the track. The caboose fell over on its side, caught fire and blazed fiercely for a time.

Members of the crew of the standing train, all at the head end checking the train at the time of the collision, were not injured.

Canadian National Railways officials visited the scene soon after but had no immediate statement to make. It was believed an investigation would be launched.

St. Onge was in the engine cab with the engineer and fireman at the time of the crash and said the east-bound freight was not travelling fast at the time.

He threw his hand over his face to protect his face from steam which spurted from broken pipes in the engine, he said. Then he crawled from the broken cab and found fireman McElroy in the snow beside the track.

The engineer was found walking beside the train in a dazed condition after the crash and was taken to hospital with the other two.

Mayon Volcano Erupts, 2 Towns Are Evacuated

Manila, Jan. 13 —(AP)—Southern Luzon's towering Mayon Volcano, boiling for five days, erupted this morning with a furious shower of boulders and lava.

Lieut. Robert Case, a United States Navy weather officer, circled the volcano at 10,000 feet during the display in an army plane. "It (the peak) got redder and swelled like a bubble, then broke," Case related. "A lava stream went straight up to a height we estimated at 8,000 to 10,000 feet above the peak (itself 7,903 feet.)

"We saw huge rocks blown straight up. They looked like small houses to us even at a distance of a mile and a half. The eruption lasted about a half hour."

Two towns near the base were ordered evacuated earlier as lava boiled over down the eastern and southern slopes and black smoke mushroomed three miles into the sky.

Light earth tremors shook the area.

The volcano, in Albay province of Southern Luzon, has sent lava more than three-fourths of the way down its slopes, a government weather station reported.

Camalig, with a population of 22,000, and Libon, with 7,800, were ordered abandoned. Both are in the path of the lava streams.

Mercy Mission Almost Results In Disaster

Penetanguishene, Jan. 13—(CP) —A mercy mission to men who didn't need it almost resulted in disaster yesterday for three men who made the arduous trip by snowmobile from Midland to Giant's Tomb Island, rocky islet 3 miles distant over ice-hummocked waters of Georgian Bay.

Stirred by anxiety for 63-year-old George Desrochers, who had been reported "marooned" on the island at the southeast corner of vast Georgian Bay, the three men, including Desrochers' son, essayed the trip by snowmobile Sunday.

Gabrielle Desrochers, Pete Lepage, owner of the snowmobile, and Eugene Quesnelle started out from Midland in the machine, drawn by a propeller and flying over ice on runners. They were close to the island when they saw open water ahead and turned aside fast. The snowmobile overturned, broke the propeller and threw out Lepage. His leg was injured. Desrochers and Quesnelle were unhurt.

The trio walked the remaining six miles to the island — they'd started from Midland Harbor — and on return walked all the way over the ice. "It took us five hours to make the return journey, and my leg is really sore now," said Lepage.

Living Comfortably

But they'd reached the island and found that the elder Desrochers not only was not marooned, but was living comfortably with plenty of provisions. He'd been hired as winter caretaker of the islet, on which it is planned to open a summer resort later. There were two other men on the islet, Johnny Quesnelle and Gilbert Beachamp, who'd gone across some days ago.

"They had so much food that they were feeding their dogs pea soup," said Lepage, nursing his leg.

Newspaper planes had flown over the islet Saturday and again Sunday. The alarm was raised when the Saturday plane reported no smoke at the camp there. Lepage said that this was because the men on the islet didn't have a fire going; it was so mild.

Until Provincial Police at Midland investigated and found that the elder Desrochers was hired for the winter at the island, and presumably was amply supplied, there had been considerable fears for his safety following the Saturday's plane's report of no fire on the island, no signs of humans. Desrochers is a diabetic sufferer. Plans were hastily made for the Canada Steamship Lines icebreaker Bayport to buck its way to Giant's Tomb Island, but these were called off Sunday. The younger Desrochers nevertheless essayed the snowmobile trip.

Vandenberg Ready To Give Marshall Republican Support

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

Washington, Jan. 13 —(AP)— Gen. George C. Marshall becomes United States Secretary of State this week with assurances from Senator Arthur Vandenberg of Republican support on major diplomatic issues expected to arise during the months ahead.

Final plans for Marshall to take the oath as successor to James F. Byrnes are yet to be announced, but officials said privately that the ceremony probably will be held at the White House the latter part of the week.

Marshall, resting after 13 months of ardurous diplomatic work in China, remained in Honolulu over the weekend and the exact time of his arrival is not known.

Meanwhile, the pattern of his future tasks and something of the extent of the Republican support he can expect in striving for their accomplishment were made clear in speeches by Byrnes and Vandenberg, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Announces Details.

Vandenberg, addressing the Cleveland Council on World Affairs Saturday night, spoke out for:

1. Congressional appropriations to carry on an American relief program in war-wrecked countries.

2. Rehabilitation loans for countries which need them, and

3. Continuance of tariff-reducing reciplocal trade agreements in some form.

Beyond these points, all of which seem likely to arouse some controversy in Congress, the Michigan Senator also urged a policy shift in China, saying the United States now should support the coalition of non-Communist parties backing China's new constitution.

This evidently would mean abandoning the policy which Marshall followed during his stay in China.

Vandenberg spoke on the same program as Byrnes, but the retiring secretary directed his discussion more to broad questions of world peace and American aims.

Both Byrnes and Vandenberg emphasized the need as they saw it for continuing and strengthening the development of a foreign policy which will have the support of both major parties in the United States.

Police Warn Churches, Schools And Theatres

Oshawa, Jan. 13 — (CP)—Police were on the lookout today for a would-be safecracker who swings a sledgehammer and who, they said, apparently hides in public buildings at closing time and tries to open safes and vaults during the night.

The police issued a warning to churches, schools and theatres to search their premises thoroughly before locking them.

Authorities said they believed the man with the sledgehammer was responsible for two attempts to rob Oshawa schools Saturday night and possibly also for an attempt to open a safe at the National Employment Service office last Thursday night.

A few hours after a dance at the Oshawa Collegiate Institute Saturday night, two caretakers who investigated noises in the principal's office surprised a man with a sledgehammer in the act of smashing the combination off the school vault. As the caretakers switched on the lights, the intruder dashed out after telling them: "Well, boys, I guess I'd better get going."

The same night someone entered St. Gregory's separate school through the boiler room, knocked the bottom panels out of doors to enter seven classrooms and ransacked the rooms. Apparently finding nothing of value, he smashed the doors from their hanges and carried them out into the hallway. Finally he battered the school radio into a pile of junk.

IMPORTANT GOVERNMENT NOTICE
Respecting Price Control

The Wartime Prices and Trade Regulations (Order in Council P.C. 8528 of November 1, 1941) established basic period maximum prices for goods and designated services. These regulations were passed under the authority of the War Measures Act and continued in force under the National Emergency Transitional Powers Act, 1945.

From time to time these basic maximum prices have been varied or the fixed maximum has been suspended in the case of particular goods and services by Orders issued by the Wartime Prices and Trade Board under the authority of the above Regulations. A few days ago a substantial number of suspensions from price control was announced.

I believe it is desirable therefore that a summary should now be published of those goods and services on which a legal maximum price remains in force under the provisions of the Wartime Prices and Trade Regulations so that all citizens may be given an opportunity to inform themselves of the law.

The complete price control regulations are contained in Wartime Prices and Trade Board Order No. 684 which is available to the public at any office of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board, and to which reference should be made for exact details.

Douglas Abbott
Minister of Finance.

ASSEMBLY
By Roger White

The "F" forms seem to have it at B.C.I., 'cause volleyball crests were awarded to 10F ('46), and softball crests for the Fall term to 11F and 10F ('47). These are all girl forms, but the boys were in for their share of awards, too. A handsome assortment of males (including majors and lieutenants!) assembled on the stage and were given certificates of graduation from Mr. Youdale's course in Morse Code. Each cadet was also presented with $5 (previously, to prevent robbery).

While the band played "The Dance of the Teddy Bears," our stage crew cleared the stage in preparation for a movie on "Habitant Life in Old Quebec." Halfway through the film the noon hour struck, and—well, if anyone saw the end of the picture, tell me about it sometime.

GIRLS' SPORTS
By Ruth Meades

Well, here we go again into another term of agony. It is a shame to spoil a perfectly unspoilt year like 1947, but seems as tho' it's necessary to spoil it, seems as tho'. (Hmph!)

On behalf of the girls of B.C.I.V.S. I would like to welcome Miss F. McCuaig from Stevenson Continuation School to our school. Miss McCuaig has come to replace Mrs. Turley.

There were no scheduled games this week so—no news from that source; but the girls are practising hard for basketball which is just turning the corner of our gym. Perhaps next week, I'll have more to tell you from that department.

Boy's Sports

By GEORGE WARD

Last term's basket-ball season ended with the Junior -Senior game. The game started at 4:15 P.M. with Jack Dickens, an ex-student of B. C. I. refereeing and Thomy-Leslie as score-keeper.

The majority of the crowd seemed to favor the Juniors who held their own in the first half and the first part of the second half but the Seniors found their scoring power and held to win the game with 10 points over the Juniors' 15.

Jack Dickens handed out an average amount of penalties and their was no mistake as to whom they were given and what the penalties were for.

House League

The House-League Champions are Beezer Watkins' team which shoved George Miller's team away from the championship.

The three play-off teams were Watkins, Spafford and Miller. Miller met Spafford in a two-game series with total points to count Miller's team won the first game with an eight point lead and Spafford won the second game with a four point win.

While seated in the Cloister of my room,
Restless, midst the evening's spreading gloom,
I pondered how deep friendships bloom and grow
Then fade in love's inconstant
fickle glow,
When all those dying embers
flamed anew,
Because, dear friend, I chanced to think of you.

At evening, when shadows
creep along your wall,
And crickets pipe their nightly call:
When silence grips the nearby
mill,
And dusk blots out the distant hill,
There is a favor which I ask of thee,
That you, my friend, should spend a thought for me.

CUFF NOTES

Welcome back to the column, students after your long refreshing holiday. We are only two weeks late, but here is a Happy New Year to all the faithful.

Why is it that everyone to whom you failed to send a Christmas card always sends you one, and you do not receive one from the recipients of yours? It is enough for Ellery Queen. Anyway, I should like to thank the dozen or so people who sent me cards, and failed to receive one in return.

Speaking of Christmas cards, I noticed that the majority of them this year were extremely tasteful, and expressive of the Christmas sentiment. The odd dog or two romped head high in holly but generally speaking the cards were above average this year.

This is P.M. week (post-mortem week) and for very good reasons. The results of the exams are coming back and heroic scenes of self control are being staged all over the school. There are a few students of my acquaintance who exchanged two good ties for crying towels—(I got mine for Christmas—a crying towel that is). The graveyard shift at the post-office suffered heavily as some of the boys wrote exams all day and worked on the mails all night—J. G., B. S. and B.V. to initial a few. There are Easter exams to pull up that old average, anyway.

It seemed that everyone in the school but the janitors and thirteenth grades were awarded something at assembly last Wednesday. The Dramatic Club presented the Student Council with five hundred dollars: the Library Club donated sixteen new books to the school library: the Red Cross Club was praised for its loyal work last term: the signalling class received proficiency awards: and two or three girls' teams received crests. No one handed out cigars, however.

The socially alert will ask their best fellow, or girl, tonight, to the tremendous Graduation Dance on February seventh. It will be the event of the season. Dancing from nine to one with music by the Commodores Students, I hear, are to be admitted free on presenting two dollars at the door. Everyone is going so any dates unmade at this late hour are apt to cause disappointment. See you there.

4th Thurlow

4th Thulow—Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pound and Graydon spent Monday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Howes, Carmel.

Mr. and Mrs. John Ritz, Norman and Audrey were Thursday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Denike and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Denike, 3rd Sidney.

Misses Marguerite and Ruth Cole returned home on Sunday after visiting their grandmother Mrs. Henry Cooke, Stirling.

Miss Sheila Hamilton spent Thursday with Master Wayne Tummon.

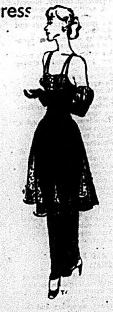
Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ritz and Barbara were supper guests on Tuesday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Horace Casey.

A number from this line attended the W.M.S. and W.A. at the home of Mrs. Wm. Doxtator, 3rd Line on Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Walker and family and Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Tummon were among the relatives at the home of Mr. and Wilfred Clare, Gilead, on Saturday evening, to celebrate with them their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Norman Ritz left on Sunday evening to resume his studies at O.A.C. Guelph.

Dainty Evening Dress



Graceful and feminine evening gown

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

SOMEWHAT reminiscent of the fashions launched by Irene Castle is this graceful, very feminine type of evening dress. Over a slim sheath of black crepe is posed a tunic of black lace stiffened at the hem with horsehair. Lace tops the bodice and the matching gloves. The narrow black shoulder straps are camisole fashion. This is not a dress for a dramatic grand entrance, but the sort of unobtrusively sweet little number that can be worn many times during the season always to pretty compliments!

Mrs. B. J. Theobald Named President Of Parish Guild

The annual meeting of Christ Church Parish Guild was held in the upper room of the Parish hall on Tuesday afternoon, January 7, with 31 members in attendance.

The meeting opened with the singing of a hymn with Mrs. G. G. Wright at the organ. Mr. Sparling then conducted a short prayer service.

The report of last year's annual meeting was then given by the Secretary, followed by the minutes of the previous meeting. The Treasurer, Mrs. Kempston, then gave her report, showing a bank balance of $704.62.

Mr. Sparling then presided for the election of officers. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year:

President, Mrs. B. J. Theobald.

1st Vice President, Mrs. G. Meades.

2nd Vice President, Mrs. Earl Hickey.

3rd Vice President, Mrs. J. Adams.

Treasurer, Mrs. Kempston
Secretary, Mrs. Lummiss

Mr. Sparling expressed his appreciation of the great success achieved during the past year, and of the commendable way in which the Guild raised their money. The sum of $1,159.17 was raised through the penny boxes, this being all voluntary contributions.

A standing vote was then taken to decide whether or not, the Guild would cater for weddings or banquets. It was moved by Mrs. Hammett, seconded by Mrs. Wm. Adams, that the Guild cater, with Mrs. J. Adams to be convener of the committee.

Mrs. Wright closed the meeting with prayer, after which refreshments were served at the Rectory by Mrs. Sparling.

25th Anniversary Of Wedding Is Celebrated

Gilead.—On the evening of January 4, a happy time was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Clare, 5th Line Thurlow, when the "Walker" family gathered there to celebrate Mr. and Mrs. Clare's 25th wedding anniversary.

Owing to the snowstorm, which blocked the roads, the gathering had to be postponed for a week.

The "bride" then received the guests gowned in her wedding dress of twenty-five years ago.

Mr. Frank Walker acted as Master of Ceremonies for the evening. The program began by community singing with Anne Clare at the piano. A reading by Marion Pound, "Wait Just a Little Longer"; a piano and cornet duet by Mr. and Mrs. Manley Mitchell; reading by Phyliss Walker, "A New Version of the 23rd Psalm"; reading by Fern Easton, "Husbands" and one by Elsie Walker, "Quaint Recipe for a Happy Wedded Life". A talk by Mrs. Frank Walker on a trip to the West Coast. Mrs. Walter Treverton read an address and Mrs. Frank Pound presented Mr. and Mrs. Clare with a "Combination Cooker".

Both replied, thanking the friends for their lovely gift and saying they were pleased to have a family gathering which all enjoy so much and they hoped all would visit them oftener. Refreshments of ice cream, cake, sandwiches and coffee were served.

Women's Activities

CHRIST CHURCH W.A.

The annual meeting of the Senior W.A. of Christ Church, Belleville, was held in the Parish Hall, January 9, 1947, with the President, Mrs. Waterhouse, presiding. The usual opening exercises were followed by a business period. The treasurer's report showed a balance of $49.63 at the beginning of the year 1946 receipts $283.47, expenditures $281.36, balance at beginning of 1947, $51.74; 34 paid members; 26 holders of pledge envelopes. A bale of clothing was sent to the Elkhorn Indian school during the year and 63 articles completed for the local Red Cross and $5 in cash contributed to them.

The retiring president thanked the officers and members for their co-operation during her 2-year term of office and asked Rev. J. Grant Sparling to take the chair for the election of officers for 1947. Mr. Sparling congratulated the Auxiliary on their progress for the year and gave a brief outline on the advances made by the church in its missionary work in India, China and Japan. The Nominating Committee presented its report which was accepted unanimously as follows—Hon. Pres., Mrs. J. Grant Sparling; President, Mrs. Horace Wright; 1st Vice President, Mrs. G. G. Wright; 2nd Vice President, Mrs. Casement; Secretary, Mrs. Winter; Treasurer, Mrs. Bruce Sills; Dorcas Secretary, Mrs. Ashton; Living Message Sec., Mrs. Button; Educational Sec., Mrs. Winter; Flower Fund Sec., Mrs. Waterhouse; Pianist, Mrs. Button.

The meeting closed with a hymn and the benediction pronounced by the rector after which Mrs. Sparling entertained the members at the Rectory for tea.

MARSH HILL W.M.S.

The Marsh Hall W.M.S.; held an open meeting Tuesday night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Searles.

The president opened the meeting with a Song Service followed by a prayer for the New Year, after which The Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison.

The Worship Service was taken by the president, the theme being "Fulfilling Our Church Membership in Witnessing for Christ". Mrs. Frank Finkle read the Scripture. Mrs. Searles and Mrs. Lindenfield made short prayers.

During the business period the "Story of the Year" was given by Mrs. Fred Campbell.

The program was in charge of Group Leader, Mrs. Searles.

Mrs. Alex Tanner read a very interesting paper on the 5th Chapter of the Study Book, "Christian Youth Brings New Life to New Tasks".

Mr. Harold Ashley contributed with two readings "Touch of The Master's Hand", and "The House by the Side of the Road".

The meeting closed with the National Anthem and refreshments were served by the group in charge.

BRIDGE ST. W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of Bridge Street Women's Missionary Society took place last Friday in the Sunday School rooms, taking the form of a pot-luck luncheon, with Rev. Mr. Amos saying Grace.

During the luncheon, Mrs. W. H. Finkle introduced Miss Grace Gillard, who is leaving Belleville to take a mission post on James' Bay.

After refreshments the meeting adjourned to the ladies' parlors, where the yearly reports were read and accepted.

Mrs. Baker spoke of the untiring efforts and devotion of Mrs. R.D. P. Davidson, the retiring president, who has held the post for the past three years and asked for a vote of thanks for Mrs. Davidson. Mrs. Lee then asked for a similar vote of thanks to Mrs. Gilroy, the retiring secretary.

Mrs. Davidson thanked the officers and members for their fine devotion and for the fellowship she has enjoyed through the past three years and asked the W.M.S. give the same fine co-operation to their new president.

Mr. Amos then conducted the installation service for the officers of 1947. He chose for this subject, "Striking the Right Note". "The world is looking for organizations such as this one, all over the continent to strike the right note of peace," Mr. Amos continued. "Ours is one of the great networks of such societies. It is a great task and towards the completion of that task we must all give of our very best".

Mrs. W. H. Finkle then took the chair and in a few well chosen words thanked Mr. Amos; then she gave a brief outline of the work the Auxiliary hopes to do in the coming year from the findings of an executive meeting held in December.

The meeting was closed by Mr. Amos with prayer.

SANCTUARY GUILD

The annual meeting of Christ Church Sanctuary Guild was held in the vestry of the Church on Saturday afternoon with the rector, Rev. J. Grant Sparling, in the chair. The work of the past year was reviewed and appreciation to the officers expressed. Mrs. William Ashton will be directress for 1947, with Mrs. W. Lazenby, as secretary-treasurer. Mrs. V. Orr holds the office of honorary directress and Mrs. Willis Jackson honorary vice directress.

CHATTERTON W.I.

The January meeting of the Chatterton Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. E. B. Finkle. For the past 25 years the January meeting has been at this home when weather permitted.

There were 26 sat down to the annual dinner. The chief feature at dinner hour was an account of a trip to Peterborough by "The Chatterton Girls' At Home" Club on Dec. 9, 1946, given by two of the girls.

Miss Lois Mitts gave the introduction and told of the trip there and through the "Canada Packers Plant" with Miss Winnifred Parks continuing with an account of the trip throught "Quaker Oat Plant" and then on to the radio station where two of the girls spoke over the radio.

Miss Parks thanked the Institute for sponsoring their work and making the trip possible. These girls are a credit to the club and also to the Institute. The W.I. president, Mrs. Dan Smith, conducted the meeting that followed.

Mr. Lynn Fair, Agricultural representative, was guest speaker and the meeting closed with the National Anthem.

St. Thomas, Jan. 13. (CP)—James Hindley has been named president of the Union Memorial Recreational Park Committee here. Other officers for 1947 include: Honorary Presidents, M F. Hepburn and L. S. Johnson; Past President, Ross Hepburn, Vice Presidents, Donald Hepburn and Klaas Barendregt; Secretary, Charles Ferguson.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Don't Jump "Out of The Frying Pan Into The Fire", Betty

When you're in an unhappy situation, and you see a chance to get out of it into an entirely different setup, it's a great temptation to scramble out of the first and into the second as fast as possible. It takes a very well-balanced person indeed to sit tight until he—or she—is able to decide whether it's purely a desire to escape that's the reason for wanting to make the change, or because the second situation is actually a better one.

The trouble is, of course, that when a person is deeply unhappy, he confuses these two points, and is almost certain to think that any change would be for the better. Unfortunately, that's not always the case, by any means.

So I am wondering if the new set of circumstances at which a woman writing me under the name of "Betty" is looking wistfully, believing it will replace her present unhappiness with happiness, might not actually be a jump from the frying pan into the fire if she were able to accomplish the change.

After explaining that she married at 16, became a mother and a widow within a year, and three years later, married again, she goes on to say that her present husband's jealousy of the first husband's daughter, now 18, plus his callous attitude toward her own chronic illness—what this is, she does not specify— have made life a hell for herself and her daughter.

"I've told him we were going to leave home time and again, she writes, "but it just didn't seem to do any good. Every time we would get ready to leave, I would back out, as I hate to break up my home."

Then, a year and a half ago, she spent a protracted period in a hospital where she met a man, also a patient there, with whom she fell in love. Unhappily married himself, "he was lonesome and so was I", she says, "so we just took to each other." Since she left the hospital, she returns to visit him there once a month, and in between visits, they talk on the telephone several times a week. His illness—again she does not specify—will keep him in the hospital for a long time, she believes, with the possibility that he may have to spend the rest of his life there. And she wants to know what she shall do.

Obviously, what this woman is turning over in her mind, either consciously or subconsciously, is the question of whether or not there is a possibility that she and this man might free themselves from their respective mates and marry each other. Isn't that what you mean, Betty, when you ask what you could do?

But how much better off would you actually be if this could be brought about? This sick man couldn't support you. If he is so ill that he must stay in the hospital, possibly always, you couldn't even live together. All you could do would be to visit him and talk on the telephone, just as you are doing now. And if his illness proves to be a long one, you might be letting yourself in for a host of responsibilities, financial and otherwise, that you would be unable to carry, since you yourself are a sick woman. Would you want to run the risk of burdening your young daughter with the two of you?

No, Betty, don't delude yourself. If you were able to marry this man, you'd only exchange one kind of unhappiness for another.

If your present husband makes your life so miserable that you can't stand it any longer, you can take your daughter and leave him, of course. But you won't be able to support yourself, will you? He does that now, doesn't he? And incidentally, you make a great mistake to threaten to leave him and then back out every time. Never make that threat unless you are fully prepared to carry it through. Otherwise, you only weaken your position, as you evidently have done already, since you say such threats don't move him. Why should they, when you've shown him you don't mean what you say?

The only thing that is going to give you any semblance of peace is to make some kind of definite decision on whether to leave your husband or to stay with him, and then stick with it. That's the basic problem. Settle that and then see if other things don't seem clearer.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Wrinkles? Iron Them And Ice Them

Eugene Sue called wrinkles "Time's irreparable footprints." Well! Different days, different ways. The modern woman does not permit the old guy with the long white whiskers to walk on her face. Beautifying has become an interesting side line to matrimony and baby-tending or earning a living. It is expected that any woman with brains clicking inside her head will have enough foresight to stave off the mean licks of advancing years.

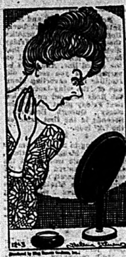
That education along the lines of health and hygiene—together with appreciation of what can be bought in beauty shops — has done much toward keeping women within finger touch of their young days, goes without saying. When great-grandmother was thirty she was practically on the shelf, as far as romance and good-looks were concerned. Now, wrinkles are not to be tolerated. One should take preventive measures; see that furrows and turkey tracks don't get a chance to take up squatter's rights on the only face one has.

When health is normal, there is a soft adipose padding beneath the skin. Those cushions keep the epidermal coat smooth and firm. Ill-health, rapid reducing, loss of sleep, malnutrition, and facial gestures have a debilitating effect upon the fibers under the skin.

Do your wrinkle-fighting at night, in case you have observed that the flesh is losing tone, or that fine lines are appearing.

Begin with a thorough face-washing, using a bland soap and warm water; hot water is debilitating to the tissues, should never be used by a woman who has progressed beyond the fortieth milestone. Rinse with warm water. Dry thoroughly. Creams are not as effective as they might be when applied to flesh that is moist or cold.

Apply a heavy cream, one that will not let the fingers slip. Do big circles over the chest and collar bones with flattened fingers. This will start up the blood streams. Rub up and down on the neck and anoint the ear lobes.



Wrinkles Are Not to be Tolerated

Sweep the fingers along the jaw line. Send them gently up over the cheeks, being careful not to push the flesh up under the eyes. Do a rotary motion over the forehead.

Fore lines around the eyes: place the finger on the inner corner of the upper lid; sweep outward to the temple, do several small circles there; come back under the eye to starting point.

For forehead furrows: place the four fingers of both hands in the center of the forehead. While one group goes upward the other goes down, and both move from one side of the forehead to the other. Have a brisk ice friction.

Fashion Flashes

UTTERLY FEMININE hats have been drawing applause at Spring fashion shows. The Watteau-type hat is back. A pretty model is in soft gray straw, the upturned back brim revealing rosebuds, which are also piled at the rear of the crown with pink, taupe and blue ribbons. Brim has ruched edging and lining of shirred gray chiffon.

THE SIREN TOUCH manifests itself in beautiful black lingerie. Black satin is used for a lovely nightgown which has one draped shoulder, while the opposite shoulder is of black satin rosebuds to match embroidery at set-in waistline . Neck and deeply slashed hem are edged with lace.

NO MATTER what color is highlighted, the white hat always has its devotees. White felt is used for a beautiful mid-season tri-design. It is trimmed with a gray-into-back bird with an enormous fan-shaped tail of white hackle and plumage tipped with gray. Cobwebby black veil.

IF YOU LIKE bright blue shades, you'll find the various tones will be represented in the Spring color line-up. Vivid royal blue, bright delphinium, bright turquoise and bright sapphire are used for coats, suits and prints, and there's a bright look about most of the navy blues. In many prints, several bright blues are used together, on black or white grounds.

IN DEMAND is the tailored robe fashioned of beautiful fabrics. Off-white silk satin, with a pencil stripe of bright red, is used for a tailored robe styled with small notched collar that closes at the side. Contrasting stripe manipulation on the pocket; sleeves have flaring fullness with deep cuffs.

PLENTY OF APPLAUSE for white furs at a recent show, with honors going to a beautiful waistcoat and cape of white mink, pure except for faint, black, brush-like markings near the hemline. The vest part is very fitted, with scalloped hem; the cape is very full.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Correct Form of Name For Divorcee

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. When a divorcee keeps her married name because of her children, what is the proper form of her name? And what form of name should she use when she signs letters and so forth?

2. How does she correctly wear her engagement and wedding ring?

H.S.

1. A divorcee with sure first name and in its place uses her family surname. For example, if her maiden name was Helena Robinson, she calls herself Mrs. Robinson Smith. This form of name is not only correct, but it is also the most practical form, for it makes her position entirely clear.

She should not continue to be Mrs. William Smith because confusion would arise if another woman acquired that name. And she should not use the form "Mrs. Helena Smith" because socially it is not correct for a woman to use her first name after "Mrs." (The name "Mrs. Helena Smith" wouldn't indicate her position as divorcee . . . it would show only that she is using a form of name socially incorrect for a married woman, widow, or divorcee.)

If a divorcee wishes, for some special reason, to indicate her first name in her name after her divorce, she can use (but it is not best form) Mrs. H. Robinson Smith.

A divorced woman's signature would be just as it was before her divorce: Helena Robinson Smith, or Helena Smith. But when, for identification or information, she writes her formal name in parentheses under her signature, this is written (Mrs. Robinson Smith).

2. A divorced woman may do as she wishes about wearing her engagement and wedding rings. She may, if she wishes, continue to wear them or she may remove them as soon as she is legally free. Often she puts her wedding ring away and wears the engagement ring on her right hand, perhaps with the stone in another setting.

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

In a few weeks we are having a dance at school, and each girl has the privilege of inviting a boy to be her escort to the dance. Will you please tell me the proper way of inviting a boy to a dance?

D. K.

That depends. If the boy you are inviting to the dance is a schoolmate of yours or if he is a boy you know very well and see very frequently, it would be proper for you to invite him when you meet him, or to invite him by telephone. But if he is a boy who goes to another school or a boy you don't know at all well, it's socially "wiser" to write him a note of invitation, thus giving him the privilege of replying by note. If you write a note, tell him you would like to have him go with you, as your guest, to the dance, that it is on such-an-such a date, the place, hour and so forth; that you have the tickets, and if the date is convenient for him to go, you will write him about arrangements for meeting and so forth.

Bride Chooses Her Own Attendant

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

At our wedding we are to have only two attendants, one for the groom and one for me. My fiance has no brother, and so has asked his best friend to be his best man. This friend is married, and I am wondering if I must ask his wife to be my attendant. Is this the correct procedure?

Alice

No. If you have a sister, the correct procedure is for you to invite her to be your attendant; if not, you ask your best friend.

Recent sleet and wind storms in Niagara and Western Ontario areas, brought down whole sections of both steel-tower and wooden-pole Hydro lines. This picture shows how ice-laden trees and limbs broke, fell across Hydro lines and forced them to the ground.

WINTER RAMPAGE!

When King Winter makes an all-out attack, man can do little but repair the damage as fast as possible. Recent power breaks in Niagara and Western Ontario areas were the direct result of unusual and severe storm conditions.

Because of the flexibility provided by its unified, province-wide organization, Hydro was able to rush emergency repair crews from other parts of Ontario to restore power. Every effort was directed to this end.

To all consumers who suffered in these storm areas, Hydro expresses its thanks and appreciation for their patience and understanding in a difficult and trying situation.

At all times Hydro safeguards service by endeavouring to locate lines free from trees and by tree trimming. Present storm damages illustrate the advisability of these methods.

During this winter period, storms and power shortage present great operating problems for Hydro. Your co-operation in the conserving of power will be of material assistance and much appreciated.

Underdogs of National Hockey League Have Great Weekend As Upsets Feature Contests

Chicago Hawks Beat Canadians Twice; Bruins Beaten Twice by Detroit and Leafs, and Toronto Bows to Rangers in New York

By JACK MITCHELL

It was a great weekend for the underdogs in the National Hockey League.

The leading Toronto Maple Leafs struck a sturdy blow for the upper crust when they outlasted the third-place Boston Bruins, 4-3, Saturday night. But in the other four games on the weekend card, the "have nots" upset point-richer rivals.

The biggest shock to propriety came in twin drubbings inflicted by Chicago's cellar-dwelling Black Hawks on the second-place Montreal Canadiens — 2-1 at Montreal and 3-1 back in Chicago.

Catching the spirit to the full, New York Rangers strengthened this fourth position by coming from behind to humble Toronto 3-2, Sunday night. The fifth-place Detroit Red Wings made it three upsets in as many Sunday night games with a 5-1 triumph over Boston, thus further weakening the Bruins shaky grip on third.

Toronto's single win coupled with Montreal's double loss extended the leader's margin to 7 points but the main result of the weekend games was to draw the standing of the lower four teams drumskin-tight.

Only Point Ahead

The Bruins, victors in only two of their last 11 starts, now have 30 points, just one more than the Rangers, in turn a single point ahead of Detroit. The Black Hawks, although six points behind the Red Wings, hold five games in hand over both Detroit and New York and on recent form could easily turn most of these into points.

Goalie Paul Bibeault, who has seen such scores as 11-0 and 10-4 piled up against his this season, turned in stellar performances to pace Chicago to the wins over Montreal who sold him to the Hawks.

Although Canadiens were outshot 33-17 before a crowd of 10,608 at Montreal, Bibeault did acrobatics to hold the Stanley Cup champions to a third-period goal by Hector (Toe) Blake. Second period goals by Bill Mosienko and Doug Bentley, who also helped on Mosienko's tally, carried the Hawks through.

With a capacity crowd of 18,537 attending the return clash at Chicago, Canadiens again outshot the Hawks, 34-18, but Bibeault held them out until Murph Chamberlain tallied with about seven minutes to play. Meanwhile, Doug Bentley fired Chicago into a 1-0 lead in the opening period and George Gee and Alex Kaleta increased it in the second.

The victories made it three in a row for Chicago, their longest winning streak of the season, and three losses in a row for Canadiens, longest losing streak for the Montrealers.

Duke of Windsor Present

The Rangers, spotting Toronto opening-period goals by Bud Polle and Gaye Stewart, fought from behind to win on second-period counters by Edgar Laprade, Joe Bell and Cal Gardner. A crowd of 15,925, including the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, watched the match.

The Leafs played without their big rookie defenceman, Garth Boesch, who pulled a leg muscle in their Saturday night victory over the Bruins at Toronto. Playing before a crowd of 13,688, the Leafs found goals by Syl Apps, Bill Ezinicki, Joe Klukay and Howie Meeker barely enough to see them through against Boston.

The Bruins, with the Kitchener line of Woody Dumart, Milt Schmidt and Bobby Bauer dividing their tallies one apiece, cut Toronto's lead to 4-3 with 4½ minutes remaining and were pressing when the final whistle blew.

From Boston's Sunday night showing against Detroit, however, it looked as if the general shake-up manager Art Ross promised unless eight unnamed veterans pulled up their socks, would go through.

The Bruins opened with a goal by Joe Carveth before a crowd of 13,633 at Detroit but the Red Wings ended the scoring with five straight counters. The scorers were Pat Lundy, Ted Lindsay, Eddie Bruneteau, Jim Conacher and Sid Abel.

Canadian-Bred Colts Prominent On U.S. Tracks

(By The Canadian Press)

Two Canadian-bred colts, both King's Plate starters in past seasons, were prominent in United States turf appearances Saturday. At Santa Anita, in Arcadia, Cal., Cum Laude, owned by Dr. L.H. Appleby of Vancouver B.C., raced to a win in the sixth at an across-the-board payoff of $49.50, $20.70 and $11.80, while at Tropical Park in Coral Gables Fla., Kingarvie, owned by R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, appeared headed for a win in the $10,000 tropical handicap but faltered in the final strides to lose by a neck to Eternal Reward.

Kingarvie won the King's Plate Canada's premier race for three-year-olds at the 19336 running at Toronto.

Charley Trippi, Georgia's All-America halfback, Saturday received an offer of $80,000 to play for the professional New York Yankees football team for the next four seasons. He has also received offers to play pro baseball with the New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox and the Chicago Cardinals pro football team have offered to match the $80,000 Yanks' offer.

The blood pressure of several gentlemen of the Marybone cue-blooded governing body of the ancient English sport—was raised considerably by a recent suggestion in the Socialist Magazine Tribune that the game should be nationalized because of recent reverses suffered by English teams. The suggestion was made facetiously, but the very thought was enough to curdle the blood of the old guard.

Earl Mann, president of the Atlanta Crackers of the Southern Association, Saturday was named a third member of the executive committee of baseball's minor leagues, following a conference with minor league officials.

ST. MIKES PICK UP FOUR POINTS IN WINDSOR WIN

Galt Red Wings Burst Three-Way Tie for Second by Defeating Szabos

(By The Canadian Press)

Toronto St. Michael's really didn't need them, but they picked up four points in the easiest fashion Saturday by whitewashing Windsor Spitfires 8-0 at Toronto. Today the Irish Eastern Junior champions of last year, are riding eight points in the van of the Junior "A" loop.

Galt Red Wings burst the three-way deadlock for second place by showing no mercy at Hamilton, where they buried Szabos under a 15-2 count. That lifted Red Wings into second place alone, two points ahead of Toronto Marlboros and Oshawa Generals.

Marlboros slipped when they were edged out at St. Catharines the Falcons winning 7-6. This was another of the four-point games that crop up occasionally in the schedule, and boosted the Falcons to seventh place ahead of Hamilton and Windsor. Toronto Young Rangers, idle over the weekend remain in the bottom.

Two games were listed tonight one junior and one senior. The Stratford Indians are at Toronto Staffords in the senior group, while Barrie Flyers go to Hamilton in the Junior circuit.

After That Parade

For the first period at Toronto Saturday the Spitfires were on even terms with the mighty Irish. Monty Reynolds in the Windsor cage resisted all attacks. But MacKell and Migay scored for St. Mikes in the second period, and in the third period MacKell scored within eight seconds, after which it was a parade. Bobby Paul got two goals, MacKell got his third, and Hannigan and Wolt scored two before the bell.

Despite the 15-2 score at Galt, it was only the unrelenting efforts of Bob Decourcey in the Szabos' nets that saved Hamilton from an even worse shellacking. Decourcey handled 55 shots while Terry Sawchuk in the Galt nets had only 14. A total of 10 Red Wings shared the scoring loot. Wiggy Wiseman led goal-getters with four. Wylie had three, and Pavelich and Robertson had two each. Bruce Giesebrecht, Tkachuk Uniac and Glover got the others. Delory and Wzynski slipped in a couple for Hamilton in the middle of the deluge.

At St. Catharines the Marlies got the last goal at 17:45 of the third period, but couldn't get the equalizer. St. Catharines had already scored seven—Twaddle and MacDonald each scoring twice, Currie, Mcoustra and Gogegan getting the others. Naylor and Kent each had two for Marlies, whose other scorers were Timgren and McLagan.

WEEKEND STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Doug Bentley, Chicago forward with a goal and assist and Paul Bibeault, goalie, who turned in an outstanding display in the nets as Black Hawks defeated Canadiens 2-1.

Porky Dumart, Boston, who scored a goal and earned two assists as Bruins were edged 4-3 by Toronto Maple Leafs.

Gaye Stewart and Bud Polle, Toronto, who garnered a marker and an assist apiece as Maple Leafs bowed 3-2 to New York.

Jim Conacher, Detroit, whose goal and two assists paced Red Wings to a 5-1 victory over Boston Bruins.

THE BIG SEVEN

(By The Canadian Press)

First and second posts in the National Hockey League scoring race were unaffected during the weekend but high-flying Milt Schmidt of Boston Bruins, succeeded Billy Taylor of Detroit, for third spot. Maurice Richard, Montreal, picked up an assist to increase his total to 23 goals and 17 assists, for 40 points while Ted Kennedy, Toronto, added an assist to make his count 17 and 18 for 35 points. Schmidt chalked up a goal and an assist to make his figures read 13 and 19 for 32 while Taylor's assist gave him a reading of 9 and 22 for 31.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Belleville's Army and Navy Intermediate "A's" are buckling down to real practice these days and on Friday night, officials stated that they had ten men signed on the dotted line. And don't be surprised if you see an old familiar face caverting along one of the wing-lanes when the Reds step out on the ice next Friday night against the starry Queen's University Seconds in the first game of the "A" loop.

• • •

According to reports from the arena, the Meagher brothers, Al and Bernie trotted out the other night centred by their old buddy Don Barrett recently returned from Stratford. The three youngsters were going great guns, so the railbirds inform us, and they will be a decided asset to the Red's attacking divisions.

• • •

Meanwhile the Belleville "Bees" junior squad are sitting on their respective haunches waiting for the far-off Jan. 23 when they meet the fast-stepping Kingston Victorias here. The Kingston kids are reputed to be an outstanding squad and the game will be the acid test for Doug Whillan's youthful proteges. The game scheduled between Trenton and the Bees at Belleville tonight was postponed due to the Trenton squad's inability to get their home ice.

• • •

In the meantime the hockey tidbit for tonight is the clash between these two undefeated squads of the R.C.A.F. Trenton Flyers and Mountain View Bombers. The Flyers have won two victories in as many starts against Bloomfield Sky Chiefs and the Picton Combines and Harry Hinton's crew are going all out to make it three straight at the expense of their service "enemies."

• • •

But "Doc" Lyons and Coach "Nock" Nickerson of the Bombers have other ideas. The Bombers tied Bloomfield here last Wednesday after a spirited third period rally when they were two goals down and went all out on a scoring spree on Friday in Picton at the expense of the Combines of that town, netting no less than ten goals.

• • •

Rivalry is very keen between the two service teams and there should be hockey fireworks tonight when the squads clash in their first meeting. The teams appear to be evenly matched and the battle between the starry McNab-Murray-Oulette line of the Bombers and the Sargent-Miller-Brackenbury trio wearing the Flyers' colors should be interesting to watch. Both teams boast a fairly good defence with "Tank" Sherman of the Bombers being a firm believer in knockin' 'em down first and shooting afterwards. And brother, the chunky defenceman can really hoist 'em.

• • •

So it looks as though you can "pay yer money and take yer choice". In any event, barring accidents the tilt should be productive of some more of that boisterous rugged type of hockey that thrilled the large opening night crowd here last Wednesday.

• • •

And just in case there are any game hangovers after tonight's joust between the lads in blue, the same squads clash again at the Arena here on Wednesday night. Both teams have scoring punch — that was demonstrated here last Wednesday by Flyers while the bombers unleashed their productive power in Picton on Friday. The game starts at 8:30.

• • •

CHIPS THREE ....

And in passing we might mention that the McNab-Murray-Oulette line of the Bombers accounted for no less than 14 scoring points in the Picton game on Friday. Mac McNab got himself a quintet of markers while "Doc" Murray scored one and set up plays for six other goals getting himself seven points. And by the same token, the Sargent-Miller-Brackenbury line, Flyers' ace forward division helped themselves to 14 points against Picton here last Wednesday. So there you have it.

• • •

Sports fans who like to see the "greats" of the game should not miss the picture "Gentleman Joe Palooka" which opens at the Capitol Theatre on Thursday. Joe Kirkwood, son of the famous trick golfer of the same name is in the title role while other sports luminaries are the great Tommy Harmon, football luminary and Freddie Steele, former middleweight champion of the world.

• • •

Sign in a New Yawk repair shop: "We fix everything but football games."

• • •

Saturday afternoon at the Montreal Forum young Howie Morenz pumped home three goals to lead the Junior Canadiens to a spectacular win over the Nationals. According to reports from the game the "kid with the million-dollar name is just about the hottest and fastest thing in Montreal's hockey scene."

According to Art (Montreal Standard) O'Brien: "Twice already this season he has netted four goals in single games. In 13 league games he has taken over the scoring leadership in both goals scored and assists credited — his points total 34 with 22 of them goals. Curiously, too, this season has seen him acquire to some degree the deceptive little hop that gave his immortal Dad a split second advantage rounding a defence."

• • •

Paul Haynes, ex-Canadian centre star and now top scout for the team, states flatly: "One year senior and young Howie's set for the National Hockey League. As to whether he has stardust on his shoulders I'm not sure yet but he'll be better than average anyway."

• • •

Waiting in the Canadiens' room is the No. 7 sweater and the No. 7 spot in the seating arrangement. When the immortal Howie died following a fracture suffered on the same Forum ice, the sweater and seat were set aside for young Howie—if he makes the grade. Nobody else will ever be allowed to wear that sweater or occupy that seat.

• • •

The boy is extremely likeable. Quiet-mannered and polite, he is neither spoiled nor swollen-headed. He worships the game at whose altar his father died. There is no place in his mind for anything but hockey.

There's a tasty bit of fare here tonight for lovers of basketball when the 1947 edition of the Belleville "Y" Intermediates meet the Mountain View Bombers quintet in the first game of the loop schedule. Coach George Faulkner, who has such former court stars as Ralph McCabe, Johnny Hayman, Don Mason, Jack Dickens et al, states his team is in good shape and ready for the fray. Reports from Mountain View reveal that the service squad too, boasts plenty of power so the tilt should be productive of plenty of high-class action.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Instinctively or otherwise, an expert bridge player follows a reliable basic set of rules. Also he has and uses a definite count to determine the number of tricks he expects to take.

Very often he prefers to deny or ridicule this. It tickles his vanity to have you think he is more natural than mechanical. But he is not fooling himself.

Such a player acquires a knack for estimating his future chances. This gives him an unmitigated confidence. Therefore, he may ignore details in favor of applying his judgment in tight spots.

But the system is there. Else his judgment would turn out bad. He would be incapable of good judgment if he did not first have some basic foundation from which to start. Or measure his chances.

Thus, you often see or hear of such a player making an overbid. If he does so early in the deal, his later bid is conservative. His basic knowledge plus experience helps his decisions.

South opened with one heart when north held this hand:

♠ J 4
♥ K 9 7 5
♦ A 8 4 3
♣ K 8 6

An opener shows five tricks. This north has four. Nine tricks are not enough for a game contract of four hearts. The first reply should not be a jump. We know it. North knows it.

However, this north did jump. He hoped his expert partner could make the other trick for game with a clever play. But south had such a strong hand, he came back with a slam signal.

Now, the north player realized that his stretch was likely to take them too high. So, he simply made a second bid that denied he had an ace. This slowed his partner down.

See what I mean? An expert may lie. But he knows it is a lie. He also knows how to lie again in order to counteract his first lie.

Stick to rule or your slip will be showing.

The Movie Column

By HELEN BANNERMAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

With the "Yearling" and "Duel in The Sun" both scheduled for wide distribution soon, it is our bet that Gregory Peck will emerge one of the brightest stars in the masculine half of 1947.

This is not to say that he is not already a bright star. In his three important pictures since his 1944 screen debut he has been getting better and better but the last one was released many months ago.

Now young Mr. Peck is working in Alfred Hitchcock's "The Paradine Case," playing the leading role—a young barrister. He grew a moustache for the part, first trying an Anthony Eden-type, then Stalin's and finally Clark Gable's. He gave it all up when one of the film's technical advisers told him young British barristers do not wear moustaches—it isn't done.

Sun Is Hot

Reports from Hollywood and the west coast where the much-advertised "Duel in The Sun" is being shown, say it has finally done what the censors couldn't do—cleaned up "The Outlaw." Jane Russell, whose uncensored curves got "The Outlaw" in trouble with the law, says in comparison with "Duel" her picture looks like an educational travelogue.

Whatever "Duel's" status compared with "Outlaw," the first audiences to see it were pop-eyed when they left the theatre, and it is getting exceptional word-of-mouth advertising. Its producers, David O. Selznick, favors this kind of advertising and aimed his own publicity campaign accordingly.

The People's Choice

The general public had finally had its say about what it likes in movies and stars and the photoplay magazine gold medals, awarded on the basis of a gallup poll of movie tastes, went to Bing Crosby and Ingrid Bergman as most popular stars, and to their "The Bells of St. Mary's" for for most popular picture of the year just past.

The Groaner has been heading polls right and left for some time and this is his third straight gold medal but this is the first year of the photoplay-sponsored sampling of opinion that the most popular actress has also placed second on the list.

Hucksters Cast

With the addition of Ava Gardner in the role of the night club singer, Jean Ogilvie, and Connie Gilchrist as a hotel telephone operator, the cast of "The Hucksters" now is complete and the picture has gone into production.

MOUNTAIN VIEW BOMBERS NUDGE PICTON BY 10-8

At One Point in Contest Losers Were in Front by One Goal

In a wild scoring game that saw eighteen pucks whiz by the respective goalkeepers, the Mountain View Bombers nudged a hard-fighting Picton hockey squad 10-8 in a scheduled Intermediate "B" game in Picton on Friday night.

The Picton Combines flashing extra power was not the same team that absorbed a 12-0 shellacking at the hands of the Trenton Flyers in the loop curtain-raising doubleheader last Wednesday. The home towners fought back desperately and at one point of the game forged into the lead.

The game was one of those see-saw affairs with the Combines more at home on the smaller ice-surface, and the last three minutes of play saw a desperate Picton team flash a sudden reserve of power that netted them two straights goals and brought them to within one goal of Bombers impressive score. The Air Force crew however surged back to the offensive and scored the final tally with minutes to go, that put the game in the bag for them.

Had Field Day

Bombers front line of Mac McNab "Doc" Murray and Ouellette had a scoring field day at the expense of the Pictonians. The starry first line accounted for 14 scoring points between them with McNab getting five goals. Murray got one goal and six assists and Ouellette, one goal and an assist.

Bombers carried the attack to the opposition early in the third period scoring three goals in the first six minutes of play, but the Combines came back strongly to garner a single tally and hold the Bombers off the score-board.

Picton flashed consistent attacks in the second chukker and had the best of the play for two-thirds of the period scoring four times to twice for Bombers and drawing up on even terms at 5 goals each.

Broke Tie in Third.

Bombers broke the egg in the first two minutes of play in the third period when McNab scored his third goal of the night from Murray's pass. Hammond put them two in the lead a minute later from Gilson's pass, then Dyer, flashy Picton wingman, drove the rubber past Ebell to bring his squad within striking distance. Then the Murray-McNab-Ouellette line broke in another scoring rush and netted two more goals adding the final one at the 18 minute mark. Lavender and Bovay scored the second Picton goal in this period.

Jackson played another sterling game in goal for the Combines with Dyer, Lavender, Hicks and Bovay showing up well in front. The Murray-McNab line stole the spotlight for Bombers but Gilson and Hammond also turned in a good chore.

The teams:

Mountain View Bombers — Goal, Ebell; defence, Sherman, Nadon; centre, Murray, wings, Ouellette, McNab; subs, Hammond, Bryany, Polter, Gilson, Elliott, Marietta.

Picton Combines — Goal, Jackson; defence, Welch, Kearney; centre, Hicks; wings, Dyer, Lavender; subs, Ackerman, Desrosiers, Elrick, Frederic, Asseltine, Bovay, Young.

Referee — "Toots" Holway.

RETURNS TO PLANTATION

Melbourne, Australia (CP) — With his wife and three children, R. S. Heape of England has gone to live in a native hut in Belik, New Ireland, until he can get his coconut plantation—destroyed by the Japanese—working again.

AT THE CAPITOL — Bobby Cooper, Ray Neal, star Eddie Albert and Martin Garralaga witness unusual happenings in "Strange Voyage," stirring drama now at the Capitol Theatre. On the some program the terrific melodrama "Suspense," starring Belita, Barry Sullivan, Bonita Granville and Albert Dekker. Both features are being shown for the first time in Belleville.

PERSONALITIES FLARE IN PRO. GOLFERS' ASSOC.

Tournament Player Dick Metz Lands One on Jaw of Manager of P.G.A.

By RUSS NEWLAND

Peeble Beach, Calif., Jan. 13. (AP) — Personal differences within the ranks of Professional Golfers' Association, which flared into the open with a "one punch one down" effect, snatched top billing today along with the tournament in which the incident was inspired—the $10,000 Bing Crosby Invitational Pro-Amateur.

The man who went down from a blow in the mouth was Fred Corcoran, tournament manager of the P.G.A. for the past 10 years. The man who readily admitted he struck the blow was Dick Metz of Wichita, Kans., one of the leading pro golfers.

It took place in nearby Carmel last Friday night. Corcoran said the matter was an "unprovoked assault" and told a roomful of interviewers he was contemplating filing civil suit against Metz.

Metz not only confirmed the episode but gave out a statement in which he said:

"I understand Mr. Corcoran was slightly injured which I deeply regret. In the midst of the argument, Mr. Corcoran angrily turned around toward me in what I judged to be menacing manner. I reacted spontaneously in self-defence."

Corcoran declared: "Metz struck me in the mouth without warning. . . this was a speak punch. . . ."

Meanwhile the tournament victors were George Fazio, of Los Angeles, and Ed Furgol, of Detroit, who tied in the 54-hole event with scores of 213, and Sam Snead, Hot Springs, Va., who paired with Rogers Kelly, Los Angelesan to capture the pro-amateur competition. Snead and Kelly had a 54-hole best ball score of 196.

Fazio and Furgol each won $1,600 for low tieing score among the professionals. Snead pocketed $1,000 for his share in helping win the pro-amateur title.

The present P.G.A. champion, Ben Hogan, of Hershey, Pa., who opened as individual professional favorite, had three of his worst rounds in a long time to finish with 231.

FRITZIE ZIVIC ASKED TO QUIT

Washington, Jan. 13—(AP) — The National Boxing Association today predicted "obscurity" before the end of another year for many top fighters and invited an immediate farewell to the ring from former world's welterweight champion Fritzie Zivic.

Calling Zivic "an old firehorse still responding to the sound of the bell," N.B.A. president Abe J. Greene said in a statement that Zivic "has long since passed his peak and is working serious harm on the sport by his unsatisfactory performance."

The N.B.A., in ratings for a 3-month period ending Jan. 3, perched heavyweight champion Joe Louis safely out of reach of a successor for the time being. It listed no "logical contender" for his title.

The Association dropped Billy Conn from its list and promoted Elmer (Violent) Ray to the top of the outstanding heavyweight lineup.

As for the old-timers in general, Greene said many of them are still around simply because the war kept younger boxers busy at something else.

"Before another year has rolled around," Greene asserted, "many of the headliners who now top the ratings will have faded into obscurity." He indicated this would be okay, for he added:

CHAPTER 4

"It makes me breathless," said Arlen hoarsely.

"Come and see your room."

He took her hand and opened the door to a large cream colored room with a large white box of a bed submerged beneath small lacy pillows. Long-stemmed red roses scented the room. The silk curtains billowed back and forth in the breeze.

"I'm the wide-eyed girl from a small town," said Arlen. Her eyes were misty." Renny, how can I. . . ."

"If you're going to weep on my shoulder, I shall never forgive you. I told Louise you were a girl with spirit."

"This is a lark to Louise, isn't it? A lark to her and something incredibly solemn to me. She's doing this for you, Renny, because you asked her. I won't weep on your shoulder, but it's going to take some time for me to get over this wide-eyed look."

He smiled. "You look charming when you look like that. Let's go back to the drawing-room."

"No, let's explore the rest of this place. If I lived here, if all of this belonged to me, I'd feel that I owned the world." She took off her hat with the saucy feather on it and her hair tumbled about her face. "I understand Louise now, having seen this."

"Why?"

"Because love can't thrive in a place where there is so much else to take its place."

On the divan in the drawing-room Renny filled his pipe, crossed his long legs, and looked at her, a dark gowned Arlen against the startling white background.

"If I had thought," he said, "that all this would spoil you and make you unhappy if because you ever had less, I should never have suggested it."

She smiled, more at ease now. "You sound as though you were my uncle. It has turned out to be an experiment as to whether I'm a strong or a weak character. Renny, if I make any fooolish mistakes, tell me about them."

The electric light blinked white and before the elevator stopped she heard voices and laughter. When half a dozen people stepped into the room, Arlen knew that the tall woman wrapped in a cloak of silver, a beautiful woman with gleaming black hair, was Louise. By the subdued patient look on the face of a handsome man her father's age, a man with prematurely white hair, she knew that he was Richard Brandon. There was a young girl in black velvet, an older woman with shingled white hair, and two men. Of the entire party Arlen's wondering eyes flew first from Louise to the young man she knew to be Toby Sanner.

He was as tall as Renny. He had smooth blonde hair, vivid blue eyes, and a fascinating smile. He wore no invulnerable armor as Renny did. Life apparently had treated him well. He was the sort of young man marked for a life of ease and gayety, liked by men, spoiled by women. Two things forced themselves on Arlen's bewildered consciousness — the beauty of Louise and the charm of Toby Sanner.

"Oh, darling," cried Louise in her husky exaggerated voice. "I'm so sorry we weren't here when you came."

"This is Arlen," said Renny, standing. "This is Louise."

Arlen smiled. The handsome man with the gray hair was Richard. The beautiful dark-haired girl in black velvet was Elissa Brand. The older woman with shingled white hair was Fanny Sanner, Toby's mother. The one young man was Henry Faust. The other—Toby.

Arlen always scorned first impressions but invariably her estimates were very accurate. While she nodded her head at the introductions and curved her nervous mouth into a smile, she knew that Renny's word portraits of Louise and Richard were wonderfully true and vivid. She liked Elissa Brand's frank brown eyes and lovely smile. "I hope we shall be friends," she thought. She did not like Fanny Sanner for the girlish reason that Arlen detested to see a woman past fifty made up and dressed like a girl of eighteen. Henry Faust was nondescript. But Arlen's whole being warned to the charm of Toby Sanner.

"I had no idea," said Toby," that Ocean City presented such enormous possibilities. We've been places but we've talked of nothing but Renny's amazing "find!"

"We insisted upon coming," said Elissa, "after Renny's growing descriptions."

"I believe my home life is going to be more methodical from now on," said Richard. "Miss Leeds, I wonder if you know what you are going into. Renny, have you prepared her?"

"I know the worst," said Arlen.

"Really," said Fanny Sanner, sitting down, "New York is the most tiresome place this time of the year. There's positively nothing to do. Toby, my dear, why did you insist upon dragging me down from Maine? Renny, I saw your mother while I was there. Allison is perfectly adorable. So clever."

Louise took off her silver cloak. "Did Renny show you your room, Arlen? Of course I shall call you Arlen and please don't call me Mrs. Brandon. Only the servants do that. We shall all have a little drink. . . ."

"And go to bed," said Renny." Arlen has had a busy day with two journeys. I've been waiting for you to suggest that she get into an evening dress and go out with you."

"Not tonight," said Louise.

"But other nights," said Toby.

Renny sank back on the soft divan, puffing on his pipe. He was so proud of Arlen, proud of her clear definite beauty that Toby's glowing glances in her direction enraged him. In this group of people, he knew well her beauty, stood out as clear as crystal. The severity of her plain back dress made it all the more vivid. In her excitement her eyes were warmly golden, her tanned face and neck were strained with color, and her hair seemed unusually bright. All at once he hated himself for bringing her here. He hated to have Arlen cast her lot with people as selfish and as calculating as Fanny Sanner, who reminded him of a brilliantly painted mummy; with Louise, who could love no one; with Toby whose youth and charm and attentions would make her love him, as so many women had loved him, and lose him and watch him go back, as he always did, to the unbreakable will of his mother.

Of them all only Richard and Elissa had something stable to offer. Renny hoped that Arlen and Elissa would be friends. Elissa belonged here no more than Arlen belonged, but the tide of circumstance and rearing kept her here though she had tried several times to escape. Would Elissa, who was Christa's friend, reject Arlen's friendship? Through Elissa Christa would know that he had met a beautiful girl at Ocean City and brought her to his sister. That might bring Christa back from Paris.

Fanny's indomitable energy could carry her no farther.

"Toby, we simply must go. Good night, Louise . Richard . . Renny. Good night, Miss Leeds. I do hope you won't find your new duties too difficult. Coming, Toby?"

"I am leaving," said Toby, "but not for long."

Elissa said, "I'll be up for tea tomorrow, Louise."

Renny inwardly groaned. Arlen would know. Elissa, with no malice, would tell her about Christa.

They filed out after many good nights and good-byes. It was now past two.

Renny said, "Time for my exit, too. I'm going to Maine tomorrow."

"Please tell Mother," said Louise, "to come to New York for the winter. She'll freeze in that lonely house with nobody there except Allison and the servants."

"Will you be gone long?" Arlen asked.

"A week probably."

As long as she lived she was grateful for Richard's arm around her shoulder at that moment." "Don't worry," he said, "We'll take good care of you. You're going to be one of the family."

"Mrs. Sanner made it very plain that she considers me a servant."

"Oh, Fanny," said Louise, yawning. "Pay no attention to her!"

Arlen walked to the elevator with Renny. He smiled at her, took her by the shoulders and drew her close to him. It was a paternal gesture but Arlen being in his arms could not find her voice. She dared not look up at him with eyes that were clear with love, with a trembling mouth that asked to be kissed, a mouth that never before had been offered in love to any man.

"Arlen, you thanked me once for being there when you needed me. I shall always be there when you need me. Remember that."

She clung to him a moment and drew away.

"I'm proud of you," he said. "Good night, my dear."

* * *

Sleep was impossible that night for Arlen with strange faces parading before her mind. She stared into the darkness of the cool high room, wanting to keep close and near that unforgetable moment in Renny's arms with her face pressed against him. He had thought that she clung to him like a frightened child, seeing a parent go away. Didn't he know that dreams of love and illusions had become reality? The days would pass, marking time until he came again. Everything that happened in the meantime would be just an interlude to be endured until he returned.

The next morning passed with surprising swiftness. When Louise put in an appearance about eleven, complaining of a headache, Arlen had already unpacked her clothes and written a cheerful letter to her father. Apparently no day began for Louise until noon.

Arlen, looking crisp and efficient, suggested that they get down to business at once. While Louise nervously smoked one cigarette after another and, paced the room restlessly, wondering what to wear because of the uncertain weather, Arlen separated paid bills and unpaid bills in two neat little piles and opened personal letters dated two months before. Louise's personal accounts and correspondence were in an appalling state. One hitherto unopened letter threatened a law suit. A personal letter from an old friend demanded to know why Louise had failed to congratulate her on the birth of her first-born. Her club dues were in arrears. Invitations to formal affairs had never been answered.

As Arlen worked she looked up now and then at Louise with steady eyes. Restless energy drove Louise on. She moved quickly, gracefully. In the evening her beauty had a breath-taking quality enhanced by extreme gowns. In the cruel daylight she looked tired and nervous.

"Why didn't I think of getting some one before? Why didn't Richard? For years I've been getting myself in the most ridiculous situations because I simply cannot remember anything. Renny thinks of everything. He's marvelous. I won't question anything you do, Arlen, but just don't bother me with tiresome details." She stood over the desk where Arlen was working, a tall goddess of a woman in a sheer trailing negligee. "Richard said that I should make it very plain to you, my dear, that you are not an employee. He is so sensitive of people's feelings."

"Shall we say," said Arlen, "that in the daytime I'm your secretary and in the evening your guest?"

"Why—yes. But don't work too hard so that you can't enjoy your evenings."

"I won't. Do you object if I go to a business school for a few hours in the morning? I think I should know some of the technical points of being a secretary and I'd feel better about taking my salary. I can do all your work in the afternoons."

"Business school?" queried Louise, arching a narrow black brow. "Oh, one of those places where one learns stenography, isn't it? Of course, by all means go. Richard will be happy to pay for it for you."

Arlen protested but Louise waved away her protestations with an impressive hand. "I won't hear of your paying out of the pittance I'm giving you! Richard will attend to everything." She walked to the door, her negligee skimming the rug. "I'm going out to play bridge with Fanny."

Arlen smiled. "But Miss Brand is coming for tea this afternoon."

"Oh, Elissa. You entertain her, dear. Elissa comes to tea whether I'm here or not. She'll forgive me but Fanny never forgives anybody."

Through the short sunny afternoon Arlen worked in Richard's study reading letters from Louise's friends, smiling at language as exaggerated as hers. What Louise paid for one frock had almost clothed Arlen for a year. The amounts she paid to mancurists, hair-dressers and chiropodists were staggering.

After luncheon, during which the servants stared at her as though she were an unwanted intruder, Arlen went out on the roof and lifted her arms to the sun. Arlen prayed for freedom, knowing that no one in love is ever free. Standing there, a slim little figure with blowing yellow hair, she prayed that Renny be brought back to her, loving her. "Let me be only a bystander in the lives of Richard and Louise, Fanny and Toby. Don't let these people take from me what I have tried so hard to keep—my pretty illusions, Renny calls them bitterly."

She went back to the study again and worked until four when the door opened and Elissa Brand came in.

"I hope I'm not disturbing you' said Elissa.

"I was just finishing."

Local Resident Uninjured When Coaches Derailed

W. A. (Bill) Ford, of the Ontario Hydro Commission staff here was one of the passengers aboard the Canadian National Railways Toronto-Montreal train on Friday when three of its coaches were derailed due to a broken wheel, as it approached Brockville. Eight passengers were injured. Ford was not hurt.

Among the most seriously injured were E. Dalgleish, Kingston and Max Hornstein, Montreal.

The passengers in one coach were somersaulted through the air as their coach rolled over into the deep snow of a ditch on the south side of the tracks. Three coaches ahead were Mr. Ford and other passengers. "We did not know what had happened," he said afterwards, "but we surmised that something was wrong." The train was stopped and train officials were racing up and down the tracks."

The vents on top of the overturned coach were pushed in as it smashed one telegraph pole and sheared off another under the old Brockville-Westport trestle.

The damaged coach pulled the two coaches ahead of it off the tracks, but they remained upright. The three were detached from the train which continued into the yards and returned with two spare coaches into which all the passengers were transferred.

The train was delayed by the accident for 90 minutes.

Three of Quads Still Living

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 13 — (AP) — Three baby girls, survivors of a quadruplet birth in a mountain cabin beneath the steady glare of their father's mining lamp, were given a good chance today to live.

"Dawggone," and a low whistle constituted the brief but fervent reaction of Jess Moore, coal mine mule driver, when Dr. Tom Johnston told him of the delivery of the quads, one stillborn, to Mrs. Moore.

The mother was resting comfortably and the babies were under care at a Sequatchie, Tenn. clinic. Her other five children slept throughout the 51-minute delivery early Sunday in the same room.

Jessica, born at 12:55 a.m. and oldest of the quads, weighed 6¼ pounds. Ruby and Dilly weighed half a pound less.

Dr. Johnston, a naturopathic physician, answered the "frantic call" of a neighbor to the mountain cabin several miles northeast of here. He found Mrs. Moore, "in a toxic condition" and with blood pressure up to 240, lying on a bare straw mattress.

But Mrs. Moore, who weighs only 100 pounds, just "gritted her teeth and didn't even say 'boo' during the delivery" Dr. Johnston said.

Six Fatalities Over Weekend In Ontario

(By The Canadian Press)

Ontario counted six fatalities at the weekend. A Canadian Press compilation showed one person burned to death, one asphyxiated, one killed in an industrial accident and another in a barn collapse, one fatally injured in a fall and one found dead in a culvert, with a rope around his neck.

Seventy-eight-year-old Mrs. Mary Jane Wilson was burned to death yesterday at Ohsweken, near Brantford, when fire swept through the two-storey log home of her son-in-law, Jim White. Flames barred Mrs. Wilson's escape from an upstairs room.

Coal fumes overcame Bruce Graham, 18, who was living alone at his parents' home in Grimsby while his parents visited Texas.

The frozen, rope-bound body of an unidentified man, believed stranged with a thick rope, was found north of Malton, in the Toronto area, by two boys on a rabbit hunt.

Allan F. Lowrey, 59, of Sault Ste. Marie, was killed Saturday when a tender telescoped a locomotive cab during a collision between a steel plant train and three standing gondola cars in yards of the big Algoma Steel Corporation plant.

A fall from the roof of his home onto a sharp ski pole which stood upright in the snow caused the death yesterday of 10-year-old Harold Campbell of Huntsville. He had been shovelling snow from the roof.

Billy Laing, age nine, of Moffat, near Guelph, was fatally crushed when his father's barn collapsed under the weight of snow and ice. Twenty-four hours later, his mother, Mrs. Andrew Laing, 41, died and medical authorities attributed her death to shock.

Japs Planned Use of Undersea Troops in 1945

Washington, Jan. 13 —(AP)— Fantastic details of the Japanese plan to use underwater suicide troops — some operating from submerged 'foxholes" — in a desperate bid to stem the expected United States invasion were disclosed today.

The United States navy made public a report by Capt. C. G. Grime, chief of a technical commission which spent months studying the Japanese navy ministry's idea for its own counterpart to the kamikaze pilots who flew their bomb-laden planes into targets at sea.

Grimes said the navy ministry hoped to have 6,000 men ready for combat with self-contained diving suits and special attack mines by Oct. 15, 1945. War's end in August, however, found only about 1,200 men trained, 1,000 suits finished and none of the mines completely assembled.

In defending a sloping beach, the Japanese planned to anchor well out from shore, in water 32 to 50 feet deep, a row of mines that could be operated by a trip rope from some distance.

These mines were to be laid by the underwater attack units, the Fukuryu, and operated by them when the time came.

Closer to shore were to be three rows of underwater guerillas armed with suicide mines. The rows were to be staggered so there would be a man every 65 feet.

The attack mine was a charge of about 22 pounds of explosive mounted on a stick equipped with a contact fuse. Its use was simple. The diver rammed the front end against the side or bottom of the ship. He was destroyed, of course.

Grimes said his investigation showed that the Japanese had spent considerable time computing how far one diver should be from another to be safe when the latter was ramming his mine. To questions why the spacing was so important since the men were to die anyway, Japanese officials responded that while a man was willing to die when he himself made the charge, he was not so willing to be killed as a "by-product" of another man's charge.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 13 (CP)—Price recessions on a moderately high turnover continued throughout the early session on Toronto stock exchange today and by noon the index was down all along the line.

Industrial losses spotted the boards with papers still leading the downward move.

Financials were all down in fractions and Bell in the utilities was down one at 188. Liquors were off with Canadian Brewers down 1-4, Distillers Seagram 1, Walkers 1-4.

Mining stocks weakened with senior golds showing considerable losses.

Western oils were inactive.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 13 — (AP) — The stock market resumed its downward course today without being subjected to any great pressure.

Declines of fractions to three or more points were widespread near the fourth hour with few comebacks in evidence: Assorted amusements and liquors hit bottom for the last year.

N.H.L. Clubs Agree Not to Raid One Another's Amateur Teams Without Paying Cash on Line

Junior Hockey Gets a Boost in That Money Will Come to the Club

By DOUGLAS AMARON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal, Jan. 13. (CP)—Junior hockey gets a boost and National Hockey League teams get a break through an agreement N.H.L. clubs have among themselves not to raid one another's sponsored amateur teams without paying cash on the line.

Sponsored clubs are amateur squads which the pros finance and promote with the long-range view of developing talent for the years to come. Each N.H.L. team sponsors two amateur clubs all but two of them juniors.

In the free-and-easy days before the pros got together, one N.H.L. club might find a promising schoolboy, develop him into an outstanding prospect, then see him whisked away by another N.H.L. team without so much as a "thank you".

Such a situation doesn't exist under the terms of the present agreement. Now it costs an N.H.L. team $500 to place on its negotiation list a player from any other N.H.L.-sponsored team. It costs $500 more to sign that player to any form of contract and it costs an additional $500 to sign him as a professional.

No Direct Claim

The money goes to the sponsoring team and usually is used to help finance the team being sponsored.

President Clarence Campbell of the N.H.L. explained, however, that the pros have no direct claim on the youngsters they are sponsoring and there is nothing to prevent an amateur team or clubs in other professional leagues such as the American Hockey Association from snapping up a player.

This agreement is strictly an N.H.L. affair by which one N.H.L. squad respects the interests of the others.

If a player moves to another team, even to one sponsored by some other N.H.L. club, the protection against raiding holds good for two years from the time the player makes his move.

Boost To Amateurs

This sponsorship system is a boost to the most benefit from it. With few exceptions, the 12 teams enjoying N.H.L. backing this season are well up in the standings of their respective leagues and the odds are good that when the Memorial Cup playoffs get under way the teams which go farthest will be those with N.H.L. backing.

Four sponsored clubs are leading their leagues at present. They are Toronto St. Mikes of the O.H.A. Junior "A" circuit and Winnipeg Monarchs of the Manitoba Junior League, both sponsored by Toronto Maple Leafs; Canadiens of the Quebec Junior Amateur Hockey Association, sponsored by the pro-Canadiens; Edmonton Canadians of the Emonton Junior League, who have Black Hawk backing.

Sponsered Clubs

The other sponsored clubs and their backers are:

Montreal Nationale of the Quebec J.A.H.A., sponsored by Canadiens; Port Arthur West Ends of the Thunder Bay Junior League and New Westminster Royal of the Pacific (Senior) Coast League, sponsored by Boston Bruins; Verdun Cyclones of the Quebec J.A.H.A. and Lake Placid Roamers, not in a league this season but winners of 10 straight exhibition games, sponsored by New York Rangers; Galt Red Wings of the O.H.A. Junior "A" League and Saskatoon Legionnaires of the Saskatchewan Junior League, sponsored by Detroit; and Winnipeg Rangers of the Manitoba Junior League sponsored by Chicago.

Sports Roundup

By AL COLLETTI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 13 —(CP)—There's hardly a mark on the face of Tony Janiro, the Youngstown, Ohio, welterweight, whose picture boxing against rough Tony (Split Decision) Pellone in Madison Square Garden Friday night was reminiscent of the days when a young "baby faced" battler named Jimmy McLarnin came out of Vancouver to stun the boxing world with his thunder hitting . . . For photogenic Tony today is a much-improved fighter who perhaps has learned his lesson since the day last year when he received a cruel beating from Johnny Greco, Canadian welterweight, in the last of their three meetings . . . Last Friday Tony did most of his own thinking to outpoint Pellone, a mauler whose five straight split decision victories brought out the ire of many in the boxing world.

Janiro in the past had been too dependent on his trainers including capable Ray Arcel for advice on ring strategy . . . But against Pellone his spur-of-the-moment decisions to come through with two-fisted attacks when his opponent, watching the clock, attempted to do the same to snatch the round on points, was a big factor in his victory . . . Pellone is notorious for his last minute rallies which have won him several fights . . .

Like McLarnin, But . . .

Of course, McLarnin had old Pop Foster to do a lot of his thinking outside the ring . . . But once the bell tolled the Vancouver Irishman was on his own and he usually didn't need any outside help . . . The McLarnin-Ross battles long have become classics in ring history. . . . Janiro, who has been boxing since he was 14, may never become the hitter McLarnin was . . . Pop Foster's "My Jimmy" in the early days of his career, wasn't a great puncher . . . But before his ring wars were over he was dropping atom bombs with those brittle and oft-broken hands of his . . .

Janiro's punch is crisp and stunning now rather than killing . . . But with each fight he seems to be putting more behind his punches and if he can learn to think for himself in the ring and improvise against the quick-witted top men in the welterweight division, Champion Ray Robinson has a challenger in the making . . . That is if Sugar Ray should decide to confine himself strictly to the middleweight ranks. . .

Janiro, in making Pellone his 57th victim in 60 fights, earned $16,000 but hopes to get a better cheque when he takes on Beau Jack in a 10-rounder at the Garden Feb. 21 . . .

Greco Better.

When curly-haired Tony was asked if Pellone was better than Greco, who had beaten him twice, Tony commented: "No, and I'll tell you why. Pellone's got strength but he doesn't know how to use it as well. Greco moves you and he knows why he's pushing you if he does. But this Pellone, if he looks awkward outside the ring, it's nothing compared to how he looks when he's in front of you."

Space is Pinched Scholars Protest

Johannesburg, South Africa, Jan. 13 (CP)— Parents of children at two Johannesburg suburban schools staged a one-day protest against lack of accommodation at the schools by keeping their children away from classrooms for 24 hours.

Altogether 803 of the 923 pupils on the combined registers were absent. In addition, two school committees resigned.

Parents say that their representations for the last 14 years for increased accommodation have achieved nothing. They complain that accommodation in some of the new schools is "luxurious" and give as an instance one school which has a "palatial" hall and three science laboratories.

As a result of the "strike" the director of education agreed to see representatives of the school committees.

Canadian Sport Snapshots

By SYD THOMAS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Montreal, Jan. 13 (CP)—As might have been expected, there has been considerable tumult around Montreal about those five goals scored by Howie Meeker at Toronto last Wednesday. Those counters set the Toronto citizenry gleefully boosting Meeker for the Calder rookie award, to the detriment of Montreal's pride and joy, blond flash Leo Gravelle, who is more aptly known to his teammates as the Gazelle.

The first two of the quintet of goals that put Howie ahead of the Gazelle boy in the scoring race, are the ones drawing pointed remarks. They were first credited to Wally Stanowski and later shifted to Meeker after conferences between the officials and players. The argument was that Meeker deflected Stanowski's shots into the net, but with even those at the rink as much in the dark as outsiders, the debate will rage loud and long whether it was Howie's stick or part of his body that sent the rubber flipping behind luckless Paul Bibeault.

In the latter case, Stanowski would have to receive credit, with no assists handed out, according to National Hockey League directives.

Around About

Appraising the late unlamented football scandal across the border, Elmer (Montreal Herald) Ferguson pauses to wonder what effect it will have on McGill University's present gridiron dilemma. The Redmen, the doormats of the intercollegiate league last fall, are pondering whether to import good coaches and players and go all out for victory, or whether as Fergie puts it, "that disappearing thing, true amateurism, should continue to prevail—along with losing games." . . . . Quebec Aces of the Quebec Senior Hockey League are seeking affiliation with a pro team, possibly Detroit Red Wings of the N.H.L. But meanwhile, Quebec Alouettes of the Canadian-American pro baseball loop are severing relations with Chicago Cubs of the National circuit.

SKATING ARENA AT SMITHS FALLS IS DESTROYED

Built of Wood Sheathed With Galvanized Iron and of Huge Dimension

Smith Falls, Jan. 13 —(CP)—The Smith Falls Arena, a huge building in the centre of this rail town, was destroyed by fire early today.

Breaking out about midnight shortly after employees on duty in the building left, the blaze roared through the structure. A neighbor turned in an alarm at once but by the time firemen could reach the scene the entire building was a mass of flames.

The roof of the arena collapsed about 12:45 A.M., and it appeared at that point that the blaze was under control.

Built of wood sheeted with galvanized iron, the arena had been the home of Smith Falls Rideaus of the Rideau intermediate hockey league, who lost all their equipment in the blaze.

Housing an exceptionally large rink, the building, located on Victoria Avenue directly opposite the Canadian Pacific Railway station, was 200 feet in width and a full city block long. It was erected about 35 years ago and was owned by James Brothers, of Perth. Only recently it had been completely renovated.

Firemen working their hoses in sub-zero weather, became sheathed in ice and the flames leaped hundreds of feet in the air. They called in the Perth fire department for assistance and were able to keep the flames from spreading to nearby homes.

So far as could be learned early today, there were no injuries No accurate estimate of the damage was available.

BONSPIEL MOVES INTO FINAL WEEK

Nipawin, Sask., Jan. 13 (CP)—Play in the round-robin event leading to the $12,000 Nipawin bonspiel's grand prize of four 1947 model cars will begin today after the last of the 12 rinks to compete in the draw has been decided.

All but one of the 12 rinks in the featured draw had been determined by the time play ended Saturday night. Additionally, finalists in two of the 'spiel's other events were known and three of the four places in the third event had been decided.

Facing each other in the No.1 event final will be Cliff Manahan of Edmonton, former Dominion Curling champion, and Norm Fawcett of Wartime, Sask. In the No. 2 event the finalists are Howard Wood of Winnipeg, also a former Dominion titlist, and Walter Polski of Virginia, Minn., lone American entry in the bonspiel.

Ab Marlatt of Swan River, Man., Aubrey Cochran of Shaunavon Sask., and Don Sinclair of Nipawin are in the fours of the No. 3 event. The remaining berth will be taken by the winner of the game between J. McCook of Flin Flon, Man., and Dalt Henderson of Saskatoon.

All rinks entering the fours of the 'spiel's three other events qualify for the two-group round-robin series. The 11 rinks now in the draw are those skipped by Manahan, Fawcett, Wood Polski, Marlatt, Cochran, Sinclair, George Furminger of Prince Albert, Bill Dunbar of Kinley, Sask., George Simmers of Vancouver and George Edworthy of Arborfield, Sask.

The best curling of the 'spiel's opening week was seen when Manahan out-curled Dunbar 12-10 in a 13-end game Saturday. Another game, close during the first seven ends, saw veteran Wood's Winnipeg quartet come back in the latter ends to win handily 15-8.

A third former Dominion champion Leo Johnson of Winnipeg did not fare so well, being eliminated from the No. 3 event 10-5 by Cochron.

Explosion Injures New Zealand V.C.

Christchurch, N.Z. —(CP)—Capt. C. H. Upham, only winner of the V.C. and Bar in the Second World War, is at present in hospital suffering from severe burns which will keep him in bed for some weeks.

Captain Upham, now warming at Rafa Downs, North Canterbury, in the South Island of New Zealand, was injured when a petrol lamp exploded at his farm. Characteristically he refused to allow an ambulance to be sent for him, but made the long journey to hospital in the back of his farm truck.

NEW DRUGS FOR ASTHMA

Kallner, of the Carolinian Hospital in Stockholm, reports successful treatment of asthma patients during the last six years with sulfa drugs, and more recently, penicillin, which some people find more agreable to take. His record to date is 92 per cent cured cases.

LEAGUE STANDING UNCHANGEDAFTER WEEKEND GAMES

Buffalo Bisons Complete String of Fourteen Games With One Loss, Four Ties

(By The Canadian Press)

Completing a string of 14 American Hockey League games with but a single loss, showing what an irate owner can do, fighting four games to deadlocks and keeping the next lower team in its place—such were the activities that dominated league play during the weekend.

Buffalo notched No. 14 in its victory-one-loss string last night downing visiting St. Louis, cellar-team of the Western Division, 4-1. The third-place Buffalo helped fourth-place Pittsburgh to stay in fourth place.

Rookie centre Jim McFadden notched his sixth goal in four games for Buffalo and Les Hickey, a newcomer up from Ottawa Senators, added another with Tommy Cooper and Jerry Brown counting the other Bison scores. Harvey Olson tallied the losers' one goal.

Owner Lou Pieri of Providence got tangible results from his shake-up of the team after Wednesday's 8-1 defeat by Pittsburgh. Last night two of his newly-acquired players, Eddie Bush and Rosie Rossignol, each came through with a goal to help down Philadelphia 6-4.

Leading Scorer Gets Two

Tommy uBrlington, Roger Bedard, Charley Scherza and Stanley counted the other markers for the Reds. The league's leading scorer, Phil Hergesheimer, tallied twice for the losers while Bill Warwick and Billy Muretich also scored.

With a 2-0 count against them as the game entered its third phase, New Haven, for the third consecutive game, pulled its chestnuts out of the fire. This time they tied Hershey 2-2.

Norm Tustin and Scotty Cameron counted for New Haven and Hymie Buller and Gordie Bruce for Hershey.

Indianapolis in last night's other game routed Pittsburgh 5-2 as Tony Licari, Enio Sclizzi Gerry Couture, Steve Wochy and Sam Kennedy crashed the net. Mel Hill with two tallies was the Hornets only scorer.

Pittsburgh's 5-0 trouncing of Philadelphia Saturday was the night's only none-tie game. Hershey and Cleveland knotted 4-4, St. Louis and Indianapolis matched each other 3-3, and Springfield drew 5-5 with Buffalo.

League standing was unchanged.

Referee Has No Recollection Of Game in Dallas

(By The Canadian Press)

Referee Harry Ornest of Edmonton can't remember the Dallas-Fort Worth United States hockey league game of Jan. 2—but the spectators who slugged him are likely to remember it for a long while.

Herman W. Peterson, executive vice-president of the league said before going to Fort Worth Sunday to investigate the slugging: "If the situation warrants, the league intends to prosecute the case to the fullest."

Ornest was in the hospital suffering a concussion for several days following the game but was back in action Saturday as referee of the Dallas-Omaha encounter. He said that he had no recollection of the game at Fort Worth in which he was injured.

In last night's games Minneapolis again broke its oft-repeated tie with Omaha when a second period tally by Tom Forgie gave the Millers a 1-0 victory over St. Paul.

Hard-driving Houston with some much needed new talent has hit its stride. After winning only four games all season, the Skippers have won three and tied one of their last four games. Their latest triumph was a 5-0 trimming of highly-rated Omaha last night.

The Skipper goal scorers were Marcel Dheere, George Agar, Pete Horeck, Frank Eisenzoph and Kalapaca.

Outhustling and outskating Fort Worth, Kansas City trounced the Rangers 7-2 last night as Hank Blade counted twice for the victors and Ray Powell Johnny Harms, Silvestri, Olmstead and Butler notched singles. V. Jones and Alex Ritson counted for the losers while goalie Merton Orphet held the victors scoreless for 15 minutes of the third frame, after taking over at the beginning of the period.

Saturday St. Paul and Minneapolis tied 2-2, Omaha and Dallas knotted 3-3 and Tulsa downed Fort Worth 2-1.

Dockers, Stevedores Join London Strike

Protest Against Use of Troops To Move Supplies

Govt. Sets up Negotiating Machinery to Halt Strike

London, Jan. 14 — (CP) — A mass meeting of London dock workers voted today to join some 30,000 union laborers in a walkout protesting the use of troops to move food supplies held up by a nine-day strike of London truck drivers.

The decision, which may affect all of London's 24,000 organized dock workers, was reached at a 40-minute noon hour meeting attended by between 1,200 and 1,400 men who ignored appeals of union leaders to remain at work.

After the strike vote, two officials of the powerful Transport and General Workers Union, which was headed by Ernest Bevin before he became foreign secretary, mounted an air raid shelter to speak, but their advice to return to work was shouted down.

The truck drivers walked out last Monday in protest against a government board award which did not fully accede to their demands for a 44-hour week, two weeks of paid vacation, paid sick leave and overtime working changes.

To Phone Decision

J. McLaughlin, one of the leaders of the rank and file dockers' protest, said the decision of the London stevedores would be telephoned to the 16,000 dock workers at Liverpool.

A shouted "Yes" answered a mass meeting question: "Do you agree that the road transport man cannot get a fair deal when they are being blacklegged by troops?" (Blackleg is the British term for strikebreaker).

The number of dock workers to quit could not be ascertained immediately. National membership of the union, a branch of the TGWU, was estimated at 54,000.

Earlier, laborers at two of the city's large food markets — Billingsgate and Spitalfields — announced their decision to quit in protest against the use of troops to replace the striking truck drivers.

More than 2,000 soldiers—angrily termed "blacklegs (strikebreakers) in uniform" by the strikers — and 800 service vehicles meanwhile began their second day of lugging meat and other food to retailers serving 10,000,000 inhabitants of the Greater London area.

With the soldiers taking over delivery duties, food is limited quantities began re-appearing in London shops that had been almost drained of supplies during the work stoppage.

Employers and union officials meanwhile scheduled a meeting in the labor ministry to set up machinery designed to end the strike.

The central idea of the government plan is believed to be a bypassing of the road haulage central wages Board with its statutory limitations in favor of a "joint industrial council" for direct negotiations between the strikers and hundreds of small employers.

Will Make Peace Offer

The employers and union officials will attempt to have the new machinery set up in time to make a peace offer to the mass meeting of union delegates scheduled for Wednesday.

The employers, however, insist that negotiation on the men's claim should not begin until the strikers have returned to work, and the road haulage central wages board maintains the wage scales by statute cannot be revised until Jan. 21.

The government's move to end the strike — which is unapproved by union leaders — was the first such move on the part of the government since the strike began nine days ago, and came as the result of talks last night by Labor Minister Isaacs with union and employers' representatives.

Guards Are Used

Yesterday's 8,000 soldiers, many Coldstream Guards, delivered 5,500 tons of fresh meat and 100 tons of canned meat — one-quarter of the city's weekly ration—from huge Smithfield market to retail stores. And at midnight they loaded army trucks with 900 tons of fresh meat for distribution this morning.

Sixteen Charged With Trafficking In Ration Coupons

Ottawa, Jan. 14. (CP)—Sixteen members of an alleged "ring" which dealt in stolen ration coupons will be arraigned in city court Friday in what R.C.M.P. officials have described as one of the biggest rationing rackets uncovered since the start of the war.

The sixteen face from one to four charges which are expected to be patterned on those laid last week against G. Howard Lamb, 38, night supervisor at the E. B. Eddy Company at Hull, Que., where the alleged "illegal trafficking" in used butter, sugar and meat coupons is said to have been initiated.

Lamb is charged with illegally obtaining ration coupons, unlawfully obtaining rationed goods, conspiracy to obtain ration coupons illegally and making false statements to police.

The other 15 persons are either grocery store managers or store employees. One is a salesman for a grocery concern, two are drivers for a dairy and another two are employees of the Eddy firm. One woman charged—Mrs. Gertrude Burton of Ottawa—is the wife of a city grocer. Police said her husband is not implicated.

Those charged are:

Lucien Viau and Roland Arvisais, of Hull, Que.; Rene Lajoie, Cryville, Ont.; Jack Armstrong, Leslie Dubroy, Adrien Provost, Gertrude Burton, Emory Edward Leblanc, Rheal Jolicoeur, Dewey Larose, Homer Hudon, Lucien Lajoie, C. J. Mandia, and Albert Seguin, all of Ottawa.

The ring is said by officials to have been based on recovery by Eddy Company employees of partly mutilated used coupons which were taken to the paper mill by the local ration officials for disposal in a disintegrating machine.

DEPENDING ON THREE

Philadelphia, Jan. 14 —(AP)— Owner-Manager Connie Mack of the Philadelphia Athletes has signed the three players around which he hopes to build a winning team this year.

The trio—outfielder Sam Chapman, catcher Buddy Rosar and pitcher Phil Marchildon of Penetanguishene — are considered the backbone of the club.

Willie Francis, Rubbing Elbows With Death Second Time, Unafraid

By ELLIOTT CHAZE

New Iberia, La., Jan. 14—(AP)—Lanky Willie Francis is rubbing elbows with death today but he's "right interested to find out if I can die like the man I thought I was."

Francis, who once cheated the electric chair when a mechanical malfunction allowed him to walk away from it alive, was singularly cool when he learned that the United States Supreme Court had ruled him subject to another trip to the chair.

"I always sort of wondered if I was a brave man," the tall Negro said in an interview here today.

"Now I guess maybe I'm gonna find out. And I'm gonna find out the hard way, boss, so there won't be no doubt in my mind when I leave. A lot of men never find out. A lot of men die still wondering if they was the men they thought they was."

Francis was sentenced to die for a robbery slaying.

Told by his attorney, Bertrand S. De Blanc, that a motion will be filed for another Supreme Court hearing, Francis said simply:

"It's the same thing. The same old thing. A man's got to die some time and I reckon my time has plumb done come." Earlier he said the same thing to Sheriff Gilbert Ozenne, who brought the news of the unfavorable Supreme Court decision to him in his Parish jail cell.

Francis smilingly refused the sheriff's offer to carry the news to relatives. "No thanks," he told the sheriff. "If I need you, I'll let you know. I got four bucks and some funny books and the good Lord's Bible, and I still got the breath in my chest. No thanks."

Governor Jimmie H. Davis of Louisiana has said he will sign another death warrant for Francis as soon as his office receives the Supreme Court's mandamus that a second trip to the chair would not constitute cruel and unusual punishment.

Told of this Francis said:

"Death and me is old neighbors. But remember this, I'm a closer neighbor of the Lord."

DISUNITED CANADA A POWERLESS ONE SAYS ST. LAURENT

Secretary of State For External Affairs Wants To Develop Sounder Canadian Citizenship

Toronto, Jan. 14 —(CP)— Canada's role in world affairs can prosper only as long as she maintains unity within her own shores, for a disunited Canada will be a powerless one, Rt. Hon. L. S. St. Laurent, secretary of state for external affairs, said at the University of Toronto's Convocation Hall last night.

First speaker to appear at Convocation Hall under the auspices of the newly founded Duncan and John Gray memorial lectureship, he said "we must act as a united people, who through reflection and discussion have arrived at a common understanding of our interests and purposes."

The lectureship was established by George L. Gray, as a memorial to his two sons, to foster better understanding of French Canada and to develop a sounder conception of Canadian citizenship.

Mr. St. Laurent said the basic principle on which Canadians were agreed was that the country's external policies should not destroy its unity.

This policy, he said, should be applied, not only to the two main cultural groups but also to each small section of Canada.

"We dare not fashion a policy or class of this country," he said. "We must be on guard especially against the claims of extravagant regionalism, no matter where they originate."

Dislike Force Rule

He said Canadians as a people have come to dislike and distrust governments which rule by force and have consistently sought their friends among nations of similar political traditions.

Of the British Commonwealth of Nations, Mr. St. Laurent maintained Canada had contributed perhaps more than any other member to its development, and he termed her participation in the Commonwealth "an achievement in which Canadians can take especial pride."

At the same time, he said, Canada would resist any developments in her relations with the British Commonwealth which might be inconsistent with her desire to participate fully in the task of building an effective international organization on a wider scale.

"We seek to preserve our membership in the Commonwealth as an instrument through which we, with others who share our objectives, can co-operate for our common good in peace as in war," he said.

He warned that Canada's "easy-going, neighborly relationship" with the United States will not be maintained "without constant watchfulness."

Restricted Construction Other Than Housing Not Favored by Assoc. Head

Niagara Falls, Jan. 14. (CP)—Setting the keynote for the 19th annual meeting of the Canadian Construction Association, the presidential review of Albert Deschamps read at the opening luncheon here today, said "we believe people who advocate the elimination of all construction other than housing will upon further reflection realize that such a policy would seriously hamper Canada's reconversion program."

The address was read by Allan C. Ross, of Ottawa, first vice president of the Association in the absence of Mr. Deschamps, who is recovering from a recent accident.

"We do believe however," the paper said, "that certain types of construction should be deferred at least until 1948, for the reason that they do not rank as immediately essential."

As examples of projects which might be included in such a list, Mr. Deschamps named theatres and other places of amusement, Summer cottages and luxury homes.

"To confine the activities of our industry solely to housing, however, would by no means solve the housing situation for the reason that production of many types of material used in the building of houses is by no means sufficient to take care of even the present volume of housebuilding."

Forecasting the demands for construction during the present year, the paper expressed the belief there was every indication that the current heavy demand for construction will continue and that there is a distinct possibility that they will exceed those of 1946.

Mr. Deschamps paid tribute to the leaders of organized labor in the construction field. He was critical, however, of "certain other unions which have not shown a sense of responsibility."

It was little wonder, the paper said, that production costs had risen, "for apparently labor must learn the hard way that wage increases without commensurate production, can never constitute a real gain to the worker."

POLICE BELIEVE FONTE VICTIM OF MURDER GANG

Toronto Dishwasher Missing Since December 26th and Died of Hemorrhage From Fractures

Toronto, Jan. 14 — (CP) — A few facts and a lot of supposition emerged today in the probe of the slaying of Angelo Fonte, 57-year-old restaurant dishwasher whose body was found in a culvert on a lonely suburban highway Sunday.

The facts were that Fonte had been missing since Dec. 26; that he was not shot, but died of hemorrhage from multiple fractures, probably caused by a blunt instrument; that it was difficult to say how long he had been dead but "it might have been a considerable time."

These facts emerged from the autopsy performed last night by Dr. I. H. Erb, provincial pathologist, who found five wounds behind the left ear, multiple fractures of the lower jaw, the skull and the bridge of the nose.

The supposition, from remarks dropped by police investigators, was that he was victim of a "murder gang" operating out of Hamilton which police also blame for two other slayings and one disappearance in the last few years.

The slayings were those of Bessie Perri, wife of underworld king Rocco Perri, in Hamilton 17 years ago; and Louis Wernick of Toronto, alleged dope and alcohol runner, whose body was found 2 years ago not far from where Fonte's body was found.

Given up for Dead

The disappearance was that of Rocco Perri himself, self-styled "king of the bootleggers," missing and given up for dead at Hamilton since 1944.

Along this line of conjecture Hamilton records showed still two more unsolved disappearances which might or might not be connected.

In September, 1944, John Durso dropped from sight and nothing further was heard of him except that his car was found sunk in the old Welland canal at Thorold. A few months after this, Paul Doneff, shoe-shine parlor proprietor, was reported missing. He was to have been a witness in a criminal case in Toronto.

After a Christmas Day dinner at the home of his brother, Frank Ross, in Toronto, Fonte told him:

"No matter what happens to me I want you to eat, drink and enjoy yourself." Ross had changed his name from Fonte years ago to avoid confusion when both brothers were working at the same place.

Toronto police, definitely working on the Hamilton gang theory, were trying to link Fonte's slaying with a brutal history of conflict arising out of gambling and traffic in liquor and drugs over many years.

POLISH TRIBUNAL PASSES SENTENCE OF DEATH ON 3

Count Grosholski and Two Others Faced Charges of High Treason

By LARRY ALLEN

Warsaw, Jan. 14 —(AP)— A Polish military tribunal today sentenced Count Kawery Grosholski and two other men to death for high treason on charges they were members of an organization which sought to overthrow the Warsaw government by force.

During the trial, one of the defendants testified that the British ambassador to Poland had received state and military secrets from the underground organization, known as WIN.

Condemned with Grosholski were Waldemar Baczak, 24, former employee of the Polish foreign ministry, and Capt. Witold Kalicki, 36, of the interior security corps.

Dark-haired, attractive Chrystina Kosiorek, 22, the fourth defendant, was sentenced to 10 years imprisonment.

Another military court sentenced to death five members of the N.S.Z. underground organization on charges of attacking the Krakow prison last August and freeing 80 political prisoners. Five others were given long prison terms.

The presiding judge, Col. Martin Bartmn, said the defendants had been granted seven days in which to appeal to the supreme military tribunal.

Key Figure in Case.

He emphasized that Count Grosholski, 43-year-old key figure in the case, was sentenced on the high treason charge, and that an accusation concerning collaboration with the Nazis during the occupation was not within the province of the military tribunal.

The tribunal reviewed the indictment and evidence in the two-day trial held last week, and the connections of the defendants with WIN, which stands for Wolnosc I Niepodleglosc, meaning freedom and independence.

It did not comment directly on testimony given by Baczak concerning the alleged supply of state information to "the English ambassador." The envoy, Victor Cavendish-Bentinck, is at present in London for consultations concerning the Polish elections next Sunday.

Rejects Implication.

(The British Foreign Office Friday night rejected any implication that Britain's ambassador to Poland had plotted with an underground organization. While conceding that the ambassador had had a long acquaintance with Count Grosholski, the Foreign Office said it was "satisfied that Mr. Cavendish-Bentinck has not been engaged in any improper activities, still less in activities directed against the Polish state.")

DECISION IN DICK APPEAL UNLIKELY UNTIL WEDNESDAY

Chief Justice Voices Opinion Whole Story Of Mrs. Dick and Of Slaying Not Told

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP).—Chief Justice R. S. Robertson of the Ontario Appeal Court today expressed the opinion that the whole story of Mrs. Evelyn Dick of Hamilton and the March murder of her husband John has not been told—and smilingly cast doubt on her statement she married John Dick because he brought her soap chips.

The court adjourned during the noon hour, reserving judgment in the case. A decision is not expected before tomorrow.

As the Crown concluded its case in the fourth day of the appeal of the 26-year-old Hamilton widow against conviction of the March 6 torso murder and her sentence to be hanged Feb. 7, the Chief Justice commented:

"One can't avoid the feeling that we have not had the full story.

"Why did she marry this man—soap chips were not the reason?"

T. J. Rigney, K.C., who was special Crown prosecutor at Mrs. Dick's trial last October, offered no explanation for the Dick marriage in October, 1945, five months before the Hamilton street car driver was slain and his body dismembered, but noted that originally Mrs. Dick, her father, Donald MacLean, her mother and her one-time friend Bill Bohozuk, were all charged with the murder. Later the charge against Mrs. Alexandra MacLean was dropped and it was decided to proceed separately against Mrs. Dick in the interests of a "fairer trial" for all accused in view of the statements she had made to police.

It was decided to try Mrs. Dick separately so the jury, without prejudice to the other accused, could pass on the actions of "this unfortunate" woman.

But there was no reference to explain any—if there are any—untold parts in the Dick murder story which John Robinette of Toronto, counsel for Mrs. Dick, declared was, on the basis of trial evidence, "still a mystery".

He mentioned this in his opening day's remarks last Thursday. At the outset of today's proceedings, Cecil Snyder, Ontario Deputy Attorney-General, said, as he wound up the Crown's case that he now was possessed of "certain information" in the case other than that contained in the trial evidence.

He asked that the conviction be upheld, argued the trial of the woman, and admission of her statements as evidence were proper.

Verbal Free-for-all in Timmins Council Over Taxi Drivers' Hours

Timmins, Jan. 14 (CP)—A verbal free-for-all upset the decorum of Timmins council last night when the contentious matter of the eight-hour day for taxi drivers came under discussion.

What eventually emerged was a decision to defer presentation of a resolution asking council to scrap a clause in a town by-law limiting the driver to the eight-hour day.

The 150 spectators showed by their remarks they were as evenly divided as council on the subject. Mayor J. Emile brunette led the fight to retain the eight-hour shift. A bloc of union delegates in the spectators' gallery gave him vociferous support

"We feel the move to scrap the by-law clause is a show of anti-union policy by town council," declared Leo (Buck) Behie, International Organizer of the United Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers (C.I.O.) who told council he represented Local 241 of his union, civic workers, and taxi unions.

A wave of applause followed and councillor J. P. Bartelman asked the Mayor to curb the spectators.

"You ordered them to be quiet last week when they applauded," he said.

"I only check the applause to traitors," replied the Mayor.

"For the past 30 years labor in Canada has been fighting for the eight-hour day," said Mr. Behie. He attacked councillor Leo Del Villano, original sponsor of the scrapping resolution, saying: "What amazed me is that a working man wearing a union button made the motion.

Councilor Villano rose and fought back.

"Let me warn labor," he said, "that if you are going to use the police to enforce the eight-hour day, somebody is going to see that the police are used to enforce their rights."

Before Mayor Brunette made a motion to defer action until Jan. 20, Ralph Carlin, business agent for Local 241, I.U.M.M. and S.W., shouted across the floor to councillor J. E. H Chateauvert; "you are here as a servant of the people and the sooner you realize it the better it will be!"

The councillor had answered spectators' attacks by getting to his feet and saying: "I don't think we are here to be insulted by anyone"

Increases to Seven Cents a Pound Approved by Bd.

Adjustments Bring Prices In Line With Bacon Exports

Ottawa, Jan. 14 — (CP) — The Prices Board announced today retail price increases ranging from two to seven cents a pound on bacon and other pork products to bring them into line with recent increases in the export price of bacon sold to Britain.

The increases become effective Wednesday.

They will mean an increase to the consumer of approximately seven cents a pound for lard and from two to three cents a pound for fresh and cured pork cuts, three to six cents for cooked pork cuts and four to seven cents for smoked bacon with corresponding adjustments for other pork products.

Sausage Included

The Board also announced an upward adjustment in maximum prices of pork and commercial sausage, weiners and bologna, also effective Wednesday.

This increase, together with adjustments made last month, will result in a consumer price advance of approximately six cents a pound on pork sausages, weiners and bologna and seven cents a pound on commercial sausages.

Officials said the new domestic ceilings on bacon and pork products will continue to maintain the same relationship on a carcass basis between the export price and domestic ceilings.

In announcing the new rates, they pointed out that cooked and smoked cuts of pork, pork fancy meats and lard will carry the greatest price increase with prices of the more standard cuts varying only slightly.

Of the increase in sausages, weiners and bologna, they said that it was no longer possible to produce these products at existing ceilings because of higher prices for raw materials, labor, packaging and other supplies.

Want Less Pork Used

The higher pork prices, which followed an announcement last week of an increase of $2 a 100 pounds in the British bacon contract price, are believed to be aimed primarily at swinging domestic consumption away from pork and into beef.

This would enable Canada to ship greater quantities of bacon, production of which has been falling steadily over the last year, to Britain to maintain the United Kingdom's bacon ration.

When Agriculture Minister Gardiner announced the new export bacon price two weeks ago, he indicated that domestic prices would be adjusted accordingly. Another $2 increase in the export price becomes effective Sept. 1 this year and it is expected domestic retail prices will again advance at that time.

Surgery May Aid Singer's Hiccough

Alexandria, La., Jan. 14 — (AP)— Dr. Lester Samuels, surgeon at the Veterans Hospital here, left by plane today for New York to perform an operation which it is hoped will relieve, a case of hiccoughs which for 60 days has afflicted Anna Mayer, 23-year-old opera singer.

The surgeon will be complying with a Presidential order when he makes the flying trip to repeat an operation he performed on Miss Mayer four years ago to end a similar siege.

Sources close to Dr. Samuels said the office of Cardinal Spellman in New York had called here and reported that Miss Mayer's condition was serious. The report said the frequency of hiccoughs was 20 times a minute, that her pulse was 140, and that her weight had dropped from 140 to 85 pounds.

Icing Conditions Leave Fruit Trees Unharmed

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP) — Snow storms and severe icing conditions have not harmed Ontario's fruitlands although blocked roads have prevented the shipment of livestock, the Department of Agriculture said today in the weekly crop report.

Western Ontario reports record prices for cattle. In Dufferin county farmers report potatoes plentiful but in poor demand. Throughout the entire southern district livestock is reported in good condition, and it is moving to market rapidly

The demand continues good for pure-bred Holstein cattle in southern Ontario. Feed, with the exception of some concentrates, is in good supply. Lambton county reports cattle stabled in thin condition, unsuitable to market for beef.

Egg production is on the upswing in central Ontario. Blocked roads have cut shipment of livestock to market to a minimum. In Victoria county some farmers report a scarcity of feed.

In eastern Ontario, chick hatchery operators report orders for more earlier chicks than usual and incubators have been started already. Large quantities of Beaver oats have been shipped to the United States from the Vankleek Hill district.

Throughout northern Ontario generally egg production has been good but in Cochrane north many farmers report their flocks are not laying as well as other years. Milk production is being maintained and as a general rule cattle throughout the district are in good condition.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Jan. 14 —(CP)—Synopsis: Warm air from the south continues to spread over Ontario and temperatures are rising steadily. Skies are generally overcast. Occasional freezing drizzle is reported from points in the Haliburton and Kirkland Lake sections. An intense storm centred near Winnipeg is moving northeastward about 30 m.p.h. Snow from this storm has penetrated well into northwestern Ontario. Much colder air is pushing south and east behind the centre. Slightly cold air will reach southwestern Ontario this evening. The really cold air is not expected to reach this area before Wednesday evening.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

The annual meeting of the Belleville Agricultural Society is being held this afternoon in the City Hall. The election of officers for the coming year, reading of reports and other items of important business were on the agenda.

The annual meeting of the Central Fairs Association is expected to be held in the city next week when dates for the various fairs of the district for 1947 will be set.

FINED FOR LEAVING SCENE OF ACCIDENT

Pleading guilty to leaving the scene of an accident and also to a charge of careless driving, William Gerow, South John street, was fined $10 and costs plus $5 and costs in local magistrate's court before Magistrate T. Y. Wills.

Charges arose as result of an accident over the week-end when a car driven by Gerow was in collision with another vehicle parked on Dundas street. Without stopping Gerow continued on his way but Police Constable Doherty, off duty at the time, witnessed the accident and took note of the licence number. Checking records the identity of the owner was established with the result that the charges were laid against the accused. The accused was represented in court by E. E. Follwell.

SUPREME COURT JURY SITTINGS OPEN

Jury sittings of the Supreme Court of Ontario commenced at the Hastings County Court buildings on Monday afternoon before Honorable Mr. Justice Urquhart as the Hamilton vs. Poirier and Cummings case went to trial. The action arose as the result of a fatal accident which occurred at Stirling in October, 1945.

Non-jury cases listed for trial include Plummer vs. the Town of Trenton, and Bradley vs. Wright, a case involving a breach of covenant. Also listed for trial are two divorce cases, Skinner vs. Skinner, and Elliott vs. Elliott.

Two motions, Taylor vs. Taylor and Allison vs. Allison are also before the court.

Sell War Goods In Record Time

Canberra (CP)—In record time, the Australian War Disposals Commission is completing the biggest job ever undertaken by a private or government business organization in Australia.

A federal government agency, the commission with its staff of 600, including public servants in key positions, has sold about 80 per cent of the country's surplus material at auction sales in Australia, New Guinea and Papua, and the Solomon Islands.

The commission is expected to finish in about two years' the work which the government had estimated would take more than twice as long. So far the sales have yielded $225,000,000.

REVERSAL HINTED

Indication that Arab leaders would reverse their previous decision not to participate in the oft.- delayed Anglo-Jewish-Arab talks in London aimed at finding a solution to the growing strife in Palestine has been given by Jamal Bey Al-Husseini (shown here), deputy president of the Arab higher committee. Committee president is the Grand Mufti of Jerusalem, now living in British exile in Egypt. Formula would probably be for Britain to invite all Arab leaders, including the Mufti, with the tacit understanding that Al-Husseini, and not the exiled leader, would attend the conference.

Butter Output For 1946 Declined 23,391,000 lbs.

Ottawa, Jan. 14 (CP)—The Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today that creamery butter production in December totalled 10,292,000 pounds against 10,505,000 pounds in December, 1945, bringing production for the whole of 1946 to 270,150,000 pounds against 293,541,000 pounds in 1945.

Of the December figures, the bureau said declines in production were reported in all provinces except Quebec and Ontario, which showed advances of 9.7 and 9.5 per cent, respectively.

The bureau said an appraisal of the creamery butter situation over the first four months of 1947 indicated that, on the basis of present levels of rations and allocations, prospective supplies will be approximately 11,000,000 pounds below requirements.

(It was announced from London last week that Britain has ordered the diversion of 12,000,000 pounds of Australian and New Zealand butter to Canada to maintain the individual Canadian butter ration at its current rate of six ounces weekly.)

In arriving at its estimate, the bureau added, production was calculated at 2 per cent lower than in the corresponding period of 1946. Allowance also was made for a carry-over at May 1 of 9,000,000 pounds, a minimum storage figure considered necessary to provide for uniform distribution of supplies.

With stocks at Jan. 1, 1947, added to production as estimated on that bases, there would be available a total supply of approximately 93,000,000 pounds of butter for the January-April period. Deducting the minimum storage carryover and making allowance for exports and imports on the basis as last year, approximately 82,000,000 pounds would be left for domestic use.

On the other hand, at present rates of rations and allocations, about 93,600,000 pounds of creamery butter would be required for domestic distribution during this period. Thus the gap between prospective supplies and requirements is in the neighborhood of 11,000,000 pounds.

Cheddar cheese make totalled 2,501,000 pounds in December, and 141,283,000 pounds for the full year, the former representing a decline of nearly 15 per cent, and the latter a decrease of approximately 23 per cent. In Ontario the production of cheese for the month totalled 1,465,000 pounds, an increase of one per cent over December, 1945, while in November there was a decline of nearly 11 per cent. December production in Quebec was 695,000 pounds, a decline of 41 per cent.

Unemployment Average About 3 P.C. in 1946

Ottawa, Jan. 14 — (CP)—Unemployed persons in Canada averaged only about three per cent of those employed in 1946, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported today.

During the year, the average unemployment was 143,000. The average number of persons with jobs was 4,652,000.

Reporting on four sample surveys taken in February, June, August and November, the Bureau found that employment had declined during the fall months, dropping from 4,860,000 to 4,733,000 from August to the first week in November. However, this was described as the usual seasonal decline from the summer peak of activity and was concentrated in agriculture.

At the same time, the number of unemployed — those looking for work — also declined, moving from 117,000 to 115,000.

Major changes in employment between August and November were in agriculture and construction, which declined, and in forestry, fishing, trapping and manufacturing, in which employment was on the increase.

DECISION IN DICK

Mr. Snyder said the information he possessed placed him "in a most difficult position".

Mrs. Dick, through her counsel, John Robinette, of Toronto, has contended that the trial judge, Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow, misdirected the jury, improperly allowed the woman's statements to police to be admitted as evidence and failed to inform the jury that circumstantial evidence pointed to Mrs. Dick as being an accessory after the fact and to her father as the murderer.

"I have never been in this position before, Your Lordships," said Mr. Snyder.

"I know you are bound by the trial evidence in this hearing. But I have certain other knowledge which I cannot give the court and which will be presented to a new court in Hamilton."

His position was difficult because if he gave Their Lordships the information in open court it might prejudice the forthcoming case in Hamilton.

Donald MacLean and William Nex week Mrs. Dick's father. Bohozuk, one-time friend of Evelyn, must stand trial on a charge of murdering Evelyn's street-car driving husband.

"Suppose you leave a certain amount to the discretion of the court," said Chief Justice R. S. Robertson.

"After all, we have certain argument before us from the appellant—that there has not been a fair trial and there should be a new trial."

With that Mr. Snyder, for the benefit of the court, attempted to place himself in the position of a juryman at the Hamilton trial, listed various circumstantial evidence that juryman would have heard.

"What is all this leading up to?" asked Mr. Justice R. E. Laidlaw.

"I am trying to show that on the circumstantial evidence a juryman could arrive at a verdict of guilty of murder," said Mr. Snyder.

Refuses to Attend Monument Unveiling

Greggs, Eire (CP)—James Dillon, independent member of the Dail, refused to attend the unveiling of a monument to Nationalist Leader Charles Parnell who died in 1891, because Prime Minister de Valera and not President Sean O'Kelly performed the ceremony.

Long prominent in Irish politics, Dillon told the organizing committee its arrangements were "incongruous" and it is "utterly intolerable ... to have the occasion of commemorating the outstanding figures in Irish history made into an opportunity of publicizing prominent contemporary politicians."

The monument, crowned by the head of Parnell, bears in Irish and English some of Parnell's last words: "Let my love be conveyed to my colleagues and the Irish people."

De Valera said Eire now has achieved more than Parnell "felt it expedient to demand in his day."

"Each generation has to march on the shoulders of its predecessors and, as Parnell marched on those of the Fenians, we, in our time, have marched to victory on the shoulders of the great generation which ended the power of the landlord and made it impossible for a foreign parliament to rule us."

KILLED IN STEEL PLANT

Kinsmen Officials View Triplet Layettes

Belleville Kinsmen Club contributed to the many donations received by the Davidson triplets born on New Year's Day at Bancroft Red Cross hospital after the parents travelled 28 miles through heavy snowdrifts to afford hospital attention at their birth.

Shown above are president of the local Kinsmen Club, Arthur Cruji, and treasurer, Frank Lang, with the three complete layettes donated by the club. In addition to the layettes the club forwarded a cheque for $75.

Baby John Joseph McNab Collects Tribute in Gifts From Merchants For Being First Baby Born New Year's

The proudest young gentleman in the city these days is Master John Joseph McNab, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack McNab, 136 Bleecker Avenue.

For young Master McNab was not only the first bundle from heaven in 1947 in this city, but also the first Canadian citizen to see the light of day in Belleville.

Not only that, but by virtue of his early arrival, the eight pound one-ounce scion of the McNab family has also collected the large quota of beautiful gifts donated by city merchants to the first cherub born in the New Year.

John Joseph is the first Canadian to be born in Belleville by virtue of the Canadian Citizenship Act proclaimed on July 1, 1946, and which came into force on January 1, 1947.

• • •

Many are the gifts which John Joseph has received and the little fella has daily smiled his appreciation of the lovely things to say nothing of that of his proud parents.

From the Percival Furniture Company he gets a "free ride" in the form of a handsome bassinette.

And when he takes his first step he will start off on the right foot in a pair of baby's white Pussy Foot boots, the gift of Leslie's Shoe Store.

And a lasting souvenir of His Majesty which will be treasured in later years will be an 8 by 10 tinted photograph of himself donated by Thompson and Reilly.

Snug and warm he will be as he cuddles under a carriage comforter, the gift of Walker Stores Ltd.

Also contributing to his comfort is a Madeira dress and wool sweater, the gift of McIntosh Brothers. We don't know how this little he-man will take to the idea of wearing a dress, but he'll probably swallow his pride when he sees the handsome garment.

Zeller's Store has given John Joe a neat baby bunting bag while the Canadian Department Store contributed a set of bath towels to His Majesty.

From Thompson's Furniture Shop comes a pretty chenille carriage set, while John Joseph's food will always be kept at the proper temperature by an electric bottle warmer, the gift of McKeown's Drug Store.

Lipson's Stores Ltd. donated merchandise to the value of $5 to be selected within the next three months, while the Capitol Theatre pays tribute to the lucky parents with the presentation of six pairs of theatre tickets, good anytime.

John Joseph was born at 7:20 New Year's Day and at present is doing very nicely, thank you.

Operating Expenses at B.C.I. and Four Public Schools Reach $280,000

That the matter of education is big business in the city of Belleville is indicated by the summary of receipts and expenditures for the Belleville Board of Education during 1946, which shows the operating expenses of the Belleville Collegiate and the four city public schools as being $280,000 for the year.

The summary of receipts and disbursements for schools under the direction of the local board was presented to board members at their inaugural meeting of the year held last Friday evening.

Cost of operating the Collegiate and Vocational School during the past year was given as $146,383, of which the Collegiate expenditure was $75,193. Operational expenses for the public school system was given as $133,740.

Salaries Main Cost.

Teachers' salaries made up for a major portion of the total expenditures in both school systems with instructional salaries at the Collegiate being $46,984 and $38,033 at the Vocational for a total of $85,017. Instructional salaries at the four public schools accounted were $85,807.

Administration at the Collegiate and Vocational School cost $6,297 while plant operation cost another $12,343 and plant maintenance a further $7,184.

Against these disbursements at the Collegiate and Vocational School there were receipts of $41,500 from the municipal levy; county claims made uo another $19,920 and government grants $73,542, including a grant of $43,677 for the vocational school.

Turning to the public school system administration cost $2,060; instructional supplies, $4,254; plant maintenance and operation $21,160 with capital outlays of $5,984 including work of establishing basement home economics and manual training classrooms.

Municipal Levy $85,000.

Government grants for the public schools were $41,500 and the municipal levy $85,000.

Supply teachers at the public schools cost the Board of Education $2,000.

Lands, buildings and equipments of the public schools system was valued at $454,204, with $131,666 being in the sinking fund. Debenture debt on public school property still outstanding was given as $258,854 with the investment equity placed at $327,016.

Capital of the Collegiate and Vocational School lands, buildings and equipment was set at $577,294 with $319,600 debenture debt still outstanding. Investment equity in the Collegiate and Vocational School was given as $257,694.

Caretakers' salaries at the Collegiate amounted to $7,056 and at the public schools $6,276. Fuel at the Collegiate cost $2,351 and at the public schools $3,725.

BELIEVES U. S. WILL HELP

New York, Jan. 14 — (AP) — Italian premier Alcide De Gasperi told his countrymen in a short-wave radio broadcast yesterday that his trip to the United States has given him "not only hope but certainty" that American held will enable Italy to make a complete economic recovery.

De Gasperi added that he had found nothing but goodwill towards his country during his American trip.

Dr. Bert Howard Explains Workings Of Club Council

Recent formation of the Belleville Inter-Service Club Council will do much towards preventing over-lapping of work by the various service clubs and will save much energy, effort and funds, members of the local Kinsmen Club were told at their regular dinner meeting Monday evening by Dr. Bert Howard, Albert College principal, and president of the council.

The service club council has as members the presidents of the five service clubs in the city, together with one other member from each club who is chosen by the president. The council meets the first Tuesday in each month to study carefully social needs in the city and thus co-ordinate efforts of the various clubs.

The constitution of the newly formed council was outlined by Dr. Howard who is possibly the dean of social workers in the city, having assisted in the inauguration of social work in the city of Winnipeg while he was going to university there during his college days. Officers of the council are to be elected in August of each year and are to serve for the following fiscal year.

Seek Co-ordination

Aims of the council would be to seek a co-ordination of service club work and to create a feeling of fellowship among the various clubs in the city.

A subtle undergrowth of competitive social work by the various service clubs in the city had been the factor which suggested the need of a service club council in Belleville, according to Dr. Howard. "Although hardly perceptible the competitive spirit was there," stated the council president, "but now I am quite convinced that as far as service club work is concerned we are making history in inter-service work."

That there was a great need for social work in the city Dr. Howard had no doubt. He stated that there were many people who were grand citizens but who have just had a streak of bad luck.

Badly in Need

"These people will not parade before the city hall asking for assistance but nevertheless are badly in need of help at their critical moment. We must bear in mind that it is not always the people who yell the loudest who need the most help."

Besides studying jointly the social needs of the city, it will be the aims of the council to survey the dates of the money making projects of the various clubs and in this way avoid encroachments. All project dates will be submitted to the council for approval.

The need of an expert social worker in the city was stressed by the speaker who declared that this appointment would necessarily have to be "kept out of politics" and placed under the direction of such a body as the service club council. The council secretary in the near future will approach city council with the view of obtaining a city grant to pay for the services of such a social worker.

Appreciation Expressed

Kinsmen publicity director Mr. Jack Sherwood introduced Dr. Howard to the club members while appreciation was expressed by Kin Jim Ward. Jack Fenn added to the evening's entertainment with two much appreciated cornet solos.

The matter of the club sponsoring juvenile hockey this winter was taken up by President Art Cruji with several members speaking against the project for this year owing to the lateness of the season. Kin Bill Dennis stated he would like to see the club sponsor bantam and midget hockey another year.

Chairman of the ways and means committee outlined the various club projects which had been lined up for this year.

IN MEMORIAM

FREDERICK — In loving memory of a dear husband, Wilbur Frederick, who died January 14, 1943.

Nothing can ever take away
The love a heart holds dear,
Fond memories linger every day,
Remembrance keeps him near.

—Ever remembered by his wife, Isabel.

KIMMETT — In loving memory of my dear grandmother, Mrs. Anna Kimmett, who passed away just one year ago today, January 14, 1946.

The silent night is lonely,
There is no golden dawn,
Because I must remember, love,
That you are really gone.
I must remember in my heart
The happiness we knew,
And our only world was one
In which I lived with you.

—Forever in my memory, your granddaughter Gwen.

Talk on Strange Customs of Burmese People Heard by Rotary Club

If you ever go to Burma and get mixed up with the Buddhists of that country, you need have no fear of getting "bumped off", shot at sunrise, or otherwise sent to your ancestors by way of a knife in the dark or any other mayhemic means.

For according to Mr. John Jury, of the Collegiate teaching staff here, who spent considerable time in that country, the Buddhists are firm believers in the transmigration of souls. Or in other words they believe that man returns to earth in the form of an animal or another person.

Thus they do not believe in killing, nor in eating meat. For they do not wish to slay an aunt or an uncle, brother or sister who may be in the vicinity in the form of a dog or a cat, nor do they wish to eat a grandmother or grandfather who may be grazing in a nearby pasture in the shape of a cow or a steer.

Lived In Country

Mr. Jury, in his address to the Rotary Club on Monday gave a highly informative insight into conditions in Burma and of the characteristics of its people. He is well qualified to speak on the subject for he spent several years in that Far Eastern country when his parents were missionaries there. He received his early education in Burma, later coming to Canada where he graduated from Bowmanville Collegiate and later from McMaster University. He is at present teaching English and history here.

He described in detail the geographic position of Burma and its various products. Divided into Upper and Lower Burma, the former is a tangled mass of mountain ranges and valleys, mostly unproductive. Lower Burma is one of the world's largest producers of rice while there is some oil and plenty of rubies.

Describing the different peoples of the country, Mr. Jury said the Burmans are small and brown, definitely lazy and let their women do all the work.

Women Wear Neck Rings

Then there are the Korpas and Shans and the Pedams. —The latter race or tribe, bedeck their women with a number of brass rings about the neck, which are supposed to add to the natural beauty. The rings are never taken off because the head would fall over to one side.

One of the world's richest pagodas is in Burma. It stands 318 feet in height and is covered with gold leaf. Its towering cupola is of solid gold. Speaking of pagodas, Mr. Jury said the Burman Buddhist, who does not want to return to earth in the form of a snake or a rat, builds a number of small pagodas in a field. The more pagodas the better chance he has of returning in a higher form of life. Thus it is that in many places ten-acre fields covered with these small shrines are apparent.

Then there is spirit worship in some places of Burma. The worshippers build large platforms and daily offerings of food are offered there to the village spirit. Christianity is not well established but is fairly well advanced.

Social Services Lag

There is not a high stage of civilization in Burma, the speaker said. Some blame this on the British while others say the British are responsible for what civilization there is. Social services lag far behind the western ideas of adequate standards.

The native leaders have different ideas. Some have constructive ideas of their own, while others keep busy by stirring up feeling against the British. Each accuses the other of collaboration with the Japanese during the war and there is a consistent feeling of disagreement.

Some British people feel that Burma is not yet ready for self rule, and the question of the day is what does Britain think of the situation. Burma definitely wants self rule and the solution, perhaps is to give her her head and let her work out her own salvation.

He was introduced by Rotarian Bill Morrison, with club appreciation expressed by Perc McGuire.

John McLelland Heads Men's Club Of Tabernacle Ch.

It was business night at the January meeting of the Tabernacle Men's Club foregoing the usual procedure of inviting a guest speaker. The evening was taken up with the election of officers and plans for activities for 1947. Judging by the enthusiasm and suggestions put forward it should prove to be a very successful year.

After the inner man had been satisfied with a splendid dinner provided by Mrs. R. Johnston's group of the Women's Association the retiring president, Lloyd Hicks, thanked the members for their support and reviewed the work and accomplishments by the club during the past year. This included the painting of the Sunday school rooms, renovating and fitting out of the recreation room for the boys and girls of the church under the capable guidance of Douglas Bews and Errol Greenleaf.

The treasurer's report showed the club to be in a healthy financial position which will enable the club to complete the work started in the recreation room.

The officers elected were:

President, John McLelland; vice-president, Evan Barlow; secretary, Errol Greenleaf; assistant secretary, Cyril McBride; with the following directors: Contact Committee, L. Wannamaker; Reception Committee, S. McGuire; Visiting Committee, E. Taylor; Program Committee, H. Moorman; Publicity Committee, E. Boulton.

The newly-elected president addressed the meeting, receiving the full support of the members to carry out the various suggestion put forward by himself and other members of the club.

Miss Gene Hicks rendered three very fine violin solos accompanied on the piano by her sister Ruth, these were very much enjoyed.

Premiers Arrive For Re-opening of Taxation Talks

Ottawa, Jan. 14 (CP).—Premier Garson of Manitoba and Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan arrived here today for the re-opening of taxation agreement discussions with Finance Minister Abbott.

Premier McNair of New Brunswick, whose action last week in suspending taxation negotiations brought about the re-opening of the discussions, was expected to arrive shortly before noon. The talks were scheduled to follow almost immediately.

Mr. Garson said that the discussions, at the start, would be exploratory and no statement could be made at this time.

The question of equalizing the subsidies the Dominion proposes to pay the provinces for use of major tax fields was expected to be one of the main features of discussions.

Before Mr. McNair suspended negotiations New Brunswick, Manitoba and Saskatchewan had concluded agreements under which the Dominion would pay each of the provinces an annual subsidy of $15 per capita. Following the drafting of these agreements, British Columbia and Prince Edward Island obtained tentative agreements calling for subsidies of $21 per capita.

D.C. Coleman Retires From Presidency Of C.P.R., W.M. Neal Appointed

Montreal, Jan. 14—(CP)—D. C. Coleman, a railwayman for 47 of his 67 years, stepped down yesterday from the chairmanship and presidency of the Canadian Pacific Railway, the company he joined at the turn of the century as an engineer's clerk.

Succeeding him Feb. 1 will be W. M. Neal, a director and vice-president since 1942 and associated with the C.P.R. since 1902. Mr. Neal, who joined the company as an office boy, is 60.

The changes involving Mr. Coleman and Mr. Neal and the appointment of G. A. Walker, general counsel of the CPR, as a director and vice-president, were announced following a meeting of the board of directors. Mr. Walker will replace the late Morris W. Wilson on the directorate.

Tribute to Successor

In a statement announcing his retirement, Mr. Coleman said he felt the time had come "in the interests of the company and of myself that the burden of responsibility should be placed on younger shoulders."

"In Mr. Neal, the company has a man admirably qualified for the position of chief executive officer, and I know that his administration will be successful and distinguished. After taking a rest in the south, I shall return to Montreal and continue my activities in other fields."

Mr. Coleman will continue as a company director.

The retiring president was born at Carleton Place, Ont., in 1879 and entered Canadian Pacific service as an engineer's clerk at Fort William, Ont. In his first 19 years with the company he rose to be vice-president from North Bay, Ont., to Cranbrooke, Nelson and Vancouver in British Columbia.

Called to company headquarters here in 1934, he was vice-president and member of the executive committee for eight years before becoming president in 1942. He became chairman of the board the following year.

As well as being chairman and president of the CPR, Mr. Coleman is chairman and director of Canadian Steamships Limited, Canadian Pacific Air Lines Limited, chairman of Consolidated Mining and Smelting Co. of Canada Limited; president of the Canadian Australasian Line Limited; director of Canadian Pacific Express Company and Minneapolis, St. Paul and Sault Ste. Marie Railroad Company, and takes a leading part in the affairs of four other rail and air services.

In business he serves Bank of Montreal, Royal Trust Co., Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, General Theatre Corp., Limited, and West Kootenay Power and Light Co. Limited, as director and is a member of the Canadian Committee of the Hudson's Bay Company.

The judgment and executive ability which have played so important a part in company progress during reconstruction periods following two world wars, and in the tremendous task of guiding the Canadian Pacific during crucial war years, have been responsible for the success of his many undertakings in private life.

An ardent hockey fan from the days of 1920, when he saw Winnipeg Falcons win the Allan Cup and watched the subsequent Golden era of Western Canada senior hockey, he came back to Canada's national pastime as a director of Montreal Arena Company and vice-president of Montreal Canadiens of the National Hockey League, world champions in 1944 and 1946.

Fond of Horses

He enjoys horse racing and, while no longer owning horses which once carried his silks on Canadian and American tracks, follows the fortunes of the Braeside Stable owned by his son, Jim Coleman, one of Canada's leading sports columnists, who writes for The Toronto Globe and Mail.

Mr. Coleman almost wound up a newspaperman himself serving as city editor of the Daily Intelligencer in Belleville, Ont., and on the Daily Times in Port Huron, Mich., before becoming a railroader.

He still reads newspapers, many of them each day, and the Times of London always, as a newspaperman does. His taste in literature is equally divided between the classics and Canadiana. His collection of the latter, historic documents and objects as well as books, is one of Canada's finest.

Mr. Neal was born in Toronto. From office boy he advanced through secretarial ranks to minor positions in general operating departments and in foreign freight offices, and then to the transportation department.

His railway progress between the two wars took place largely in Western Canada, after service as general superintendent of the Algoma district and assistant to the vice-president of the company in the east. On western lines he was general manager, and later vice-president of western lines at Winnipeg. He became vice-president of the company in Montreal in 1942.

The first steps in establishment of Canadian Pacific Air Lines were taken under Mr. Neal's direction and he became president of the air subsidiary in 1946.

His directorships like those of Mr. Coleman, extend into many business fields.

Mr. Walker is a native of Toronto, and joined the CPR there as a solicitor's office boy at the age of 12.

Priest's Sight Restored by Dead Convict's Eye

Reno, Nev., Jan. 14 (AP) — Father Edmund Boyle, Reno priest, who had been blind in his right eye for several years, can count his doctor's fingers after an operation which replaced the vitreous matter in his bad eye with that taken from the eyes of an executed Nevada convict.

Dr. S. T. Clarke performed on Father Boyle an operation similar to that which a nearly blind prison guard, Bert Deady, underwent last Friday.

In the case of the cleric, however, there was no injury to the retina, and improvement in sight was almost immediate, Dr. Clarke said.

Father Boyle is a priest at St. Thomas Aquinas Cathedral here. He was injured in his right eye by an air gun about 1938. Subsequent removal of a cataract was accompanied by a hemorrhage which caused blindness in that eye.

The vitreous matter used in both operations was taken from the eyes of Paul Maynard Skaug, 24, of Oshkosh, Wis., after his execution for murder in the Nevada gas chamber last Friday. Skaug willed his eyes to deady, or any other blind person to whom sight would bring happiness.

Dr. Clarke said the result of the operation on the prison guard would not be determined until the retina had healed

HAIRCUTS 50c IN BROCKVILLE

Brockville, Jan 14 (CP)—First result here of the price decontrol announced Saturday in Ottawa was the advance today in price of haircuts from 45 to 50 cents. Barbers asked several weeks ago to be allowed to raise the price from 40 cents to 50 cents, but at that time their top charge was set at 45 cents.

Boy Scout Groups To Meet Here For Training Course

Patrol leaders, leaders and assistant leaders of Boy Scout and Cub troops in Belleville and surrounding district will convene in the city for two days on January 24th., and 25th., for a special course of training in how to impart their scouting knowledge on to their troop members. The special course is known as the Bronze Arrowhead Course and certificates will be awarded to successful participants.

Result of the rejuvenated interest in Scouting and Cubbing in Belleville and district, the course is being held for the first time here and it is expected that over 30 leaders from out-of-town troops will attend the two-day instruction.

The course will be held at the Armouries starting on the Friday evening and will continue the next morning at the same place, with a concluding banquet being planned for Christ Church parish hall on the Saturday evening. The general public is invited to sit in as spectators at the course sessions at the Armouries. Outstanding lecturers and demonstrators in Scouting will come from Kingston, Napanee, Picton and Belleville.

Scouting in the city has seen remarkable growth during the past months, there now being approximately 245 Boy Scout and Cub members. Two additional troops are now in the process of formation.

One of the national projects of Scouts in Canada is a national waste paper drive through which it is hoped to collect approximately 10,000 tons to assist in the alleviation of the current paper shortage. This drive is being made during January.

An objective of 400 pounds of waste paper has been set and householders are urged to have their paper salvage ready for their neighborhood Scout when he calls during his collection.

Giant 400-Troop Plane for U.S. Army

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 14 —(AP)—The world's largest land-based aircraft, a 400-troop transport being built for the United States Army Air Forces, was on unofficial public display for the first time here today.

Wheeled from the experimental yard at the Consolidated Vultee Aircraft Corp. plant, the six-engined air giant was in view from Pacific Highway and from Lindbergh Field.

The plane, known as the OX-99, is double-decked inside to carry 400 troops, 336 litter patients or 100,000 pounds of cargo.

Open Air Rink Plans Fall As Scraper Breaks Thru Ice

Stratford, Jan. 14 — (CP)—Efforts to prepare an open - air skating rink on the Avon River came to a sad end yesterday when a truck, scraping snow off the ice, broke through 35 feet from shore. The truck still is there, half submerged.

Family Aroused By Passer-by As Shop Afire

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP)—A grateful shoemaker is looking for an unknown benefactor who he says saved his family of seven when fire broke out in his shop on Bloor Street west early today.

"Somebody passing by saw the smoke and banged on the front door so hard it finally woke my wife," said Mcihael Mitchell, who lives in an apartment above the store. "We just had time to get down the stairs and the backyard snow in bare feet. Another two minutes and it would have been too late."

Two other families were forced to the street in the fire which caused damage of $1,000 to commercial establishments on the ground floor of the two-storey building. No one was injured.

Good Record

The good record during the recent holiday season inspires the Port Arthur News-Chronicle to comment on the survey made by The Canadian Press showing that during the Christmas-New Year's holiday season there were only twelve fatal accidents in the Dominion. Of these five were automobile fatalities, three of which occurred in Vancouver. The other deaths were due to fires and drownings. The paper notes that Port Arthur and Fort William figures were especially satisfactory. Across Canada there can be reason for gratitude and every part can claim a part in the good showing made.

The News-Chronicle remarks that this is a record which causes much satisfaction under conditions which induced police and fire departments and newspapers everywhere to engage in campaigns asking the people to observe the rules and precautions for their safety. These institutions are entitled to some credit for their educational effort.

"The lesson that can be learned from the good holiday season record is that it could be continued through the year. Care, courtesy and common sense are as necessary through the weeks and months to come as they were during the holiday. Accidents always spring from the same reason and as anyone who has been in one knows they happen in a flash. The only sure precaution is the one that is taken well in advance.

"It is another peculiar thing about the accident records that most of them happen in the comparatively safe places, on the open roads where vision and driving conditions are best. The probable reason is that these conditions prompt a let down on the part of the driver who feels that the going is safe and that he can ease up a little on his vigilance or add to his speed without danger. In difficult and dangerous places care is used and while progress may be slower, there are not so many accidents.

"In motor car driving eternal vigilance is the price of safety as it is in any other place or circumstance."

Stress Citizenship

Canadians last week marked Citizenship week and there were special ceremonies for this occasion, serving to observe the time in a manner that could not fail to impress upon Canadian-born and newcomers to Canada the responsibilities and blessings associated with citizenship.

The effect was heightened by the fact that on the first of this month, New Year's Day, the Canadian Citizenship Act came into force and two days later Prime Minister King, as a native of Canada and Canada's first citizen and others, some of whom came from foreign lands, received their Canadian citizenship papers in a scene at the Supreme Court of Canada at Ottawa. Similar events took place in various parts of the Dominion. The effect upon the newcomers who have established residence and qualified to become Canadians cannot but be important.

The Canadian citizen remains a British subject and the ties with Britain are strong and enduring as they have ever been.

Canadians are proud of Canada, their Canadian citizenship and the fact that they are British subjects.

The full measure of citizenship is of the deepest value to the individual and the nation. It should be the aim of every citizen to hold the ideal of citizenship high.

Century of Anaesthetics

London is holding an exhibition to celebrate the centenary of anaesthesia. A description of it by Joy Packer was recently heard by listeners to the BBC programme "Radio Trek."

The ancients had some quaint ideas on the subject and firmly believed in a horbal narcotic known as mandrake, a peculiar root which had the appearance of a human being and uttered a piercing shriek when it was uprooted. Whoever uprooted it was apt to fall dead, so they had to resort to all sorts of ingenious devices to get hold of it. In more recent times, wounded sailors at Trafalgar were given a tot of rum.

The use of the ether spray for local anaesthesia was conceived by chance when a playful young lady at a dance sprayed eau-de-cologne on the heated forehead of her partner. The partner happened to be Sir Benjamin Richardson who had spent all that day in his laboratory engaged in scientific research. The year was 1897. It is quite clear that his mind was still on his work rather than on the charms of the young lady with the scent spray; for he wrote of the episode: "The cold produced by the eau-de-cologne was intense, and, pinching the bit of skin affected, I found that it was benumbed. 'Thank you' I said, and seized upon the fact." Next day he contrived the ether spray which anaesthetised by freezing.

Cocaine was used next, then spinal anaesthesia and many other forms of local anaesthetic. And now—in 1946—the scientists are on the brink of developing yet another form of anaesthetic, a derivation of the primitive South American Indian arrow poison known as Curaro.

This treebark poison prevents impulses from the motor nerves to the muscles, thus securing complete muscular relaxation. Too complete, at times, as Dr. Prescott of the Wellcome Research Institute found to his cost only a few months ago when he was using himself as a human guinea-pig in experiments with Curaro. His heart ceased to beat, and only prolonged artificial respiration saved his life.

One exhibit which made a deep impression on many was a huge copper bell dated 1791. It was known as the Operation Bell and every hospital had such a bell which was clanged before operations to summon the strong-armed men to come and hold down the patient. Thanks to the mercy of anaesthesia the old operation bell is now happily out of a job.

"Go to the Snath"

Let's not be snide about snaths. Of course you know what a snath is? Some people must, anyway, for North American snath makers—all five of them—at a recent "convention" announced that they would turn out 120,000 snaths in 1947, says C. S. Monitor.

A snath, let us say for the benefit of those victims of the machine age who have lost contact with the grass roots of civilization, is the handle of a scythe. And not all the fancy, streamlined mowing machines of today have been able to drive the scythe off the market or out of the fields. Old Time himself still does his mowing by scythe, leaning with weary dignity on his snath.

Robert Frost, who turned his back on the deafening roar of modern civilization to find peace among New England farmers, writes of listening to the sound of his "long scythe whispering to the ground." There is solace and refreshment in the sibilant song of the scythe—at least as an interlude in humanity's mechanical advance. The "mechanization of the farm" can release man from some of his sweated bondage to the soil, but the grip of the hands on the trusty snath can humble the arrogance of men who have "sought out many inventions."

Go to the snath, thou sniggerer; wield him well and be wise.

History Revived at Windsor

The 600th anniversary of the foundation of the Order of the Garter will be celebrated in Windsor with pageantry and music in the late spring of 1948. His Majesty the King has commanded Britain's Poet Laureate, Dr. John Masefield, to write a pageant play, and the Master of the King's Music, Sir Arnold Bax, is to compose its musical setting. The nave of St. George's Chapel, home of the Order, will be the setting of the pageant. Knights of the Order under the Chairmanship of Bishop Hamilton, Dean of Windsor, are now at work on the plans.

HE'S SERIOUS

When he wonders if your mother
Thinks him good enough for you,
And your father and your brother
Like to see him come in view,
When he visits—pocket choking
With cigars and candy bars,
That young fellow isn't joking.
He's not selling motor cars.

When he calls upon you nightly
And for hours and hours he sticks,
While the lights are burning brightly,
Talking sports or politics,
When he stays with father smoking,
Though the hour is getting late,
That young fellow isn't joking.
He's not selling real estate.

When at you he's slyly winking
And he doesn't hear what's said,
It is plain that he is thinking:
"Will they ever go to bed?"
Though to you it's most provoking,
Lovely maiden, bear it well.
That young fellow isn't joking.
It's himself he's there to sell.

20 YEARS AGO

JAN. 14TH., 1927

Three and a half inches of snow fell during yesterday afternoon and last night. Householders were busy early this morning with shovels removing the snow before the arms of the law gathered them in. The temperature is very cold.

At the annual meeting of the District Loyal Orange Lodge at Trenton the following officers were elected: District W. M., Rev. A. L. Geen; District D. M., E. Hubble; District Chaplain, W. Nelson; District Recording Secretary, A. E. Caskey; District Treasurer, J. Hartt; District D. C., J. Ketcheson; District Lecturers, Messrs Church and Woodward; District Auditors, Messrs. Rill and Johnson.

Mr. William McCracken of Cobourg is spending a few days in town.

Mr. George Thompson has returned home after attending the furniture exhibitions in Toronto, Kitchener and Hanover.

30 YEARS AGO

JAN. 14TH., 1917

The fine residence of Mr. J. F. Chisholm, Dundas Street, just east of the hospital, was destroyed by fire last evening shortly after seven o'clock. The loss on building and contents will be upwards of $7,000.00.

The Rev. A. H. Sanderson of Campbellford was a visitor in town today.

The attraction at Griffin's theatre this evening will be Mary Pickford in the moving picture play "Hulda From Holland".

The Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of Trinity Church, Peterboro, and a former pastor of Bridge Street Church, preached two excellent sermons in the latter church on Sunday.

Last year Belleville citizens contributed the sum of $30,000.00 to the Canadian Patriotic Association. It is expected that a greater sum will be given this year.

40 YEARS AGO

JAN. 14TH., 1907

The inaugural meeting of the city council for the year 1907 was held in the council chamber at the city hall. All the members were present, namely, Mayor Charles N. Sulman and Aldermen Marsh, Vermilyea, McCrodan, Green, Ackerman, Burrows, Panter, Starling, Butler and Thompson. Mayor Sulman was escorted to the chair by Ald. Ackerman and Ald. Butler. The Rev. J. P. Wilson, pastor of Bridge Street Methodist Church, made the opening prayer. The following chairmen were elected: Executive, Ald. Lorne Marsh; Public Works, Ald. Panter; Fire, Ald. McCrodan; Light, Ald. Burrows; Market and City Property, Ald. Ackerman; Railways and Parks, Ald. Butler; Water Works, Ald. Vermilyea; Gas, Ald. Green; Printing, Advertising and Industries, Ald. INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What is pig iron?

Pig iron is merely "raw iron" as it comes directly from the smelting furnace.

It is simply crude iron cast in oblong ingots or masses of convenient size and shape. Pig iron is impure, coarse and brittle and must be refined by re-smelting and strengthened by special treatment before it is usable by industry as wrought iron and steel.

Formerly iron was cast in open beds of sand on the foundry floor and the molten metal was conducted from the smelting furnace through a straight channel or runner to lateral branches at definite intervals. The main channel was called a "sow" and the lateral branches "pigs," from the fancied resemblance to a litter of pigs in the act of sucking their dam. In course of time workmen fell into the habit of speaking of the large oblong ingots cast in the long main channel as sows and those cast in the short diverging branches as pigs. The metal in the entire mould was the "sow and pigs," and after the metal had cooled, solidified and was broken up the pieces were all known as "pigs."

Although this is the generally accepted theory of the origin of "pig iron," some authorities suggest a different origin. Possibly, they say, the sow-and-pigs idea was suggested by the name rather than the name by the idea. From the time of the Norman Conquest down until the 15th century "pig" was used in England as the name of a standard unit of weight, representing five stones of 14 pounds each, or 70 pounds. According to this theory, the pieces of crude iron were called pigs because they at one time weighed a pig, and the weight in turn received its name from the fact that it represented the average weight of pigs or shoats of a certain age.

In reference to lead a pig is still a mass weighing 301 pounds.

Pig iron containing more than 1.7 percent of carbon is used for casting and is known commercially as "cast iron."

LIME IN THE DRINKING WATER

A good many valetudinarians—can I help it if Webster so characterizes one whose chief concern is his invalidism?—inquire anxiously about the boiler scale that forms in the arteries and the lime deposited in the joints if one drinks hard water.

Scientific medical literature supplies nothing whatever to support the notion that lime (calcium) in the hardest water is ever deposited in blood vessels, joints or other tissues of the body. Indeed there is no scientific observation (that is, no precise study under controlled conditions, as in the physiological laboratory) to indicate that any of the lime in water is assimilated or absorbed at all—the water is absorbed into the blood but the lime to be excreted as so much undigestible matter—like cellulose or vegetable fibre.

But pseudo-scientific medical literature, subsidized stuff, abounds with bald statements by more or less "eminent" doctors, near-doctors and queer-doctors, so that the vendors of fancy water never lack "authoritative" material to sustain their sales talk.

From long experience I know the Yankee Wiseacre mind, and so I hope to anticipate the objection many will raise—to wit: If lime from drinking water is never deposited in the joints or arteries how come the arteries and joints of many elderly people become hardened, their bones more brittle?

We haven't room to explain that all over again today—but if the question is not a rhetorical one keep your subscription paid up and we'll answer it again some day soon. Meanwhile here is my own belief—as long as the water is satisfactory to taste I don't care how much or how little lime it contains. It can't be too hard for good drinking water.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

No Shopping List

I wrote two weeks ago but have heard nothing. Kindly advise whether you received my letter. I am waiting for your reply. I have no doubt you can be of some assistance—I want a list of obstetricians in this area, men who do not object to having the husband remain in the delivery room.

(S. A. J.)

Answer—I'm sorry, but I have no such list.

Dandruff

My dad says you once printed a dandruff remedy that cleared his head of dandruff. Three days after a shampoo my head is covered with scaly dandruff and nothing I have tried seems to do any good.

(L.R.)

Answer—Part the hair here and there and apply to scalp (not the hair) a wee bit of the pomade on finger-tips cover a different quarter of scalp each night this way, except the seventh night, when you shampoo. Four to six weeks of this will control the trouble for months. The pomade is a teaspoonful of precipitated sulfur, 20 grains (one-third teaspoonful) salicylic acid powder, thoroughly mixed in about an ounce of fresh cold cream.

Anemia Not Inherited

Could anemia be a hereditary ailment?

(Mrs. B. M.)

Answer—No. Send ten cents (clean) and stamped self addressed regular size envelope and ask in writing for booklet "Blood and Health."

No Symptoms in Stock

Several times you have said tapeworm comes from eating underdone or raw beef or pork, but you never tell the symptoms—how one can know.

(C.J.S.)

Answer—One can't. You had better leave it up to your physician.

"Pedro," Miracle Dog

By STEPHEN J. SCHMIEDL

In "Our Dumb Animals"

This is the story of a large German police dog named "Pedro." Pedro is an extraordinary "seeing-eye" dog, one who has for quite some time been performing an amazing achievement, which, until recently, was without the knowledge of his blind master.

Since many a veteran has been blinded in the late war, it isn't unusual to see a blind person being safely guided by a seeing-eye dog. Hence, if you were a stranger in Coral Gables, Florida, and you saw Joe Yates, blind courthouse cigar stand operator and former city councilman of Coral Gables, being led about the town by Pedro, you wouldn't think it unusual. That is, you wouldn't, unless some native were to tell you the story about the dog part of the inseparable twosome, in which event, you wouldn't think it only unusual, but also bordering on the miraculous.

Pedro, trained at the Seeing-Eye, Inc, Morristown, N.J., and Joe Yates have been together for several years. Both are a common sight to the folks of Coral Gables. They see the pair daily, Pedro confidently, surefootedly and safely leading his master to wherever he has been commanded to guide him.

Recently, Pedro suffered a severe heart attack, and Yates, fearful for the life of his faithful pal, rushed him off to a noted veterinary. The doctor began to examine Pedro thoroughly. When he got to the dog's eyes, his own eyes went wide with amazement at what he had discovered—Pedro was stone blind. The cataracts over his eyes showed that. But it wasn't the dog's blindness that amazed the doctor, it was the fact that he had been guiding Yates right up to the moment he was stricken, even though, as he told Yates, he had been blind for a long, long time!

Yes, Pedro had been guiding Yates around safely for some time while he himself was sightless. He accomplished this most amazing feat by a sense of smell and hearing so sharp and fine that he had no difficulty leading his master safely about the city.

Dog stories, like fairy tales, should have happy endings. Thanks to the skill of the veterinary, this one has. Pedro was restored to health and today, as in the past, he and Joe Yates are seen daily on the streets of Coral Gables—Pedro confidently leading Joe, and Joe, beaming trust and confidence in Pedro, following, supremely sure that wherever he may command him to guide him, Pedro will get him there, safely.

Letter to the Editor

WANTS BETTER SNOW PLOWING

Editor,
Ontario Intelligencer.

Do property owners and those who pay rent have to keep their sidewalks free of snow after every snowstorm? If so then why does the city allow snow plows to pile more snow on that which was shovelled off? Some places are shovelled and then more snow is put on by the snow plow and if any one fell and was injured who would be in the fault? If taxpayers pay taxes does any of it go towards keeping the city walks clean and if so then why are the walks across the park left in such a condition? Why not get the jeep to look after the park as several persons have to use that walk to get to their work and women have to use it to go up street and do not like to wade through snow in order to get up street and back again. If the walks on the hill can be kept clean why not across Firemen's Park? There are several families below Dundas Street whose walks are clean and yet if they have to go out to shop they must wade through snow across property belonging to city. Again I ask why not let the Bonn jeeps keep the park sidewalk clean and then the other ones can still give the service to the people on the hill. Surely all people in our fair city should have the same service whether rich or poor as the poor pay as they can as well as the rich do.

A Believer of Justice.

Franz Von Papen Will be Accused As Major Offender

Nuernberg, Germany, Jan. 14—(AP) — Franz Von Papen will be accused as a "major offender" — the worst type of Nazi and subject, if convicted, to the maximum penalty of 10 years' imprisonment and confiscation of his property — when he is tried by a German denazification court late this month, the indictment showed last night.

The indictment was served upon Von Papen, acquitted by the international military tribunal of war crimes charges, in his Nuernberg hospital room Saturday.

It accused the former diplomat of helping Adolf Hitler to power and of using his diplomacy and political influence to sustain the Nazi regime.

BATH POST-OFFICE CLOSING

Kingston, Jan. 14 — (CP) — Bath road post-office will cease operations tomorrow and residents will use the Kingston post office. Reason: no postmaster. Mrs. L. F. Knott, postmistress, was forced to resign through ill-health, and no successor can be found.

Ivanhoe

Ivanhoe, Jan. 14 (Special).—Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Douglas Boyle (nee Mary Evelyn Downey), Eldorado, were guests of honor at a reception held in the Orange Hall at White Lake on Wednesday evening when they were the recipients of two occasional chairs from their friends and neighbors. The address was read by Mrs. Alvin Holland and the presentations made by Mr. Alvin Holland and Mr. Lloyd Fleming. Mr. and Mrs. Boyle made suitable replies thanking their friends for the beautiful gifts and inviting them to their new home. Rev. J. F. Everson acted as chairman. Refreshments were served by the ladies of the community.

The annual report of the Beulah Mission Band showed fourteen members, twelve meetings with an average attendance of nine. The scrap books made were sent to the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto. A snapshot picture of the child making the book was pasted inside the front cover. $15.15 was sent to the Presbyterial treasurer.

Miss Gladys Rollins, Reg. N., Toronto, attended the funeral of her uncle, the late Charles Meyer Carter, held on Thursday afternoon.

The many friends of Joseph A. Ash will be sorry to learn that he has been under the doctor's care for the past three weeks and all hope for his speedy recovery.

Mr. William Downey is still suffering from an injury received to his foot while working in the woods a week ago.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Dwyer of Trenton were recent guests of Mrs. Dwyer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl Holland.

Mr. Robert Arbuckle, Frankford, spent a few days recently with his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Mitz.

Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Workman, Springbrook, were guests recently of her parentts, Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Rollins.

Mr. Stanley Prest, Hydro line foreman was called out with his men at midnight recently to trace down some trouble.

Church services which were somewhat interrupted because of storm and blocked roads are back to normal again.

Mr. Donald Runnalls, Rawdon, returned to his home Friday evening after spending the week teaching in Ivanhoe public school under the supervision of Miss Margaret Wright. During his stay here Mr. Runnalls was entertained at the home of Mrs. Hulsie Rollins.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Holland and Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Holland spent the supper hour with Rev. J. F. and Mrs. Everson on New Year's day.

An executive meeting of Beulah W.M.S. was held at the parsonage Friday evening to make plans for work for the coming year.

Friends of Mr. Ted Howard will be glad to know that he is improving after his recent operation.

A number of farmers are busy getting their year's wood cut and hauled from the woods.

The sincere sympathy of the community is extended to Mrs. Joseph Rollins in the death of her brother, the late Charles M. Carter.

Their many friends at Ivanhoe and Beulah United Church extend a warm welcome to Mr. and Mrs. Keith Bray and family, Trenton, who have recently moved into the village.

SENT TO PRISON

Philadelphia, Jan. 14 —(AP)— Gus Dorazio, once the fourth-ranking heavyweight boxer in the nation and a 1941 victim of champion Joe Louis' power-packed fists, has been sentenced to a year and a day in federal prison as a draft dodger.

Dorazio, 29-year-old father of two children, was convicted on charges of falsely representing himself as a war worker to evade induction in the armed services.

Marmora

80th Birthday Celebrated By Robert Phillips

Marmora (Special) —One of the few in this district who were born in the year of Confederation is Mr. Robert Phillips of Marmora, who celebrates his eightieth birthday on January 15th.

"Bob," as he is called by his many friends, is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips, who at the time of his birth resided on the boundary line between Marmora and Madoc Townships. His father came from the County Derry, Ireland, to the United States and after six years came to Canada to spend the rest of his life here. He was one of the earliest school teachers in this district and he also served as clerk of Marmora and Lake Township for a period of seventeen years.

Mr. Phillips has lived a quiet yet interesting life. His first job away from the old homestead was with the Gilmour Lumber Company for whom he worked as a general labourer in their camps in Lake and Tudor Townships. He next worked for the old Canadian Goldfields at Deloro when the late Peter Kirkegaard was manager. He was a mucker and only two of his former workmates remain in Marmora Township today—namely William Davidson and Sylvester Phillips, neighboring farmers of Marmora Township.

Then Mr. Phillips returned to agricultural duties working for local farmers for four or five years before farming on his own. In 1916 he entered the employ of the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company, with whom he remained for seven years. He has lived in Marmora Village since 1915 and in his present home since 1918.

He was married in St. John's Anglican Church, Madoc, on October 17th 1894 to Isabella Ann Jones, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Jones of Marmora Township, with Rev. W. W. Burton performing the ceremony. Nine children were born of the marriage—the oldest Arthur, being accidentally killed in 1916 Children completing the family circle are Mrs. James Gordenier, (Elizabeth) Mrs. Donald McInroy (Edith) and Charles, Marmora; Mrs. Lindsay McCarey (Hilda) Minden; Mrs. William Holmes, (Iva) McLeod, Alta; Mrs. Donald Ellis (Clara) Trent River; Hugh, in Toronto and Mrs. George Shaw (Nellie) Peterborough. Mr. Phillips is still enjoying good health and takes a daily walk downtown. He will receive the congratulations of a wide circle of friends on attaining his eightieth birthday.

PULL IN TIE

Sudbury, Jan. 14 —(CP)— Coppercliffe Redmen pulled into a tie with Sudbury Wolves for leadership of the Nickel District Hockey League last night, defeating the tail-end Creighton Eagles 7-3. It was Coppercliff's fifth victory in seven starts, and the sixth loss out of seven for Creighton.

Zelio Toppaine scored three goals for Coppercliff, Rondina, Flynn, Rebellato and Vic Smrke getting the others. Paul Therriault scored two for Creighton and LaPalme got the other.

TRAFFIC COP to Electricity

• Ever fix the plug of an electric light or iron?

You found the copper wire bound with layers of woven cotton. This cotton helps to insulate the electric current—that is, to keep it on the track, going only where it is wanted.

This is only one of a thousand important cotton uses which most people seldom see or think about. But all these uses help to swell the present huge demand which is not confined to Canada but is world-wide.

In spite of the fact that our mills and staffs are working full tilt, it will be some time before we can catch up with orders. In the meantime, our production is being distributed on a quota basis so that all our customers may get a fair share.

Security Council Examines File In Albania Issue

Lake Success, Jan. 13 (AP)— Delegates to the United Nations Security Council examined with interest today a voluminous file submitted by Great Britain in her dispute with Albania over the Corfu Channel mine blasts which killed 44 British sailors.

Britain submitted the case to the council last Friday. The aim is to have it considered concurrently with disarmament, which will be taken up agin by the council when it meets Wednesday.

The council still must determine just how it will tackle the arms question. It has before it a United States proposal in arms limitation and a Russian motion question of arms reduction be taken up promptly.

Atomic energy would be included in the Soviet motion, but without any special priority such as the United States deems necessary.

British delegates said they hoped their dispute with Albania would be taken up later this week, possibly Friday.

They submitted a long note Dec. 9 to the Albanian government protesting the incident in Corfu Channel, off Albania, Oct. 22. Britain held Albania responsible, demanded compensation for the ships and men, and called for an apology.

Albania replied on Dec. 21 that she was not responsible and would not give compensation or apologize.

Albania in fact, intimated that might have had a hand in laying the mines in the channel. The note also pointed out that Britain had supported Greece territorial claims on Albania, still not settled, and that Britain had opposed Albania's admission to the UUnited Nations, the Security Council failed to approve Albania last August when memberships were discussed.

Madoc

Madoc (Special) — Mrs. Irene Crawford left on Sunday for Nassau, Bahamas, where she will visit Lady Oakes.

Miss Jeannie Jack has returned to her home in Brantford after spending a few days with Miss Anne Nickle.

Mrs. Yule of Oshawa is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Chas. Johnston.

Messrs. Presley Nickle, Harold Johnson, Bruce White and Ross Bristol of Brockville spent the weekend at their respective homes in Madoc.

Major Clinton Nickle and Mrs. Nickle have left for Toronto where they will take up residence. Major Nickle will attend the College of Pharmacy.

Mr. Stanley Beatty of Halifax, N.S., is spending a few days with Dr. S. R. and Mrs. Beatty.

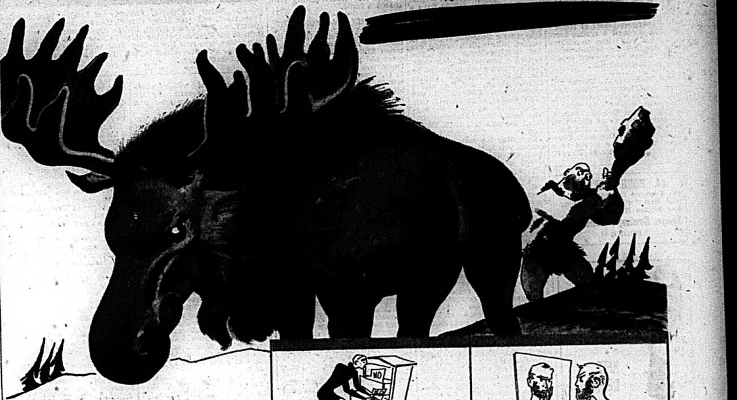
Mrs. May and children returned to their home in Ottawa on Saturday after visiting her parents Mr. and Mrs. Alex Cochran.

Miss Phylis Tanner of Belleville spent the weekend at her home in Madoc.

VILLAGE WITHOUT A GARAGE

Bala, Jan. 13 —(CP)— This Muskoka District village was without a garage today following a fire Saturday which destroyed a building housing a service station and apartment owned by Russell Cope. A blowtorch was said to have exploded an overturned can of gasoline. Damage was estimated at $50,000 but no one was injured.

SUPPOSE WE HAD NO IMPORTS



Well, it wouldn't come to this...

BUT... CONSIDER

a wardrobe without cotton . . . a breakfast table without tea, coffee, or citrus fruit juice . . . a long walk to work in a country without enough gas for cars and buses . . . and then, perhaps, no job when you did get there. And that is just a bare beginning.

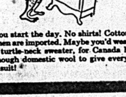
For nearly all the things mined, manufactured or grown in Canada contain, or are produced with the help of, some imported article. From diamond drills to insecticides, from sole leather to perfumes, we must use things that other countries produce.

To get these things from people in other countries, we must trade our goods for theirs. And the more we trade, the better off we are, the higher our standard of living. In fact, over one-third of our national pay envelope comes from foreign trade—and work that is equal to three jobs in eight.

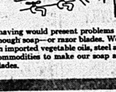
So no matter what you help to produce or what service you perform—do a good job. What you do, or help to produce should add to Canada's good reputation so that our customers abroad will continue to buy from us for years to come.

The Foreign Trade Service of your Department of Trade and Commerce is helping our importers to obtain the things we need from other countries—and our exporters to sell Canadian goods abroad. Trade Commissioners are located in 30 countries, and an experienced export and import staff at head office collects up-to-date information on foreign markets and sources of supply.

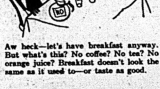
35 CENTS OF EVERY $1.00 YOU GET...COMES FROM CANADA'S TRADE ABROAD.



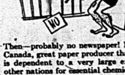
1 You start the day. No shirts! Cotton and linen are imported. Maybe you'd wear just a turtle-neck sweater, for Canada hasn't enough domestic wool to give everybody a suit!



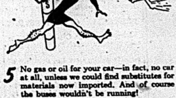
2 Shaving would present problems with not enough soap—or razor blades. We depend on imported vegetable oils, steel and other commodities to make our soap and razor blades.



3 Aw heck—let's have breakfast anyway. But what's this? No coffee? No tea? No orange juice? Breakfast doesn't look the same as it used to—or taste as good.



4 Then—probably no newspaper! For even Canada, great paper producer that she is, is dependent to a very large extent on other nations for essential chemicals used in paper making.



5 No gas or oil for your car—in fact, no car at all, unless we could find substitutes for materials now imported. And of course the buses wouldn't be running!

6 When you got to work you might find yourself one of the many Canedians out of a job . . . for lack of imported materials used in the manufacture of your own product.

YES..AND NO DIAPERS FOR BABY, EITHER

7 What! No sheets—no pillow slips! One can't even go to bed in comfort and forget it all in a country without imports.

8 "What's the use—might as well end it all." But a man can't even hang himself decently without a rope! And it takes fibres, imported from abroad, to make our ropes!

SOCIAL AND PERSONAL

Miss Muncey, of Madoc, is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. A. M. Lloyd, of Northbrook, Ont., has returned home from Belleville General Hospital.

Mr. Bernard Farrell, of Harold, Ont., and Mr. George Young, of Rawdon township, visited at the home of Mr. Frank Cain, Station Street, on Sunday.

Mr. H. M. Eggleton, of St. Thomas, C. N.R., has been spending several days in the city visiting his sister, Mrs. A. Andrews, who is confined to the Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. W. P. Warham, Ridley Ave., is a patient in Belleville General Hospital to undergo a major operation tomorrow. Her many friends hope for her speedy recovery.

Mrs. Gray Hoskin, of London, Ont., spent New Year's Day with her son, Mr. Wm. Ward Hoskin, Mrs. Hoskin and Caroline Grace, of Toronto. On her return home when changing busses at Hamilton, she suffered a severe heart attack and was taken to a Hamilton hospital by police ambulance, where her present condition is considered fair.

Mrs. Grenville A. Thorne and daughters, Yvonne and Patsy Ann, left today to visit an aunt, Mrs. Gonsolvas, in New York, prior to sailing on the Queen Elizabeth, January 18, to spend some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. T. S. Knox, in Greenock, Scotland. Mrs. Thorne served as a WREN during World War II, and was the first war bride to arrive in Belleville, crossing the Atlantic in the steamer, Queen Mary, at the same time that Mr. Winston Churchill came to Canada for the Quebec Conference. Mr. Thorne, who served in the R.C.N. for seven years, accompanied Mrs. Thorne and the children as far as Montreal.

WEDDINGS

STOJAN—IRELAND

At seven o'clock on the evening of Dec. 24, King-Street United Church in Trenton, was the scene of a very pretty wedding, when the chancel was made attractive with the addition of Spruce trees and candlelight for the marriage of Doris Mabel Ireland daughter of Mrs. G. A. Ireland and the late Mr. Ireland, Trenton and Frank Joseph Stojan, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Stojan, with Rev. J. D. Martin, B.A., officiating.

Entering the church with her brother, Mr. "Bill" Ireland, to the strains of wedding music played by Mr. Claude Huffman, the bride was very charming in a gown of white sheer, floor length, her fingertip veil falling from a white calot, and she carried a cascade of red roses. Her only attendant was Miss Norma Clarke, who wore a floor-length gown of poudre blue with a sequin cap and shoulder-length veil. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The groom was supported by his brother, Flying Officer Charles Stojan, and the ushers were Messrs. Jack Hartt and "Ted" Snider, of Smithfield, Ont.

During the signing of the register Miss Phyllis Huffman rendered the solo "I'll Walk Beside You".

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride, where her mother received in a gown of grey crepe, with sequin trim, a black hat with American Beauty accent, and wearing a corsage of red roses. Buffet refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Ireland, assisted by Misses Phyllis Huffman, Bessie Blackledge, Marion Weatherell, Joyce Garbutt and Elva Sexsmith, the bridal table being covered with a beautiful lace cloth, centred by a three-tiered wedding cake flanked with pink and white tapers. Rev. J. D. Martin proposed the toast to the bride, to which the groom graciously responded.

Telegrams of congratulations were received from friends in McLeod, Alta.; Vancouver, B.C.; Providence, R.I.; and Regina, Sask.

Mr. and Mrs. Stojan left for a honeymoon at Lake Placid, N.Y., and in New York City. After returning they will reside in Kingston, Ont., where Mr. Stojan is attending Queen's University.

Prior to her marriage Mrs. Stojan was showered by the office staff of Benedict-Proctor Co., and by Misses Norma Clarke and Phyllis Huffman.

SMITH—KING

The United Church parsonage at Newburgh, Ont., was the scene of a quiet wedding on Dec. 28, at 10.30 a.m., when, in the presence of the immediate families, Rev. H. B. Herrington united in marriage Miss Edith Bessie King, only daughter of Mr. Wm. King, of Newburgh, and Mr. Frank J. Smith, second son of Mrs. Maude Smith, of Roblin.

The bride made a charming picture in a street-length dress of romance blue, with sequin trim, a brown feather hat and matching accessories, with which she wore a gold wrist watch, a gift of the groom, and a corsage of Talisman and Sweetheart roses.

Mrs. Harold King, as matron-of-honor, was most attractive in a street-length dress of Cuba-rose with black accessories.

Mr. Smith was ably supported by Mr. Harold King as groomsman.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Harold King, where a bountiful buffet luncheon was served; the rooms being decorated in a color scheme of pink and white, with the bride's table centred with a three-tier wedding cake. The friends of the bride who assisted with the serving were Misses Laura Alkenbrack and Lulu Fluke.

Due to the heavy fall of snow many of the invited guests were unable to attend, but telephoned their congratulations and best wishes to the bridal couple.

For travelling to New York City, and Buffalo, N.Y., the bride donned a dress of brown and turquoise wool, with matching accessories. Upon their return Mr. and Mrs. Smith will take up residence in Newburgh, where Mr. Smith recently purchased a home.

HILL—WALTON

On Saturday, Jan. 11th, at the manse of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, George Street, a quiet but pretty wedding ceremony was solemnized by Rev. J. G. Hornsby, when Mrs. Alice Walton, of Kingston, became the bride of Ex-Mayor Harry Hill, well-known resident of this city.

Mr. and Mrs. Hill are spending some time in Toronto, and after their return will reside in Belleville.

Women's Activities

CHRIST CHURCH JUNIOR AUXILIARY

The Junior Auxiliary of Christ Church met in the parish hall, Friday afternoon at 4:15 with a good attendance.

The meeting opened with the usual hymn and worship service, taken from the Junior Leaflet. Business was conducted including reports from the secretary and treasurer covering the year 1946. Mrs. D. Stewart was in charge of business proceedings.

Officers for 1947 were elected as follows:

President, Joanne Atkinson.
Vice President, Marlene Cooke.
Secretary, Barbara Grills.
Treasurer, Meribeth Bristol
Deputy Sec.-Treasurer, Heather Musclow.
Visiting Convener, Eleanor Clarke.

A games period followed. This and the Worship Service was under the direction of Mrs. H. Pitt.

The meeting finished with a closing exercise.

CHRIST CHURCH W.A.

The Evening Branch of Christ Church W.A. held a special social meeting, Monday evening in the Rectory, with the president, Miss Eliza Bell, conducting the devotional period which included the "Members' Prayer" followed by The Lord's Prayer.

The Chapter "Christian Youth in India" from the Study Book of the year, was given by Miss Grace Gillard. Contests were conducted, the winners being Mrs. D. Stewart and Mrs. J. Cooke. Readings contributed by Miss E. Bell were much enjoyed, after which Rev. J. Grant Sparling, rector of Christ Church, addressed Miss Gillard, who will shortly be leaving Belleville to assume supervisory duties in the Mission Home at Moose Factory, an outpost on the very southernmost tip of James Bay. Mr. Sparling on behalf of the members of the Evening Branch of the W.A., presented Miss Gillard with a Life Membership Pin, for which she graciously expressed her gratitude and appreciation.

Refreshments were served by Mesdames Sparling, A. Simpson, and E. Smith, bringing another interesting evening to a close.

ENERGETIC CLUB MEETING

The Energetic Club of Holloway Street Church held their first meeting of the New Year in the church parlors on the evening of January 10, with a very good attendance.

The meeting opened with prayer by the President, followed by a hymn. Arnold Campbell gave a very interesting talk on "Christianity and What It Means to One's Life". Doris Daniels sang a solo "Open My Eyes". The devotional period was closed with the singing of a hymn. A business meeting followed which included the yearly reports by the treasurer, flower convener and secretary.

The slate of 1947 officers was read by "Ted" Poste as follows:

Honorary Presidents, Arnold and Nellie Campbell.
President, Harold Regensburg.
Vice President, Larry Buck
Secretary, Queenie Meldrum
Treasurer, George Greatrix
Visiting Committee, Stan and Olga Nighswander, Don and Mildred Fraser.
Personal Interest Leaders, Don and Mildred Fraser
Press Reporter, Kathleen Poste
Group Leaders, Albert and Beryl Smith, Jack and Maida Grills, Milton and Madge Burtt, Oscar and Velma Wagar, Ed and Bessie Shortt.

Remarks from the 1946 President, Don Fraser and by the Incoming President, were most inspiring and the song, "Roamin' In the Gloamin'" was sung by the Club, this number being a special favorite of last year's president.

The program consisted of solos on the musical saw and piano accordion by Bruce Sills, vocal solos by Ed. Shortt, and piano solos by Alec Gordon and some sleight of hand tricks by Oscar Wagar.

A delicious supper was served at the close of which Rev. C. Perkins gave a splendid talk on "A Live Church". The Club paper "The Tatler" was read by the Editor, Ed. Shortt.

The meeting closed with the singing of "Blest Be the Tie That Binds" and the Mizpah Benediction.

BRITISH WAR BRIDES FIND U. S. NICE

Mrs. Helen Digrestina, formerly of London; Mrs. Joy Laski, Portsmouth, and Mrs. Daisy Carroll, London, are shown, LEFT to RIGHT, as Sir Francis Evans, British consul-general, pours tea for them at the English-speaking union in New York. The three British war brides, who now live in New York with their ex-G.I. husbands, were among 30 who denied reports in British papers that they were being ill-treated here.

KIWANIAN LADIES HOLD MEETING

The Kiwanis Ladies' Auxiliary held their regular meeting on Thursday evening at the Centre with an attendance of 48 members.

President Ethel Stiver welcomed the ladies, and extended a special welcome to four new members, Marion Turley, Isobelle Davies, Irene Brown and Mildred Stanton.

The secretary-treasurer presented the annual report and Hazel Baragar, as chairman of the Visiting Committee, reported on her activities. After thanking these ladies for their reports, the president also thanked the "Knews" Editor, Ella Trepanier. She stated that few realize the time and thought necessary in this work of editing the Bulletin each month and in recognition of her splendid work, presented Ella with a beautiful rose, the insignia of merit in Kiwanis work.

Before vacating the chair, Ethel Stiver, expressed her gratitude to every one for their kind co-operation during her term of office, and extended her sincere good wishes for a successful year, to Flossie Smith, who at this time was escorted to the chair by Mary Atkins, and Bessie Marsh, a past president.

After thanking the ladies for their pleasant reception, Flossie asked for the same loyal support which the past president had enjoyed, and on behalf of the Auxiliary presented to her, a lovely silver rose bowl, suitably inscribed, as a memento of her year's work, as President Ethel, graciously thanked the ladies for her gift.

The new directors were introduced as were the chairmen of the various committees.

An appeal was again made for clean, used clothing, which could be re-made by the Girls' Sewing Class at the Centre.

A beautifully decorated Birthday cake, donated by the President Flossie, was drawn for by those having birthdays in January and won by Erma Reid.

After the meeting Bingo was played and Edna Dobbs and her committee, served refreshments.

ST. ANDREW'S EVENING AUXILIARY

Trenton. (Special.)—The bimonthly meeting of the Evening Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church was held at the home of Miss Norma Clarke, 36 Queen Street, on Thursday, Jan. ninth.

Following the business discussion, election of officers for 1947 took place. They are as follows:

President, Miss Margaret Cochrane.
1st Vice President, Mrs. Anderson
2nd Vice President, Mrs. J. Heath
Secretary, Miss Norma Clarke
Treasurer, Miss Evelyn Young
Decorating Convener, Mrs. Gus Wemyss
Visiting Committee, West End—Mrs. George Crawford and Mrs. J. K. Hamilton
Visiting Committee, East End—Mrs. Button and Mrs. Hutchinson
Convener of Work Committee, Margaret Mason
Apron Convener, Mrs. Agnes Potts.

At the close of the evening, refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by the President, Miss Margaret Cochrane. The Auxiliary will meet again at the home of Mrs. Gus Wemyss, 224 Dundas Street West, on January 30th.

PRINCE EDWARD-BELLEVILLE CLUB

The January meeting of the Prince Edward- Belleville Women's Club was held at the Y.M.C.A., the afternoon of January 8th.

After the opening ode, Mrs. G. F. Lent led in a prayer for the New Year. Several items of business were discussed. It was decided to visit the Home for the Aged in the near future and Mrs. Rorabeck was appointed to arrange a suitable program.

Mrs. S. Anderson gave an excellent paper on "Pioneer Life on the Shores of the Bay of Quinte".

Community singing was led by Mrs. Ackerman with Mrs. Lent at the piano.

Several New Year's readings were given and a short quiz on 1947 was followed by a contest "Terms Used in Music", with Mrs. Goraline and Mrs. Vandewater winning the prizes.

A social time was spent with Mrs. Anderson, Mrs. E. Adams, Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. Weese serving refreshments.

White's District

White's District — Mr. and Mrs. Murney Jeffery and Joan were Sunday evening guests of Mrs. Jeffery's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Rush

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton Ritz and family of Thurlow and Mr. Cecil Jeffery were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Jeffery.

The many friends of Mrs. Cecil Jeffery will be pleased to know that she is progressing favorably in Belleville General Hospital following an operation.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Jones opened their home on Wednesday evening for the January meeting of the Bay of Quinte Women's Institute with a good attendance. The president, Mrs. George Clapp conducted the meeting.

Sunday School and church services were conducted at White's on Sunday afternoon with the Rev. A. C. McCallum in charge of the latter service. Communion was administered by the pastor.

Skating Party Held by Club

Preceded by an enjoyable skating party some 75 senior members of the Quinte Skating Club held a social evening in the club rooms the other night.

The ice was in perfect condition and the gay colors of the skaters provided a kaleidoscope of color that was pleasing to watch.

The club's ice surface rang to delightful music as the city's skating grace whirled about the scene in gay mixed duos and singles.

At ten o'clock the party retired to the club house where refreshments were served. The main topic of conversation, or at least one of them, was the gala ice pageant which the club is planning for some time in late February when, it is expected, the cream of Canadian figure skaters will be here.

Surprise Party Tendered Parents

On the evening of Jan. 10th., Mr. and Mrs. Jay Ross, 52 North Park Street, were tendered a surprise party by their daughter, Mrs. Norman Kiser, and Mr. Kiser, at their home, in honor of their Thirtieth wedding anniversary. More than fifty relatives and friends joined in expressing felicitations and good wishes to this well known couple, their son, Mr. "Bill" Ross and family, of Peterboro, being among the guests, who came from Belleville, Holloway, Stirling, Foxboro and Peterboro.

The double parlors of the Ross home were so well filled with guests that it was impossible to indulge in games of any kind, so the entire evening was spent in social "visits" and reminiscences of days gone by. Mr. C. V. Freeman, pastor of the Missionary Alliance Tabernacle, West Moira Street read, an address to Mr. and Mrs. Ross, and presented them with an "All-light" plastic table lamp on behalf of the assembled guests to which Mr. Ross suitably replied.

The members of Group 1 of the Tabernacle United W.M.S. presented Mrs. Ross with a bouquet of Talisman roses. Mrs. Ross is the past president of Tabernacle Auxiliary, and an efficient past leader of Group 1.

The serving of delectable refreshments by Mrs. Kiser and her assistants brought an enjoyable occasion to a close.

Overturns Sleigh, But Spills Only Three Quarts

Sudbury, Jan. 14 — (CP) — "Silver" a dapple-grey mare pulling a sleigh-load of milk along the main street here Monday, bolted and overturned the sleigh — but spilled only three quarts.

Schoharie

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Stone entertained at dinner on New Year's Eve. Covers were laid for twelve.

Mrs. Carman Hobson and Beverley returned home early in the week after spending a couple of weeks in Picton with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene McConnell.

Burr's

Burr's, Jan. 14 (Special).—Mrs. Leon Caughey was hostess to the January W.A. meeting at her home on Thursday afternoon. Guests present included Mrs. Simon Caughey and Mrs. Earl Caughey. Following the devotional exercises and reading of the minutes, business for the day was the decision to buy more flat silver and to hold a crokinole party this month. A date was set for the congregational meeting to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brook. A letter of thanks was received from Mrs. P. Tiller, Toronto. During the program Mrs. Eric Edwards conducted a contest and Mrs. H. Hall favored with a reading. Birthday greetings were extended to Mrs. C. Fulford, her natal anniversary being Thursday. The February meeting will be at Mrs. Fulford"s.

Personals

Mrs. Keith Blakely and family are enjoying a new car.

Mr. Roy Dunn is doing carpentry work for Mr. Ross Burr.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Werden entertained at a birthday dinner for their daughters, Mrs. Harmon Montgomery and Mrs. Kenneth Wood and families on Thursday evening.

BABY STRONG MAN

He stands in the ease with the greatest of ease does little six-month-old Ronnie Udkoff, shown standing on the hand of his dad at their home in Chicago, Ill. This part of baby's routine started two months ago, and he seems to be having the time of his life.

Stirling

Stirling (Special) — Mr. and Mrs. James Chumbley and children of Belleville were Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Savage.

Miss Lena Couture of Trenton was a weekend guest of Miss Jean Salisbury.

District Quarterly meetings were held in Marmora Free Methodist Church from Thursday to Sunday. On Friday afternoon and evening and on Saturday morning the special speaker was Rev. Lawrence Arksey, returned missionary from Portuguese East Africa.

Flowering plants in the chancel of St. Paul's Anglican Church on Sunday were the gift of Steve Glembiski in loving memory of his parents, John and Nellie Glembiski and a brother Alexander Glembiski who lost their lives in Poland during the course of the Second World War.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Chestnut of Peterboro have been visiting Mr. William Beaver.

Mr. Clarence Reynolds of Lindsay spent the weekend with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Reynolds.

Mr. Michael O'Connor Sr. is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Mrs. H. Baker and daughter Sharon of Stirling spent the weekend with Mrs. M. Crawford.

Mr. John O'Connor is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

Dean Lavender, son of Mr. and Mrs. Manley Lavender, is ill at his home here.

The following are called to Belleville to jury sittings this week: Albert Burridge, Clayton Cronkright, James Nobes, Donald McInroy and Maurice Barlow.

It was an unusual sight on Saturday morning to see Charles De Gaunt of Springbrook cycling along the highway. He had cycled the whole distance from his home in Springbrook to Deloro, where he is employed, a distance of twelve miles, in an hour and a quarter. Mr. De Gaunt who is forty three years of age said he had no difficulty in making the trip, despite the fact that an extra two inches of snow had fallen during the night. At the close of the day's work he cycled home again.

Cotton Poplin Jacket

By PRUNELLA WOOD

TWO shades of cotton poplin, treated to be durably water repellent, make this skier's coat. The sleeves are of the constrasting color, making a stylish effect. The zipper fastening is along one shoulder, the rest of the garment solid, windproof construction. A drawstring at the waistline further closes out chilly breezes.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

Introductions to Her Mother And Father

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am a girl of nineteen, unmarried. Just how should I introduce my unmarried friends of about my age to my mother and father?

Elise

First, since everyone should be introduced to your mother, you would mention her first in all introductions. When introducing your intimate friends to your mother you would not mention titles before their names: "Mother, his is Dorothy Smith," or "Mother....Dorothy Smith", or "Mother, this is Donald Allen." But when introducing someone whom you don't call by her first name, naturally you would use her title, "Mother, this is Miss Smith (or 'Miss Dorothy Smith'), or "Mother, may I present Mr. Allen (or 'Mr. Donald Allen')" You introduce your father to an intimate friend of yours, "Mary, this is my father"; to not-such-a-close friend, "Miss Foster, this is my father (or 'may I present my father')". To a young man, you say, "Father, this is Alan Graham (or, more formally, 'Mr. Graham')."

Plans For The Christening

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. Our baby son will soon be twelve weeks old, and we would like to have him christened. Shall we invite the immediate relatives of both families? Shall we invite only relatives? And may such invitations be extended by telephone?

2. The baby was born on my greataunt's birthday, and she was thrilled about this. Should we ask her to be his godmother? Just what is the procedure in a circumstance of this type? She lives alone; and since she hasn't much money, I wouldn't want to place her in an embarrassing situation where she would have to buy a gift or feel any financial obligation in any way. She gave the baby a nice gift when he was born.

3. At the christening, should the baby be dressed entirely in white, or is this at all important?

F. S.

1. To a christening only the close relatives of both families and a few intimate friends are invited. And yes, the invitations are usually given orally or by telephone, with notes sent to those who live at a distance.

2. A child's godparents are usually chosen from among the intimate friends of the parents. However, occassionally a distant relative is asked to serve, but she (or he) should have a deep sense of the responsibility to be assumed. The responsibility a godparent assumes is a moral and spiritual one, taking interest in the child's life, in his religious training, in his education and career and in giving advice and help if ever needed; and no financial obligation is assumed or taken for granted.

3. Yes, it is important that at the christening everything the baby wears is white.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Complexions Are Subject to Change

Fluff Up a Rich Lather

Did the fairy godmother give you a lovely peaches-and-cream complexion? Lucky you! You have no need of the rouge compact; if you forget to fly the powder pad, it doesn't matter. Fine business. But don't sit back with your hands folded and fancy that your blessing came with a guarantee for durability and fast color. You may wake up some sad day to find that something has happened to the pristine facial covering. Be forewarned. Treasure what has been given you. Do everything you can to hang onto the fine texture and youthful coloring. Old Meanie Time is standing at your elbow, waiting to take some cruel cracks at you.

There are devastating agents at work all the time. Atmospheric dust is one of them; during the day the human map can collect plenty. Dust wears out the skin as it wears out fine fabrics. It drifts into the pores and dries the skin. If blackheads form, eruptions can appear. Therefore, the first rule of complexion care is cleanliness, scrupulous cleanliness. Not just a whiskover with a soaped washcloth. Fluff up a rich lather. Press it into the flesh with your fingertips. Most men have good complexions. The reason is simple enough. They shave away the dirt along with their beards.

To offset the drying effects of soap and harsh winds, it is necessary to apply oily cosmetics freely. The older one gets, the more the flesh needs them. Don't tote home a fragrant emollient and then forget it. Always, at bedtime, after the facial tubbing, rinsing and thorough drying, give the face, neck and hands a good buttering. Force the cream into the skin by gentle friction. Pat briskly with flattened fingertips; that movement is better than the rotary motion that the average woman employs.

Remove make-up with a thin cream when you want to make yourself a new face; then lay on the synthetic blush. When washing or creaming, get in a little massage. It stirs up the blood streams upon which the skin lives and thrives and has its being.

Professional treatments are delightful luxuries, well worth the charge. They give one a chance to relax, forget a lot of things one doesn't like to think about. One departs from the cosmetic fiesta freshened and buoyant. But, in the long run, regular daily care counts more, so don't be neglected.

Remember that several glasses of water each day have a beneficial effect on the skin, keep it from drying out. Sleep staves off wrinkles. Fresh air brings good coloring. Keep well. Keep fit.

Fashion Flashes

NOTHING LIKE the elegance of this season has been seen for many a year. Typical of evening fashions is a dinner dress made with a high, rounded neckline, long, tight sleeves and very fitted bodice, fashioned entirely of silver sequins that come down to a basque point over a very full skirt of gray satin.

SOMETHING TO TREASURE is the handknit dress. Dark, autumn-leaf red silk is used to knit a handsome frock, on shirtwaist lines, with buttons of dull gold and a dull gold kidskin belt.

JUDGED THE WINNER in a college and young career girl fashion show was a blouse of black jersey with a high, draped neckline and slim three-quarter sleeves, worn with a high-waisted big black and white checked wool skirt, and a gold metal link belt with two big hanging medallions.

COMING ALONG in the fashion world is pink for accessories with navy, brown or gray. Pink felt hats aplenty all over town, some with black feather trims, some with grey ostrich or brown ribbon loops. Very handsome with brown fur coats.

NOVELTY ABOUNDS in the newest gloves, especially those to be worn with evening clothes or with afternoon-into-evening gala outfits. Creamy black suede with arabesque inserts of nylon on the cuffs makes a handsome glove. Creamy seed-pearl beads edge the scalloped cuff of another glove, this one of white doeskin.

FUNCTIONAL bags that are also attractive appeal to the busy woman. A new shoulder bag has a front panel of red calf; back and side gussets are of navy calf. There is an extra outside purse pocket with separate lock, for change. Strap is half blue, half red.

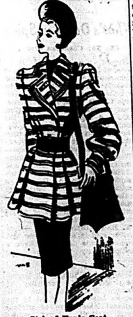
Trim Tunic



Striped Tunic Coat
By VERA WINSTON

A WELL-HANDLED tunic coat of fine fabric bestows such an air of distinction that it automatically requires fine accessories to live up to it and provide the right fashion picture. Striped woolen, gold with black woven stripes, is used for this smart number, which, for a change, is horizontally striped. It has a classic collar, revers, and shirtwaist. The pockets are worked right into the stripes. Inside tucks are released to form an unpressed pleat on either side of the closing. A black woolen skirt and black suede belt complete the outfit.

Color Support for the Eyes

Actress Marguerite Chapman's eyes are highlighted by the careful use of make-up

By HELEN FOLLETT

IF a girl feels that her eyelashes need a little color support and emphasis she should learn a few make-up tricks. It just won't do to apply the black pencil casually; the result may be smudgy and some member of the family will suggest a little fancy face-washing.

If a pencil is used for this purpose, it should be of dark brown, never black; should have a sharp point so it will sketch a clear-cut line. The pencil is crayon in its oiliest form. Like crayon, it may crumble into a fine powder; for that reason it must not be applied heavily or the line be too broad.

Mascara is more easily applied; many women prefer it. If you use the cake form, moisten the small brush, shake off surplus moisture, sweep with an upward stroke so the winkers will take on a pretty tilt. It is not a good plan to use it on the lashes of the lower eyelid.

In beauty shops they have a little cardboard arrangement on which the lid curtains rest while they are groomed and given a darker, stronger color. The cardboard is cut in crescent design, fits the outline of the lids perfectly.

Eyelash dyeing can be done, but it is risky business and many operators refuse to do it, though there are coloring agents that are harmless.

It takes a keen eye and a steady hand to use both eyelash pigment and lid shadows. Of course, it can be done, is done a lot, but no helter-skelter lady should attempt this combination. Certainly not the lady who doesn't blend powder and rouge when she decorates her only complexion.

Make-up is a morale-booster and a joy, but the privilege of highlighting the feminine phiz is often abused, with the result that some faces are much too lithographic. One has to observe and learn.

Advice to the Loveborn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Are You in Love, or Just Infatuated?

Many of the young men and women—and practically all the teen-agers—who write to this column for advice about their relationships with the other sex would find their problems almost magically settled if they would ask themselves this simple question, and then try to give themselves an honest answer: "Is this really true love I feel, or is it just an infatuation that will wear off?"

Some of the young people are smart enough to realize that it might be merely an infatuation and write in to ask: "How can I tell if I am in love?" But the great majority of them begin their letters with complete conviction. "I am in love with this boy," the 15-year-old girl starts off, or, "I have been in love with this girl for two months," declares the high school lad. Then they proceed to explain their particular problems which, of course, have to do with some phase of a normal boy-and-girl relationship, but which could hardly be placed in a class with love.

Many of the older ones, too, seem just as unaware that a passing fancy is one thing, and a deeply serious attachment is something quite different. They meet a girl or a man at a party, are attracted by her or his good looks, charm, gayety or amusing chatter and go home convinced that they have fallen in love forever at first sight.

All of these, both young and old, would, I believe, find a great deal that would be helpful in a recent book by Dr. Clifford R. Adams, titled "How to Pick a Mate."

In this book the author, drawing on facts presented to him in thousands of stories told him by young and older men and women of their experiences in courtship and marriage, discusses in plain words the various factors that must be carefully weighed before any decision about a life partner can be intelligently or safely reached.

On this vital matter of infatuation versus true love, he offers the following four things that he believes must usually be present in a relationship before love can develop between two people:

1. "The two persons have had experiences together that have caused each to react favorably to the other.

2. "They have each found present in the other qualities, standards and ideals which they admire.

3. "Their sexual feelings have been so favorably conditioned, without their realizing it, that they find great pleasure just in being in each other's presence.

4. "Each one in some way fulfills some of the motives that are of importance to the other, such as desire for social approval or, with a man, mastery."

At the end of this particular chapter of Dr. Adams' book, he offers a list of 24 questions, each to be answered by a simple "Yes" or "No," which, he asserts, "quickly disclose whether a person is afflicted with the real thing or is just infatuated by good looks and sex appeal." Among these questions is one with a comment that should be of special interest to teen-agers. It asks: "Do your parents think you are in love?" adding in parenthesis: "They are very discerning about such things." Many and many are the teen-agers who have written me to complain that their parents "don't understand" the wonderful love they feel for some boy or girl and are cruelly unwilling to permit them to marry at 16 or 17 or thereabouts!

Besides the "love and infatuation" chapter of Dr. Adams' book, however, there are many others which discuss matters of equal importance to those thinking about marriage, either in general or with a specific possible mate in mind. There is the chapter on "Crucial Traits for a Happy Marriage"; on "Test Your Mate and Yourself," "Attracting the One You Want" and "Are You Ready for Married Love?" And there is a variety of questionnaires by which you can test yourself for qualities that would make you a good bet, or otherwise, as a marriage partner.

And here is a valuable suggestion for those too much in a hurry about decidin on a wife or a husband. Dr. Adams makes it from the man's viewpoint, but I believe it applies with equal force to the other sex as well.

"Not knowing what you want or need (in a wife), you may marry the first person with whom you become infatuated... A man needs to know at least twenty-five eligible single girls—and date at least a dozen of them—before he can be fairly sure of finding one that would meet his wants and needs."

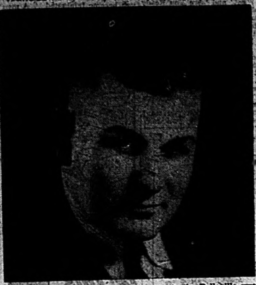
FAMOUS MASKED MARVEL ANSWERS FINAL BELL



Jerry Michael Monoghan, well known to the Belleville wrestling fraternity, and who gained coast-to-coast fame in his famous role of the Masked Marvel, died in hospital last Friday of the dread cancer. Jerry was one of the most popular "out-of-the-ring" wrestlers to join the profession and his passing will be mourned by sport fans of a continent. The genial Irishman won plenty of friends here with his infectious smile and consistent good nature. As a wrestler he was one of the best to step in the squared circle.

Howard Chard of Toronto Declared Winner White Hope Winner at the Coliseum

7,000 Fans Paid Good Money to See 20 Get Punched Dizzy

By WILF GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 14.. (CP)—No one took them seriously but those boys whom Chubby Sammy Keller talked into entering his "White Hope" tournament to make him a pile of dough put on quite a show in the coliseum at the exhibition grounds from early last night to the early hours of this morning.

Sammy made his pile all right, because 7,000 fans paid good money to see 20 of his "White Hopes" knock the stuffing out of each other.

The only guys who made their night's work worth while were the eventual winner and the pug the judges thought was the gamest loser.

Anyway, when Keilers' tournament or whatever you like to call it for it certainly didn't produce any "White Hope" contender for Joe Louis' heavyweight crown as Sammy would have liked to have you believe) was over, a 204-pound chunk of leather pusher by the name of Howard Chard of Toronto was declared the winner.

He advanced into the final round with Wild Bill Sauve of Sudbury, and after William knocked him for a count of eight in the first round, he came back to win a unanimous decision from the three judges.

Wins $500

Chard collected $500 for his night's work and Sauve $200. That money Sauve picked up, however, wasn't for reaching the finals. Two of three judges thought he was the gamest loser.

A good portion of the crowd thought Rudy Szako, paratrooper from Edmonton and Toronto who didn't know the meaning of the word "quit" deserved the award. He fought Chard in a semi-final bout.

Chard hit him—as they say—with everything but the kitchen sink and still he came back for more. The referee finally had to stop the slaughter 25 seconds before the end of the third and final round. Rudy got a great ovation for his game effort.

Blood flowed freely from several of the "White Hopes". Three of the fighters after winning their first bout failed to appear for the second.

One, Dave MacDonald, 235-pound blonde giant from Halifax, was so exhausted after winning a three-round decision from Bill McGee of Kirkland Lake, the thought of appearing again was tiring to him. The other two, Tommy Quigley of Niagara Falls, and Roy Shatelle of Toronto, figured there was an easier way to make a living (we agree) than getting punched dizzy.

To the crowd announcer Tommy McClure explained that the trio were either "unable or unwilling".

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Jerry Michael Monahan, better known in early wrestling days here as the "Masked Marvel" is dead. The beloved 300 pound giant of the ring, whose heart and amiability were as big as his physique failed to answer the bell the other day. He had lost his last bout. And the Grim Reaper, undefeated champion of all sports strode away with another victory to his credit.

• • •

"Big Jerry" was well-known and well-liked in these parts. In the ring he was the savage ruthless Masked Marvel, who battered his opponents to defeat. Outside the ring he was a soft-spoken gentlemanly sort of a fellow, the type that makes friends immediately.

• • •

There was not a wisp of cruelty in Jerry's head. He was a man's man — one who took his life vocation seriously yet whose friends were plentiful because Jerry wanted them that way. He was a natural good fellow — the kind whose warm smile and kindly disposition immediately attracted him to you. He loved to be with the boys. And he loved treating them as he would be treated. Perhaps a greater exponent of the Golden Rule in his social life was never seen in the wrestling ring.

• • •

We, of the press, who came in closer contact with him than did the fans, knew him for what he was worth. We grew to love the big genial Irishman whose natural smile and warm words of greeting were for all and not for one. Jerry did not pick his friends. He did not have to. They came to him as naturally as a spaniel goes to the water. And there is yet one to say a word detrimental to Jerry. He was that kind of fellow.

• • •

He was but a mere shadow of himself when he answered the last bell. For months he lay in a hospital suffering. On several occasions his colleagues in the wrestling profession rushed to his aid with blood transfusions. Slowly the foe took his toll. Jerry slowly lost ground until he weighed barely 100 pounds. It was cancer. But the Grim Reaper could not and did not take away that infectious smile. Jerry had it to the last moment. That is the way he died. A grand guy and a noble fellow.

• • •

Through his colorful career he made a host of friends from coast to coast. He first made the headlines in St. Catharines where a "Masked Marvel" in the early thirties was luring capacity crowds every week, beating all challengers. The police after his first appearance had to call out the reserves to handle frenzied fans who could not buy tickets.

• • •

Wrestling was rapidly fading into oblivion in Toronto at this time and such an attraction as a masked wrestler did not measure up to the dignity of the Queen City pooh-bahs. Then Frank Tunney a young promoter of the day beat down the barriers with some well-dressed verbal calisthenics and presented the "Masked Marvel" against San Cordovano a clean-cut college guy six feet two inches, 230 pounds.

• • •

The Toronto papers predicted the match would be modified murder. It was all of that and more. That night marked the strike of the richest vein in wrestling in North America. The fans stormed the Gardens more than a dozen nights in the hopes of witnessing the unmasking of the wild wrestler in the long black tights, black shirt and black mask.

• • •

Their hate for the bruising two-fisted tactics and their curiosity about his identity filled the Gardens as he wrestled such redoubtable headliners as Ed. Don George, Yvon Robert, Chief Strongbow, Vic Christie and Honest John Katan. One night in jerking his opponent off the ropes the "Marvel" suffered a broken ankle. The crack was heard in the highest tier of seats—but he flattened Strongbow—and won again.

• • •

It was the same in Belleville. The fans here worked themselves into a frenzy over the barrel-chested bruiser, but the Marvel came through consistently with win after win and the faithful finally despaired of learning his identity. Finally a Masked Marvel was unveiled in Ottawa—but it was not Jerry Monaghan. At least not that time.

• • •

Monaghan wasn't the original Masked Marvel, but he first attracted attention as a wrestler under that billing when he toured the country in 1921 with the Ringling Bros. circus, taking on all comers and paying off to any man who could last ten minutes against him. It was his proud boast that Ringling Bros. never paid off a dime.

• • •

Monaghan had just turned 21 then. Among those who watched him on that tour was Ed Strangler Lewis. The champion signed him for the next two years as his training partner. The Strangler was a topnotch villain himself, and taught the young Irishman all his tricks.

• • •

After several seasons as a journeyman grappler, Monahan became a masked Marvel again in 1929. Against some of the country's best wrestlers he won a tournament in 1930 in Los Angeles, and for two years toured up and down the Pacific Coast and through the Southwest as the great unknown grappler. He wasn't unmasked until late in 1930, when Gus Sonnenberg, the Dartmouth Dynamiter flattened him with flying tackles one night in Seattle and pulled the mask off his face.

• • •

The crowd stormed the ring and yelled for the villain's scalp. A police escort led him from the ring. Along the way a tall, heavy-set woman reached over the heads of policemen and swung a folded newspaper at Monaghan's head. He ducked. The woman's swing knocked out one of the cops. They arrested her and discovered a piece of iron pipe was hidden in the newspaper.

• • •

When Monahan was the Masked Marvel on the Pacific Coast, he toured with a Negro chauffeur and a manager in a 16-cylinder Cadillac for their one-night stands, wrestling five times a week. He ate with the mask on in the best hotels, and wore it to the best shows. "I even loaned the mask out one night to a newspaperman who wanted to meet a certain blonde," chuckled the jolly Irishman, now, at 300 pounds, the matchmaker for the Great Lakes A. C. in Buffalo and operator of the International Booking Agency.

• • •

One of the largest purses ever collected by Jerry was $1,575 for two minutes of work. Promoter Frank Tunney, as a special attraction, signed up Blimp Levey, 675 pounds of human blubber, and billed him as the world's worst wrestler. Picking up a third of a ton is not child's play, but Monaghan (260 lbs.) lofted the Blimp and slammed him half a dozen times.

Montreal, Jan. 14 —(CP)— Curlers will hold the spotlight in the Quebec province sports field during the next two weeks with one major tournment now under way in a half dozen provincial centres and another scheduled to begin in Quebec next Monday.

More than 1,000 curlers began play last week in a series of matches leading to the final round here next Saturday night for the Royal Victoria Jubilee trophy, emblematic of the championship of the Canadian branch, Royal Caledonian Curling Club.

Four Montreal rinks, four from Ottawa and eight from other curling centres such as Quebec City, Sherbrooke, Que., Three Rivers, Que., Grand mere, Que., and the Ottawa Valley will qualify for the second draw of the big event and begin knockout competition here later this week. The elimination rounds are being played in the home centres of the various clubs.

Quebec City's tournament, an annual affair, won't have as many entries but the curlers are coming from far afield. A half dozen trophies are at stake in irons and granite play and Quebec province's team for the Macdonald Brier competition in Saint John, N.B., next March will be decided in one of the events.

Ninety-six rinks are entered in the Quebec bonspiel which lasts a week. They include more than 25 from the Maritime Provinces, entries from Toronto, Ottawa, Montreal, Quebec, Kingston, Pembroke, Petawawa, Renfrew, Fenelon Falls, and Guelph.

A half dozen United States rinks will compete, including teams from Chicago, Milwaukee, Wis., and Detroit.

One of the world's oldest and most exclusive sports, the game of rackets, will have its innings here this week when teams from Canada, Great Britain and the United States compete in the Canadian Amateur Rackets Championship.

Somewhat similar to squash, rackets is one of the fastest indoor games, calling for perfect timing and condition. Courts made from a special type of concrete are used and there are comparatively few of them in existence.

Ten Montrealers will carry Canada's hopes into the competition with C. E. Pacaud and S. H. Dobell defending the doubles crown. The 10-man United States team is led by Robert Grant of New York, American champion for the last 10 years, while the six-man Canadian team includes several former British champions.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

Recent conviction of Alvin Paris, of New York, on charges of attempting to rig the National Football League championship, by bribing players on the New York Giants team, had repercussions yesterday at Washington, D.C., and Denver, Col., in the House of Representatives, F. Edward Hebert (Dem.-La.) introduced a measure to make bribery of players or officials a federal offense and asked a maximum penalty of 10 years in prison and $10,000 fine for bribery or attempted bribery. At Denver, a similar measure was introduced in the State Senate by Republican Senator Christopher W. Cusack asking a minimum fine of $5,000 and five years' imprisonment.

F. B. I. Director J. Edgar Hoover said in an interview that promoters and athletes have a "sacred" duty to keep sports clean.

President William G. Bramham, announced yesterday at Durham N.C., that nine new leagues have been added to the National Association of professional baseball (minor) leagues for 1947 bringing the total to 51, largest in league history.

In the third game of a nine-game series, a touring United States hockey team yesterday downed an English team at Brighton by a 7-6 score.

Soviet athletic officials said yesterday in Moscow that Russian soccer in future would be played under continental rules increasing possibility of international competition.

RUTH'S CONDITION GOOD

New York's Jan. 14. (AP)— Babe Ruth's condition was announced as "good" today following a restful night at French hospital—one week after undergoing a neck operation.

Hospital authorities also announced that the former home run king was able to walk around the hospital yesterday. They failed to say how long Ruth remained on his feet.

At the same time it was revealed that a 12-year-old boy pleaded so hard for an opportunity to see the baseball idol, was finally admitted and chatted briefly with Ruth. It was the first visitor admitted besides his immediate family.

Sports Roundup

By AL COLLETTI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 14—(CP)—Acrobatic Claude (Chuck) Rayner may find the Georges Vezina Trophy, awarded annually to the netminder who allows the least number of goals, is on a shelf a little too high for him to reach . . . Turk Broda, Bill Durnan and Frankie Brimsek are ahead of the New York Rangers' star and Durnan, who won the trophy 3 straight times, is away and winging this season with a low 70 goals against in 32 games.

Nevertheless mild - mannered Frank Boucher, never one to make a rash statement, believes that Rayner and centre Edgar Laprade, two of the brightest stars on his club, are "unquestionably among the best in the league." . . . The popular Ranger manager feels that Rayner deserves consideration for the Hart Trophy, awarded to the most valuable player in the National Hockey League, and Laprade for the Lady Bynd Trophy as the league's most effective yet cleanest performer . . .

"The selectors might shy away from Rayner in picking a most valuable player because the goalies already have the Vezina Trophy to compete for," Boucher points out . . . "But that trophy is awarded strictly on arithmetic. That is unfair to Chuck, because he's not with one of the league's strongest clubs. But on the basis of the importance to his team, Chuck rates among the best . . ."

Tireless Laprade

Boucher, who should know something about centres and how to win the Lady Byng Trophy — he won it seven times during his playing days with the Rangers— rates Laprade right behind Rayner . . .

"He's an enormous worker and never tires . . . Every time you look up he's the fellow who has the puck . . . In a year and a half with the Rangers Edgar has been penalized only once and that was in Montreal recently.

"Of course you need more than clean play to get the Lady Byng award. You've got to be capable. With his added experience Laprade is one of the outstanding players in the league. He always gives you a good game."

Did You Know That

Sonja Henie, in her appearance with the Hollywood Ice Revue due at the Garden Jan. 23 will wear the most expensive costumes ever to appear on ice. One of them cost $6,000 and show manager William Burke says the 600 costumes worn by the cast cost more than $200,000. Ed (Strangler) Lewis, the ex-wrestler, now 56, is touring the United States selling a muscle-building gadget . . . Oldtime heavyweight Harry Wills is living quietly as an apartment house owner in New York . . . Toronto Maple Leafs have the youngest team in the N. H. L. — average age is 24.

CONTRACTS MAILED OUT

Philadelphia, Jan. 14 —(AP)— Contracts for the 1947 season have been mailed out by the Philadelphia Phillies of the National League — but seven Blue Jays won't get them.

Herb Pennock, Phil's general manager, announces six players— Kenny Raffensberger, Charley Stanceu, Andy Seminick, Jack LaPointe, Jim Tabor and Johnny Wyrostek — have already signed 1947 terms. A seventh player, Del Ennis, is to talk contract in person.

MONEY STOLEN

Brantford, Ont., Jan. 13 (CP)— An undetermined amount of money was stolen in a hold-up at Lewis Feely's drugstore here late Saturday by two armed men who escaped in a waiting motorcar. Both bandits carried guns when they told Maurice Strudwick, 30-year-old clerk, "this is it," and scooped the money from the cash register.

O.H.A. UPHOLDS KINGSTON CLUBS IN THEIR DISPUTE

Kingston Players Must Play With Kingston Clubs and Not in Other C.A.H.A. Branches

Toronto, Jan. 14 —(CP)— The newly-elected executive committee of the Ontario Hockey Association with President George Panter of Gravenhurst presiding, revised several groupings and ruled on various player changes yesterday.

Stratford Legion were moved up to Intermediate "A" but will continue to play in their current group which has Intermediate "B" clubs. Stratford must finish first in the group to qualify for Intermediate "A" play-offs.

Howard Forgie was ruled property of the Markham Junior "C" club. He had been released by Markham to Scarboro Rangers in Junior "B" but after two games with Markham reverted to Victoria Squire, rival Junior "C" club with Markham.

The executive supported the stand of the Kingston O.H.A. clubs that Kingston players must play for Kingston clubs only and not for teams in other C.A.H.A. branches such as Ottawa District of Quebec A.H.A. unless such players qualify under C.A.H.A. rules.

Georgetown has elected to play Intermediate "A" and will use players from the Toronto hockey league major series if they get permission from the T.H.L.

The Hamilton Junior "B" club led by Pinky Lewis was given full rights to Glen Sonmer and Bruce Maxwell, who had also been claimed by the Hamilton Junior "A" club.

The Lindsay intermediates won their claim to play in the "B" series but the Lindsay juniors must remain in Junior "B" series for the season. The latter sought entry to Junior "C".

Toronto Staffords of the Senior "A" reported Johnny Blute had been suspended for playing in a non-affiliated league without permission.

Arnott Abbott, claimed by both Orillia and Midland, was ruled property of the Orillia club under the "nearest club" ruling. He lives in Coldwater when not working as a lake sailor.

Lombardo Predicts 500,000 Will View Gold Cup Regatta

By BOB GRUBB

New York, Jan. 14 — (AP) — Guy Lombardo stepped down from the bandstand today to predict that the 1947 gold cup regatta, speedboating's international classic, will attract 500,000 spectators when it is run here next summer.

The London, Ont.-Born Lombardo, who won the 1946 event at Detroit, will defend the title in his Tempo V8. The American Power Boating Association at its annual meeting here yesterday approved the band leader's recommendation that this year's race be held in New York waters.

The South Shore Yacht Club of Freeport, N.Y., Lombardo's home club, acting as sponsor, has already started plans for the course in Jamaica Bay, where the 40th running of the cup race will be held Aug. 10.

"We expect to take motorboating out of the millionaire class and bring it down to the public level of enjoyment," said Lombardo.

"I recommended a New York waterways because I do not favor having gold cup races held in one city year after year. It is an international classic. People everywhere want to see it. New Yorkers are so sports-minded that I predict this year's regatta will be witnessed by 500,000 spectators— double the 250,000 on hand in Detroit last Labor Day."

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Deliver me from Oxpert Foo. Please make that partner riddable. The suits he bids are seldom true. His suits are always kiddable.

A biddable suit is one that is better than average in length and faces; Q J 3 2, or better. The longer the suit, the less faces it needs; J 5 4 3 2, or 7 6 5 4 3 2, or better.

With not quite enough, a suit is called shaded. When bidding a shaded suit, you are kidding yourself or your partner. So, it may well be called a kiddable suit.

It may be advisable to show a shaded suit under some conditions. That is why it is sometimes known as a conditional suit. But players are funny animals. They soon make a rule out of an exception.

Players all over the place now bid kiddable suits with abandon. They make no distinction between these and truly biddable suits. Nor are their partners notified when truer suits are shown.

In Horse Sense, we prefer to stick solely to biddable suits. Nevertheless, we will use a shaded suit in an emergency. When we do, however, we have an unmistakable way of warning our partner.

You see, our bids follow T-A-N; takeout, assist, no-trump. If we assist or bid no-trump, we deny a biddable suit. After that if we takeout to a suit, it must be shaded. Self evident.

Suppose partner opens with a spade when you have this hand:

♠Q 9
♥K 10 6 4
♦A 8 7 2
♣9 5 3

Without a biddable suit or adequate support, you have no true takeout or assist. With three high cards, your first response is one no-trump. In our rules, this says you have no biddable suit.

Suppose partner then bids two clubs. If you now bid two hearts, he could not mistake the kind of a suit you have. It must be shaded or you would have made the takeout first.

What could be sweeter?

TRENTON FLYERS DEFEAT BOMBERS BY 10-3 COUNT

Stretch Loop Winning Streak to Three Games in Int. "B" Schedule

Don't say you weren't told.

It was forecast that the Intermediate "B" tussle between Mountain View Bombers and the Trenton Flyers, the first clash between the service squads, would be another of those rip-snorting hodge-podges of everything in the hockey calendar, and that is exactly what happened at the Hume Arena last night.

Lest we forget, the final score was 10-3 for Harry Hinton's Flyers who stretched their loop winning streak to three straight at the expense of their service mates from the Mountain. But the score does not indicate the margin of difference between the teams.

The seven goal margin was more or less the difference between opportunists around the net, and a hard-battling squad who were either outlucked or beaten by outstanding goal-keeping.

Crack Line Paces Flyers

The crack forward line of Sargent, Miller and Brackenbury again paced the Flyers to victory with the trio garnering ten points among them out of the night's harvest. Miller, who is the ace marksman of the loop thus far, got himself three goals and an assist, Brack helped himself to one tally and three assists and Tricky Nicky Sargent, a hockey will-o-the-wisp if there ever was one, got one of each.

The Trenton front lines showed more passing polish and their work inside the opposing bluelines with attacking forwards showing a willingness to pass the puck was one of the contributing factors to their victory. The Bombers skated with the service foe but they were outlucked inside the blueline and at times their shooting was off. But Bridgeman, was again the Horatio for the Flyers and he turned back foray after foray of Bombers when they raced in on him single-handed.

Flyers Had Edge

Generally speaking, Flyers had an all-round edge on the Bombers on the night's play. Their forwards back-checked well; the defence played their positions and gave the goalie good protection. On the attack they were deadly and they deserved their win.

Trenton broke the scoring ice in the fourth minute in the first period when Miller raced down left wing, flashed in on goal and took Brackenbury's pass to dunk the rubber. Two minutes later Brack fed Middleton lofty Flyer defenceman and one of the stars of the game a neat pass and the long one made no mistake. Bombers flashed back to the attack and their efforts were rewarded when "Doc" Murray drove home Casselman's pass to score.

It was nip and tuck in the second, with Miller sinking two goals and assisting in Brackenbury's third counter as against two tallies by McNab and Murray of Bombers to make the score 5-3.

It was all Trenton as far as scoring goes in the third heat with the Flyers racking up five counters against nary a return from the embattled Bomber crew. The Bombers drove in time and again and on one occasion drilled three shots at an open net and couldn't find the twine. Flyers however, put up a stubborn defence and "barred the door" on several occasions.

Lay on Hickory

The game was another slam-bang affair with the boys laying on everything but their winter overcoats. Eight penalties were handed out by officials "Speedy" St. Louis and "Toots" Holway, but there was no serious damage done although it was anything but a pink tea party. However there wasn't a dull moment, and there was action throughout even if you couldn't call the brand served up exactly the National Hockey League type.

Group Captain Rutledge, and Group Captain Lister, commanding officers of Trenton and Mountain View Air Station faced off the puck to open the service game with the rubber being dropped by Air Marshal Middleton.

The two teams meet again at the arena on Wednesday night, and another rip-snorter should result, if Mountain View comment can be judged a criterion.

The teams:

Mountain View Bombers: Goal, Welstead; defence, Sherman, Nadon; centre, Murray; wings, McNab, Casselman; subs, Hammond, Ouellette, Gilson, Elliott, Brant, Potter.

Trenton Flyers: Goal, Bridgeman; defence, Middleton, Crawford; centre, Sargent; wings, Miller, Brackenbury; subs, Hallett, Bullock, Prevost, Wade, Martell, Ault, Norris.

Quinte Skating Club To Hold Carnival

It was decided today, at a meeting of the Quinte Skating Club to put on a Big Ice Show sometime in February. This show will be something entirely different from any show the club have put on in the past. Besides those taking part from the local club it is expected that some of the very best talent in the province will also take part. This will give the people of Belleville and surrounding district an opportunity to see some of Canada's finest skaters here in their own city.

HOWIE MORENZ JR. SETTING PACE IN QUEBEC LOOP

Son of Famous Player Sparking Canadiens at Top of League

(By The Canadian Press)

Howie Morenz Jr., holds the spotlight in Quebec Amateur Hockey scene this week as he continues to set a terrific place with Montreal Canadiens of the Junior Amateur Hockey Association.

The 19-ytar-old kid with the "million dollar name" has amassed 34 points made up of 22 goals and 12 assists in 13 games. Young Howie has sparked his league-leading Canadiens to 12 wins in 13 starts in the eight-club loop.

Trailing the Junior Canadiens by two points, Lachine with 10 wins and two ties for 22 points is offering stiff opposition. With the Memorial Cup playdowns within sight, seven of eight teams remain in a position for a play-off spot.

Pivot-man Armand Bourdon of St. Hyacinthe Gallos deserves special mention for his seven goals in one game feat last Sunday against Cornwall in a provincial Hockey League game. Bourdon was the sparkplug as his fourth-place team blanked Cornwall 10-0. He was later forced to retire from the game with a dislocated shoulder.

The Provincial Hockey League is past the half way mark in the schedule with Sherbrooke setting the pace with 36 points made up of 18 victories and nine losses. Lachine Rapides follow two points behind with 28 while Cornwall and Victoriaville are tied for third place with 27 points.

Smiley Meronek of Lachine Rapides heads the individual scoring race with 22 goals and 31 assists for 53 points.

Tommy Gorman's Ottawa Senators appear to be the team most likely to represent Quebec in the Allan Cup playdowns. Gorman's crew have won 15 games, lost six and tied two for 32 points, six ahead of Quebec Aces and Montreal Royals who are presently undergoing seige of bad luck with four of their stars out with injuries.

aVlleyfield Braves have beaten the Montreals in their two last meetings, but have been unable to vacate the cellar position while Shawinigan Falls with 19 points remain seven behind Quebec and Montreal.

AT THE McCARTHY — On a runway at the Winter Garden, Al Jolson (Larry Parks) unmindful of his audience, sings "April Showers," especially for Follies dancer Julie Benson (Evelyn Keyes), in a scene from Columbia's "The Jolson Story," now at the McCarthy Theatre.

AT THE CAPITOL — Barry Sullivan methodically counts the bills that Belita gives him to prevent his running away from a suspected murder charge in Monogram's brilliant psychological film, "Suspense," now at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "Strange Voyage," with Eddie Albert. Both features are being shown for the first time in Belleville.

AT THE BELLE—Sisters three, June Haver, Vivian Blaine and Vera-Ellen are the title trio of 20th. Century-Fox's Technicolor musical "Three Little Girls in Blue," closing at the Belle Theatre tonight. Also starred in the film are George Montgomery, Celeste Holm and Frank Latimore.

CHAPTER 5

She felt that she had always known Elissa. After Louise's caprices, her exaggerations and petty storms of temperament, Elissa was a serene balanced person. Not over twenty-three, she more nearly spoke Arlen's language, and Arlen guessed, by the simplicity and inexpensiveness of her clothes that good breeding rather than wealth entitled her to a place in this amazing upper world.

Elissa pulled off her white gloves and drew up a chair near the desk.

"Louise is out," said Arlen.

"Naturally. My saying that I'm coming means nothing to her if she has something better to do. How is the job going?"

"Not bad really—when I get it straightened out, I'm going to business school. Stenography," she said, smiling, "is something every secretary should know."

Elissa offered cigarettes. "It's something every poor relation should know. I'm a poor relation. Did you know that?" she asked quite gaily. "I'm Louise's cousin. I live with my uncle and aunt."

"When I meet new people," said Arlen, "my imagination immediately makes up stories about them."

"Which aren't far wrong, I'll wager," said Elissa. "You know that Fanny is scheming and selfish, that Toby is the last word as a lover, and that Henry Faust is the proper escort for a poor relation. Let's go in the drawing-room and have some tea."

As Arlen passed a cup of tea to Elissa, she said, "I suppose they're wondering about me, too, and thinking the worst. My being here is dramatic and unusual. When Renny suggested it to me, I was so desperate I could have done anything. I had run away then."

Elissa's brown eyes were warm and friendly. "You were lucky to fall into such masterly hands. Nobody but Fanny resented you. She's a snob and she hates to have Toby meet a new pretty girl. She knows she has to go through all the old scenes again. Fanny is one of those impossible mothers who thinks they are keeping youthful by being their sons' pals. If Toby ever marries, it will be the death of her. She couldn't share him with any woman." She sipped her tea thoughtfully and took a dainty cake. "Now you know all about them, Arlen. They're selfish. They're all right and good fun if you don't get too involved. One would think that Louise would take Allison since she'll probably never have any children of her own."

"Who is Allison?" Arlen asked simply.

"My dear, she's Renny's daughter. Didn't you know?"

The large white room seemed to close in on Arlen then. Her hand trembled. She felt as if struck. She lowered her eyes quickly, pulling a polite veil over them. His daughter! Renny—married! No, it couldn't be!

"Is Christa—his wife?" she asked in a voice so far away it could not be hers.

"Yes, Christa is Renny's wife," Elissa said slowly. "Don't you know anything about that? Didn't he tell you? No, I suppose not. He never mentions her name and he looks so wretched when anybody else does accidentally. I'm talking an awful lot, Arlen, and probably saying too much."

Still Arlen did not look up, knowing her eyes would have a wondering honesty in them that Elissa would be quick to perceive. While Elissa talked, Arlen was only half hearing. The other half of her was beating down, pressing down on the high ecstasy of last night, as one tries to stamp out an unmanageable flame.

"I'm Christa's friend," said Elissa, putting her cup back on the silver tray. "I've tried not to hate her for what she did to Renny. We went to school together, the three of us. We were inseparable, though Renny and Christa were a few years older than I. He's known her all his life and adored her. Always there has been only one woman for Renny. He's been true to her since he was twelve. When he was twenty-one, they were married. It was one of those perfect marriages that no one had any doubts about. Christa was so lovely and Renny worshipped her.

"They had a house in the country then and when I went out to see them, I felt that I was stepping into Eden. I put a lot of myself and my young illusions in that marriage."

Elissa shrugged. "Renny worshipped her too much. After Allison was born, she became restless and unhappy. She felt that she'd missed so much by marrying and having a child so young. There will always be other men for Christa. I saw their marriage breaking up, with Renny trying desperately to hold it together. Last year she simply packed up and went abroad to think things over, leaving Allison for other people to look after.

"One is always seeing marriages breaking up these hectic days," said Elissa, "but we all thought that theirs was different. Renny hasn't forgotten her. He never will."

"He—he has suffered," was all that Arlen could say.

"It's a ghastly affair," said Elissa. "But Christa has had her fling now. She's had admiration and other men for a year. I think she'll come back to Renny and her child. He'll take her back, too. He'll never divorce her."

She looked at Arlen soberly.

"I'm sorry I had to be the one to tell you. I didn't know that you didn't know. You—you think a great deal of him, don't you?"

"He's been wonderful to me. Perhaps she'll come back when she knows what he did for me."

"She'll be sure to know even if I don't write her. Fanny, who says she hates her, writes her everything." Elissa pulled on her white gloves. "I've talked too long and too gloomily, Arlen. Next time I'll be more cheerful. Poor relations aren't cheerful people. I'm going to talk to Uncle Reggie and Aunt Grace and see if I can't go to business school, too. I'd give anything to feel independent and not have to wear clothes that Louise and other relatives give me." She smiled, getting up. "Tell Louise her presence wasn't missed at all."

When she was gone, Arlen got up slowly and walked out on the penthouse terrace again. New York was at its highest, maddest hour. Arlen's temples throbbed. Her eyes were burning. She said slowly, "And if Renny ever loves me and wants to marry me, I shall be a step-mother to his little girl. Stepmother! I who hate the name! But Renny will never love me. Elissa said that always there has been but one woman for him—Christa." And her own hurt was somehow less great, knowing what Renny had endured and suffered with stubborn strength.

That night the deep musical voice of Toby Sanner asked, "Will you go out with me tonight, Arlen? We always celebrate at the slightest excuse but your coming to town is something to blow trumpets about." And she heard herself telling him she would go.

* * *

Typewriters tapped rhythmically. The warm September sun came through the broad windows in horizontal panels and seem to settle in Arlen's hair, giving a lesser brightness to other heads in the large classroom. Each face was serious, intent upon the curves and lines of clumsy shorthand scribbled on little lineless pads. "Gentlemen ... colon.... Your letters of the fifteenth.... Very truly yours...."

To this strange and rapid means of communication Arlen had adapted herself after a week of concentration and practice. It was a six-weeks' training course, though few students finished in that time. In her room, after her work for Louise was done, she diligently practiced, memorized, and read.

Today each click of the typewriter keys seemed to say that Renny had not come back. His mother was going to take an apartment in New York for the winter and he was waiting to accompany her and Allison on the trip. To think of Renny was to feel the sharp pain of loss. When he returned, he would find out to his amazement that Toby Sanner's charm had found its inevitable way into Arlen's affections. To Fanny's obvious distress and displeasure, Toby had become a permanent fixture at Louise's apartment.

With all due credit to Toby's charm, it was not that alone that drew Arlen to him. To close her mind to the hurt that for Renny there was only one woman. Christa, she had readily accepted Toby's attentions and invitations as a means of forgetting the breathless instant when Renny's arms had drawn her close, and to forget, too, all the brave young dreams she had spun her first evening in New York. It was difficult not to love Toby though Arlen knew her response to him was that of an older sister toward a beloved brother.

There was the slap of notebooks closed and audible signs that the day's class was over. Arlen put her letters on the instructor's desk and went to the cloakroom to get her hat and coat.

Elissa was standing in the hall. Before Arlen could speak her delight at seeing her, Elissa's hand grasped her desperately. Arlen stood still while the other students got their hats and coats and moistly descended the steps.

When it was quiet, Elissa said, "Come in here and I'll tell you." They went in the empty cloakroom and closed the door.

This frightened girl with red eyes was a far removed figure from the beautiful girl to whom Arlen had been drawn on her first evening in New York. Elissa looked shabby and tearful.

"What's the matter?" Arlen asked. "You look as if...."

"Do I look as though I've left home? Oh, I couldn't stand it, Arlen! I should have done this long ago. I can't stand being reminded by every one that I'm only a poor relation, and so poor that no man will marry me! I'm so tired of being humble and grateful—and unwanted. I've put in a horrible week at home. All the insults and snubs that Fanny and other people have given me seemed to come up and slap me in the face. This morning, after a scene with Uncle Reggie — he called me ungrateful and reminded me that he was the only one of my relatives who would have me when my parents were drowned—I—I left."

The memory of her own recent despair made Arlen take Elissa's cold hand and warm it between hers.

"Have you found a place to live yet?"

"I found a room on Fifty-Seventh street for five dollars a week."

"Have you any money?"

"My Christmas money—about a hundred dollars. And it cost seventy-five to take this course. I couldn't wait until I had more money. I never have any money." She wiped frightened tears from her eyes.

"Richard will help you," said Arlen, who admired Richard tremendously.

"No. I won't ask for help from any one," Elissa said stubbornly. "I've made the break and I'm going through with it if I starve." She looked up, wiped away a remaining tear with a crumpled handkerchief, and took a deep troubled breath. "I'm sorry for bothering you about it. I'll make out."

"Why shouldn't you bother me?" Arlen asked. "I have a job that pays me far more than I'm worth. Richard won't take any board from me. I, too, feel that I'm living on charity. I've got fifty dollars my father gave me. Here," she opened her purse and pulled out the folded bill, "take this. Call it a loan, Elissa. You must eat, you know."

Elissa smiled. "As one working girl to another? I wonder if I could get a job in the afternoons, some sort of selling job. I know nothing about these things. I've gone in stores and acted so superior toward salespeople who had so much more than I had."

"I know less than nothing," Arlen said cheerfully. "I've got the afternoon before me. I can practice shorthand tonight. I'll tell Toby he can't come."

Elissa brightened. "I've always looked the wrong way for friendship. Arlen, have you ever felt that the world suddenly offered unlimited possibilities? When I paid a week's rent on the little room and came out in the sunshine, I felt superior and proud. Oh, you can't imagine how I felt! Walking down Fifth avenue I could look people square in the eyes. For so long I've hated myself for being too weak to break away! Then—when I counted my money after paying for the course and found I had less than twenty dollars between me and starvation—I got panicky."

"I know exactly how you felt," said Arlen. She stood back, smiling. "Powder your nose and let's get a bit of lunch."

Toby's low shining roadster was parked at the curb and Toby himself, a blond young giant in brown clothes, awaited. When he saw Elissa with Arlen, high hopes floundered. Toby's disappointments were always cruelly visible. He had hoped to take Arlen for a ride in the country and stop at some wayside inn for lunch. Working as a glorified office boy in Richard's office had its advantages. On sunny afternoons Toby disappeared gaily for a round of golf, to watch tennis matches, or to take out a pretty girl.

When Toby fell in love, he gave it all the enthusiasm of a first romance. He had no poignant memories of other girls who had been kissed and forgotten. Toby was the perennial collegiate—ardent, dashing, amusing. Before the first kiss, when the chase was most exciting, the world was sunny and bright to him. After the last kiss and after the final scene with Fanny—who each time found a different reason for disliking Toby's girl of the moment—the world was glum and dark indeed to Toby until a newer prettier flame appeared up on the social horizon. Then once again Toby chased and ardently wooed. It was a cycle that had not changed since before his college days.

STORMY WEATHER IN TOWN COUNCIL

New Toronto, Jan. 14—(CP) — A stormy session was enjoyed by all at Monday evening's meeting of the town council. Reeve MacDonald said to a suggestion of councillor Green, "You are one degree removed from an imbecile." The councillor then threatened to "come across the table at you," to which the reeve replied "You come across and I'll punch your nose."

17 WOMEN'S HATS LISTED

Boston, Jan. 14 —(AP)— Perhaps m'lady's hat isn't so important after all.

Among unclaimed lost items, the Boston and Maine Railroad today listed 17 women's hats. All but 10 of the men's lost hats have been claimed.

Also unclaimed were snakes preserved in alcohol and a bass drum.

Crashes Destroying Public Confidence Says Sen. Brewster

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP).—The United States Senate Commerce Committee called in the Civil Aeronautics Board today to discuss "the whole air picture" in the light of recent crashes which some Congress members say have shaken public faith in commercial flying.

Senator Owen Brewster (Rep.-Me.), committee member, told reporters, "We have got to see if we can find out what the difficulty is."

"The situation is destroying popular confidence. There won't be anybody flying if this keeps on. People are getting afraid to fly and that's a bad thing," Brewster said.

He predicted a United States government Air Safety Board separate from the C.A.B. may be proposed, and another committeeman, Senator Howard Capehart (Rep.-Ind.), declared that such a move "may be a necessity."

This would remove crash investigation authority from the C.A.B., which also makes the rules for flying.

In the House, Representative L. M. Rivers (Dem.-Sc. C.), said the American people "are horrified and scared to death. If there is something wrong with the whole doggoned set up, then something should be done."

The number of passenger deaths, however, dropped only one from the 76 killed in 1945 while mileage jumped from 3,554,714,828 to 6,046,000,000 in 1946. Also, 22 crew personnel were killed last year against 12 in 1945.

Capehart told a reporter that "something has got to be done and done quickly."

W. G. McGrath, general manager of Trans-World Airlines' eastern division, said in New York "there can be no question that the recent unfortunate series of aviation mishaps has contributed to the present air travel situation." He blamed it mainly, however, on "a temporary lull in business activity."

Two Women Die On Guillotine In Berlin Prison

Berlin, Jan. 14 —(AP)— Dr. Ilde Wernicke, 47, and Nurse Helene Wieczorek, 52, were guillotined today in Moabit prison for participating in the euthenasia killing of more than 600 mental patients at an asylum in eastern Germany during the Nazi regime.

They were the first women executed in Berlin since the war.

A German court condemned them after they were convicted of killing inmates at the Meseritz-Obrawalde hospital with injections of drugs.

Also guillotined in Moabit today was Helmut Kaeufer, Berlin youth convicted of the murder of his aunt last May.

Unconditionally Released

Pittsburgh, Jan. 14 — (AP) — Burgess Whitehead, veteran infielder, today was given his unconditional release by Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League.

Whitehead, who played with New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals before the Pirates purchased him from Toronto Maple Leafs of the International League at the end of the 1942 season, appeared in only 53 games last season after three years in the army.

TORONTO STOCK EXCHANGE

Toronto, Jan. 14 (CP).— The downward trend continued throughout the early session of the Toronto Stock Exchange today with industrials again leading the session.

Little action in all groups featured the morning's trading, but prices drooped. Papers were still losers. Banks were down and utilities lost a little from the early morning gain. Oils were down also, with British American off ½ and Western oils were inactive.

Golds and base metals were irregular, with gains and losses spotted on the board. The range was narrow, but some issues gained and lost up to 10 points.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 14. (AP)— Stocks did better on a selective basis in today's market as selling relaxed appreciably and modest demand appeared.

Dealings turned sluggish after a fairly active opening. While small losses persisted in most departments, fractional gains were well distributed near the fourth hour.

Canadian issues were mixed at mid-day. McIntyre was off a point and Hiram Walker 1-2. C.P.R. gained 1-8 and Dome Mines were up 14. Distillers Seagrams added 1-8.

PRODUCE MARKET

Toronot, Jan. 14 (CP)—Produce prices in the spot market here today were reported as follows:

Eggs: Receipts quite heavy, local market quiet, packing for export now major activity; wholesale to retail, A large 44-45, A medium 39-40, A pullet 36-36, B 35, C 33-35; country shippers quoted graded eggs, cases free, A large 40, A medium 36-37, A pullet 33, B 32, C 29-30.

Churning cream was unchanged No. 1 lb. 41 fob, 45 delivered, plus 10 cents subsidy.

Butter: Prints, 1st grade 42, 2nd grade 41, 3rd grade 40; first grade solids 40, second grade solids 39; market unchanged, offerings light.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 14 —(CP)— Grade A, dressed, bacon-hogs, were unchanged at Brantford $22.35 delivered; prices were unsettled at Stratford with floor price under the new export price $21.28, delivered; in markets reporting early today.

SECOND HOUSE TO BURN

Hamilton, Jan. 14 (CP)—Two houses destroyed in two years by fire is too much, Clifford Delotinville, of Copetown, near here thinks today. His newly completed house went up in smoke yesterday, and two years ago a frame house on the same site was destroyed by flames.

16-year-old Boy Under Questioning For Fatal Shooting

Coldwater, Mich., Jan. 14—(AP) —A 16-year-old boy was under questioning today in the fatal shooting of Alfred S. Reed, 25, a Branch county deputy sheriff.

Sheriff William Burns identified the youth as Larry Crandall and said he and the slain deputy were "good friends."

No charge has been placed against Crandall. Burns said he admitted the shooting.

The boy's story, as related by Sheriff Burns, was that the two were riding in Reed's automobile early Monday night and stopped beside a gravel pit at the edge of the city.

During a quarrel, Crandall shot the deputy with an automatic pistol, Burns said. The boy then drove the deputy to his parents' home where his father, Frank, called authorities. Reed died in an ambulance en route to hospital.

Sheriff Burns said extensive questioning failed to reveal the cause of the quarrel.

WELCOME HOME

London (CP)—London and other large British cities are planning celebrations, probably in early May, to mark the return of the royal family from their tour of South Africa, and Princess Elizabeth's 21st birthday April 21. They are due to leave Capetown April 24.

RECORDED 12,000 CASES

St. Thomas, Jan. 14 (CP)—A lot of trouble has been recorded by Mrs. Stanley C. Reade, Elgin county court reporter for 15 years. Mrs. Reade, who is retiring soon, has taken shorthand notes of 12,000 cases, one of which lasted three months.

BENTLEY BROS. MOVING UP IN SCORING RACE

Doug Jumps From 10th to Fifth Place and Max From 17th Rung to Ninth

Montreal, Jan. 14 —(CP)— A sudden reversal of form by the Chicago Black Hawks who won three straight games during the past week moved brother Doug and Max Bentley well forward in the National Hockey League scoring race. Doug jumped from 10th to fifth place while Max moved from the 17th rung to the ninth this week.

According to league statistics released today, the Bentleys scored two goals and four assists each during the past week which saw Hawks pull two straight victories over the champion Montreal Canadiens.

Maurice (Rocket) Richard of Canadiens continues to top the individual scoring parade and goal-getting department with 23 tallies and 17 assists for 40 points. 23-year-old Ted (Teeter) Kennedy of Toronto is in the runner-up position with 35 points made up of 17 goals and 18 assists.

Boston's Milt Schmidt jumped into third place with 19 points while Billy (The Kid) Taylor dropped from third to fourth position, but continues to lead the league in assists with 22.

Meeker New Twelfth.

Toronto's candidate for the "rookie award," Howie Meeker scored five goals against Chicago last Wednesday as the Leafs whipped Hawks 10-4. Meeker is 12th with 17 goals.

With the first 100 games of the 180-game schedule completed, Toronto Maple Leafs hold a seven-point lead in the race for the National Hockey League pennant.

Leafs with 22 wins, four ties and eight losses for 48 points, won two out of three games last week. Canadiens, charged with three straight defeats, are in second place with 19 wins, three ties and 10 defeats for 41 points.

Presently undergoing a severe player shake-up, Boston is in third position with 30 points. Rangers follow one point behind while Detroit is in fifth place with 28. The cellar-dwelling Chicago Hawks with three victories under their belt are four points behind Detroit, but have played four games less.

Canadien's Bill Durnan leads the net custodians in the goals-against department, allowing 70 in 32 games. Chuck Rayner of New York and Turk Broda of Toronto are the shutout leaders with three apiece.

Pat Egan, Boston rearguard, heads the league's "bad boys" with 73 minutes spent in the penalty box.

BARRIE FLYERS IN FIFTH PLACE OF JUNIOR LOOP

Stratford Indians Defeat Toronto Staffords by 3-1 Count

(By The Canadian Press)

Any faint hopes that Toronto Staffords may have held of overhauling the unbeaten Hamilton Tigers were as dead as a dodo today. For the second-place Staffords, nine full games behind the unbeaten Tigers in the O.H.A. Senior "A" group, were beaten 3-1 last night by the Stratford Indians, who are still at the tail-end of the five-team senior group.

One junior tilt was also placed on the records, Barrie Flyers overwhelming the Hamilton Szabos 9-3 at Hamilton. That puts Barrie a bit higher up in fifth place in the 10-team junior circuit.

Two junior games were listed for tonight, the leading Toronto St. Michaels Majors travelling to St. Catharines Falcons, and Toronto Marlboros going to the second-place Galt Red Wings.

The Indians were always ahead of the Staffords at Maple Leaf Gardens last night. Phillips, on an assist from Zuke, got the only goal of the first period. Hilson, aided by Phillips and Zuke, made at 20- in the second before Kirby scored for Toronto. Walsh got Stratford's third goal in a lively last frame which saw a major handed out to Knipfel of Toronto and a misconduct to Walsh of Stratford.

At Hamilton Barrie rang in three first period goals and were still ahead 4-2 at the end of the second. The third period threatened to break out into a free-for-all as Barrie ran in five goals to Hamilton's one. St. Pierre of Barrie and Davidson of Hamilton were given majors and nine other penalties were distributed in that stanza.

Jean St. Pierre scored two of the Barrie goals, the others going to Favero, Aikens, Meger, F. Long, Barrett, LaFrance and Ziebel. Hamilton's three goals were shared by Cadieux, Barnes and Baggnola.

SMILEY MERONEK SCORING LEADER

Montreal, Jan. 14. (CP)— Smiley Meronek of Lachine Rapides tops the Provincial Hockey League scoring race with 22 goals and 31 assists for 53 points, League statistics released here today reveal.

The former Montreal Royals forward is followed by Cornwall's Freddy Gardner with 52 points made up of 28 goals and 24 assists. Teammates Herbie Carnegie and Tony Demers of Sherbrooke are tied with 49 points for third place.

Sherbrooke continues to lead the standings with 18 wins and nine losses for 36 points while Lachine follows in second place with 25 points.

Tinker Awaits Amputation To Stop Gangrene

By ARTHUR MARTIN

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 14 (AP) — Joe Tinker lay on a hospital bed today awaiting amputation of his left leg and, to all appearances, being late on a throw to first base would have caused him more concern. His major worry appeared to be that he might miss some of his baseball activities during the coming season.

Tinker said he expected "to see some baseball" this summer but probably would not do as much scouting for the Boston Braves as he has in recent seasons.

The former Chicago Cub shortstop, who helped make baseball history after the turn of the century as the starting cog in the famed Tinker-to-Evers-to Chance infield combination, will have his leg severed above the knee Thursday to halt a gangrenous condition.

The infection, complicated by poor blood circulation, grew from a small sore on his left foot. Removal of a toe several weeks ago failed to halt the spread.

Now 66, the occupant of baseball's Hall of Fame discussed the loss of his leg without rancor.

"That leg's seen a lot of good service," he said. "I guess losing it is just one of the penalties of old age. If my blood circulation had been what it should that little sore wouldn't have amounted to a thing."

Turning the talk to baseball Tinker said it was hard to compare present day infielders with the old time greats "because the game is different."

The double plays that brought fame to Tinker, Johnny Evers and Frank Chance are scarcer in these days of the lively ball and heavy hitting, he explained.

BRANDON ELKS DEFEAT OSHAWA

Brandon, Man., Jan. 14..(CP) —Third-period goals by Ray Manson and Carl Kaiser gave Brandon Elks current leaders of the Manitoba Junior A Hockey Association, a 3-1 victory over Oshawa Generals of the Ontario Junior A circuit in the first of a two-game exhibition series here last night .

The Generals tallied before the fans had settled down in their seats, Pogue scoring at 2:35 of the initial period but Bud Evans tied it up before the end of the session and the Elks went ahead near the six-minute mark of the final and added another with less than two minutes to play.

Featured by rugged checking, fast-skating and spectacular net-minding, the game kept the 4,000 fans on their toes all the way. Elks back-checking, coupled with timely passing inside the Oshawa blue-line gave them a slight margin in the play but the Generals always were dangerous on their breakaways.

A difference between the East's and West's interpretation of the rules resulted in the visitors drawing 12 penalties to the Elks' one. None of the scoring took place, however, while the teams were shorthanded.

Louis B. Mayer May Quit Racing And Sell Stable

Hollywood, Jan. 14. (AP)— The red and blue silks of movie executive Louis B. Mayer may be missing from the turf next season.

Brownell and Leslie Combs of Lexington, Ky., said they and E. Dale Shaffer are negotiating for acquisition of some of Mayer's vast racing properties. A spokesman for Mayer confirmed that he contemplates disposing of his stable of 40 horses and his breeding establishment of 605 acres at Perris, Calif., where he has 75 brood mares and six stallions.

Mayer's health hasn't been up to par recently and furthermore, "L. B. hasn't been any too pleased about the high weights racing secretaries have been giving some of his stars, among them Busher, Honeymoon and Be Faithful.

His turf winnings last year were $449,195.

Little Benny's Note Book

I was taking a walk with pop for his health and appetite, and we started to go passed the Super Drug Store and one of the windows was full of distionaries for 69 cents each, and pop said, That reminds me, I need some razor blades.

How does it, pop said? I said, and he said, Because, unless you happen to be looking for information, the distionary is a dull book.

Being a joke about dull and sharp, and we went in and walked back to the sine saying Shaving Aids, and pop said to the man, A package of Dubblesharps, please, and the man said, I'm all out of Dubblesharps, but I can let you have a package of Morning Glory blades. You cant go wrong on Morning Glories, we offer dubble your money back if you're dissatisfied, he said.

I'll take a package, pop said.

Which he did, and as soon as he payed for it he handed it right back again, saying, I'll have dubble my money, please, I'm dissatisfied.

But that's impossible. you haven't even opened the package, the man said, and pop said, I didn't have to go that far, I was even dissatisfied with the printing on the outside. It's so small I cant read it without my glasses, and that always makes me feel old, and there's no more dissatisfied feeling than feeling old. I've spent a frustrated life passing up offers to go back and get dubble my dissatisfied money back, and by gollies now if I dont strike while the iron is hot I'll probably go to my grave a bitterly inhibited man, he said.

I'll gladly refund the perchase price, but that's the best I can do, the man said, and pop said, Okay, the principal is the same, I'll gladly refund the blades.

Which he did, and he got his money back and walked out like somebody feeling better instead of werse.

Sask. to Curb Misuse of 'Easy Terms'

By NORMAN ALSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, Jan. 14—(CP) — That "easy terms" sign, absent from most store windows during the war, is to be hung out again and Saskatchewan's C.C.F. government is preparing legislation to curb any misuse of instalment-plan selling.

Federal wartime controls on consumer credit along with decreased supplies and enlarged incomes, are said to have cut instalment plan buying 75 per cent during the Second World War. Following a renewed flow of goods, and with controls now removed, Saskatchewan retailers are looking to a return to the instalment method of selling.

In legislation expected to be brought before the next Saskatchewan legislature session starting Jan. 30, the government would attempt to protect low income consumers from unscrupulous dealers and the small retailer from cutthroat competition in instalment selling such as "one dollar down and five years to pay."

Many merchants found the wartime controls lowered business costs by slashing bad debts.

The method of controlling abuses is a controversial subject with suggestions ranging from regulation of size of down payment and number of payments to regulation according to the index of business activity. Proponents of the latter would have high down payments in times of prosperity and low ones during depression.

Opposed to any new legislation are automotive and implement dealers and credit associations. They contend there is already adequate provincial legislation in force.

The government is believed to take the opposite view, objecting that existing legislation does not control terms of payment, or adequately regulate sales contracts, and restricts repossession only to a limited extent.

A draft bill outlining most of these innovations was prepared late in the last session of the legislature but was deferred for study.

Rival Claimants For Governorship Set up Offices

Arnall Refuses to Step Aside for Young Talmadge

Atlanta, Jan. 15 — (AP)—Rival claimants to the governorship of Georgia established offices in the state capitol today and each immediately set up his own military department.

The claimants were Ellis Arnall, who has held the office for the past four years, and Herman Talmadge, who was named by the legislature early today to the office which his late father, Eugene Talmadge, won in last November's general election. The elder Talmadge died last month.

Arnall refused to heed the action of the legislature and in a dramatic early morning encounter with Talmadge and in the face of a yelling mob of Talmadge supporters refused to turn the office over to Talmadge. His first act upon arrival at his office today, Arnall named Col. R. W. Collins, commander of the State Guard, as Adjutant-General to succeed Marvin Griffin, who last night was sworn in by Talmadge as his adjutant-general. Griffin formerly served under Arnall.

Communicates to Patterson

Then Arnall communicated with United States Secretary of War Patterson by telephone and asked federal recognition of Collins as a brigadier general and the state's adjutant general. Arnall declined to say what Patterson answered, but when he hung up, he turned to reporters and said "This is the adjutant-general," pointing toward Collins.

(The state guard was set up during the war to function in place of the national guard. Its demobilization has awaited full reorganization of the national guard).

Arnall said Griffin had resigned and had accepted office under Talmadge, "this pretender."

When Talmadge, who was in an office Griffin had set up for him just off the main governor's reception room, heard of Arnall's call to the secretary of war, he told his executive secretary, Benton Odom, to "block all communications."

Then Talmadge put in a telephone call for United States Senator Richard B. Russell in Washington.

Talmadge arrived at the capitol shortly after 9:30 a.m. and Arnall, who earlier had left under protection of national guardsmen, arrived shortly thereafter.

Shortly after his arrival Talmadge conferred with Griffin, who later told reporters he was taking orders from "the new governor."

5 Appointments Are Announced By Prime Minister

Ottawa, Jan. 15 (CP)—Prime Minister MacKenzie King announced today five appointments of new deputy and associate deputy ministers of government departments.

Also announced was the appointment of Maj. C.R. Lamoureux of Montreal as gentleman usher of the Black Rod, effective today.

The deputy and associate ministers follow::

Hugh L. Keenleyside, to be deputy minister of mines and resources and commissioner of the Northwest Territories, effective March 15.

Stewart Bates, to be Deputy Minister of Fisheries, effective Jan. 15.

Wilfred Gordon Mills, to be Deputy Minister of National Defence.

Alexander Ross, to be Associate Deputy Minister of National Defence.

Col. Paul Mathieu, to be Associate Deputy Minister of National Defence.

EIGHT SUITS WITHDRAWN

Detroit, Jan. 15 —(AP)— The C.I.O., reassessing its millions of dollars in portal pay claims against Detroit industry, yesterday withdrew eight suits totalling $7,600,000.

Union spokesmen said the firms won a clean bill of economic health as far as the C.I.O. was concerned during a "weeding out" survey of portal claims.

However, the withdrawals do not mean abandonment "on a wholesale scale" of the portal drive, a C.I.O. lawyer said.

Biggest claim quashed by the union was for $6,000,000 brought by the C.I.O. United Auto Workers against the Motor Products Corp.

POWER PROJECT REQUIRES 2,600 MEN FOR 6 YEARS

Construction Details of St. Lawrence Waterway Outlined to Convention

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 15 — (CP) — Some of the construction details of the St. Lawrence River waterway and power project, were given construction men here by Dr. Thomas H. Hogg, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Power Commission, who said approximately 2,600 men will be employed on the project for an estimated six-year period.

He was addressing the Canadian Construction Association at its 29th annual meeting which ends Thursday. Other speakers yesterday included Federal Labor Minister Mitchell and W. J. LeClair, secretary-manager of the Canadian Lumbermens' Association.

Dr. Hogg outlined some of the construction phases necessary for success of the St. Lawrence project, some of them purely Canadian undertakings and others a joint enterprise with the United States.

Among the works already completed as part of the larger plan, Dr. Hogg mentioned the McArthur lock built by the U. S. on the American Sault canal, and two Canadian projects, the Welland Canal and the St. Lawrence River channel near Prescott, Ont.

Must be Ratified

Negotiations for building the waterway have been conducted between Canada and the U. S. since 1932, Dr. Hogg said, and will be made final with the passage of a bill through the American House of Representatives, which must be ratified by the Canadian parliament.

During this time, he said, the St. Lawrence waterway plan has been under study by engineers and tenders for parts of the work could be called a short while after ratification of the agreement.

Labor Minister Mitchell predicted a high level of employment during the next five years with national income of "the same general order as say 1941 and 1942."

Referring to housing, he said under such circumstances it seems reasonable to believe that more than 400,000 units of housing could be absorbed in the five-year period ending 1951.

"I do not under-estimate the seriousness of the present housing shortage," he said. "Vigorous steps must be taken to meet our needs."

W. J. Leclair, president of the Canadian Lumbermens' Association, told the meeting he was fearful of the result if government restrictions on timber remained.

He charged that timber control regulations as administered by the Prices Board were killing the lumber trade and hindering the construction business.

NEARLY 50,000 NOW IDLE DUE TO TRANSPORT STRIKE

Morning Newspapers Carry Headlines That Predict an End To Crippling Walkout

London, Jan. 15 — (CP)—More than 2,000 Thames lightermen and thousands of stevedores and dockers quit work today in sympathy walkouts, swelling to nearly 50,00 the number of persons idle in London's mushrooming 10-day-old transport strike.

The New York stoppages, protesting the use of troops to replace striking truck drivers for delivery of food, came as negotiators hoped for an early settlement of the truck dispute, crux of an "unofficial" strike which some labor partisans feared might upset the labor government.

Union leaders appealed to the dock workers at a meeting this morning to return to their jobs, but their speeches, citing the striking truckers' advice against further sympathy walk-outs, were shouted down.

Troops moved into Spitalfields, Covent Garden and the Borough fruit and vegetable markets today as they did early this week at Smithfield, the big London meat market. At Spitalfields, however, there was no work for them to do and they left. A market official said little food had come in since the strike was called last Monday.

Meet for Settlement

Delegates of the central London strike committee and the transport and general workers' Union met at noon to work out a settlement of the 10-day-old strike.

Morning newspapers carried headlines predicting an end to the strike. But at least 20,000 workers in other industries had joined the truckers.

The Conservative Daily Mail headed its story: "Odds on the end of strike today." The Daily Herald, Labor, topped its story: "Strike call-off likely" while the Conservative Daily Telegraph headline ran: "Haulage strike may end soon."

The newspaper stories pinned their hopes on the new national joint industrial council established Tuesday by representations of the Road Haulage Association and the powerful Transport and General Workers Union.

May be Govt. Downfall

Strike leader J. E. Evans, in a message to the truck drivers said he hoped that "some concrete proposals" would develop in union negotiations today.

One labor member of parliament, Tom O'Brien for Nottingham, West, declared at a union meeting last night that the strike might bring the downfall of the government.

"A Labor government cannot last alongside a discredited trade union movement," O'Brien said, "the workers of Britain cannot have a Labor government and repudiate trade union organizations at the same time."

DOG RESCUES MASTER

Terrace, B. C., Jan. 15—(CP)— "Mike," a dog of uncertain pedigree, Monday was a hero to his master, G. G. Mueller, who would likely have frozen or starved to death if it had not been for his mongrel companion. Mueller was pinned down by the boughs of a falling tree while working in the woods, and "Mike" set to work to free him. He clawed at the snow until he had made a hole large enough for his master to crawl out.

Berlin's Black Marketeers Keep Allied, Russ Authorities 'on Jump'

By WILLIAM HAMSHER

Berlin, Jan. 15 — (Reuters) — Allied and German authorities are stepping up the campaign against Berlin's black market.

But every attack made against this evil seems to impose new life into it.

In the Russian sector of the city, special motor patrols stand ready for instant action. One recent comb-out, planned as thoroughly as any Red army operation, went systematically through streets and alleys, cafes and cabarets and hauled in nearly 1,400 suspects.

But the real black marketers arrested, according to police reports, totalled only 77, and that figure leaves out of account the host of retail buyers.

Black marketeers at the moment seem to be avoiding food, but there is also a lively trade in gems among those who have acquired stocks of German or English cigarets in the hope that they will soon be able to leave Germany for countries where precious stones would start them off on a new life.

Eight out of every 10 Germans with whom one talks these days expresses determination to emigrate as soon as they can.

Another black market traffic worrying the Allies is in bread coupons. Official cards often get stolen, and underground printing presses are also at work keeping operators supplied, for forgeries are difficult to detect. British authorities, are experimenting with special water-marks and other devices to make the way of the forger more difficult.

The latest Russian-led attack on the black market in the Soviet sector of Berlin had its spearhead in "hovel town" north of the Alexander Platz, where the illegal trade in foodstuffs and rare commodities grafted itself on to the trade in virtue.

The black marketeers, apart from the few arrested either by the Russian motor patrols or the German police, have found new stations. Many of them seem to be using Berlin's underground system.

BABY-SITTER WHO MARRIED THE "BABY"

James Schuffert, 20, dons an apron to help his 13-year-old bride, Delores, with the dishes in his mother's home at Arnold, Pa. Their romance blossomed when Schuffert was hired by the girl's mother as a "baby-sitter" because she didn't like to leave Delores alone while she, the mother, was at work. That was last May. They were married in that month with the permission of Mrs. Lowman, the girl's mother. The case came to the attention of the press when Schuffert was hailed into court on charges of "non-support." He testified that although Mrs. Lowman gave him permission to marry Delores, she put her foot down when he wanted to move his bride from her mother's home. "Delores is too young to leave home," said Mrs. Lowman. The case was dropped when the couple agreed to live with Schuffert's parents at nearby Springdale Hollow, Pa.

Tourist Industry Will Be Materially Assisted By Federal Goverment

Montreal, Jan. 15 (CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon said today the Federal government hopes to increase further its financial assistance to the Canadian tourist industry and to give "all-out co-operation" to tourist agencies of the provincial governments.

In an address prepared for delivery before a meeting of the Hotel and Restaurant Suppliers' Association, Mr. MacKinnon said last year's federal contribution —$650,000—was the largest in history and compared with $150,000 voted in 1934, when the first Senate Committee was formed to study the industry.

The Minister said the government- operated Canadian Tourist Bureau was being organized and a comprehensive advertising compaign being launched for 1947. New travel films were being produced in addition to those already used by the Bureau.

Must Meet Competition

At the same time, he expressed belief Canada must be prepared to meet "strong competition" on this continent for the tourist dollar, not only from the 48 American States but also from the Latin American countries, who now were organizing and developing tourist traffic.

Tourist trade was one of the "greatest" agencies for the promotion of world peace because conflicts did not arise when there was complete understanding among nations cross-border travel, as between Canada and the United States, helped to develop this understanding.

Canada derived "tremendous" advantages from a thriving tourist industry, with all citizens benefitting directly or indirectly from the spending in the Dominion of tourist dollars. This spending stimulated the circulation of goods and services and created extensive employment opportunities.

In 1926, when government tabulations of tourist spending first were kept, $152,000,000 was spent in Canada by tourists and by last year this total had grown to $210,000,000. One witness appearing before the Senate Tourist Committee last year had estimated the sum actually was close to $600,000,000.

"If this estimate is correct, or nearly so," said Mr. MacKinnon, "it is clearly evident that the tourist industry will eventually bring a financial return to Canada greater than any branch of our export trade."

Police Pick Up Clues in Slaying Of Angelo Fonti

Toronto, Jan. 15 —(CP)— Police were silent today but it was known they had picked up some clues in their probe of the slaying of Angelo Fonti, 57-year-old restaurant dishwasher whose battered body was found Sunday in a culvert on a lonely suburban stretch of highway.

The clues were a motorcar that was seized in downtown Toronto; a pair of shoes — Fonti's feet were shoeless when the body was found — a part-set of motorcar seat-covers and some items of clothing.

Police wouldn't say where they found the shoes, but said they definitely belonged to the slain man. The clothing was found by Etobicoke police a mile from the spot where Fonti's body was discovered by rabbit-hunters.

Police also found a gunny sack similar to the two which covered the body. This sack was found in the city and microscopic examination was being made of all three in an effort to link them.

None of the objects so far found appeared to be bloodstained.

Investigators were believed to be satisfied that more than one man was involved in the killing; that it took place in Toronto on Dec. 26 and the body was taken by car to the culvert where it was hidden.

Ayrhart Submits Plan to Boost Industrial Activity

J. Ernest Ayrhart, Campbellford's colorful mayor, has submitted "in brief form" to the Canadian Government, a plan whereby industry and other productive elements might "produce all you can, sell all you can and make all the money you can," he told New York newspapermen in an interview the other day.

Mayor Ayrhart is a former member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. After discharge he parlayed a $1,000 grubstake into rich claims in the Val D'Or district of Quebec which yielded him $2,000,000 and a similar amount to Eddie Alford, his partner.

Given such conditions, he told the newsmen, profits would be earmarked as follows: Fifty per cent tax free for expansion every year; 20 per cent for a tax-free bonus to employees and 30 per cent subject to regular taxation as "normal" profits.

He said the 50 per cent in the pool for industrial expansion would so increase production that the 20 per cent profit figure would yield the government greater tax revenue than the total yield before the "incentive" expansion.

He told the reporters that he received world-wide fan mail which he said "flooded" his home after the publication of get-rich-quick stories.

He said the letters, principally appealing for outright gifts of money, included requests for $10,000 to finance a couple's "dream home".

CHURCHILL LIBEL SUIT SETTLED; DAMAGES PAID

Publisher And Author Also Apologize For Statement Which Was Unfounded

London, Jan. 15 (CP)—A published allegation that Winston Churchill's policies in Greece were influenced by his having been "bailed out of bankrupcy by British Bankers with Greek interests" was withdrawn in open court today when it was announced that Churchill's libel suit against the author and publisher of the book, "Dinner at the White House," has been settled.

Counsel G. O. Slade said in the King's Bench Division that the author, Louis Adamic, and the publisher, Harper and Brothers agreed to pay "substantial damages" to the wartime prime minister, and that both admitted without qualification that the statement was unfounded. Both publisher and author apologized for the statement, counsel said.

Churchill's suit was based on a single footnote in the book, quoted in court as follows:

"As Drew Pearson revealed in one of his columns early in 1945 the motives for the British policy in Greece were at least partly linked to the fact that Hambros Bank, of London, the chief British creditors of Greece (getting up to 17 per cent on their loans which the leftist or E.A.M. Greeks wished to scale down to five per cent) had bailed Winston Churchill out of bankruptcy in 1912."

Slade told the court:

"Grosser libel upon a public man holding the high position which Mr. Churchill held is difficult to conceive and there is not one word of truth behind it.

"Mr. Churchill was never on the verge of bankruptcy. He never had any financial assistance from or any financial dealings with Hambros or the Hambros Bank.

"But the reflections made upon his solvency are as nothing to the suggestion that, in his capacity of Prime Minister, he had allowed his private dealings and his private interests to sway and influence the policy and conduct of public affairs by the government of which he was the head, and especially in regard to operations of war, in which so much blood was shed."

Slade, said copies of the book were sent by an undisclosed agency to persons prominent in British life, with the apparent intention of injuring the reputations of Churchill and the British government. He said the footnote appeared to have been inserted by the author without the knowledge of Harper and Brothers after the firm had approved the book's proofs.

APPLE STOCKS LESS

Ottawa, Jan. 15 (CP)—Government announcement that Canadian apples would remain under price control was backed up today with figures released by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Stocks of apples in cold and common storage Jan. 1, the bureau reported, were 4,465,500 bushels, showing a sharp decline from Dec. 1 when stocks were 7,360,606 bushels. The supply was however 1,736,044 bushels more than that on the same day a year ago.

Stocks of frozen and preserved fruits totalled 29,590,203 pounds, showing an increase over the year of 3,718,657.

Stocks of vegetables frozen and in brine, were 6,260,659 pounds an increase of 1,365,500.

New Devices to Add to Car Comfort Ready But Use May be Delayed

By DAVID J. WILKIE

Detroit, Jan. 15—(AP) — Increasing production costs may keep a lot of engineering advances out of the automobile industry's 1947 models but many improvements aimed at greater driving comfort are in the making for future use.

High prices already are reported discouraging many buyers and it is unlikely that any of the major engineering advances will appear before 1948 or even later. But once volume output and distribution are assured, the industry may be able to recast its entire pricing structure and incorporate many of the changes to attract even more buyers.

Here are a few of the things to come:

An improved heating and air conditioning system, coupled with a device that will keep the engine always warm, even when the car is parked out-of-doors for hours.

A longer-life battery that will be kept constantly at full charge.

More automatic transmissions.

Greater use of plastics for interior trim and other non-stressed parts.

Wider front seats.

Better all-round visibility thru more window area.

These items are not part of a future "dream car," but things that are virtually ready now for installation in the present - day automobile, held back chiefly by the factor of production costs.

Canada Allows U.S. To Sell or Scrap Canol Project

Undertaking in Northwest Was Wartime Oil Project

Ottawa, Jan. 15 —(CP)— Canada has agreed to let the United States sell to private interests or scrap the $133,000,000 Canol project which the U. S. established in the Canadian Northwest in an abortive attempt to produce oil for the war against Japan, the External Affairs Department announced today.

An exchange of notes made public here indicated the U. S. planned to try to sell the refinery at Whitehorse, Y.T., and pipeline to Norman Wells, N.W.T., to prospective operators. The Dominion was given the option of buying what was left after sale to private interests and removal of any equipment wanted by the U. S. government.

The agreement covers Canol's crude oil facilities but does not take in the systems set up to distribute products of the refinery, which have not yet been declared surplus by the U. S. army.

Concluded Dec. 30, the pact provides that the U. S. may:

1. Transfer all or any part of the crude oil facilities to private ownership, subject to the laws of Canada but exempt from import duties and excise taxes.
2. Remove any facilities it may want.
3. Sell any remaining equipment to Canada.
4. Scrap and abandon the remainder.

Canada obligated itself to:

1. Lease to purchasers lands, rights of way and other easements owned by the government and supplied for the project during the way.
2. Acquire and transfer to the purchasers — at their own expense — any other facilities of this kind needed by the purchasers for "satisfactory utilization" of Canol.

Terms of the agreement came into effect Jan. 29.

Cats Play Role About Hangars Of R.C.A.F. Airports

London, Ont., Jan. 15. (CP) —If you see a cat sleeping around a hangar on any of the former R.C.A.F. airports, don't be mistaken into thinking the animal is just a stray alley variety seeking warmth and shelter, or a mascot of the employee. So sir.

That cat, just as much a part of the establishment as the fire fighting equipment or the night watchmen, is stationed on the specific directions of R.A.F. headquarters in Ottawa.

The Ottawa Air Board had a very practical and economic idea in mind. These cats were to be the first line of defence against rats and mice. Mouse traps were expensive and someone would have to be stationed at each depot to service and maintain this equipment.

These night prowlers keep the mice from chewing through the fabric of a bomber wing or nibbling the straw stuffing from a pilot's seat.

WANT TO BUY TOWN?

San Francisco, Jan. 15 —(AP) —Want to buy a town — a whole town?

The War Assets Administration, disposing of surplus government war plants and such matters, today ran large newspaper ads offering the unincorporated town of Dragerton, Utah, for sale "as a whole, only."

Dragerton was built in 1943 to house employees of a coal mine.

INDIAN TESTIFIES ON OWNERSHIP OF MURDER CAR

L. Nicholas and J. French Accused of Shooting Medical Student Last August

London, Ont., Jan. 15 (CP)— Emerson Ketchego, Muncey Reserve Indian, testified in Supreme Court today that Lloyd Nicholas told him Aug. 24 last, the day in which Eldon Meredith, 23-year-old University of Western Ontario Medical student was allegedly shot to death that he (Nicholas) owned the "murder car."

Nicholas and Joseph French, both of Muncey, are charged with killing the Wallaceburg, Ont., student whose bullet pierced body was found in some bushes on the Reserve Aug. 26. The two on trial were arrested with two girl friends in Meredith's coupe at Delhi, Ont. On the previous night as police checked them on a traffic violation.

Justice F. H. Barlow is presiding.

Ketchego, a crown witness, was cross examined this morning by Norman Lickers of Brantford, counsel for Nicholas. He repeated much of his evidence of late Tuesday, how he had taken his step-father's team of horses and had pulled a car out of the ditch for Nicholas about 11 a.m. Aug. 24.

Ketchego said the Nicholas car had become stuck "on the big hill on the dummy road," on the Muncey Reserve, about half a mile from the home of Amos Deleary, Ketchego's step-father. With a hired hand and the horses Ketchego got the car back on the road.

"Nicholas told me he had bought the car with money he had saved up," said Ketchego, who had known the accused about 12 years. "After we freed the car, Nicholas drove me back to my home and then left." Nicholas paid him a dollar for the job.

Ketchego said he noticed a smouldering bonfire a short distance from the auto, with Nicholas explaining that he had burned "Some old papers and magazines."

The trial is continuing.

Ottawa Woman Victim of Assault

Ottawa, Jan. 15 (CP)—City and Provincial police today intensified their search for a middle-aged derby-hatted man who attacked Mrs. Peter Quinn, 32, of near-by Rockcliffe.

Bleeding and in critical condition, Mrs. Quinn last night struggled to the door of a Rockcliffe apartment and said she had been beaten by a stranger whom she had met earlier in the evening.

It was at first believed she was assaulted in Rockcliffe, but questioning by provincial police in hospital today disclosed the attack took place in an automobile in the vicinity of the Dominion Experimental Farm on Ottawa's south side.

Wife of an air force member Mrs. Quinn told police she had met the stranger in a downtown hotel restaurant. They later had visited two hotels in Hull where they drank some beer.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Jan. 15 —(CP)—Synopsis. Drier and slightly colder air has replaced the warm air which covered the province on morning over Southern Ontario except in the southwest. Much colder air from the northwest is pushing slowly southeast over Northern Ontario and is expected to reach Southern Ontario this evening. A new disturbance is developing over Southern Colorado. It is expected to move northeast and be approaching Southern Ohio Thursday afternoon. The northeast movement of this disturbance will prevent sharp drops in the temperature over southwestern sections of Ontario tonight.

Probabilities
Lake Ontario region: Thursday clear becoming overcast in afternoon, with intermittent snow in the evening colder. Low 13 high 23.

Rival Claimants For Governorship Set up Offices

Arnall Refuses to Step Aside for Young Talmadge

Atlanta, Jan. 15 — (AP)—Rival claimants to the governorship of Georgia established offices in the state capitol today and each immediately set up his own military department.

The claimants were Ellis Arnall, who has held the office for the past four years, and Herman Talmadge, who was named by the legislature early today to the office which his late father, Eugene Talmadge, won in last November's general election. The elder Talmadge died last month.

Arnall refused to heed the action of the legislature and in a dramatic early morning encounter with Talmadge and in the face of a yelling mob of Talmadge supporters refused to turn the office over to Talmadge. His first act upon arrival at his office today, Arnall named Col. R. W. Collins, commander of the State Guard, as Adjutant-General to succeed Marvin Griffin, who last night was sworn in by Talmadge as his adjutant-general. Griffin formerly served under Arnall.

Communicates to Patterson

Then Arnall communicated with United States Secretary of War Patterson by telephone and asked federal recognition of Collins as a brigadier general and the state's adjutant general. Arnall declined to say what Patterson answered, but when he hung up, he turned to reporters and said "This is the adjutant-general," pointing toward Collins.

(The state guard was set up during the war to function in place of the national guard. Its demobilization has awaited full reorganization of the national guard).

Arnall said Griffin had resigned and had accepted office under Talmadge, "this pretender."

When Talmadge, who was in an office Griffin had set up for him just off the main governor's reception room, heard of Arnall's call to the secretary of war, he told his executive secretary, Benton Odom, to "block all communications."

Then Talmadge put in a telephone call for United States Senator Richard B. Russell in Washington.

Talmadge arrived at the capitol shortly after 9:30 a.m. and Arnall, who earlier had left under protection of national guardsmen, arrived shortly thereafter.

Shortly after his arrival Talmadge conferred with Griffin, who later told reporters he was taking orders from "the new governor."

5 Appointments Are Announced By Prime Minister

Ottawa, Jan. 15 (CP)—Prime Minister MacKenzie King announced today five appointments of new deputy and associate deputy ministers of government departments.

Also announced was the appointment of Maj. C.R. Lamoureux of Montreal as gentleman usher of the Black Rod, effective today.

The deputy and associate ministers follow::

Hugh L. Keenleyside, to be deputy minister of mines and resources and commissioner of the Northwest Territories, effective March 15.

Stewart Bates, to be Deputy Minister of Fisheries, effective Jan. 15.

Wilfred Gordon Mills, to be Deputy Minister of National Defence.

Alexander Ross, to be Associate Deputy Minister of National Defence.

Col. Paul Mathieu, to be Associate Deputy Minister of National Defence.

EIGHT SUITS WITHDRAWN

Detroit, Jan. 15 —(AP)— The C.I.O., reassessing its millions of dollars in portal pay claims against Detroit industry, yesterday withdrew eight suits totalling $7,600,000.

Union spokesmen said the firms won a clean bill of economic health as far as the C.I.O. was concerned during a "weeding out" survey of portal claims.

However, the withdrawals do not mean abandonment "on a wholesale scale" of the portal drive, a C.I.O. lawyer said.

Biggest claim quashed by the union was for $6,000,000 brought by the C.I.O. United Auto Workers against the Motor Products Corp.

POWER PROJECT REQUIRES 2,600 MEN FOR 6 YEARS

Construction Details of St. Lawrence Waterway Outlined to Convention

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 15 — (CP) — Some of the construction details of the St. Lawrence River waterway and power project, were given construction men here by Dr. Thomas H. Hogg, chairman of the Ontario Hydro Power Commission, who said approximately 2,600 men will be employed on the project for an estimated six-year period.

He was addressing the Canadian Construction Association at its 29th annual meeting which ends Thursday. Other speakers yesterday included Federal Labor Minister Mitchell and W. J. LeClair, secretary-manager of the Canadian Lumbermens' Association.

Dr. Hogg outlined some of the construction phases necessary for success of the St. Lawrence project, some of them purely Canadian undertakings and others a joint enterprise with the United States.

Among the works already completed as part of the larger plan, Dr. Hogg mentioned the McArthur lock built by the U. S. on the American Sault canal, and two Canadian projects, the Welland Canal and the St. Lawrence River channel near Prescott, Ont.

Must be Ratified

Negotiations for building the waterway have been conducted between Canada and the U. S. since 1932, Dr. Hogg said, and will be made final with the passage of a bill through the American House of Representatives, which must be ratified by the Canadian parliament.

During this time, he said, the St. Lawrence waterway plan has been under study by engineers and tenders for parts of the work could be called a short while after ratification of the agreement.

Labor Minister Mitchell predicted a high level of employment during the next five years with national income of "the same general order as say 1941 and 1942."

Referring to housing, he said under such circumstances it seems reasonable to believe that more than 400,000 units of housing could be absorbed in the five-year period ending 1951.

"I do not under-estimate the seriousness of the present housing shortage," he said. "Vigorous steps must be taken to meet our needs."

W. J. Leclair, president of the Canadian Lumbermens' Association, told the meeting he was fearful of the result if government restrictions on timber remained.

He charged that timber control regulations as administered by the Prices Board were killing the lumber trade and hindering the construction business.

NEARLY 50,000 NOW IDLE DUE TO TRANSPORT STRIKE

Morning Newspapers Carry Headlines That Predict an End To Crippling Walkout

London, Jan. 15 — (CP)—More than 2,000 Thames lightermen and thousands of stevedores and dockers quit work today in sympathy walkouts, swelling to nearly 50,000 the number of persons idle in London's mushrooming 10-day-old transport strike.

The New York stoppages, protesting the use of troops to replace striking truck drivers for delivery of food, came as negotiators hoped for an early settlement of the truck dispute, crux of an "unofficial" strike which some labor partisans feared might upset the labor government.

Union leaders appealed to the dock workers at a meeting this morning to return to their jobs, but their speeches, citing the striking truckers' advice against further sympathy walk-outs, were shouted down.

Troops moved into Spitalfields, Covent Garden and the Borough fruit and vegetable markets today as they did early this week at Smithfield, the big London meat market. At Spitalfields, however, there was no work for them to do and they left. A market official said little food had come in since the strike was called last Monday.

Meet for Settlement

Delegates of the central London strike committee and the transport and general workers' Union met at noon to work out a settlement of the 10-day-old strike.

Morning newspapers carried headlines predicting an end to the strike. But at least 20,000 workers in other industries had joined the truckers.

The Conservative Daily Mail headed its story: "Odds on the end of strike today." The Daily Herald, Labor, topped its story: "Strike call-off likely" while the Conservative Daily Telegraph headline ran: "Haulage strike may end soon."

The newspaper stories pinned their hopes on the new national joint industrial council established Tuesday by representations of the Road Haulage Association and the powerful Transport and General Workers Union.

May be Govt. Downfall

Strike leader J. E. Evans, in a message to the truck drivers said he hoped that "some concrete proposals" would develop in union negotiations today.

One labor member of parliament, Tom O'Brien for Nottingham, West, declared at a union meeting last night that the strike might bring the downfall of the government.

"A Labor government cannot last alongside a discredited trade union movement," O'Brien said, "the workers of Britain cannot have a Labor government and repudiate trade union organizations at the same time."

DOG RESCUES MASTER

Terrace, B. C., Jan. 15—(CP)—"Mike," a dog of uncertain pedigree, Monday was a hero to his master, G. G. Mueller, who would likely have frozen or starved to death if it had not been for his mongrel companion. Mueller was pinned down by the boughs of a falling tree while working in the woods, and "Mike" set to work to free him. He clawed at the snow until he had made a hole large enough for his master to crawl out.

Berlin's Black Marketeers Keep Allied, Russ Authorities 'on Jump'

By WILLIAM HAMSHER

Berlin, Jan. 15 — (Reuters) — Allied and German authorities are stepping up the campaign against Berlin's black market.

But every attack made against this evil seems to impose new life into it.

In the Russian sector of the city, special motor patrols stand ready for instant action. One recent comb-out, planned as thoroughly as any Red army operation, went systematically through streets and alleys, cafes and cabarets and hauled in nearly 1,400 suspects.

But the real black marketeers arrested, according to police reports, totalled only 77, and that figure leaves out of account the host of retail buyers.

Black marketeers at the moment seem to be avoiding food, but there is also a lively trade in gems among those who have acquired stocks of German or English cigarets in the hope that they will soon be able to leave Germany for countries where precious stones would start them off on a new life.

Eight out of every 10 Germans with whom one talks these days expresses determination to emigrate as soon as they can.

Another black market traffic worrying the Allies is in bread coupons. Official cards often get stolen, and underground printing presses are also at work keeping operators supplied, for forgeries are difficult to detect. British authorities, are experimenting with special water-marks and other devices to make the way of the forger more difficult.

The latest Russian-led attack on the black market in the Soviet sector of Berlin had its spearhead in "hovel town" north of the Alexander Platz, where the illegal trade in foodstuffs and rare commodities grafted itself on to the trade in virtue.

The black marketeers, apart from the few arrested either by the Russian motor patrols or the German police, have found new stations. Many of them seem to be using Berlin's underground system.

BABY-SITTER WHO MARRIED THE "BABY"

James Schuffert, 20, dons an apron to help his 13-year-old bride, Delores, with the dishes in his mother's home at Arnold, Pa. Their romance blossomed when Schuffert was hired by the girl's mother as a "baby-sitter" because she didn't like to leave Delores alone while she, the mother, was at work. That was last May. They were married in that month with the permission of Mrs. Lowman, the girl's mother. The case came to the attention of the press when Schuffert was hailed into court on charges of "non-support." He testified that although Mrs. Lowman gave him permission to marry Delores, she put her foot down when he wanted to move his bride from her mother's home. "Delores is too young to leave home," said Mrs. Lowman. The case was dropped when the couple agreed to live with Schuffert's parents at nearby Springdale Hollow, Pa.

Tourist Industry Will Be Materially Assisted By Federal Goverment

Montreal, Jan. 15 (CP)—Trade Minister MacKinnon said today the Federal government hopes to increase further its financial assistance to the Canadian tourist industry and to give "all-out co-operation" to tourist agencies of the provincial governments.

In an address prepared for delivery before a meeting of the Hotel and Restaurant Suppliers' Association, Mr. MacKinnon said last year's federal contribution —$650,000—was the largest in history and compared with $150,000 voted in 1934, when the first Senate Committee was formed to study the industry.

The Minister said the government- operated Canadian Tourist Bureau was being organized and a comprehensive advertising compaign being launched for 1947. New travel films were being produced in addition to those already used by the Bureau.

Must Meet Competition

At the same time, he expressed belief Canada must be prepared to meet "strong competition" on this continent for the tourist dollar, not only from the 48 American States but also from the Latin American countries, who now were organizing and developing tourist traffic.

Tourist trade was one of the "greatest" agencies for the promotion of world peace because conflicts did not arise when there was complete understanding among nations cross-border travel, as between Canada and the United States, helped to develop this understanding.

Canada derived "tremendous" advantages from a thriving tourist industry, with all citizens benefitting directly or indirectly from the spending in the Dominion of tourist dollars. This spending stimulated the circulation of goods and services and created extensive employment opportunities.

In 1926, when government tabulations of tourist spending first were kept, $152,000,000 was spent in Canada by tourists and by last year this total had grown to $210,000,000. One witness appearing before the Senate Tourist Committee last year had estimated the sum actually was close to $600,000,000.

"If this estimate is correct, or nearly so," said Mr. MacKinnon, "it is clearly evident that the tourist industry will eventually bring a financial return to Canada greater than any branch of our export trade."

Police Pick Up Clues in Slaying Of Angelo Fonti

Toronto, Jan. 15 —(CP)— Police were silent today but it was known they had picked up some clues in their probe of the slaying of Angelo Fonti, 57-year-old restaurant dishwasher whose battered body was found Sunday in a culvert on a lonely suburban stretch of highway.

The clues were a motorcar that was seized in downtown Toronto; a pair of shoes — Fonti's feet were shoeless when the body was found — a part-set of motorcar seat-covers and some items of clothing.

Police wouldn't say where they found the shoes, but said they definitely belonged to the slain man. The clothing was found by Etobicoke police a mile from the spot where Fonti's body was discovered by rabbit-hunters.

Police also found a gunny sack similar to the two which covered the body. This sack was found in the city and microscopic examination was being made of all three in an effort to link them.

None of the objects so far found appeared to be bloodstained.

Investigators were believed to be satisfied that more than one man was involved in the killing; that it took place in Toronto on Dec. 26 and the body was taken by car to the culvert where it was hidden.

Ayrhart Submits Plan to Boost Industrial Activity

J. Ernest Ayrhart, Campbellford's colorful mayor, has submitted "in brief form" to the Canadian Government, a plan whereby industry and other productive elements might "produce all you can, sell all you can and make all the money you can," he told New York newspapermen in an interview the other day.

Mayor Ayrhart is a former member of the Hastings and Prince Edward Regiment. After discharge he parlayed a $1,000 grubstake into rich claims in the Val D'Or district of Quebec which yielded him $2,000,000 and a similar amount to Eddie Alford, his partner.

Given such conditions, he told the newsmen, profits would be earmarked as follows: Fifty per cent tax free for expansion every year; 20 per cent for a tax-free bonus to employees and 30 per cent subject to regular taxation as "normal" profits.

He said the 50 per cent in the pool for industrial expansion would so increase production that the 20 per cent profit figure would yield the government greater tax revenue than the total yield before the "incentive" expansion.

He told the reporters that he received world-wide fan mail which he said "flooded" his home after the publication of get-rich-quick stories.

He said the letters, principally appealing for outright gifts of money, included requests for $10,000 to finance a couple's "dream home".

CHURCHILL LIBEL SUIT SETTLED; DAMAGES PAID

Publisher And Author Also Apologize For Statement Which Was Unfounded

London, Jan. 15 (CP)—A published allegation that Winston Churchill's policies in Greece were influenced by his having been "bailed out of bankrupcy by British Bankers with Greek interests" was withdrawn in open court today when it was announced that Churchill's libel suit against the author and publisher of the book, "Dinner at the White House," has been settled.

Counsel G. O. Slade said in the King's Bench Division that the author, Louis Adamic, and the publisher, Harper and Brothers agreed to pay "substantial damages" to the wartime prime minister, and that both admitted without qualification that the statement was unfounded. Both publisher and author apologized for the statement, counsel said.

Churchill's suit was based on a single footnote in the book, quoted in court as follows:

"As Drew Pearson revealed in one of his columns early in 1945 the motives for the British policy in Greece were at least partly linked to the fact that Hambros Bank, of London, the chief British creditors of Greece (getting up to 17 per cent on their loans which the leftist or E.A.M. Greeks wished to scale down to five per cent) had bailed Winston Churchill out of bankruptcy in 1912."

Slade told the court:

"Grosser libel upon a public man holding the high position which Mr. Churchill held is difficult to conceive and there is not one word of truth behind it.

"Mr. Churchill was never on the verge of bankruptcy. He never had any financial assistance from or any financial dealings with Hambros or the Hambros Bank.

"But the reflections made upon his solvency are as nothing to the suggestion that, in his capacity of Prime Minister, he had allowed his private dealings and his private interests to sway and influence the policy and conduct of public affairs by the government of which he was the head, and especially in regard to operations of war, in which so much blood was shed."

Slade, said copies of the book were sent by an undisclosed agency to persons prominent in British life, with the apparent intention of injuring the reputations of Churchill and the British government. He said the footnote appeared to have been inserted by the author without the knowledge of Harper and Brothers after the firm had approved the book's proofs.

Ketchego, a crown witness, was cross examined this morning by Norman Lickers of Brantford. counsel for Nicholas. He repeated much of his evidence of late Tuesday, how he had taken his step-father's team of horses and had pulled a car out of the ditch for Nicholas about 11 a.m. Aug. 24.

Ketchego said the Nicholas car had become stuck "on the big hill on the dummy road," on the Muncey Reserve, about half a mile from the home of Amos Deleary, Ketchego's step-father. With a hired hand and the horses Ketchego got the car back on the road.

"Nicholas told me he had bought the car with money he had saved up," said Ketchego, who had known the accused about 12 years. "After we freed the car, Nicholas drove me back to my home and then left." Nicholas paid him a dollar for the job.

Ketchego said he noticed a smouldering bonfire a short distance from the auto, with Nicholas explaining that he had burned "Some old papers and magazines."

The trial is continuing.

Ottawa Woman Victim of Assault

Ottawa, Jan. 15 (CP)—City and Provincial police today intensified their search for a middle-aged derby-hatted man who attacked Mrs. Peter Quinn, 32, of near-by Rockcliffe.

Bleeding and in critical condition, Mrs. Quinn last night struggled to the door of a Rockcliffe apartment and said she had been beaten by a stranger whom she had met earlier in the evening.

It was at first believed she was assaulted in Rockcliffe, but questioning by provincial police in hospital today disclosed the attack took place in an automobile in the vicinity of the Dominion Experimental Farm on Ottawa's south side.

Wife of an air force member Mrs. Quinn told police she had met the stranger in a downtown hotel restaurant. They later had visited two hotels in Hull where they drank some beer.

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Jan. 15 —(CP)—Synopsis. Drier and slightly colder air has replaced the warm air which covered the province on morning over Southern Ontario except in the southwest. Much colder air from the northwest is pushing slowly southeast over Northern Ontario and is expected to reach Southern Ontario this evening. A new disturbance is developing over Southern Colorado. It is expected to move northeast and be approaching Southern Ohio Thursday afternoon. The northeast movement of this disturbance will prevent sharp drops in the temperature over southwestern sections of Ontario tonight.

City and District News

CAR RECOVERED ON MARSHALL ROAD

The Checker Taxi auto reported stolen over the weekend was recovered by the owner on Monday on the Marshall Road, it was reported to the police station. When recovered the auto had the taxi sign torn off the top of the vehicle and apparently had been driven a considerable distance before being abandoned. The vehicle had been stolen from in front of the Armouries as the driver entered the building before picking up a passenger.

VANCOUVER ISSUES INDUSTRIAL BOOKLET

With the city having recently voted to proceed with the development of a planning area which embraces parts of the townships of Thurlow and Sidney, the recent receipt of a publication from Vancouver outlining the economic background and population growth of that city will be of considerable value to Belleville. The booklet was received this week by Mayor Follwell with the compliments of the Vancouver Mayor, Senator J. McGeer.

The booklet carries many charts and other valuable information concerning the industrial growth of Vancouver and is published through the efforts of the Vancouver Town Planning Commission.

FIREMEN EXTINGUISH TWO CAR FIRES

Four alarms were answered by the local fire department during the past 24 hours, two of them being for motor vehicles which in some manner had caught fire.

At Duffy's service station on Front Street a jeep reportedly owned by Windsor's general store at Cannifton, caught ablaze when it was on the grease pit. Service station employees rolled the vehicle into the open while firemen used the booster to extinguish the flames.

During the evening a car was reported ablaze on Victoria Ave., while there was small damage as result of a blaze at 19 West Bridge Street.

Result of the heavy rain firemen were called to the Empire Fruit store on Front Street where the basement was reported flooding. Firemen assisted in carrying stored goods to safety.

CHILDREN WARNED NOT TO USE STREETS FOR SLEIGHRIDING

Warning to children using city streets for sleighriding purposes was issued today by police authorities following a complaint on Tuesday that children were using Albion Street hill as a toboggan slope. Following the complaint an officer visited the scene and warned the children to stay off the hill.

"Children fail to realize the danger of sleighriding on streets where vehicular traffic is operating and in doing so are in constant danger of being injured," stated police officers.

ST. ANDREW'S MEN'S CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The regular monthly dinner meeting of the St. Andrew's Men's Club was held in the Sunday School room, Tuesday evening with the club president, Mr. Fred Reid presiding. The meeting was well attended.

Guest artist for the evening was Len Fozard, Belleville's ranking amateur magician with George H. Stokes introducing the artist and Arthur Hill expressing the club appreciation. Musical entertainment was provided by Bill Ashline who sang several solos with Wm. Fletcher acting as a pianist. The supper was provided by Mrs. E. Ford's group of the St. Andrew's Guild.

RICH MEAT MORSELS

Health authorities suggest such items as liver, kidney, heart tongue and sweetbreads to add taste and variety to meals. They are all rich in vitamin A and iron, and help to ensure healthy eyes and rich blood.

The other day a man walked slowly along Front Street. There was a dazed look in his eyes. He walked slowly as if in deep thought. In his hand he clutched a pencil and paper.

Suddenly the expression on his face changed from a dull leaden one to that of amazement. He quickened into life, and dashed into a nearby tobacco store.

Hurriedly slamming down the paper on a showcase, he set down a row of figures. Then another. And another. His hand dropped slowly to his side and his face resumed the expression of keen disappointment.

A clerk at the other end of the shop had not looked up when he entered. He too, was laboriously setting down figures with pencil on paper. Finally he looked up, eyes weary and slightly bloodshot. He noticed the paper and pencil in the other man's hand.

"You, too?" he asked, in a tired voice. "I've been up half the d - - - - night trying to figure this thing out, and buddy, it can't be done."

Appeared in Ad

Not since the advent of Mah Jong, and crossword puzzles, has such a thing caught the fancy of the public as the mind-teasing puzzle inserted the other day in his advertisement by Mr. George Forhan, manager of the Belle Theatre here. It was simple, or so it appeared, and at first glance would take only a minute to solve. But hundreds of people found that it was a "tough baby" to figure out. It was merely three 1's three 3's, three 5's, three 7's and three 9's set down in three lines and all you had to do was select six of the figures, add them and get 21 as the answer.

The puzzle, one dug up from a dusty scrap-book of Mr. Forhan's, had the town talking. Clerks in stores, pored over it. Housewives stayed up until long after midnight trying to find the elusive answer.

One lady who had worked on the teaser all evening without success, finally adopted the last resort. Long after midnight she went to the phone of her country home and called Mr. Forhan's residence.

Called from Bath

That gentleman was basking in the comfort of hot water and soap-suds in his bath when the telephone rang. A member of his household who answered the phone informed the lady Mr. Forhan was immersed in hot water and could not come to the phone.

"But this is very important" the caller insisted. "I must talk to Mr. Forhan."

Finally the theatre manager answered the phone. The lady wanted to know if her answer was correct, but was told to mail it to the office. She gave a huge sigh of disappointment, and went back to the puzzle.

The advertising department of this newspaper was flooded with phone calls about the mind-wrecker. But Manager Fred Barton who is on the same mental plane as the members of the editorial staff, wearily laid down his pencil and six pieces of figure - filled paper, sighed and repeated: "I don't know the answer. I can't get it myself."

A certain manufacturer threatened to fire his staff if they didn't stop wasting his time over the darned thing, and get back to work. In other words the puzzle swept the town.

Nearly four hundred people sent in answers to the mind-twister. The reward for the first ten correct answers was a pair of tickets to the theatre to see the picture "Till the End of Time." Many people thought the puzzle was a "gag" to tie in with the picture title.

Mr. Forhan received a large number of letters stating that the puzzle could not be solved. There was plenty of humor in the letters and many novel ways of arriving at the answer.

Correct Answer.

But there was a correct answer and thirty-nine people got it. And here it is:

$$\begin{array}{r}11\\1\\3\\3\\3\\\hline 21\end{array}$$

Simple, what?

The first ten people to submit the correct answer will get their prizes. But Mr. Forhan has generously donated consolation prizes of one theatre pass to each of the remaining 29 who forwarded the correct solution. The passes must be used Thursday, Friday or Saturday of this week, and can be procured at the theatre box office.

Winners.

The first ten, who will receive two passes each, are:—

Young Woman Molested Outside Her Apartment

Police today are on the lookout for a young man described as being about 20 years of age and five feet eight inches tall who Tuesday night molested a young woman as she was about to enter her Front Street apartment.

The young woman reported she had been returning home from work when the young man grabbed her arm as she entered the alley and attempted to drag her around the corner of the building. Screaming for help she attempted to break the hold of her attacker. However, the attacker left the scene and disappeared when a man came running from the street to her assistance.

From descriptions given by the young woman, police picked up two suspects but this morning in a police lineup the young woman failed to identify either as her attacker.

Open Verdict Returned In Bannister Death

An open verdict was returned by the coroner's jury Tuesday evening at the adjourned inquest looking into the death of William Bannister, 65, of Plainfield, who was instantly killed Christmas Eve as the result of being struck by a car while he was walking on the highway at Plainfield.

"We, the jury empanelled to inquire into the death of the late William Bannister, after considering the evidence at the inquest find that William Bannister came to his death through being struck by a car in the village of Plainfield on the evening of December 24th., 1946," was the verdict returned by the five-man jury.

Jury members empanelled by Coroner's Constable Thomas Thorne included Charles Tebworth, William Harvey, Arthur C. Jones, H. J. Christmas and J. Vincent Freeman.

A total of 15 witnesses were called by Assistant Crown Attorney S. Gordon Robertson with evidence showing Mr. Bannister had been struck by a car driven by Norman Pope, Gilbert Street, Belleville. Provincial Constable Sam Ervine who investigated the accident was complimented by Coroner Dr. J. Russell Scott on the detailed thoroughness of his investigation.

Need Donations For Triplets Welfare Fund

Bancroft (Special) —Although the Davidson triplets are still doing fine, due to the fact that Medical Health Officer Dr. O. W. Anderson of Bancroft has refused permission for Mrs. Davidson and the three babies to return to their home, the mother and triplets have been made boarders at the Bancroft hospital. They will remain at the hospital until a suitable dwelling has been provided for the Davidson family.

The Bancroft Lions Club, sponsoring a drive for funds to purchase a home in Bancroft for the Davidson family are still $1,500 short of their objective and will welcome all donations large or small. All donations should be addressed to the Davidson Triplets Welfare Fund, Bancroft, Rev. R. F. Gardam, secretary.

Icy Highway Responsible For Traffic Accident

Icy highway condition was held responsible this morning for a traffic accident just east of Trenton when four motor vehicles were involved with two trucks being considerably damaged as result of a sideswipe collision.

Emerson J. Clarke, Trenton, had parked his east-bound vehicle on the travelled portion of the highway just opposite the Old Dutch Mill, when Frank Lorie, also of Trenton, in coming up behind the parked car saw that a collision with a west-bound truck would be inevitable if he attempted to pass. To avoid the accident he ditched his car.

However, an R.C.A.F. truck, following Lorie swung to the north to avoid hitting the car ahead and in doing so sideswiped the west-bound truck driven by Gordon Vanderwater of Belleville. Neither car was damaged but both trucks were seriously damaged. No personal injuries were suffered.

Traffic Officer Sam Ervine investigated the accident for the Provincial Police.

Bellevil'e Fair Enjoys Most Successful Year Financially In History of Association

Elmer Sandercock is Re-Elected President for His Fourth Term

President of Belleville Agricultural Society for the past three years, Mr. Elmer Sandercock was returned to office for his fourth term by fair directors at the annual meeting and election of officers held at the city hall here on Tuesday afternoon.

First and second vice presidents, Harry Rollins and Thomas Walker were also returned to office, while Ben Bleecker was renamed as treasurer and Erle S. Denyes as secretary.

Directors named included E. Sandercock, W. D. Reid, Harry Rollins, Fred Chamberlain, James Garbutt, Fred Denyes, Thomas Walker, James Barber, Harry Smith, J. Fred Wilson, Arthur Burke, James Cowan, William Nightingale, Keith Onderdonk, Wesley Gray, Ben Bleecker and Ridley Wallbridge.

Junior directors are Ronald Longwell, Kenneth Yorke, Frank Tummon, Keith Garbutt, Carl Thompson and Douglas Prest.

Both Mr. Sandercock and Mr. Harry Rollins were nominated for the office of president but Mr. Rollins asked that his name be withdrawn owing to pressure of business.

Mr. Sandercock, however, was very reluctant to accept the president's office for another term, claiming that three years was long enough. "There are many younger men in this organization who should be given the opportunity and it is my sincere wish not to hold office for 1947," stated Mr. Sandercock.

One of the most successful years financially in the history of the fair was reported by Treasurer Ben Bleecker with the auditor's report showing an operating surplus for 1946 of $2,028 with the surplus on hand at the year's end being $6,484, with $2,500 of this being in Victory Bonds.

Receipts Are $16,054

Income for the year showed receipts of $6,801 from admissions, $3,277 from the grandstand; $2,178 from the midway and $1,100 in grants. Entry fees amounted to $430 and special prices $628. Total receipts for the year were $16,054.

Prize list amounting to $4,093 Prize list amounting to $4,093 ture with attractions running a close second at $3,764. Salaries and wages cost another $1,876; repairs, ground expense and rent $1,212 and race prizes $1,002.

Auditors Harry Knott and E. C. Townsend stated they had found the books in order with all money received having been duly accounted for and a true record of all monies disbursed recorded. Treasurer Bleecker was commended for the careful manner in which the books had been kept.

Tribute Paid Directors

In his presidential address Mr. Sandercock paid tribute to the work of the fair directors during the past year.

"We have many things to be proud of," he continued. "We have a barn which is truly outstanding and one which is a credit to the Belleville Parks Board. This organization is to be commended for the speedy manner in which the new barn was constructed. Possibly no other parks board in the province could have gone ahead with such expediency."

Former horse barns at the fair grounds had been destroyed by fire in the autumn of 1945 and commencement toward construction of the new building was started only a few weeks prior to the opening of the fair last autumn.

Secretary Erle Denyes gave a report on the Central Fairs Association annual meeting held in Belleville last winter, while the various chairmen of the fair committees gave brief reports on the activities of their respective departments during the fair.

Going to Front

J. Fred Wilson, M.P.P. for Hastings West, as one of the grounds committee stated that Belleville Fair was going "to the fore" and declared this was as it should be. J. Barber, as head of the attractions committee said that Garden Brothers had been paid too much money for the grandstand performance they had given and this feeling was echoed by W. D. Reid who said he had been "disappointed".

As one of the midway committee Fred Chamberlain stated that of Belleville Fair had been one of the best and declared that Conklin's was a "good firm to tie up to." Wesley Gray felt however that the midway should have returned more money to the fair.

Need New Horse Barn

Head of the races committee, J. Barber felt that a separate barn was needed for the race horses. Race horses had occupied many of the stalls in the new horse barn, making cramped quarters for the show horses. Committee chairman for the horse display, Thomas Walker stated the horse show had been one of the best, but recommended cutting out what he termed the "corporation" class. Several of the horses shown at Belleville Fair had won prizes at the Royal, it was stated.

Want More Competition

Cattle committee chairman stated that the "Red and White" show had added much to the fair and suggested that cattle be shown at a point of better advantage of the grandstand patrons, while Ridley Wallbridge felt that with Belleville being a dairying district there should be more competition in the Holstein classes.

Better accommodation for sheep and swine was asked by J. Garbutt while Keith Onderdonk indicated additional entries were needed in the poultry classes. Harry Redner paid tribute to H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative for the good quality of the grain exhibit.

Capt. Watson suggested that the co-operation of the local horticultural society be sought to better the flower show. Mr. Bamford felt that three prizes instead of two in the flower classes would bring added competition.

Mayor Praises Fair

Mayor Frank S. Follwell stated that Belleville Fair was getting bigger every year but indicated that it was unfortunate the people of the city did not appreciate the work involved in staging the exhibition, nor its advertising value. He assured that Belleville fair could be made one of the biggest in the province.

As a member of the parks board, ex-Mayor Rollins stated that a new fence, new roadway, and floodlights for night softball and baseball would be installed at the park in 1947.

Harry W. Burns, assistant agricultural representative, outlined the work of the Junior section of the fair, stating that added interest was being shown in this department each year.

Things Human

MY PIANO

With impish glee each shiny key .. looks up at me and grins .. while I sit there deciding where the treble clef begins. If I could play and gaze away as real musicians do .. while fingers race with easy grace .. my life would start anew. Instead of this I seem to miss .. the meaning of technique .. despite the grind I never find .. the harmony I seek. I play in thirds and hum the words .. of songs that have appeal .. the notes I strike are seldom like melodies I feel. It's hard indeed to sense the need .. of talent that's denied .. but those of kin who hear my din are certain that I've tried.

11,000,000 Maintained Under Arms By Major Nations of the World

Washington, Jan. 15 (AP)—The second year of peace finds an estimated 11,000,000 men and women in the world's major armies.

This figure is based on a compilation made by Maj. Hal D. Steward of El Paso, Texas, mainly from United States War Department intelligence reports, for an article in the current issue of the semi-official Armored Cavalry Journal.

Maj. Steward, a Cavalry officer stressed that the report does not pretend to be wholly accurate since secrecy and evasion cloak the strength of some countries, notably Russia, which is believed to have the world's largest army at present.

The five major world powers have an estimated total of 8,650,000 including 2,700,000 in the Chinese National Army. In addition, Communist China is reported to have nearly 1,000,000 men in service. "It is hard however, to obtain any accurate figure on Chinese forces as each of undetermined size" Maj. Steward said.

U.S. Strength Is Fourth

No army in the world today was reported anywhere near its top wartime strength. Peak strength of the Russian Army at the height of the Second World War was reported to be 20,000,000. The United States had 80,000,000. China had about 6,000,000.

"It is widely known that Russia maintains extreme secrecy about the strength of the Russian army," Major Steward said, "and any figure can be grossly inadequate."

His information is that the Russian army now numbers about 3,000,000. China comes next with about 2,700,000 regulars in the National army. Britain third with abut 1,500,000, the United States fourth with 1,000,000 and France fifth with 150,000.

No information is available on the Russian Air Forces said Major Steward, although the USSR was reported to have had 4,000 planes at the beginning of the last war. The Red Navy was figured by Steward at three battleships and smaller craft, with a growing submarine fleet.

The major said Russia is reported increasing her military strength but he cautioned that the report is heresay.

One of the largest armies, he said, is maintained by Yugoslavia—nearly 800,000, of whom 10 per cent are women.

Spain's forces were shown at about 300,000 men.

Brazil the only South American country to send a large expedition overseas in the Second World War, had about 1,000,000 men under arms then. The country's permanent peacetime strength is reported to be around 100,000 men. Regular army strength of Argentina is supposed to be around 45,000. However, it is reported she had nearly 500,000 men in active service during the last war.

Canned Salmon In Large Amount Moving to Stores

Ottawa, Jan. 15. (CP)—Even if connoisseurs of canned salmon can't get enough of it, more of that British Columbia specialty is going to Canadians now than at any time in the last six years.

Twenty-four million pounds of the delectable red-fleshed food has been flowing eastward from the west coast canneries in the last few months, and, though it may seem scarce on the grocery shelves, it actually is appearing in its greatest abundance since 1939.

So when word got around last week that a can of salmon could not be found for the Canadian exhibit for the Australian Royal Easter Show, government officials were understandably puzzled.

The fact is, they say, that the Canadian market this year is receiving what amounts to almost a normal supply of the tinned product for the first time since prewar days.

From the 1946 pack, 500,000 cases of 48 pounds each have been allocated to the Canadian domestic trade, and already at least one-third of this amount has moved eastward. This is 200,000 cases more than the Canadian quota from the 1945 pack and compares, for instance, with such a lean year as 1942 when Britain took the whole Canadian output.

The heavier flow to the Canadian market his been attained in the face of a 350,000-case drop in the pack in British Columbia, source of virtually all Canada's canned salmon, an unexplained falling off in the numbers of "pinks" appearing in their usual haunts accounted for this decrease.

Norway, Russia Agree on Defence Of Spitsbergen

London, Jan. 15 — (CP)—Moscow radio says Norway and Russia have agreed on "joint defence of the Spitsbergen Islands," a Norwegian archipelago in the Arctic Sea.

The broadcast, heard in London last night, was based on a Tass dispatch which quoted "authoritative Soviet circles" as saying the 1920 treaty which gave the islands to Norway "cannot remain valid."

Negotiations for revision of the treaty, the broadcast said, were instituted by the Russians with Norwegian representatives in 1944 and 1945 and an "understanding was reached" about the necessity for joint defence of the islands.

Foreign Minister Lange was not available for comment in Oslo, but a high-ranking spokesman there said the foreign office had not received the text of the Russian communique concerning Spitsbergen and sought to stop ment until then.

(Canadian forces during the war destroyed installations on Spitsbergen and sougth to stop the Germans from working rich coal deposits there. While the Germans destroyed some of Spitsbergen's defence works when they left, it is believed some still remain.)

The archipelago, located between Greenland and Novaya Zemlya in the Arctic Ocean, has a total area of 25,000 square miles. The main islands are West Spitsbergen, North-East Land, Edge Island, Barents Island, Prince Charles Foreland, Hope Island and the Wiche Island group.

Cut Expected In $5 Fee For Citizenship Cards

Ottawa, Jan. 15 (CP) — As a result of criticism of the $5 fee charged persons who want certificates in proof of their Canadian citizenship, some change may be made in the regulations drawn up under the new Canadian Citizenship Act, it was learned today.

The regulations may be changed by Order-in-Council and the cabinet has been or soon will be asked to authorize a reduction in fee, a source said. He did not know the amount of the reduction.

Agriculture Minister Gardiner last night joined the ranks of those who have criticized the fee. At a Liberal Party meeting in Calgary, Mr. Gardiner said he had not paid $5 for his Canadian citizenship and "I advise you not to."

"We are all Canadians and citizens and we don't need certificates. But if you want one to carry around it will cost you $5," said Mr. Gardiner.

Some other cabinet ministers were understood to have made representations to the State Secretary's Department following protests against the fee from persons and organizations in their constituencies.

Long Prison Terms, $20,000 Fines Face Detroit Pair

Detroit, Jan. 15 —(AP)— Long prison terms and $20,000 fines faced blonde Joan McBride and her estranged husband, James, today as possible penalties for their aid to former German army private Rudolph Soelch.

A jury of women convicted them of conspiracy yesterday, to cap a six-day United States federal court trial marked by disputes over international law and the woman's story of love for the 24-year-old dark-haired German.

The jurors deliberated 51 minutes in finding the McBrides had conspired to help Soelch's escape from a California prison camp and also had been guilty of harboring him as a fugitive.

Federal lawyers said maximum penalties, in addition to the fines, were 10 years on each count. Judge Arthur F. Lederle deferred sentences pending the customary report from the United States probation office.

McBride, who has been unable to furnish $10,000 bond, was returned to jail. His wife, free on $5,000 bond, left court with friends and relatives.

Mrs. McBride, 42, was described in closing arguments of Defence Counsel Charles Bowles as a woman moved by "pure charity" in her aid to Soelch and as an "admitted liar of questionable moral standards" by Thomas P. Thornton, Chief Assistant United States Attorney.

Kiwanians Hear Of Hydro Problems From W.H. Gerrie

"Operation Problems" of the Ontario Hydro Powers Commission of Ontario was fully explained to members of the Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon at the Hotel Quinte on Tuesday by W.H. "Bill" Gerrie, assistant superintendent at the Belleville headquarters. Mr. Gerrie in a concise and without too much technical language detailed how islands of power built up by different companies before the Hydro Commission was formed, were welded into one giant project that supplies power to the Eastern Ontario Region er to the Eastern Ontario Region. He was introduced by Len Dandeno, superintendent of Hydro in this city and Kiwanis appreciation was expressed by Bob Stone.

Walter Englestad, Administrator of the Belleville General Hospital was admitted to membership in the club. He was introduced by Wally Warner and initiated into the organization by Frank Creeggan.

Mr. Gerrie explained that the entire Hydro system was divided into three regions, Niagara, Georgian Bay and Eastern Ontario. The speaker stated that power up to 35 years ago was supplied by steam and there were several small companies operating. The Seymour Light and Power Company supplying this area. Mr. Gerrie then traced development of power plants and the tieing in of other systems until at the present time most of the power for this area is supplied by Chats Falls and Barrett Chute.

Three Villagers Reported Killed By Lava Fumes

Manila, Jan. 15 —(AP)— Three villagers were reported killed today by lava fumes from violently erupting Mayon volcano, which rained ashes over a wide area and sent more than 6,000 Fillipinos on southern Luzon fleeing to evacuation centres.

The report of the first fatalities from the volcano, which rumbled to life a week ago after a five-year slumber, was carried by the Evening News.

A pall of sulphurous smoke enveloped Camalig, at the southern foot of the mountain, Draga, eight miles southeast of the summit, and the fishing town of Libog, on the eastern slope was all but deserted. Libog has a normal population of about 5,000.

TRICKERY, MILADY?

The word chic, denoting superficial smartness, dates from the reign of Louis XVI, when it referred to lawyers who were masters of "chicane" or legal trickery.

Fined for Having Five Beaver Pelts

Sudbury, Jan. 15 — (CP)—For having five unprime beaver pelts, A. Lafrance and Sons, Ltd., Sudbury furriers, yesterday were fined $375 and costs — $75 for each pelt.

Defence counsel G. M. Miller announced that his client would plead guilty on condition that 131 other beaver pelts seized by game wardens Dec. 9 were returned. Crown Attorney E. D. Wilkins agreed.

The charge arose from a widespread seizure in the Sudbury and North Bay areas of pelts, some of which game authorities said, appeared to have been taken out of season.

In another fur case, Jack Leve, Sudbury fur buyer, appeared on a charge of failing to keep a correct and proper record of transactions concerning the purchase of beaver pelts Dec. 23. Magistrate W. F. Woodliffe dismissed the charge stating that there was a conflict of evidence and the accused must be given the benefit of the doubt.

More Than 1,200 Servicemen on Way Back to Canada

By MICHAEL O'MARA
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Southampton, Jan. 15 —(CP)— Under the grey skies, more than 1,200 Canadian servicemen, 450 Canadian war brides and 250 children yesterday filed quietly aboard the Aquitania, bound for Halifax.

There were no special dockside ceremonies and the scene generally was quiet as passengers awaited the sailing, scheduled for later in the day.

The men seemed eager to forget the war and to look forward to peacetime careers in Canada.

Cpl. Tom Anderson of Brockville summed up for his mates: "It's been a long show and a good show and I'm mighty glad it's over."

Brief Case With $5,000 Stolen

Montreal, Jan. 15 —(CP)— Aime Cloutier of Ste. Adele, Que., reported to police yesterday that his brief case, containing $5,000 in bonds and cash, disappeared at a midtown cafe. Cloutier said he left the case on a table and a few minutes later it was gone.

Theft of $1,400 in clothes and household goods from the west end Notre Dame St. home of Rolland Bouchard also was reported to police. A window at the back of the building was found broken.

Princesses' Gowns From Modest Shop

London, Jan. 13 (CP) — Many of the clothes to be worn by Princess Elizabeth and Princess Margaret when they tour South Africa now are in the hands of "Miss Ford", little known London dressmaker who has designed clothes for them since they were young children.

"I have been dressing the princesses for many years, but few people know of this," said Miss Ford in an interview in her modest store on Albemarle Street.

"I have executed many of the dresses, gowns and outfits for the royal tour."

Other clothes are being designed by more famous dressmakers, including Molyneux and Norman Hartnell.

Back From Overseas

The last large major post-war contingent of Canadian troops from Europe is on its way to Canada and on the same ship the Aquitania, are coming wives of Canadian servicemen and children. A few weeks later the mere handful of Canadian personnel remaining will be coming home when the Canadian military headquarters closes overseas.

Since shortly after the war ended Canadians have been coming home to resume their places in the life of the Dominion to take jobs or take courses of study preparing them for professions and other activities.

The very great number in the Canadian forces overseas in 1939-1946 is indicated in the time it has taken to bring them back. It has been a vast undertaking which has been carried out with the greatest possible expedition.

The life of the Dominion has already felt the influence of the keen young members of the forces who have taken or are taking positions in every walk of the nation's life. This influence will grow and become one of the factors in the progress of the Dominion.

1946 Food Pack

Canadian housewives with their families will be happy because of the 1946 food pack which is thought to exceed one billion cans. As a result they will soon have a more abundant supply of canned fruits and vegetables that at any time since before the war. Items in largest volume are tomato juice, green beans, peas, peaches, plums and apple juice which have been packed in greater volume then ever before. The pack in corn, cherries and apricots will be near a record. Of course all foods will not be available in unlimited quantities and among the lower packs are whole tomatoes, pears and raspberries. Owing to overseas commitments canned meats and canned fish, including salmon, are not very plentiful. But soups, jams and marmalades and vacuum-packed coffee are well over pre-war figures.

With the good harvests it is fortunate that supplies for containers are ample.

Consumers have been able from their own observation in shops to see the easing in many lines of canned foods. Recently peaches and plums were taken off the ration and coupon list. Steadily the supply is catching up in many lines with the demand which has grown since 1939 to exceed that of pre-war days.

Scientific Advance

Progress in medicine, surgery and of discovery in the field of medicine will not lag. Already there has been discovered a wealth of knowledge which will leave a record of surpassing benefits to the human race. The New York Times this week told of news from Stanford University that Doctors Hubert S. Loring and C. E. Schwerdt of that institution have obtained a concentration of polio virus at least 80 per cent pure.

The Times points out that over two hundred diseases that afflict animals and plants have been traced to viruses, one of them being the dread disease, poliomyelitis. The success of the two doctors is "no mean feat," for so little virus produces so enormous an effect that not much can be obtained from diseased tissues."

The need is great, it is indicated and there should be enough to infect the population of the continent if the chemist "is ever to find out more than he knows about the nature of viruses, the shapes and sizes and electrical properties of their elementary particles and how they are affected by ultraviolet and other rays and by chemicals. All this information is desirable if we are ever to have a vaccine against polio."

Such a vaccine may be secured someday "from the extracts of infected tissues but the physician will prefer one made from a pure virus. This is explained because no one knows what happens to a virus when it is 'killed' by radiation or by chemcials and until that knowledge is acquired no scientist can say what is the best method of preparing a vaccine to confer immunity against poliomyelitis or any other equally baffling virus disease."

The Times goes on to explain the problem:

"Viruses have a way of mutating or producing new species of themselves in some animal bodies. Cowpox and smallpox are probably different species of the same virus. Because of this mutability it is possible to pass a virus through man and different animals and so change it that it is enfeebled. A live vaccine made of such a virus usually confers immunity when given to man. But what has happened to the virus in its successive passages through a hundred experimental animals of three or four species? There is no doubt that some change in the chemical structure of the protein molecules that constitute the virus has occurred. Not until he has enough pure virus with which to experiment will the chemist be able to tell us what has happened in the mutation of a virus. There is even the possibility of creating a new strain in the test tube. Drs. Loring and Schwerdt have still some distance to go before they obtain a pure virus of poliomyelitis, but what they have done is of the highest importance. Even with their 80 per cent pure product it ought to be easier than it was to identify true from false virus particles with the electron microscope and to relate what is identified with what the biochemist wants to know."

Pacific Typhoon

The Atlantic has its storms, many of them, which batter at the works of man along the shore, and occasionally a full-fledged typhoon litters the coast with wreckage. But here in the east it is hard to conceive of the fury of the misnamed Pacific, which gathers strength over thousands of miles of ocean and all but obliterates even the islands precariously dotted about its broad expanse. A vivid illustration of the terrible power of the Pacific in a rage is supplied by the experience of the inhabitants of Palmyra, the tiny coral atoll a thousand miles to the southward of Hawaii.

Palmyra is just a whistle-stop in the Pacific. Having no secure anchorage, no natural resources, nothing, in fact, but a surface of about 250 acres cut up into fifty small islets, it was disregarded from the time of its discovery in 1802 until the advent of the plane. Then it became a fueling point, which now contains 108 Navy and Coast Guard personnel, plus five civilian scientists and their families.

When the great storm that extended as far north as the Aleutians reached Palmyra it literally swept the ocean across the atoll, which is no more than six feet above normal sea level at its highest point. It does not require much imagination to picture the sensation of the garrison ("crew" might be the better word) as the once secure land seemed to be foundering under their feet and they prepared to take to the boats, as from a sinking ship. But although appeals for help were sent out, they were cancelled as soon as the water began to subside; no casualties were suffered, and the rescuers found the Palmyrans "probably the calmest bunch" they had ever seen.—New York Herald Tribune.

What Immortal Hand?

In gazing on a winter scene, one may think of many things. One may find satisfaction in the beauty of snow and slanting winter sunlight. One may feel a sense of peace, for nature has a way of imparting her stillness. Or one may pause to wonder at these things, comments a writer in Montreal Gazette.

William Blake, writing of the tiger, asks, "What immortal hand or eye dare frame thy fearful symmetry?" Watching the sun paint red shadows on snow, one might repeat the question. Each snowflake has its individual shape. This alone is a powerful reminder of infinity.

It is inconceivable that nature's peace be due to snow and trees. The peace would seem a fact in itself: a fact that is ever present and in all places and would be clearly sensed, if each could hush the noisy clamor of his thoughts, for as the poet aptly says, "Only the self is loud."

TALK WITH MA

"He's so attentive, Ma!" she said.
"My packages he asks to carry."
Her Ma replied, with shaking head:
"All men do that before they marry."

"He's thoughtful and he's very kind.
My needs he instantly discovers."
Her Ma replied: "I'm sure you'll find
All men are that way when they're lovers."

"He vows devoted he will be
And never smile upon another."
"Precisely what Pa said to me
Two years before I was your mother."

"Will he be always neat and trim?
Will high his head with pride be carried?"
Said Ma: "There's Pa! Just look at him!
That's how he'll be when you are married."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

How did "robot" originate?

"Robot" was coined by Karel Capeck (1890-1938), Czech short-story writer, poet, playwright and theatrical producer.

He employed the term in "R.U.R." (the initials of Rossum's Universay Robots), a fantastical melodrama satirizing the "machine age" and mechanical civilization.

The plot hinges on the Robots and Robotesses, artificial men and women invented by a young engineer named Rossum and manufactured in the Universal Robot Factory.

In the play the Robots, which have superior intelligence and mechanical efficiency but no soul, sensibility and emotion, finally take on the attributes of human beings and threaten to destroy the human race.

Capek's play was translated into English by Paul Selver and produced in the United States in 1923.

Immediately "robot" became popular as a common noun denoting ingenious mechanical devices that do human work.

The term was also applied to persons who are highly efficient but heartless and to spiritless drudges or workingmen brutalized by hard manual labor.

"Robot" is a shortened form of Czech "robota," one meaning of which is compulsory service or slavery.

It is akin to Old Slavic "rabota," servitude, Goth "arbaiths," toil, Modern Russian "rabota," work, and Modern German "arbeit," labor.

In Latin "robur" signifies strength.

Under the false impression that "robot" is of French origin many people pronounce it "ROE-boe."

It is correctly pronounced "ROE-but" or "ROBB-ut" in English.

AURIOL HEADS FRANCE'S ASSEMBLY

Paris, Jan. 15 — (AP)—Socialist Vincent Auriol today was elected president of France's National Assembly, getting 294 votes to 194 for the Mouvement Republicain Populaire candidate, Robert Schuman.

The Communists helped to elect Auriol, who in two days will pose his candidacy for the presidency of the Fourth Republic.

The Leftist rally withdrew the candidacy of Claudius Petit for head of the Assembly a moment before the voting. However, he received 75 votes.

TO BE GIVEN AWARD

Boston, Jan. 15 — (AP)—Johnny Sain, right-handed Boston Braves' pitcher, will be presented the Paul Shannon Trophy for "meritorious achievement" at the annual Boston Baseball Writers dinner Feb. 4.

The trophy is named for the late Boston Post baseball writer.

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

NEVER MIND YOUR CHOLESTEROL

Here is a composite of numerous queries received recently.

An article on coronary disease says one should avoid animal fats, egg yolk, butter, cream and milk. I like avocados, have a tree loaded with them. Should I avoid avocados too?

Now I hate to mention it here but I must mention cholesterol in order to prevent misunderstanding. In the second hand magazine article the customers are informed that a waxlike substance known as cholesterol seeps through the lining of the coronary arteries from the blood and is deposited in the artery wall et cetera et cetra. Then the rehash writer or editor reveals to eager readers the disturbing discovery (that is, a discovery so far as the magazine contributor's knowledge goes) that many basic health and energy foods contain cholesterol—so if I will be good enough to send a diet list or give the cholesterol content of foods or a list of foods that contain no cholesterol.....

There is as much sense in this half-baked notion as there is in the notion that lime (calcium) deposits in the artery walls cause hardening of the arteries and lime (calcium) deposits in the joints cause arthritis (rheumatism) and the notion that egg white (albumen) in the diet causes nephritis (Bright's disease of the kidneys).

This cholesterol (sometimes called cholesterin) is a normal constituent of the healthy person's plasma, bile, red blood corpuscles, brain and nerve tissie and skin. The cholesterol in the skin is the substance which ultraviolet light (in sunlight or from an artificial source) converts into vitamin D — the "sunshine vitaman."

Foods containing the most cholesterol happen to be the most essential foods for child, youth or adult—milk, cream, butter, egg yolk, animal (meat) fats, lard, liver etc.

Moreover precise tests of the cholesterol content of blood and bile have shown that there is no significant change in the proportion of cholesterol under various diets—so that there is no logical reason for excluding cholesterol—rich foods or limiting the intake of such foods.

All this goes for "high blood pressure," too, if you imagine that's what ails you.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Leave the Man Alone

My husband is always taking cold and seems to have a chest cold most of the time. He insists on bathing and even washing his hair even when he has a cold.

(Mrs. M. T. W.)

Answer—So far as health is concerned it makes no difference how often a man or a woman washes the hair or gets the hair wet. For heaven's sake, let the man alone. You might reasonably complain if he refused to wash his hair or bathe. Your notion that his illness or illnesses are "cold" is stupid.

Silly Tilly

Does rubbing (trade name for) soft petrolatum, petrolem jelly on edges of eyelids every night make the lashes grow longer and darker?

(Miss L. A.)

Answer—It has no effect on eyelashes but probably helps the vacant mind fill the long winter evenings.

Never Kiss the Baby

Please state whether it is all right for parents and friends to kiss a young baby on the mouth and whether sinus trouble or throat trouble can be spread by kissing?

(W. E. M.)

Answer—No one should kiss a baby. Of course many infections, including sinus and throat trouble, are easily spread by kissing.

Not Heading For a Slump Say Retailers

Toronto, Jan. 15 —(CP)—Forecasts that Canada, in the best potential financial position of her history, is on the verge of a wave of prosperity and is not faced with a depression was voiced by speakers before the Canadian Retail Federation in session here yesterday.

W. E. S. Bryan, president of the federation, told members that Canada's wheat crop with a guaranteed price of $1.35 a bushel was richer than the crop of 1945 by one-third and was "ground for sober confidence."

"There is no reason for believing that we are headed for a slump as was the case in the years following the First World War — at any rate so far as our basic agricultural products are concerned," he said.

Another optimistic note was sounded by H. H. Bloom of the Massey-Harris Company. He said that farm equipment business in Canada now is $100,000,000 or 50 per cent more than in pre-war years.

"Canadian farm equipment dealers have been provided with a substantially higher percentage of equipment than the United States or any other country during war years and prices have increased by only 18 per cent," he said.

The 30 miles of No. 24 Highway from Collingwood south to No. 10 Highway were in good shape the first of this week after Highway Department equipment had converged on the area. The powerful snow-blowing machine was used to cut through the worst drifts, shooting the snow hundreds of feet over the fences.

CHIEF CONSTABLE SMITH RETIRES AT WINNIPEG

In 24 Years He Has Taken Part in Probe of About 80 Murders

Winnipeg, Jan. 15 — (CP) — The retirement of Chief Constable George Smith who during his 42 years with the Winnipeg Police Department took part in the investigation of about 80 murders, some of them notorious over the continent, was announced Tuesday.

An executive of the International Association of Police Chiefs, a past president of the Canadian Chief Constables Association, recipient of the award of Member of the British Empire, the 64-year-old, six-foot-two Scotsman has been "the chief" in Winnipeg since Dominion Day of 1934.

But he himself says he'd trade all his awards and appointments and become a constable again to capture the murderer of two 13-year-old Winnipeg boys — Roy McGregor in January, 1946, and George Smith, no relation, last September — whose slayings by a sex pervert never have been solved.

Native of Scotland

Born at St. Cyrus, Kincardineshire, Scotland, in 1882, the future chief came to Canada after serving in the Boer War and worked on a farm before joining Winnipeg's then 28-man police department in 1905. One year on a beat and he was made a plainclothesman.

It was soon after he investigated the first of the approximately 80 killings he has probed, most notorious of which was the murder of two Winnipeg women by "Strangler" Earle Nelson. Nelson's career of crime, told countless times in pulp magazines, ended at Chief Smith's hands after he had eluded police of half the continent.

In the meantime the adventurous Scotsman had returned to the old country to renew a youthful acquaintance with a girl with whom he had worked in the Edinburgh post office, Margaret McKay. She came to Canada to become his bride and they now have a family of five, one a wing commander in the RCAF, another a rookie on the police force.

Chief Smith's retirement will not become effective until the end of March but most of the interval he will spend on leave. Deputy Chief Charles McIvor will take over until a permanent appointment is made.

HUGE FARM PRODUCTION

Toronto, Jan. 15 — (CP)—Despite increased costs and shortages of machinery and of labor, Ontario farmers in 1946 broke all records for farm production, Agriculture Minister Kennedy said Monday night in an address prepared for broadcast over a Toronto station (CBL). Ontario's farm production amounted to more than $733,000,000.

50 Steel Companies Named by C.I.O. In Strike Notices

Pittsburgh, Jan. 14 (AP). — A spokesman for the United Steelworkers Union (C.I.O.) says about 50 United States steel companies will be named in 30-day strike notices to be filed today in Washington.

The action was considered a preliminary to the opening of contract negotiations with the U.S. Steel Corporation here Thursday.

Under the Smith-Connally Act, notice must be filed 30 days before a strike begins. Most steel contracts expire Feb. 15.

Among basic steel firms to be named in the strike notices are Carnegie-Illinois, National Tube, Columbia Steel, American Steel and Wire, and Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad, all subsidiaries of U.S. Steel Corp., Jones and Laughlin Steel Corp., Bethlehem Steel Corp. and Republic Steel Corp.

Philip Murray, president of the steelworkers, said the filing of strike notices is a "mechanical procedure" and should not be taken as an indication that the union plans to strike if no contract is reached by expiration date.

HAS NOT PAID

Calgary, Jan. 15 —(CP)—Agriculture Minister Gardiner told a questioner at a Liberal party meeting Monday night: "I haven't paid $5 for my Canadian citizenship, and I won't, and I advise you not to."

"We are all Canadian citizens," said Mr. Gardiner. "We don't need certificates. But if you want to carry one around it will cost you $5."

STUDENTS PICKET RINK

Toronto, Jan. 15 — (CP)—University of Toronto students and members of the National Federation of Labor youth picketed the Icelandia ice rink here Sunday night. The youthful picketers charged the management with racial discrimination. The demonstration was in protest of the alleged barring of a young Jewish girl from skating at the rink a few days ago. It was the second time the rink had been charged with alleged discrimination in the past 15 months. In Nov. 1945, a Negro youth was allegedly barred from skating at the rink.

Justice Barlow Presides at Trial

London, Ont. Jan. 15. (CP) —Charged with murder in the death August 24 last of Eldon Meredith, University of Western Ontario medical student from Wallaceburg, whose bullet-riddled body was found in undergrowth in the wilds of the Muncey Indian Reserve, Lloyd Nicholas, 25, and Joseph French, 36, Muncey Indians, went on trial today in Supreme Court here. Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow is presiding.

The Indians were indicted by a grand jury last October but counsel obtained stay of trial of the plea that insufficient time had elapsed since their arrest to prepare a defence.

Nicholas and French were arrested shortly after the crime at Delhi in a car owned by Meredith's father. Two Indian girls, one of them identified as a sister of French, were with them. They were stopped for a minor traffic violation, and were held when a pistol and blood-stained seat covers were found in the vehicle.

Industrial Strife May Ruin Nation Says Gen. Price

Edmonton, Jan. 14. (CP)—Maj.-Gen. C. B. Price, president of the Dominion Command of the Canadian Legion, in an address last night to the Edmonton Branch of the Legion, said that industrial strife, if not checked, may ruin the nation.

He suggested the Legion could serve as a modifying force to bring industrial antagonists together.

Gen. Price told his listeners that in the future the Legion would grow to serve the nation on a national basis even more than it does now. He urged younger veterans to direct their talents toward service of their country in municipal, provincial and national affairs, not as a group, but for the good of the country.

Following the meeting he left by train for Saskatoon, where he will confer with legion officials and members.

DISCUSS MINING TAX

Timmins, Jan. 14 — (CP) — Mayor J. Emile Brunette and town clerk V. Saloman were authorized last night to go with other mayors and clerks of the Association of Northern Mining Municipalities to visit premier George Drew and discuss proposed new mining tax legislation to come before the Ontario Legislature in February.

Hydraulic Barker First in Empire

Vancouver (CP)—The first hydraulic barker to be installed in the British Empire is in operation at the Powell River Company, Powell River, B.C.

The machine, installed in a new $1,800,000 plant, uses a powerful jet of water to strip bark from logs before they are used in paper-making. Former methods of bark removal were less efficient and an appreciable portion of the wood was removed with the bark, resulting in a heavy annual wastage.

The equipment handles logs ranging from five inches in diameter to forest giants six feet across. The logs, which revolve slowly in a huge enclosure, are stripped of their bark by the water jet moving back and forth at the rate of 40 feet a second. Pressure of 1,350 pounds performs the task in slightly more than 30 seconds per log.

Wood saved by the new plant will feed the big Powell River mill for three days and the saving of bark will facilitate a subsequent project for the production of by-products from bark and waste. Another step in the conservation of wood will be the installation of special hydraulic barking equipment to handle small second growth logs and logging operations waste.

It is estimated that the new hydraulic barker will save enough pulpwood in 1947 to furnish paper for all of British Columbia's newspapers for the next two years.

Missing Meteorite Found in Limerick

Dublin (CP)—Lost to scientific research for more than 130 years, the largest meteorite known to have fallen in the British Isles has reached the National Museum here.

It was part of a meteoric shower which fell in the Patrickswell and Adare district of County Limerick in 1813. It was found originally by a resident of the area who ultimately sold it with a pile of scrap metal.

The meteorite weighs a trifle more than 59 pounds, and has the appearance of bronze.

STRUCK BY BUS

Galt, Jan. 14. (CP)—Clement Radcliffe, 66, was killed last night when struck by a bus a short distance from his home between Galt and Preston.

Radcliffe was walking along the highway when the bus, driven by M. Fischer of Doorn, turned out to pass a car and allegedly struck the pedestrian. It was Galt's first traffic fatality since 1940.

WEDDINGS

FLOWER—VANCE

At an impressive candlelight service in Thomasburg United Church on Saturday, January 11th., at 3.30 p.m., Betty Anne, oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Vance, became the bride of Stephen Haley, son of Mr. and Mrs. N. R. Flower, of Renfrew. Rev. Bernard Heywood officiated at the double ring ceremony. The wedding music was played by Mr. Fred Porter. During the signing of the register, Jack Vance sang, "I'll Walk Beside You".

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown, fashioned with fitted satin bodice, lace skirt accented with appliqued floral design, and carried a cascade bouquet of American Beauty roses. Her headdress was a tiny feather hat with net trim.

Wearing a gown of pale blue lace and carrying a nosegay of pink roses and chrysanthemums, Jeannie Vance was her sister's only attendant.

Mr. Allan Guest, of Ottawa, was groomsman, Messrs. Horace and Burt Vance were ushers.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother assisted by the groom's mother received the guests.

For travelling to Toronto and Huntsville, the bride wore a fuchsia wool dress, seal coat and winter white accessories. She carried a silver fox muff, the gift of the groom.

On their return they will reside in Ottawa, where the groom is attached to the Royal Canadian Navy.

Ivanhoe

United Church At White Lake In Good Condition

Ivanhoe. (Special.)— A very satisfactory annual meeting for the purpose of hearing reports of the work done in 1946 and the election of officers for 1947 was held in the basement of White Lake United Church on Monday evening.

After contributing an increase of $50 to ministerial support and paying all outstanding accounts the church treasurer, Mr. Elvin Holland reported a considerable balance on hand. The Missionary and Maintenance Fund Statement, read by Mrs. William Downey, showed an increase of $28, making a total of $74.10. The Pension Fund campaign was reported by Mr. Ernest Holland, chairman of that committee, and revealed that $130 out of a total allocation of $200 had been paid during the first year. The congregation hopes to be able to raise the $70 balance within the next two years ,which is the time the campaign is scheduled to run.

Increase Insurance

Mr. Burton Holland, secretary-treasurer of the Sunday School, reported a balance of $31.29 with school being held 48 Sundays during the year.

It was decided to increase the amount of insurance carried on the church property to $2,500 an increase of $1,000. The Young People, who have been raising a fund with the view of installing hydro in the church, increased this fund by $28 during the year, now having a total amount of $174.10. Mrs. Willie French reporting for the Women's Association stated that there were seventeen members and that twelve quilts had been quilted and nine dinners held. The year's earnings amounted to $69.40 and the balance on hand to $47.37. Report of the Cemetery Fund, given by the secretary-treasurer, showed receipts amounting to $91.38 and a balance of $106.50.

The congregation serves fifty families, and during the year there were four baptisms, two marriages and one burial.

Steward Re-elected

The three retiring stewards, Mrs. Carman Mullett, Mr. William French and Mr. Neil Benny were re-elected for another term of three years.

Mr. Ernest Holland was elected chairman of the Committee of Stewards. Mr. Elvin Holland was re-elected church treasurer, Mr. William French was re-elected financial secretary, and Mrs. Carman Mullett was re-elected secretary of the congregation. Mr. Carman Mullett was re-elected auditor, Mrs. Reginald Haggerty was asked to continue as pianist with Mrs. Elvin Holland, assistant.

Mr. Earl Holland was chosen Sunday School superintendent, Mr. Burton Holland was re-elected secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. Ernest Holland was re-elected pianist.

The following were appointed ushers, Mr. Carman Mullett, Mr. Roy DeMille, Mr. Irwin McGuire, Mr. Raymond Downey and Mr. Donald Downey.

Mr. Robert Downey was appointed Trustee Board representative and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Holland members of the Parsonage Committee.

The Pastor, Rev. J. F. Everson, of Ivanhoe, conducted the devotional exercises and presided over the meeting, at the close of which refreshments were served by the ladies and a social half-hour enjoyed.

New Jewel Design

By PRUNELLA WOOD

EVEN jewels turn over a new leaf for a new year . . . diamonds may not change, but their settings do. The beautiful butterfly bow clip, shown here attached to a gold cable necklace, and the modestly dangling earrings, are both new as 1947.

The butterfly is made of fine, transparent gold mesh, sprinkled with set diamonds, and with a solidly paved diamond knot. The earrings are of solid gold cord which becomes a hanging fringe, the whole passed through a circlet of diamonds.

Women's Activities

ROSLIN W.I.

Roslin, Special)—The January meeting of the Women's Institute was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Wm. White, with ten ladies present.

With the President ,Mrs. H. Chisholm, in charge, the meeting opened with singing the Ode and The Lord's Prayer.

In the absence of the Secretary, Mrs. A. Bates, was appointed secretary protem. During the business period conveners of standing committees who reported were: Mrs. Beazer for "Publicity" with articles on music written by the late Carrie Jacobs Bond and "Courtesy of the British People".

Mrs. White for "Historical Research" with articles on a history of the Township of Thurlow. Mrs. Clapsaddle for "Health" with an article on "Surgeons put Zippers on the Heart".

A paper, "Happy New Year in This and Other Lands" was read by Miss Hazel Wilson. Mrs. M. Kerr contributed an interesting travelogue, portraying a trip from Roslin to The Bahamas, a distance of some 3,000 miles, which she took last February. Leaving Toronto with a party of friends, the trip South was made by motor, crossing into the United States at Buffalo, N.Y., then going through Pennsylvania into Ohio, then to Kentucky, which they found most interesting with flowers in abundance everywhere. They visited Fulton University, where the degree of L.L.D, was conferred upon the Honorable Winston Churchill last year. Through Tennessee into Alabama they travelled, visiting a number of apiaries in this State, finally reaching Mobile which is at the most southern tip of Alabama. Crossing into Florida they visited Key West and eventually reached Miami, later sailing to Nassau, in the Royal Suite of the steamers which had been assigned to the Duke and Duchess of Windsor during their stay in the Bahamas.

Their return trip was made by train; travelling along the West coast of Florida, through the States to Detroit, Mich., then into Canada, at Windsor, Ont. From Windsor they came to Toronto, Belleville and home to Roslin.

The speaker showed a number of illustrated folders depicting places of interest along the route she had travelled.

The president expressed thanks and appreciation to Mrs. Kerr for her delightful description of her trip.

A paper "The History of the Moira River" was read by Mrs. P. Clare. Showing a map of the southern townships of Hastings County, Mrs. Clare traced the course of the Moira from where it rises in Tudor township in just a little spring, through the various townships, while it gains momentum and increases in size, until it finally empties into the Bay of Quinte at Belleville. Included in this history was a story of the various business ventures along the river's banks, which use water power.

Thanks and appreciation were expressed to Mrs. Clare for her work in preparing this interesting history.

The National Anthem brought the meeting to a close, after which refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

TABERNACLE UNITED CHURCH W.M.S. MEETING

Ladies of Tabernacle United Church W.M.S. Auxiliary were privileged to have S/L. Rev. F. R. Harback with them during their January meeting held on Tuesday afternoon in the ladies' parlor of the church. S/L. Harback was present to conduct the installation of the Auxiliary officers for the year 1947. Speaking to the ladies prior to installing the executive he said he was glad to meet the members of the Women's Missionary Society because he felt that the church and missions were the means by which World Peace will eventually be achieved.

Mrs. J. Ross, the retiring president, presided for the opening exercises with Mrs. F. B. Jarrell leading in prayer.

During the business period the Secretary, Mrs. W. P. Cornell, gave a comprehensive and lucid story of the programs presented during 1946, and highly commended the committees who provided the enjoyable and interesting programs, and expressed appreciation to all who so willingly contributed of their talents to enrich the meetings. The Treasurer, Mrs. L. Adamson, presented the annual financial statement from figures on the blackboard. Following this Mrs. F. B. Jarrell reported for the College Hill Group, telling how the members have given freely in 1946 through "Other Sources" as well as in the use of the monthly envelopes to the amount of $80, some of which was used to make two of their number Life Members of the Society. While Mrs. Jarrell spoke, Mrs. J. Ross presented certificates to Miss Myrtle Johns and to Mrs. E. R. Nelson. It is the object of this group to have every member a Life Member, thus making each a more interested member.

Mrs. G. F. Lent, as Temperance Secretary, spoke on the subject of Women's Beverage Rooms, and quoted from the Chicago American, stressing the number of broken homes and neglected children because there are too many young women and mothers spending their time in Cocktail Lounges. Mrs. A. D. Archibald spoke on "The Stewardship of Life".

The hymn "Standing at the Portal of the Opening Year" opened the Installation Service, with Mrs. H. Frosts on behalf of the Auxiliary members welcoming Rev. F. R. Harback and Miss Joan, (who was present with her father). Mrs. Ross read the following names from the slate of officers becoming the Executive Committee for this year:

Honorary President, Mrs. H. Frosts
Past President, Mrs. J. Ross
President, Mrs. A. D. Archibald
1st Vice-President, Mrs. W. J. Harrison
2nd Vice President Mrs. A. J. Charlton
3rd Vice President, Mrs. F. B. Jarrell

Press Reporter, Mrs. W. B. May
Mission Band Supt., Miss Elvira Nelson, assisted by Mesdames Howe, G. Brickman and Reg. Wardle.
Pianists—Mrs. M. P. Duff, Mrs. G. F. Lent

The newly installed President, Mrs. A. D. Archibald, read the Scripture Lesson from the 11th chapter of the Book of Acts, followed by a short explanatory paper, closing with prayer for God's blessing on the efforts of Auxiliary members this year.

A solo contributed by Mrs. Arthur Wynn was greatly appreciated.

Plans were made to hold the February meeting on an evening in conjunction with an affiliation ceremony of the C.G.I.T., and the meeting was closed with a hymn and the benediction pronounced by S/L. Harback.

Sugar Saving

As long as there are crisp juicy apples in the larder it seems that Summer is still on the doorstep. This year's crop of apples is abundant. It is a treat to crunch a raw apple or to have apple sauce or apple pie or any one of the dozens of other apple desserts.

The problem of planning desserts was a real endurance test to the homemakers during those apple-less years.

However blue the sky there is always a cloud somewhere. The cloud in the apple picture may be rationed sugar.

The home economists of the Consumer Section Dominion Department of Agriculture are experts in making the sugar ration stretch to the limit and their recipes for apple desserts are no exception.

Bulletin "Sugar Savers" has been revised and is now ready for distribution again. It contains many recipes using a minimum of sugar. It may be obtained free from the Publicity and Extension Division, Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Here are three of the good apple desserts. For six servings 1-2 cup of sugar is allowed.

SPICY APPLE PUDDING

1-4 cup shortening
1-2 cup sugar
1 cup pastry flour or 1 cup less 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
1 teaspoon baking soda
1-4 teaspoon salt
1-2 teaspoon cinnamon
1-2 teaspoon nutmeg
1 egg
2 1-2 cups chopped apple

Cream shortening and sugar. Add sifted dry ingredients. Add egg and beat well. Lastly add chopped apple. Place in a greased baking dish and bake in a moderately slow oven, 325 degrees Fahrenheit until done— about 40 minutes. Serve hot with top milk or pudding sauce. Six servings.

APPLE MERINGUE

6 medium apples
1 1-2 cups Custard Sauce
2 egg whites
2 tablespoons sugar
Apple jelly

Remove cores from apples. Prick the skins, place in a casserole and bake in a moderate oven 350 degree Fahrenheit. When tender, remove from oven, pour sauce over and around apples. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry, then beat in sugar. Top each apple with meringue and garnish with a spoonful of jelly. Oven-poach in a moderately slow oven, 325 degree Fahrenheit until meringue is brown, about ten minutes. Serve hot or cold. Six servings.

BUTTERSCOTCH APPLE PIE

1-4 cup brown sugar
6-8 medium apples
2 tablespoons brown sugar
2 tablespoons shortening (half butter)
3 tablespoons flour
1 cup milk
1 deep, uncooked 9-inch pie shell

Sprinkle the 1-4 cup brown sugar over the bottom of the uncooked pie shell. Peel apples and slice thinly, fill the pie shell, heaping apples slightly in the centre. Cream the 2 tablespoons brown sugar with the shortening and the flour until well blended. Crumble the mixture over the top of the apples. Pour the milk into the pie and bake in a hot oven, 400 degrees Fahrenheit until top is brown and apples are tender, about 45 minutes. Cool and serve. Makes 1 deep 9-inch pie.

COLLEGE COACHES STILL CHANGING THEIR POSITIONS

Some of the Big Names in Football Resign to Take Other Jobs

New York, Jan. 15 —(AP)— Post-season job-swapping in the ranks of United States football coaches continued today.

The big turnover, marked by more than a score of resignations since the close of the 1946 season, hit a new one-day high yesterday when three berths were filled—making six additions to coaching ranks in less than a week.

At the University of Alabama the ailing Frank Thomas stepped down to make room for Harold (Red) Drew, who resigned Monday as head coach of Mississippi.

Drew's successor at Mississippi is John H. Vaught, All-American guard at Texas Christian in 1932, promoted from line coach.

University of Oregon named James W. Aiken, football coach and director of athletics at Nevada since 1939, to the head coaching job to replace Gerald A. (Tex) Oliver.

Kansas State University announced it was seeking two men to fill the dual position of head coach and athletic director vacated by Hobbs Adams who resigned.

Ed McKeever, who resigned from Cornell, went to the University of San Francisco. George K. James was named to Cornell.

On Saturday Bob Woodruff, line coach at Georgia Tech, was named to succeed Frank Kimbrought as head coach at Baylor. Today Ray Graves, former coach at Tennessee was named to fill Woodruff's old spot.

Still seeking coaches are Maryland, Lafayette, Colgate, and the University of California.

CUT DOWN ON TAKING LAXATIVES THIS WAY

See How Regular You Can Be Every Morning

Try taking Carter's Pills this way: Start with 3 and set a definite time every morning. When you get regular every morning cut down to 2. After a few days, try 1.

Then try taking Carter's every other day. You may even find you can keep regular without any laxative.

You see, Carter's are so tiny you can cut down the dose—from 3 to 1—to fit the needs of your individual system. Without disappointment.

Carter's help clean out your intestinal tract not harshly, but thoroughly. They are doubly effective because made with two vegetable herbs compounded properly for thorough, easy action.

Thousands can cut down on laxative dosing this Carter way. Ask for Carter's Pills to get the genuine at any drug store—.54, 70¢, $1.00. Start the Carter graduated dose method tonight, and jump out of bed tomorrow rarin' to go.

Fearless on Skis, Eight-year-old Plays With Dolls

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 15. (CP)—Anne picked up a pair of scissors, sized up the "cut-out" and took a vicious swipe.

It was difficult to get her interested in the topic of skiing for like any other eight-year-old she was engrossed with her dolls.

"Anne, do you ever get scared when you're just about to go down a big hill," this reporter pressed.

"Nope," she laughed, "Skiing is fun. I enjoy it better than anything."

For her that dismissed the subject and she went back to her cut-outs. But the chances are that in a few years this tot—Dorothy Anne Heggtveit—will be wearing the Dominion Women's Ski crown.

Already his year she has captured the Ladies' Combined Downhill and Slalom Championship at the first Gatineau zone meet of the season. Others in the competition ranged from 10 to 15 years older. It also has been rumored that for the second successive time she will be asked to act in February as forerunner in the Slalom race of the International Women's Ski meet at Lake Placid, N.Y.

"She's coming along fine but muffed a race she was in the other day," commented her father, Halvor Heggtveit. "I have to keep a sharp eye on her and check her up on timing now and again."

Anne belongs to a family of skiers. Her father was Dominion cross-country champion in 1934.

"Anne was two when we slipped a pair of skis on her and let her try them out on the front lawn," said Mrs. Heggtveit. "I'd keep an eye on her from the window and whenever she fell I'd have to go out and pick her up."

From level ground she graduated to gentle slopes and hills. Her father soon was teaching the intricacies of downhill and the Slalom. At five she had become used to zipping down the steepest hills around Ottawa.

In Summer she keeps in condition by practising on roller-skates, armed on either side with a ski-pole.

THESE RENTS REDUCED

Letherhead, Surrey, England, Jan. 15 —(CP)— Maybe it was because their dwellings were originally designed for pigs but dwellers in "chalets" here had their rents reduced from one pound ($4.00) weekly to six shillings $(1.40).

The "chalets" were originally built as "show" pigsties.

But it isn't as bad as it sounds—even with the housing shortage. The chalets were never used for the pigs.

THE HEAT TREATMENT — Maple Leaf hockey rookies Howie Meeker (left) and Vic Lynn (right) receive radio-therapy and sun lamp treatment under the eagle eye of Assistant Trainer Bill Smith in the Toronto club's dressing-room. Lynn receives daily sun lamp treatment for his badly injured shoulder that will keep him out of action for another month. Meeker was suffering from nothing more than a bruised arm and will be in action tonight when the Leafs and Montreal Canadiens clash at Maple Leaf Gardens.

Canadiens' formidable defence twosome, Kenny Reardon (left) and Butch Bouchard, were caught by the photographer chatting in the Montreal dressing-room before yesterday's workout at Maple Leaf Gardens in preparation for tonight's all-important game.

King Favored To Beat Bagnato Monday Night

(By The Canadian Press)

When Toronto's Li'l Arthur King, Negro featherweight star, enters the ring at Maple Leaf Gardens Monday night against fellow-townsman Joey Bagnato, he will be favored to win, despite the fact Bagnato not only beat King last September but floored him five times during their bout. At least the Toronto boxing fraternity expects a reversal of the September result, mainly on the basis of improved form shown by King in recent weeks. Since their last meeting Dave Yack, a ring veteran himself, has taken over as King's trainer and claims to have corrected many of Li'l Arthur's fistic faults.

However, Frankie Genovese, Bagnato's manager, thinks Bagnato has a good chance of duplicating his September win.

A Halifax report that Ab Conick, star forward with Hamilton Tigers of the O.H.A. senior A series, was seeking his release to play with Truro Bearcats of the Maritimes Big Four, was denied yesterday by Percy Thompson, manager of the Hamilton team.

Associated with racing more than 40 years, James Donovan resigned yesterday as starter on the Western Canada race circuit to take over as starter at the Detroit fair grounds.

Following a petition from the Horsemen's Association of Canada, representing owners, trainers and breeders on the prairie racing circuit asking that George W. Schilling be replaced as racing secretary, the Prairie Thoroughbred Breeders and Racing Association yesterday approved a resolution reaffirming "complete confidence in Mr. Schilling's efficiency and ability as racing secretary."

At New York, Larry McPhail, president of the New York's baseball Yankees, announced his purchase of a one-third interest in the New York Football Yankees, previously entirely owned by Dan Topping. A one-third share was also purchased by Del Webb, also a third owner in the baseball club.

It was announced yesterday at Sydney, N.S. that Rollie Beauchamp, hockey forward from Hamilton, was released by New Waterford Bruins of the Cape Breton Senior League.

Houston Making Real Comeback

(By The Canadian Press)

Coach or no coach, fist fight or hockey by the rules, Houston is making a comeback in the United States Hockey League.

Trailing 1-0 after nine minutes of play when coach Artie Somers and Tulsa coach Gus Marker tangled in a fist fight and were barred from the building, Houston scored once in the second and staged a three-goal rally in the third to gain a 4-4 tie with Tulsa. It was the league's only game last night.

Marcel Dhere was the first Houston scorer, and Johnny Horeck Brozen, and P. Kalapaca notched markers in the third frame rally for Houston. Scotty Mairn Joe Sadler, A. Jones and D. McMurd scored for Tulsa.

After winning only three games in all of the season prior to Jan. 7, the Skippers now are crowding Fort Worth for third place in the southern division.

STILL HOLDS POLICE BEST IN WORLD

Pittsburgh, Jan. 15 —(AP)— Brought before a magistrate on a loitering charge, Thomas Coll was identified as the writer of a recent letter to the newspapers praising Pittsburgh city police as the best in the world."

"What do you think of the police now?" asked Magistrate Frank Zappala.

"I still think they're efficient. The officer only did his duty," responded Coll.

"Case dismissed," said Zappala.

STILL UNBEATEN

Hamilton, Jan. 15 —(CP)— Hamilton Tigers unbeaten leaders of the O.H.A. Senior A circuit, defeated University of Toronto senior hockey squad 8-3 in an exhibition game last night.

Art Childs, Tigers' veteran goalie, played one period although suffering a cold and was replaced by Mel Thompson, former Port Arthur Junior.

ST. MICHAEL'S DEFEAT FALCONS BY 5 TO 2 COUNT

Fourteen Penalties to 12 Players Handed Out in First Period

(By The Canadian Press)

The mighty Toronto St. Mikes, riding atop the Ontario hockey association's 10 team Junior "A" circuit, won another game last night and so did second place Galt Red Wings.

St. Mikes, defending eastern junior champions, defeated St. Catharines Falcons 5-2, and the Falcons took plenty of encouragement from the result for in three previous meetings they'd been whitewashed 11-0, 9-0 and 7-0.

The Red Wings walloped Toronto Marlboros 7-2, the victory keeping Galt eight points behind St. Mikes in the league standing.

The home-town crowd at St. Catharines cheered to the echo when their Falcons at last dented the dignity of Howard Harvey in the St. Mikes nets. Costello and Harrison scored in the first, Kelly and Hannigan in the second, and Psutka in the third before Falcons counted. Then McCoustra and MacDonald both scored.

The Falcons couldn't match the champs in speedy breakaways and they couldn't handcuff the swerving rushes of Les Costello and Fleming MacKell, but they checked the visitors so determinedly that they couldn't score until nearly 16 minutes of the first period.

Penalties Pile Up

Long before the goals started penalties began to pile up. Costello was tagged after 35 seconds of play, then MacKell and Wood, then Costello again, followed by Geogan and Sandford. There were five victims in the cooler at once and the first of these was barely back on skates before Woit and Mann were sent off. Then referee Dinty Moore raised an uproar from the stands by giving Falcons' Goalie Max Haunh a minor for holding the puck. Kafin served the penalty and when Harry Psatka and Bob Twaddle were thumbed off the net result was that Falcons had four men on the ice and St. Mikes five.

That was when St. Mikes started their scoring parade. The first period summary showed 14 penalties to 12 players, Twaddle getting the only major. There nine more penalties before it was over.

Rough At Galt

It was rough at Galt too, where a crowd of 2,000 turned up despite heavy rain. Bruce Philby in the Marlboro nets took a punch at Freddie Glover and clouted Bill Scott with his stick. A penalty shot was awarded, and Glover scored easily. Glover got a second goal later, and McBride also scored twice for Galt. Wiley, Hnatchuk and Uniac got the others. Hassard and Heggie were the Marlies' scorers.

Two junior tilts were billed tonight, no senior. Windsor Spitfires go to Kitchener Kroehlers for a four-point fixture, and Hamilton Szabos are at Barrie Flyers.

Little Benny's Note Book

Men and Glasses Magee were walking along just walking along, and some little kid was standing in front of his house holding a toy baloon by a long string, and Glasses said, Oh boy, I bet if he ever left go of that, I bet it would go. up and up and never come down.

Oh boy what a site, I said, and Glasses said, Maybe we can get him to leave go of it just for the experiment.

Which we started to, me saying, Hay kid, why dont you leave go of that string just for a minute to see what happens?

I know without leeving go, the kid said, and Glasses said, But G wizzickers, dont you realize it might go all a ways up to the moon?

Even just over the house would be too far for me, the kid said, and I said, Well heck, if you write a note and say on it, "Hello up there," and tie a not to the end of the string just before you leeve go of it, dont you realize you'd be the very ferst person that ever communicated with the moon?

Being a good argument and the kid said, Well even if I was, nobody would ever know it, not even me.

Aw, you must be one of those guys that wont do a good action unless you garantee them a statue in their honor, Glasses said, and I said, Is that what you want, a statue?

No, all I want is this baloon, the kid said, and Glasses said, But good night, didn't you ever hear of Science?

No, the kid said.

Which he probably didn't, and me and Glasses kept on going diskusted, me saying, Good night, if everybody was like that kid, the werld would go backwerds instead of frontwerds, and Glasses saying, Oh well, you cant blame us, we did our best.

Which we did.

ESQUIRES TAKE OPENER 57-30 FROM MT. VIEW

In the opening game of the current Intermediate "B" basketball league the Belleville Esquires defeated Mountain View Bombers in a wide open tussle 57-30. The game was exciting throughout and for the first game of the season showed promise of a very strong league this season.

In the first quarter the game was close with both teams breaking fast and playing a fine defensive game. At the end of the quarter, Esquires led 11-6. At half time the score was 27-14 with both teams going all out. In the last half the better condition and general field play of Esquires began to tell. At the three quarter time they led 44-23 and finished strong in the final minutes of the game.

Leading the parade for Esquire was Johnny Hayman with 13 points and Don Mason with 12. Jack Dickens and Ralph McCabe each had 8 points. Geo. Faulkner and Jack Whiting with six as the offensive power of Esquire was very evenly distributed.

For Mountain View, Hamilton with 7 points and Crabbe with 5 points were the best thrown on the floor by Doc Lyon's team.

Mason 12; Hayman 13; Dickens 8; McCabe 8; Coppell 0; Wright 0 Faulkner 6; Pigden 3; Hyde 1; Whiting 6.

HAMILTON TIGERS ARE NO LONGER 'RAGGEDY ANNES'

Aging Players Fashion Plates on Ice With Yellow and Black Jerseys

By WILLIAM H. DUMSDAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Hamilton, Jan. 15. (CP)—Famous as hockey's "dirty old men" as they reached the Allan Cup finals last winter, Hamilton Tigers are older and even smarter, but no longer can they be classed as "Raggedy Anns."

Discarding a superstition started during the playoffs last season, the aging Tigers not only are fashion plates of the ice lines with new black and yellow jerseys, but even Goalie Art Childs washes his underwear.

Shutout King of amateur hockey, Childs started the Tigers on their dirty-uniform campaign last season which made them unpopular with Hamilton laundries. One of the oldest clubs in years ever to seek the Dominion senior title, the junglemen saw their charm work until they clashed with Calgary Stampeders in the West.

When the Tigers reached the finals, Childs was able to stand his underwear in the dressing-room corner, but in the colder western climate its presence lost the paralyzing affect it seemed to have over Eastern opponents and the Stampeders won the cup.

Ride Higher Than Ever

Just to prove their dirty uniforms actually played no part in their success last Winter, the Tigers are riding higher than ever in their new fancy suits. They've won 16 straight games in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A' Series and have yet to meet defeat in league competition. Their nearest rivals, Toronto Staffords have 18 less points in the same number of contests.

Coach George Redding figures his current cats are stronger than his eastern champions of last Spring and besides additions he still has 11 of the oldsters who brought the title to Hamilton.

They have high hopes of winning the Allan Cup this time and if they do they'd like to represent Canada at the Olympics—providing the expenses are "right".

One of the team's newcomers rates as oldest player at 37. He's Bert Peer, former Oakville star but although balding Doug Runions of last season's club claims to be only 34, those who know him say Doug could claim Peer's title if he checked his birth date closely. And experts figure Runions is playing the best hockey of his career.

THREE-GAME N.H.L. CARD ON THE BOARDS

Canadiens and Leafs Will Play Two Games on Successive Nights

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Even without the customary name-calling, the two-game series that opens tonight in Toronto with Montreal Canadiens seeking to overhaul the league-leading Maple Leafs shapes up as the most crucial yet in the current National Hockey League campaign.

With the Leafs on the limp and the Canadiens in their worst slump in four seasons, the home-and-home engagement that concludes in Montreal Thursday night would present a mighty big four points if either team should be lucky enough to cop it all.

Given those four points, the youthful Leafs would hold a juicy 11-point edge over the Stanley Cup champions—almost enough to let them coast to a first-place finish.

The Canadiens, on the other hand, could cut the margin to three by a double-victory but the points to the Canucks. There have been rumors of a shake-up around the Canadien Camp, all promptly laughed off by club officials but there would be no laughing off a five-game losing streak. And the Montrealers already have dropped three in a row.

Confronted with the keyhole reports that three veterans were due to travel down the river, General Manager Frank Selke said that "no changes are contemplated in Canadiens lineup".

"I've been in this business a long time and find you do lose games from time to time and quite often when you least expect them," added Selke in a little pre-series philosophy. "I can only repeat my promise that we'll keep the Stanley Cup in Montreal."

Coach Hap Day had a little more to worry about with his Leafs. The crying towel was near at hand as he referred to four players on the injury list—defencemen Garth Boesch and Bob Goldham and forwards Vic Lynn and Harry Watson.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

It was a great week for the three second division clubs. Chicago Black Hawks' sudden reversal of form in winning their last three games; Detroit Red Wings' two wins in three starts, and New York Rangers' 3-2 victory over the league-leading Toronto Maple Leafs highlighted a week that saw the completion of the first 100 games of the 180-game N.H.L. schedule.

• • •

Toronto Maple Leafs took a firmer hold on the top rung in the standings by winning two out of three games during the week while the second-place Montreal Canadiens dropped three straight. Leafs took a seven-point lead over Canadiens. Toronto has 48 points; Montreal 41; the third-place Boston Bruins 30, and New York Rangers 29 points. Detroit is in fifth place with 28 points, while Chicago with three games in hand, is in the cellar with 24, but both the Red Wings and Black Hawks gained considerable ground during the past week.

• • •

Maurice Richard of Canadiens again tops the individual scoring parade. Richard has 23 goals and 17 assists for 40 points, five more than Ted Kennedy of Toronto who has 35. Milt Schmidt, Boston Bruins' centre, passed Billy Taylor of Detroit during the week and moved into third place with 32 points, one more than Taylor.

• • •

Richard is the leading goal scorer with 23, while Taylor is the top player in the number of assists with 22. Howie Meeker, Toronto Maple Leafs' right-winger, scored five goals against the Chicago Black Hawks on January 8th as the Leafs defeated the Hawks 10-4 bringing his goal total to 17 and thereby ascending the scoring ladder to twelfth place in the standings.

"THE VOICE" in the Wilderness

From away down in the snow-covered fastnesses of St. Adele, Quebec, comes a timely postcard picturing the outdoor glamor and color of skiing. It shows the gals and boys of the long slippers being towed up a runway to the peak of a mountain. The card is signed Phil Lawson and "Whipper" Billy Watson, the "Voice" and the "Body" of wrestledom who are doing a spot of vacationing on skis.

• • •

According to Phil, (The Voice) the temp down thataway hovers around the 18 below mark, and there is four feet of snow for the gals and boys to cavort on when ski-minded. The Whippuh, suh, is running wild over them thar mountings, developing plenty of leg muscle for the coming season's mat calisthenics. Both buckaroos have developed enormous appetites, and according to the Whip, meal-time is the only time he can hold down the Lawsonian tonsils when they start rattling about the advantages of good old Ontario, and the rasslers therein.

• • •

From down Kingston way comes word that Steve Hook, stormy petrel of the senior softball wars hereabouts last summer, has gone into the beak-busting game. Steve, it appears, throws a nasty left hook, no pun intended, as well as a smashing right cross. Steve claims a record of 15 battles, fistic, that is, against some of the slug-fest luminaries of the services during the war years, and right now he is anxious to swap punches with Keith Christensen, Queen's University heavyweight contender.

• • •

Steve, who is Director of Recreation at the Kingston DVA, hopes to condition himself for the next show at Queens on Tuesday Jan. 21.

A brilliant first-year student in the honor course in English at the University of Toronto, Miss M. J. Smedley, Port Arthur, Ont., has been awarded the annual Ontario Hockey Association War Memorial Scholarship, the O.H.A. announced today. It is the third time a girl has won the award.

• • •

One of four scholarships, the others being at Queen's, McMaster, and the University of Western Ontario, the War Memorial Award was first made in 1925. It is given to the son or daughter of a war veteran of the First World War. The other O.H.A. scholarships go only to hockey players. The scholarship gives its winners four years tuition at the University of Toronto.

With the return battle between "Lil" Arthur King and the hard punching Joey Bagnato stirring fans to a pitch that indicates a record gate when the two clash at Maple Leaf Gardens next Monday night, Promoter Frank Tunney has announced a stand-out semi-final fight over the eight-round route with the signing of Toronto's Teddy Swain to trade punches with the Montreal featherweight contender, Jean Richard.

• • •

Richard, designated by the Canadian Boxing Federation as a leading contender for the now vacant Canadian title, is no stranger to Toronto and district fans, having defeated Frankie Pucci in a recent Gardens joust. Swain in his last start in Toronto disposed of Quebec City's Johnny Bufford who was also rated a contender by the C.B.F. Despite the fact that Bagnato was awarded a split decision over King in their previous encounter, indications are that the colored youngster will again be the favorite when the pair enter the ring Monday night.

Coach George Faulkner's Intermediate "B" basketballers flashed sensational power against the strong Mountain View quintet here on Monday night in the loop opener, winning by 57-30. The Belleville court crew were paced by the clever Johnny Hayman, former Western U. Mustang hoopster, who dunked the ball for 12 points. The airmen fought back doggedly but were no match for the fast-moving Belleville team whose passing attack at times was bewildering. However, the Mountain Viewers will improve with practice and should give the best of the loop teams some stirring tilts before playoff time.

• • •

Bloomfield's fast-skating Sky Chiefs defeated the Picton Combines in Wellington on Monday night by a 10-3 score, the same count that Trenton dunked the service rivals from Mountain View in the game played here. It was a closer battle than the score indicated —but it proved costly to the winners. Kitty Abbott, their fast-skating defenceman and one of the stars of the team, suffered a fractured wrist during one of the melees and will be out of the line-up for some time.

• • •

Tonight sees a resume of the service feud between Trenton's Flyers, undefeated and untied in the Intermediate "B" race and their rivals, the Bombers from Mountain View. Smarting under that 10-3 defeat when the Flyers grounded them here on Monday, the Bombers have reorganized their forces and tonight's joust may see a reversal of things. Monday night's game was another slam-bang affair with no quarter asked nor given and the lads tearing into each other with all the abandon of a four-year refugee into a juicy steak. There'll be fireworks again tonight, lads, as the Bombers swear there'll be no cock-eyed score again, even if they have to fly the puck into the net. Game at 8.30.

Warriors Wallop Huskies 104-74

New York, Jan. 15 —(AP)— Averaging a point every other minute, Joe Fulks of Philadephia Warriors has taken a stranglehold on the individual scoring race in the basketball association of America.

The lanky forward of the third-place eastern division Warriors has scored 673 points in 28 games, more than 200 better than the 448 of Stan Miasek of Detroit Falcons.

Fulks set a record of 41 points in a single game last night as the Warriors slaughtered Toronto Huskies 104-74. The star forward shot 15 field goals and 11 foul shots as the Warriors led throughout the game. The previous mark of 40 was established last Thursday by Gino Martin of Providence Steamrollers.

In the only other game, the Steamrollers came from behind and downed Cleveland Rebels 78-74.

Seeking to step up lagging gate receipts, Detroit today announced doubleheaders will be offered instead of single games at their home court.

Regina, Jan. 15. (CP)— You don't often hear the goaltender of a tail-end team hailed as the greatest net protector in the league. But that's the incongruous position of Emile (The Cat) Francis of the Western Canada Hockey League's hapless Regina Capitals.

It has been a sharp reverse from last season for 21-year-old Francis. Then he tended the nets for Moose Jaw Canadians, who won the Saskatchewan Junior title.

The Cat, whose lightning mitt-thrusts led Scotty (Leader-Post) Melville to start the nickname, is, despite his tender years, a re-instated pro. The five foot-seven-inch wonder boy played with the Hershey Bears of the United States Hockey League through the 1934-44 season and with the Washington Lions the following year.

After a spell in the Canadian Infantry he decided the minors were not the place to make good and re-joined the hockey wars at Moose Jaw under the tutelage of Eddie Wiseman, who rates near the top in coaching for Emile's money.

Francis comes from a family of Post Guarders. His father, born in Wales, played goal in professional soccer circles in Britain. The "Emile" was undoubtedly his mother's idea. She was born in Marseilles.

A native of North Battleford, Sask., Francis has always chosen the spot between the pipes, taking his first tips from a Father Simons at St. Thomas College there. Francis says that Father Simons had a chance to play professional hockey before he choose the priesthood.

The stocky youngster emulates the style of Boston's Frankie Brimsek and throws in a few jumping-jack tricks of his own.

Those manoeuvres may be tried as a cure for what ails the Chicago Blacks Hawks. Emile's antics will be scrutinized by President Bill Tobin on a tour of his western farm clubs soon and Francis may go to the Hawks before the end of the current season, along with his ex-team Mate Metro (Marvellous) Prystal.

Coach Willie Hunter of the Caps has already given up hope of holding Francis in the W.C.H.L. next season.

Whatever comes, Francis will be playing short stop next Summer for the softball team run by the Brothers Bentley of Chicago Black Hawk fame. A tour of Saskatchewan and United States points by the group of hockey-baseball players is on the books.

Sports Roundup

New York, Jan. 15—(CP)—The whirling dervishes, whose ultimate thrill is to shoot down the wintry trails of Mt. Van Hoovenberger's bobsled run at 70 miles an hour or better aboard their 490-pound steel vehicles, are warming up for the Olympic try-outs next month . . . As Paul Gardner of Holiday magazine so aptly put it . . . "Anybody who is looking forward to a jet-propelled airplane ride or planning to board a rocket to the moon need look no further for appropriate training pastures." . . .

After observing the gyrations of a bobsled hurtling down Mt. Van Hoovenberg, taking vertical curves within inches of the top of icy walls, Gardner has concluded that anyone who doesn't return home in a mood for consultation with a local psychiatrist will certainly welcome a relaxing bout with the Einstein theory . . .

"Anything seems more logical than the sight of millionaires — who could be home clipping coupons — daily risking their valuable necks in better than mile-a-minute competition down a mountain's treacherous, icy, merciless course.

Closed during the war, the 1½ mile run awaits with icy arms the Olympic-bound daredevils who are scheduled to test their sheer nerve and co-ordination in the try-outs Feb. 11-16 . . . the terrifying turns boast a 10-degree drop, with 8½ the minimum and 15 the maximum . . . A slip of the wrist by the man behind the bob-sled's wheel could mean death for his two or four - man crew.

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

Teach your little girl the Horse Sense method of trick count. For the rest of her life she can use the same count with every hand. Nor is any variation ever necessary.

To determine the tricks you expect to take in any hand, this is the method: Count one trick for each high card (ace or king or queen) and one for each short card (each card short of three).

Have no fear about counting a queen as one. Be not afraid to count one for each queen or king that is alone. If you follow the bidding guides, the count will come out right.

Learn the basis of tricks needed for each first bid. Then you can raise once for each additional trick. In this manner, you are never in doubt as to whether you are bidding too high or not enough.

For the next several days we will discuss some details in a deal from a championship tournament. Here are the cards:

NORTH
♠A Q 4 2
♥Q 10 9 8 6 3
♦A
♣9 2

WEST
♠9 7 6
♥K 7
♦K 9
♣K Q J 8 7 3

EAST
♠3
♥J 5 4 2
♦J 10 5 4 3
♣10 6 4

SOUTH
♠K J 10 8 5
♥A
♦Q 8 7 6 2
♣A 3

To start with an opening bid of on in a suit, a hand should have not less than five tricks, of which four are high cards, among which are two sure tricks; and the suit biddable.

These requirements apply to an opening of one in a suit for any hand in bridge. Chisel them into your brain and you have it all.

The dealer in south has two biddable suits; one in spades and one in diamonds. With two biddable suits of equal length, rule is to first show the higher rank; in this case, the spades.

His two aces are two sure tricks. Two aces, a king, a queen are four high cards. He has two short cards in hearts and one short in clubs. Three shorts added to four high are seven tricks.

Thus, south has all the needs for an opening bid of one spade. In reserve are two extra tricks and another biddable suit. If it is necessary, he will tell more about his hand. He has more to tell.

The Movie Column

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Casting Director Meyer Mishkin of Twentieth Century-Fox had his hands full, particularly in Quebec, choosing and coaching inexperienced bit players for the James Cagney spy thriller, "13 Rue Madeleine".

Much of the story takes place in the title street in Paris and was shot in Quebec City's ancient Lower Town Mishkin managed to get hold of several French-Canadian farmers for some of the sequences.

None of them had ever seen a movie, but that only added to the realism of their roles. Most of them absolutely refused to play Nazis.

Aside from Cagney, Annabella, Richard Conte, Frank Latimore, Melville Cooper and Walter Abel, almost no experienced actors were used. The 100 or so minor roles were played by amateurs—often veterans reached through Veterans' Bureaux.

For one sequence in an English Service canteen, Mishkin needed seven canteen workers. He sought out a group of English wives of veterans who had just arrived from Britain and got more canteen workers than he could use.

Signs of The Times

Some sensitive souls in Hollywood are boiling about the star attraction of a leading Los Angeles burlesque house where a strip-teaser, real name Gloria Arbor, is being billed as "Ingrid Vergman, the anatomy award winner of 1947". The academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences is officially maintaining an aloof silence.

City Is Hungry

The American distributors of the praise and prize winning Italian film, "Open City" sent a bundle of the rave reviews and awards won by the picture of its Italian producers.

Several weeks later a reply came back: "Those notices were all very nice. But it would have been wonderful if you had sent a few loaves of broad instead."

Undeclared War

Apparently there is more in the contract James Mason signed with Sir Alexander Korda than meets the eye. Until the rise of J. Arthur Rank, Mason's ex-boss, Korda was tops in British films. Now there is deadly rivalry between them.

With Mason so bitter he denounces Rank at every press conference, it wasn't hard to make the new deal. Even if Mason never makes a picture for Korda the affair has been successful in annoying the opposition. Korda also has Rex Harrison and Paulette Goddard under contract.

Prepare Plans For Meeting To Choose Leader

Toronto, Jan. 15. (CP)—The recently appointed convention committee will meeting for the first time here Friday to prepare plans for the annual meeting of the Ontario Liberal Association next May at which a new provincial party leader is to be elected. In addition to the 14 committee members, Liberal members of the Ontario Legislature will also take part in Friday's discussions to prepare a platform for submission to the membership.

Among those mentioned as candidates for the leadership have been Farquhar Oliver, House Leader of the Party in the Legislature; W. A. Benedickson, Liberal M.P., for Kenora—Rainy River; A. St. Clair Gordon, former chairman of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, Walter Harris, Liberal M.P. for Grey-Bruce, Harry Hamilton of Sault Ste. Marie and Don Lewis, of Brockville.

30-Hour Blizzard Worst in Years, Ties up West

Winnipeg, Jan. 15. (CP)— A 30-hour blizzard, conceded by oldtimers to be among the worst in years, swept toward northwestern Ontario and Hudson Bay today after buffeting southern Saskatchewan and Manitoba and left harassed transportation companies struggling to restore shattered schedules.

Airlines cancelled all flights. Railway trains ran as much as nine hours late. Most bus lines awaited clearing of highways before resuming operations.

While officially the average snowfall was reported as between five and six inches, it was whipped into deep banks by a wind which at times reached a velocity of 40 miles per hour. On the heels of the blizzard came subzero temperatures.

The Winnipeg area had a fall of slightly more than seven inches and all snow-removal equipment was pressed into service. In the rural districts nearly all traffic came to a stop. Scores of automobiles and trucks were abandoned until snowplows could free them.

A radio appeal was made at Moose Jaw, Sask., for 50 men to go to the aid of three Canadian Pacific Railway snowplows deep in drifts southwest of there.

At Yorkton, Sask., milk deliveries ceased when the delivery wagons were snowed under as they stood in dairy yards. At Weyburn, a fire engine stalled in a deep snow bank and firemen went to the blaze on foot. The fire was a minor one.

Ancient Chintzes In Exotic Designs

Toronto, Jan. 13 (CP) — Indian chintzes now on display in one of the textile galleries of the Royal Ontario Museum were selected from a collection of painted and printed textiles made by the late Harry Wearne, an English textile designer.

Cotton fabrics such as these, with their exotic designs in gay colors applied by a combination of painting and resist-dyeing, were the forerunners of chintzes of today. Even the name "chintz" comes from a Hindu word meaning spotted or variegated.

Although their origin goes back to ancient times in India, it was not until the 17th. century that they were imported in large quantities to Europe. Their popularity grew to such proportions that they became an important item in the trade of the various East India Companies.

Besides those of purely Indián design, there are others designed to please the taste of the country to which they were exported. Some contain tulip and others flowers as seen in Dutch flower paintings; others have dainty floral sprays, so popular in France in the 18th. Century. The Indian tree patterns appears in many variations on large panels for draperies, while other daintier designs were intended as dress fabrics. All of them contain a wealth of detail which should be a source of inspiration to the designer.

Roslin

Roslin — The St. Andrew's Helpers met at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. White on Tuesday evening for their regular meeting. Mr. D. Foote presided for the devotional period after which progressive croquinole was enjoyed. Winners for the evening were: Ladies, Mrs. M. Fargey; Men's, Mr. D. Foote.

Mrs. Wm. Weir is a patient in Belleville General Hospital.

DON'T PEEL SPUDS

Potatoes should be cooked in their skins to prevent essential minerals and vitamins from "leaking" out into the cooking water.

CAPITOL—Leon Errol seems to enjoy the romance between Elyse Knox and Joe Kirkwood in Monogram's comedy, "Gentleman Joe Palooka", based on the famous comic strip and starting at the Capitol theatre on Monday. On the same program "Colorado Pioneers" starring Wild Bill Elliott. Both pictures are new hits.

McCARTHY—This is Larry Parks, whose sensational portrayal of Al Jolson in Columbia Pictures' Technicolor "The Jolson Story", now at the McCarthy Theatre, has made him a star overnight.

AT THE BELLE — Romantic team scores again. Lovely Dorothy McGuire, emerging from her comparatively unglamorous characterizations in "The Enchanted Cottage" and "The Spiral Staircase," portrays a highly attractive young widow in the poignant romance, "Till The End of Time," starring with her is Guy Madison, as the hero; Robert Mitchum and Bill Williams.

Plan Fair Share Of Revenue For Farmer—Gardiner

Calgary, Jan. 15 — (CP)—The government, working in co-operation with farm organizations, has made "every provision" for the farmer collecting his reasonable proportion of the national income, Agriculture Minister Gardiner told the United Farmers of Alberta annual convention last night.

"The only question remaining," he went on, "is as to whether that is what the whole farming community desires. The gross income can be increased by producing to the limit that which brings in the most cash and the net income by producing what pays best."

Mr. Gardiner stressed the importance of the Canadian Federation of Agriculture. "Never before in the history of Canadian agriculture has it been possible to have the voice of agriculture more effectively and unitedly expressed as during the past six years."

Questioning as to the government's policy regarding barley production, Mr. Gardiner said an announcement would be made after his return to Ottawa. He said the government was considering a proposal by the C. F. A. that a barley subsidy of $5 an acre be introduced, that present equalization pay come off and the price remain the same.

The government will either provide an acreage subsidy or permit a price increase, he added.

CHAPTER 6

To woo Arlen Leeds was quite the most exciting thing that had happened to him since the last time he had planned to elope. Arlen held him off with gentle hands. She laughed at his compliments. She did not take him seriously. All of which hurt Toby's pride and conceit and made him chase the faster. She was so disturbingly beautiful he liked to flaunt her before other people as if to say, "Look what I found!" There was no pose about her. Her honesty was as straight as an arrow. He liked the severity of her clothes and her lack of artificiality. In short, Toby again was living in the blissful Utopia of love, but a love different from the others in that it was hard to win and being so would be thrice as difficult to relinquish when Fanny attempted to force an abrupt and painful termination.

"Hello, Toby," Elissa and Arlen said in unison. Elissa drew away but Arlen pulled her back gently.

Toby smiled with all the courage he could muster at his disappointment when he saw Elissa with Arlen. Why Elissa was here, sad-eyed and grave, gave him no concern at all. He smiled at Arlen's tempting red mouth, her dark eyes, and her young perfect grace.

"Hop in," he said. "I know a place where they have Hungarian music. Nothing warms my soul or stimulates my appetite like Hungarian music. How are all the little typewriters today? Do they crack your fingers when you make a mistake in typing the way they do when you hit the wrong key on a piano?"

With the melody of Hungarian music ringing in their ears, Toby asked, "Why so solemn, Elissa?" and turned to Arlen. "I have the afternoon off. So," and looked at her lovingly, "where to and why not, my darling?"

"I'm sorry, Toby, but I can't. I'm going with Elissa."

Elissa watched the smoke ascending from her cigarette.

"I've left home, Toby, cleared out for good. Arlen is going with me while I try to find a job."

"No," he said. "You mean...."

"Just that," Elissa answered.

"But why," he frowned, "should any one who knows Richard look for a job?"

She smiled. "Epitaph for Richard: He who keeps parasites. Thank you—no, Toby. My friends after today won't be Louise and Fanny. They'll be clerks and stenographers and—Arlen."

"And I, too," said Toby.

"Thank you. And Renny, too. He's your friend whether you have everything or nothing."

Arlen thought, her brows drawn together, "Why can't I stop thinking about him? Why do I keep comparing him with Toby? I love him yet when he sees me again, I'll have to be cool and aloof."

The lunch hour was not particularly cheerful.

Toby said, "I guess I'll drive out and see some polo. When may I see you, Arlen?"

"Tomorrow night. I'll practice my shorthand in the afternoon."

"And we'll go out dancing."

They said good-bye to Toby and watched him drive away.

Arlen's eyes were pensive. "Is Toby rich?"

"Fanny is. When Toby is naughty, she pulls on the purse-strings." She looked up the avenue. "Where shall we go first? Department stores?"

The personel managers of various stores were "sorry, but nothing was open." They took good care to remind Elissa that they had the names of more than enough experienced workers already on file. Elissa came out of each office with hope fading from her eyes.

"This is the first time I've actually known there has been a depression," she said. "Let's try another place."

But each new place added only another disappointment. They went up elevators and steps only to be turned away with freezing courtesy. When they came to the street again, Elissa stopped still. "Wait, I know a place, a little shop where I buy all my Christmas presents. They may need a girl in the afternoon from now until after Christmas."

They were so footsore they took a cab to the shop. Arlen knew this was Elissa's last thread of hope.

"I'll wait for you outside," she said.

Elissa was gone fully half an hour. Arlen shifted from one tired foot to the other. The bright sun of the afternoon had paled, throwing dark shadows between buildings. Women hurried by on teetering little heels, wearing furs for the first time that season. With the feeling of autumn in the chilly twilight air, Arlen thought of the house in Ruxton. Soon the little cedar bushes would be edged with brown. Soon the leaves, a blend of yellow and red, would scatter over the lawn. To think of it was to experience keen nostalgia, not for the two unsuited people who lived there, but for the gray stone house itself. It would be the first winter of her life away from it.

She felt Elissa's excited breath against her face. She seemed almost to be dancing on the busy street.

"Arlen, they took me! I'm going to work from one until six for fifteen dollars a week. Oh, isn't it marvelous? And when I told them I'd finish business school in six weeks, they said I could work in the office in the morning and in the shop in the afternoon! For twenty-five dollars a week! It makes me feel rich. There is a Santa Claus!"

Riding atop a Fifth avenue bus, Elissa said, "I'm going home for the first time in my life. My home. It's only a tiny room that looks out on dingy roofs, but it's mine, every inch of it. Arlen, my dear, don't mind my raving. I've spoiled a lovely afternoon for you, when you could have been with Toby. You'll come to see me, won't you? Renny will come. Toby will come. I'm so happy I could shout!"

At Fifty-seventh street she waved good-bye to Arlen, looked up with shining eyes, and was lost in the six o'clock mob.

* * *

Though nothing was said to her, Arlen knew she bore the brunt of Elissa's leaving home. She felt entirely blameless. That night she heard Louise talking over the telephone to Fanny. "Richard and I stopped in to see Aunt Grace and Uncle Reggie and they were perfectly furious. They were sure that somebody had put the idea into Elissa's head. Arlen? Now, wait, Fanny....I'm sure Arlen had nothing to do with it. Renny? What will he say? Why should he care? He has enough on his mind with Mother half ill, and Allison, and not knowing what Christa is going to do. But I simply refuse to worry about it...." It went on indefinitely and Arlen fell asleep, dreaming a fantastic dream in which Renny and Elissa were idiotically connected with the hooks and crooks of shorthand.

The following afternoon while she was working in Richard's study, the telephone rang. At the sound of the familiar voice that seemed incredibly near, her hand tightly clutched the pen she was holding.

"Arlen?" said Renny. "I know it is. Are you working up a budget to curb Louise's extravagance? How are you?"

"I'm fine," she said, conquering pure delight in her voice. "I go to business school in the mornings and I go shopping with Louise in the afternoons and we stop in at places and have tea...."

"And in the evening you go out with Toby."

"How did you know?"

"Fanny writes to Mother. You have her worried. These women and their gossip! There was a wire from Louise this morning saying that Elissa had pulled up stakes. Nothing exciting like that happens in the family when I'm in New York."

Arlen put both hands on the telephone and asked in a steady voice, "How is your little girl, Renny?"

He hesitated. She could visualize him in a large room in a country house. Renny in tweeds, his face more tanned, his pipe between his teeth. She hated herself after the question was asked.

"Of course, you were told," he said finally. "I didn't run away to keep from telling you. I thought if Elissa told you, you would get an unbiased opinion. Allison is fine. I'm going to bring her to see you and I hope you'll be friends. Don't worry," he said, "about the family entanglements. They're frequent. Tell Elissa that I'm coming to see her. Will you keep a few evenings open for me, Arlen? I know that Toby is a persistent fellow...."

Her voice had a forced lightness. "I shall even break a date with Toby to give you one. Do you want me to tell Louise anything?"

Renny laughed. "I did not call Louise, my dear. I called you."

An evening with Renny, she thought, when he said good-bye. It was madness to think of it. It would not be gay as this evening with Toby would be. Why was it that love crowded out companionship and friendship? It should not be so.

Fanny came to dinner that evening, looking more than ever like a painted mummy. She wore a youthful gown with a deep decolletage and several strands of pearls lay against her wrinkled throat. Her mouth was cherry-red. Each wave of her white hair lay perfectly against her small white head. Several diamond bracelets caught the light of the flickering candles and glittered brilliantly.

"It looks as though our little circle is narrowing," she said, "with Elissa gone bohemian and Toby and Arlen going off to themselves. The Alberts are having people in tonight, Louise. Let's step in there. I insist that New York is positively stagnating."

Louise asked, "Where are you and Toby going, Arlen?"

Richard interrupted. "That isn't fair, Louise."

Arlen said, "I really don't know." She ignored Fanny's cold glance and said, "Renny called this afternoon."

"What for?" Louise asked quickly. "Is anything wrong with Mother or Allison?"

"Renny didn't call you," said Fanny with sweet acidity. "Poor Renny, and such a darling, too! I think that Christa will be coming back soon. Of course, they'll get together again. There's no doubt about it. Christa has been having a good time and so has Renny. She is so lovely."

"And so heartless and selfish," said Richard.

"Fanny," said Louise, "you know that Richard can't bear to have her name mentioned. He adores Renny."

"If he takes her back, he's a fool," said Richard.

"Then a fool he'll be," said Fanny. "He'd rather have her than any other woman, no matter what she's done. There's his child to consider, the image of her mother."

Arlen drank her benedictine in one burning gulp.

"Will you excuse me? I have to dress."

"Of course, darling," said Louise. She turned to Fanny. "Arlen is studying so hard."

Fanny looked up. "And make yourself beautiful for my Toby, my dear."

After she closed the door, Arlen heard Renny's name again and again. Fanny's voice was nerve-wracking in its shrillness. Arlen stood still in the middle of the room and pressed her hands to her hot cheeks. How Renny would hate having his personal affairs flung back and forth across a dinner table! Fanny relished it.

"She knows I love him," Arlen thought. "Women of her type know everything."

She put on a gown of silver that had been bought in June to dazzle the graduating class at the Naval Academy. She put her toes in high-heeled slippers of silver. She brushed her hair and pressed the waves in close and put a subtle perfume behind her ears and on her hands. On the shoulder of the dress she pinned a pale flame of an orchid that Toby had sent, picked up her evening coat, and went in the drawing-room.

No one was there except Toby, looking very handsome. When he came toward her, she had a feeling that he was going to kiss her. How long, she wondered, could she hold him off? How long would it be before he would take her in his arms and kiss her into forgetting Renny—kiss her into loving him?

Toby forgot the flippant greeting that came to his mind when he saw Arlen. His susceptible heart did a series of gymnastics at this alluring girl in silver. He got up and advanced across the quiet, faintly lighted room.

"Arlen." He put his lips in the softness of her neck, a caress so gentle, so reverent that Arlen felt like tears. Poor Toby, she thought who wants love but who has to borrow it in moments away from Fanny. Poor Toby, whose life has been so utterly without root except for the strong tie to his wealthy mother.

Gently, because she loved him, pitied him, she lifted his head and put her cool lips against his.

"I'm mad about you," said Toby. "I will say it." His eyes were a deep troubled blue." I'll have to, say it before you stop me.... I love you, Arlen. Oh, my darling, I can stand anything but this tolerant condescending attitude you take toward me! Do you think I'm a fool? I'm in love with you. Either love me or hate me but don't pity me and don't treat me as though....as though I were in prep school!"

"Toby, please, please don't."

He drew himself up. "You don't like me like this, do you? You like the Toby everybody knows." He walked to the end of the room and got his coat and hat. "Very well," he said, pulling his mouth into the familiar smile. "Let's go out and do gay giddy things, my Arlen."

Atop a roof of a Manhattan hotel they sipped cool drinks and danced. Toby knew a great many people to whom he spoke—women who looked at Arlen as if to say, "Well, who are you?" and men who looked at her as if to say, "Um, you're very nice. Where did Toby find you?"

Angus B. Duffy Installed Pres. Canadian Legion

Angus B. Duffy, newly-elected Alderman for the city was installed as president of the Canadian Legion at a well-attended meeting held in the clubrooms on Tuesday night. He and the other officers were installed by Frank Gardner, Zone commander in the absence of Chief George Gimblett, district commander of Peterborough, who was unable to be present due to the bad conditions of the roads.

In accepting the office of President Mr. Duffy stated it was an honor to be able to serve the veterans in this district in some capacity. He thought that the boys who gave their all in the two conflicts within a generation had not yet completed the job of making the world a better place to live in and he was accepting the position in order that the job might be finished. He asked for the co-operation of the members and also that more members be secured for the organization. He claimed that the spirit of the Canadians defeated the greatest army in the world when they conquered the Germans and he hoped that spirit of comradeship and discipline would be manifest in the local branch and that the soldiers of yesteryear would leave some mark when they passed on.

Leroy Madden will be 1st vice president; Ernie Dainard, 2nd vice president; E. Cliffe-Phillips, secretary and M. Matthews, assistant secretary; Gavin Scott, treasurer and Eddie Lee, sergeant-at-arms. Letters of appreciation were received from many veterans in the province for gifts received from the legion at Christmas time. Excellent reports were given by the retiring secretary, the building fund committee and the Civic Reception Committee. Comrade Becker, manager of the Bank of Montreal, was welcomed at the meeting and he pledged his support to the Legion. Mr. Becker served as president in Buckingham, Que., and also in Renfrew. Col. H. E. Smith was presented with a past president's medal in recognition of useful service.

Refreshments were served and the eight new members initiated were welcomed by the members.

Deluge of Rain Makes Walking In City Difficult

It looked like the traditional January thaw, and it came in with a vengeance early Tuesday evening.

A deluging rain suddenly swept down over the city and district shortly after seven o'clock last night, and continued until well after midnight. Officials reports from the Belleville Purification Plant stated that .83 inches of rain fell during that time.

The heavy downpour caught a number of pedestrians, "flat-footed", so to speak and many of them arrived home soaking wet.

The streets ran rivers of dirty water as the rain caught up sand and cinders and washed the debris down city gradients. It took away top snow from sidewalks leaving a treacherous slippery icy surface on which belated people slipped and slithered on their way home.

The heavy downpour reduced the towering mounds of snow dumped on the ice of the Moira River south of the lower city bridge, while snow on the surface of the ice-locked stream has almost disappeared.

Ernest Holley Presented With Handsome Bag

After working as a machinist with Canadian railroads since coming to Canada in 1913, Mr. Ernest Holley retired from the service of the Canadian National Railways at Belleville on Monday with his fellow employees of the Frog Shop presenting him with a handsome club bag. He celebrated his 65th birthday on January 13th.

Railroading had been a lifetime vocation for Mr. Holley who prior to coming to Canada in 1913 had worked as a machinist with the London and Brighton South Railroad in England. Upon coming to Canada he entered the service of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, but in 1918 transferred to C.N.R. shops at Spadina Ave., in Toronto as machinist.

He was later transferred to Leaside and in 1941 came to Belleville with the Frog Shop staff when it was moved to this city from Toronto. He owns his home at 191 Gerrard St., Toronto, and will return to that city to spend his retirement.

Just prior to quitting time on his last day of work with the company, A. H. Jones, locomotive foreman, extended to Mr. Holley the good wishes of the C.N.R. and on behalf of his fellow workers he was presented with the club bag by Gordon Power.

Safe Driving Campaign Will Be Promoted

The well-known Canadian billboard firm, E. L. Ruddy Company Ltd., through the efforts of Mayor Frank S. Follwell, will use the medium of their billboards for the promotion of a safe driving campaign in Belleville and district, it was learned here today.

This week Mayor Follwell received word from the E. L. Ruddy Company expressing the firm's willingness to co-operate with the city and on the local Chief Magistrate's suggestion soon after the middle of January will affix posters on billboards in Belleville and district which are calculated to draw to the attention of motorists the necessity for safe driving.

"I am more than a little alarmed at the steady increase of motor accidents in the Belleville district," stated Mayor Follwell. "Many of these accidents have had fatal results and I trust that through the co-operation of the E. L. Ruddy Company that a sense of responsibility to the community and its citizens will be brought home to the motorists."

The safe driving posters will remain on the billboards for a month or more, according to the communication.

Early Development of the Skyscraper

Man's desire to overcome the laws of gravitation naturally brought the skyscraper in the train of the iron bridge. Early development was rather slow, might have been faster had it occurred sooner to the engineers that a tall building could be in effect a bridge set on end, needing a few adjustments of strains and a few other adaptations, but still principally a network of iron beams designed to carry a load. When they began to develop that idea and to become proficient in using steel—changes hastened by improvements in that material—the office building became the bridge's sister under a ceramic skin, says R. T. Harding in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

America's first recorded use of iron beams in buildings was in 1854, when Peter Cooper rolled the material in his mill in Trenton, N.J., to be put into the masonry walls of the Cooper Union and Harper and Bros.' buildings in New York. It is to be borne in mind that they were reinforcing members, not supporting in the full sense. By 1862 another company was making a patented wrought iron column that was useful in construction of bridges and warehouses in this country and Europe.

Real Estate Prices and Elevators

It was not until city real estate values began to rise in keeping with the population growth that operators saw the advantage of housing a large number of workers in a small area. By 1875 buildings of five and six storeys were being put up in the larger cities. They were not as good investments as their builders and hoped because the long climb held down the rent of the upper floors. Elisha Otis had invented a safety elevator in 1852, but could stir up no general interest in it until about 1878.

In those 16 years he doubtless had improved it greatly, so that it became for a decade the strongest single influence on commercial building design. The "elevator building" of that period, immediate predecessor of the skyscroper, was nine or 10 storeys high, with cast and wrought iron sustaining its interior structure, but with the building's total weight, as through the centuries, carried by its masonry walls. One of the biggest of the class, the 17-storey Monadnock Building in Chicago, was completed in 1890, just as building interests were beginning to feel that the day of its type was done.

Doing Away With Heavy Masonry

As early as 1885 a trade report said architects were beginning to be interested in steel beams. They and the investors had found themselves handicapped by the necessity of heavy supporting walls, often as much as 15 feet thick at the street level. The enforced reduction of rental space, greatest on the ground floor, where the rent rate was highest, made it plain that there was a practical limit to height.

Since there was no escaping punishment for breaking the law of diminishing returns, those interested cast about, after the manner of mankind, for a means of evading it. They found it in the steel beam, which they worked into the skeleton, bridge-like construction, that carries all the weight, a weight so reduced that by comparison with masonry it is all but negligible, because the walls are little more than shells to keep the wind away.

As is so aften true about a notable improvement, authorities do not agree as to where to give credit for the first true skyscraper. A Minneapolis architest, L. S. Buffington, is said to have set forth the structural theory in 1880 but the first two applications of it were made in Chicago in 1888, with Maj. W. L. B. Jenney getting a majority vote for the honor of being the pioneer.

Even at that late date the builders showed their abiding faith in iron by using it where the load was heaviest and putting in no steel except above the fifth storey. But before another decade passed steel was becoming the important part of almost every big building.

Teach Sea-Cooks Culinary Secrets

London (CP)—Sea-cooks and their assistants should undergo special training before they start dishing out meals afloat, says a report issued by the Merchant Navy Training Board.

There should be a four-month course in catering ashore and for those who had not been to sea, instruction in seamanship and lifeboat work. After a year's sea service there would be further specialized training as stewards and cooks.

The board estimated 2,500 boys under 18 would be absorbed annually.

New Artificial Hand Makes Writing Easy

London (CP)—An artificial hand with which a disabled person can write easily and clearly has been developed in Britain. It has a jointed thumb worked by shoulder action which presses against the tips of the first two fingers. The ministry of pensions' limb-fitting centre in London, responsible for this new artificial hand, is not yet satisfied however. It now is trying to devise a still more serviceable mechanism which will enable all the fingers in the hand to move.

South African Letter

Capetown (CP)—Flow of new settlers to South Africa is increasing while more than 45,000 United Kingdom immigrants are awaiting available shipping early this month, Union government officials announced. Among recent arrivals were 75 British ex-servicemen due to join police forces in South Africa.

Officials further announced provisions to set up two transit accommodation centres at Capetown and Durban. Voluntary immigration and employment committees drawn from industry and commerce will be set up in areas where immigrants may find employment or where new industries may locate, they said.

Another important new immigration development is decision to appoint a number of officers who will travel back and forth in ships carrying new settlers to the Union. They will give lectures and advice and generally help newcomers to get acquainted with their new home.

A mounted police escort of 57 officers and men will head the royal procession when the King and Queen land at Capetown Feb. 12. Special precautions have been planned to ensure that royal cars will not be targets for streamers, confetti or wastepaper hurled from windows and balconies enroute.

Some South African bread conservation measures have been relaxed and a ban on toast in eating places has been lifted. A somewhat better flour wheat situation has made for gradual easing of emergency regulations.

All restrictions on the number of meat and fish courses served in hotels, restaurants and boarding houses have been removed. Meanwhile, Agriculture Minister Strauss has announced that South Africa's average meat ration per person is almost double that of Britain.

Soaking rains have fallen on all four provinces of the Union and indications are that, in many districts, downpours came just in time to save this year's summer crops.

A number of race horses will be flown from Britain to take part in Durban's Metropolitan and summer handicaps.

FORCED FROM HOME

Toronto, Jan. 15 — (CP) — Three families, including six small children ranging from 15 months to 12 years of age, were forced from their home here early Tuesday when fire threatened to destroy a two storey building on Bloor Street west.

Two commercial establishments on the ground floor of the building suffered losses estimated at $1,000. Damage to the building was estimated to be $500. No one was injured.

CLOVE OIL SALES

New Clinic Assures Seamen Health Plan

Vancouver, (CP)—From now on Vancouver mariners will go to sea in better health.

The Deep-sea Shipowners' Association has established a new seaman's clinic, providing free examination and medical advice for all deep-sea mariners signing on here.

Under present repulations seamen may obtain free medical treatment only when they are registered as crew members of a ship. Shipowners hope the present clinic can be more closely related with their new examination clinic to provide an overall health plan for mariners at sea and ashore.

Britain and France Agree to Enter Into Military Alliance

Will Open up New Era Of Economic Collaboration

London, Jan. 16 —(AP)— Great Britain and France have agreed to enter into a new military alliance against any "fresh German menace," spurring talk on both sides of the English Channel about a new era of diplomatic and economic collaboration between the two wartime Allies.

Announcement that a treaty of alliance would be concluded "at the earliest possible moment" came from the office of Prime Minister Attlee Wednesday night after two days of negotiations with French Premier Blum.

While some observers wondered whether Soviet Russia might not be cool toward such a western entente, a Foreign Office spokesman here declared the alliance completes "a magnificent triangle in post-war treaties linking eastern and western Europe."

He referred to the French-Soviet pact of 1944 and the Anglo-Soviet treaty of 1942. The new announcement came, however, only a few hours after the Moscow newspaper Pravda asserted that Foreign Secretary Bevin had repudiated the Anglo-Soviet pact by his December speech in which he said Britain was not "tieing" herself to any foreign power.

Britain Refuses Coal.

The joint Anglo-French announcement said that in addition to the treaty of alliance the two countries would "press on urgently" towards plans for mutual reconstruction aid in the economic field.

Blum failed in one of the most urgent tasks of his mission—that of getting more coal immediately from the British-occupied Ruhr—but the statement expressed hope coal shipments could be resumed in April.

"It was recognized," the statement said, "that the two countries, having been twice attacked by Germany in a period of 25 years, have equal interest in protecting themselves against a fresh German menace.

"It was therefore agreed that in these circumstances a treaty of alliance should be concluded between them at the earliest possible moment within the framework of Article 52 of the Charter of the United Nations and with the object of preventing any further aggression by Germany and of preserving peace and security."

Green Pavements Are Suggested

Kitchener, Jan. 16 —(CP)— Harvey Graber, member of Kitchener's public utilities commission, said today Kitchener would have the most unique main street on the continent — if it were repaved in green concrete or asphalt.

Engineers heard the suggestion with scant favor. They compared it to the swish, white-walled tires of some automobiles which, they said, might add to their beauty, certainly to their cost, but not to their wearing qualities.

Wood Chopping Contest Attracts Mayors, Reeves

North Bay, Jan. 16 —(CP)— Mayor John Shaw's challenge to Ontario Mayors and Reeves to meet him in competition for the Ontario Mayor's wood-chopping championship for 1947 is being taken seriously right across the north country.

The event, scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 1 at North Bay, is attracting entries from many burgomasters keen on displaying their particular ways of handling 10-inch logs with a woodsman's axe.

Mayor Ralph Bice of Kearney Champion 1946 chopper, will defend his title which Mayor Shaw anticipates capturing. Reeve Leonard Wookey of Callander said he will beat Shaw, singing an aria from Il Trovatore at some time," (probably a steal from the anvil chorus.)

Mr. Wookey will enter battle complete with retinue—councillor Ken Morrison will carry his axe, which lumberman Jerry Larochelle, technical adviser, says will be the sharpest in the north country.

Mayor Emille Brunette of Timmins says he lost last year on a foul and is howling for revenge.

Comment from Mayor Shaw? "When the chips are down that trophy will decorate my city hall desk."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Jan. 16 (CP).—A weak disturbance over Ohio is moving quickly northeastward, giving overcast skies and light snow over southern and central Ontario. Clearing conditions and slightly colder weather follow in the wake of this disturbance. Variable cloudiness is general over Northwestern Ontario and scattered snowflurries are occurring in that section of the province.

FIFTEEN MINERS KILLED BY BLAST IN U.S. MINE

22 Workers Trapped 850 ft. Below Surface But Rescuers Able To Bring 7 to Surface

Plymouth, Pa., Jan. 16—(AP)— Fifteen miners were killed and three others injured in an explosion last night that wrecked the anthracite colliery operated by the Glen Alden Coal Co. here, trapping some 22 workers 850 feet below the surface.

Rescue crews, in constant danger of cave-ins because of weakened shorings, rescued seven men after more than three hours of frantic digging. A short time later the bodies of the 15 dead men —found grouped in a gangway leading from the shaft — were brought to the surface.

Officials said the company was unable to ascertain the exact number of night shift men working in the blasted section — located under the Susquehanna River — but reports from the scene said only 22 were in the shaft.

Thomas Miles of Plymouth, who was unhurt, recalled he had been at work for about two hours when he asked his helper, Charles Krawiec, of Plymouth (also uninjured) for the time.

"It's 5:45," Miles quoted Krawiec. "He shoved his watch back into his pocket and then it came.

"There was a terrific explosion. Everything seemed to go topsy-turvy. My place is the second one in from the foot of the shaft. The others who really were caught in the blast were a lot farther in than I was.

"My laborer and I went into the gangway where we saw a couple of men sprawled around. They didn't appear to be injured too badly, so we assisted them to the foot of the shaft."

It was there that the rescue workers found them.

Mother and Four Children Burned In Quebec Home

Quebec, Jan. 16 —(CP)— A mother and four of her children were burned to death yesterday when fire destroyed their home at Havre Aubert, Magdalen Isles, it was learned here today.

The victims were Mrs. Lucien Cormier, her son, 19-year-old Henri Paul, and three daughters, Denyse, 16, Marie Berthe, eight, and Marie Paul, six.

Mr. Cormier, his mother, Mrs. Joseph Cormier, and another son, Leonce, were able to escape from the flaming home but suffered burns of varying degree.

The fire was believed to have started when Mr. Cormier used gasoline instead of kerosene to light a fire in a stove.

No further details were available immediately.

Injuries of Slain Student Not Caused By Falling in Car Says Pathologist

London, Ont., Jan. 16 —(CP)— Marks of external violence found on the body of Eldon Meredith were not likely caused by Meredith "falling" against protruding objects inside his auto, Dr. John Fisher, Ontario government pathologist, testified at the early hearing today of the supreme court murder trial of Lloyd Nicholas and Joseph French, Muncey Reserve Indians.

The pair is charged with killing the University of Western Ontario student from Wallaceburg, Aug. 24, last year. They were arrested a day later in Meredith's car.

Dr. Fisher, who performed the post mortem, testified for the Crown that besides two bullet wounds in his right chest Meredith had several external bruises and abrasions. He thought most of them were caused before death.

He described the injuries as swelling and bruising above the right eye, abrasions beneath the left eye, bruises over the right cheekbone, bruises on the back of the head, and bruises and abrasions back of the right shoulder and on both elbows.

Dr. Fisher said he had examined Meredith's car thoroughly and was convinced that the injuries were not caused by a "fall" inside the vehicle.

At a sitting of the court last night, Allen Meredith, Wallaceburg farmer, said he had no reason to believe his son Eldon had any acquaintance with Nicholas, 25-year-old Indian of the Muncey Reserve, charged jointly with French.

Mr. Meredith denied a suggestion by French's counsel that his son had known Nicholas before the day of his death by shooting, and described the student as an athlete who was not interested in smoking or drinking.

Eldon Meredith's body was found in the underbrush near a road in the Muncey Indian Reserve Aug. 26. The previous night French and Nicholas were arrested in nearby Delhi on a traffic charge while driving Meredith's car.

Previous witnesses testified to seeing Nicholas with the car two hours after police said Meredith was killed.

Constable Fred Higgins of Delhi said Nicholas admitted owning a pistol taken from the car at the time of the arrest. Police said a live cartridge was found in the magazine and another in the breech. Constable said from the inside pocket of a coat French was wearing he took a pocket-book containing papers with Meredith's name, and from another pocket a fountain pen engraved "Eldon Meredith."

Canada's Three Permanent Defence Forces Total 42,905

Ottawa, Jan. 16 (CP).—Defence Minister Claxton told a press conference today that Canada's three permanent defence forces were 42,905 strong at the end of 1946 and announced that "it is not intended to recruit personnel to an extent greater than 75 per cent of the numbers set for planning purposes a year ago." This, he said, mains that the Navy and Air Force have finished recruiting except for men with special qualifications.

He gave Navy strength as 8,481 as compared with an objective of 10,000; Army strength as 21,475 compared with 25,000 and R.C.A.F. strength as 12,949 compared with 16,100.

In his first meeting with the press since he left the Health Ministry a month ago, Mr. Claxton said the reduction in manpower targets could be attributed to a variety of causes.

"The year 1947 should be regarded as a period during which we will establish the defence forces of Canada on a sound administrative basis, capable of being adapted or developed to meet all possible changing circumstances.

"For these reasons it is not intended to recruit personnel to an extent greater than 75 per cent of the numbers set for planning purposes a year ago. The Navy and the Air Force have approximately reached 75 per cent of these figures and consequently they are not taking on additional personnel except those with special qualifications. The Army not having reached its figure, is accepting recruits for the time being."

Mr. Claxton also said:

1. Repatriation and demobilization "were completed much more rapidly than had been anticipated."
2. There will be a "substantial reduction" in defence estimates this year.
3. There are less than 9,000 veterans yet to be released from the forces.
4. It is intended to amalgamate civil service personnel for the three services into one staff at defence headquarters.
5. Consolidation of several directorates of the three services is under consideration.
6. There is practically no Canadian war material left in Europe.
7. The forces are postponing all new construction "not absolutely essential".

He disclosed that the Navy's peak strength of 92,880 had been slimmed by 84,399; the Army's peak of 481,500 by 460,027; and the R.C.A.F.'s top of 206,350 by 193,401. Similarly, expenditures had declined.

The Navy had spent $241,000,000 in the fiscal year 1945-46, $67,000,000 for 1946-47, an approximate reduction of $174,000,000. The Army had dropped from $848,000,000 to $283,000,000, a cut of $565,000,000. The R.C.A.F. had gone down from $524,000,000 to $90,000,000, a drop of $434,000,000. The grand totals were $1,613,000,000 for 1945-46 and $440,000,000 for the current fiscal year, a cut of $1,173,000,000.

COURT READY TO DELIVER VERDICT ON DICK APPEAL

Decision Vital Not Only to Mrs. Dick but to MacLean and Bohozuk

Toronto, Jan. 16. (CP)—From the five Justices of the Ontario Court of Appeal a decision was expected some time today on the appeal of Mrs. Evelyn Dick against her conviction of murder in the torso-slaying of her husband, John Dick, 40-year-old Hamilton Street Railways driver.

The decision was vital not only to Mrs. Dick, 26-year-old dark-haired widow of the man whose torso was found on Hamilton Mountain last March. It was vital also to the pending trial on the same charge of her father, Donald MacLean and William Bohozuk, one-time friend of Mrs. Dick.

All three were originally charged with the murder, and so was Mrs. Dick's mother, but the latter charge was withdrawn.

At the trial in Hamilton before Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow it was decided to try Mrs. Dick first, MacLean and Bohozuk later. Mrs. Dick was convicted and sentenced to be hanged Jan. 7. When she entered appeal, her execution was postponed to Feb. 7. The MacLean and Bohozuk trials, first adjourned to Jan. 20, later were postponed to Jan. 27.

In appeal, Mrs. Dick's counsel—John J. Robinette, K.C.—argued before their Lordships of the Appellate Court that statements given by Mrs. Dick to police should not have been admitted in evidence at the Hamilton trial, thatMr. Justice Barlow's charge to the jury there at no time pointed out the possibility of the evidence could point to Donald MacLean as the murdered and to Mrs. Dick as merely an accessory after the fact.

Canada's Action Stimulates Trade

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 16 — (CP)—Two-way trade between Canada and France appeared due for a boost today in the wake of a joint move to stimulate transactions between the two countries.

Canada's action was to lift the lid partially on credits for private purchases from France.

At the same time, French representatives here announced France hoped to be able to sell between $15,000,000 and $30,000,000 worth of goods to the country annually, compared with thepre-war $6,000,000.

The easing of the Canadian credits, under a new Canadian-French agreement, will permit France to use part of the unexpended balance of her $242,500,000 loan from Canada in private purchases. Previously, only the French government or its agencies could buy under the credit.

SEES POPULATION TWICE OR THRICE PRESENT SIZE

Hon. J. G. Gardiner Pictures Small Industries Scattered Over West

Lethbridge, Alta., Jan. 16 (CP). —A population two or three times its present size, producing food and other products to meet its own needs was envisaged by Agriculture Minister Gardiner last night in an address to the Lethbridge Board of Trade.

Small industries scattered all over the west were a part of the picture—industries based not only on the products of the farm but providing the necessities for an augmented population.

"We want mouths to feed," said Mr. Gardiner. "We want men employed making farm implements, parts of implements and cars, making boots and shoes, making building materials — anything needed by the nearly 4,000,000 people already west of the lakes."

He urged the extension of irrigation projects for increased production of farm products to be sold not in Europe or even in Eastern Canada but close enough to home to guarantee a fair return to the producer.

Discussing questions related to the marketing of cattle, hogs and butter, Mr. Gardiner said: "I am not going to urge that more cattle be produced. The producers, the trade and the department note that there should be a light reduction in 1946. There was, however, a gradual increase in the years up to 1945 which brought our production to the highest level ever attained."

Sixteen Smiths Seek Fortune In Fish and Chips

Southampton, Jan. 16 (Reuters).—Sixteen Smiths are off to Canada — seeking a fried fortune.

Eight of them, led by the matriarch of the clan, Mrs. William Smith, of Morecambe, Lancashire, sailed today in the Acquitania.

Besides Mrs. Smith and her husband, there were three sons, aged 26, 24 and 10, and three daughters, aged 22, 18 and 16.

They will be followed in a few weeks by two other sons, each with a wife and two children.

Mrs. Smith opened a fish and chip business in Widnes six years ago. The business prospered but Mrs. Smith's ambition reached out across the Atlantic.

She means to start a restaurant in Toronto and build up a chain of restaurants with a Smith in charge of each.

"I could make money in any country in the world," says Mrs. Smith.

R.C.A.F. SQUADRON LEADER ACQUITTED OF SPY CHARGE

Poland 15th to Stand Trial 2nd Charge Is Adjourned Until March 16th

Ottawa, Jan. 16 —(CP)—Frederick William Poland, 37-year-old R.C.A.F. squadron leader, today was acquitted of a charge of communicating confidential information to Russia in a judgment handed down by County Court Judge A. G. McDougall in Canada's 15th spy trial.

In handing down the judgment, Judge McDougall said he found that Poland, Illinois-born son of an Anglican clergyman and a newspaperman by profession, had satisfactorily discharged the onus placed on him by the charge.

A second charge against Poland under the Official Secrets Act, was adjourned until March 16.

Almost immediately the court began hearing the case of the 16th Canadian to face the courts as a result of the Dominion's espionage probe first announced 11 months ago, that of Dr. Henry Harris, Toronto optometrist on conspiracy counts laid under the Official Secrets Act.

Of the 14 persons who preceded Poland, eight were sentenced to prison, one was fined and five were acquitted.

Poland, wearing his R.C.A.F. uniform, stood stiffly at attention behind the prisoner's bar while the judge read his judgment. He said "Thank you, Your Honor," when told he was acquitted of the charge and could leave.

The Crown Counsel Lee Kelley mentioned there was a second charge against Poland and he asked that it be put off to March 16. This was agreed to and Poland was allowed to go.

He turned from the bar and kissed his wife and shook hands with relatives and friends.

NO IMMEDIATE CHANGE

Windsor, Jan. 16 — (CP)—No immediate reduction in the price of Canadian-built Ford cars is contemplated by the Ford Motor Company of Canada, Ltd., vice-president Rhys M. Sale said today. He added that the "economic circumstances" which led to price decreases in the United States were not duplicated in Canada.

ARMS STANDARDIZATION

Ottawa, Jan. 16 — (CP) — Defence Minister Claxton said today Canada and the United States were working for standardization of military equipment.

Canada, he said, has "very close working relationships" with both Britain and the United States.

QUALITY STRESSED

Chatham, Ont., Jan. 16—(CP)— Speakers at the third annual canning crop convention here yesterday emphasized that Canadian farmers will have to stress quality rather than quantity during the coming years if they wished to maintain the favorable position they have held with canners in the past six years.

Talmadge Takes Governor's Offices, Arnall Opens up in Rotunda

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 16 (AP). — Ellis Arnall attempted to enter the governor's executive offices today but was stopped by the secretary of Herman Talmadge who has claimed the officee.

Young Talmadge, elected by the legislature, took physical possession of the capitol suite earlier with a statement: "As governor of Georgia I have taken complete charge of the executive offices at the state capitol."

Arnall' sentry to the office was blocked by Benton Odum, secretary to Talmadge.

Arnall set up temporary offices in the rotunda of the state capitol building and at 1400 in the downtown Candler building.

As Arnall arrived in the anteroom which opens into his executive offices at the capitol, he was met by Odum and during a brief exchange of words at the door Arnall continued to pound upon it demanding admittance.

From within the room guards stationed at the door refused to open and called repeatedly for "colonel". Finally the door was opened and Arnall forced his way in.

Arnall strode across the floor to a door leading into the executive's private office where he was met by an aide of Talmadge who told him to have a seat when he said he desired to see Talmadge.

In a blunt question directed at Odum, Arnall said dramatically:

"Are you denying me the right to enter my offices?"

Odum insisted each time that he was not denying Arnall entrance to "your office" but that he would not permit him "to enter the office of Mr. Talmadge who is now the legal governor of the State of Georgia."

After continued futile demands to gain entrance, Arnall turned to the room which was crowded with photographers, newspapermen and Talmadge supporters and said:

"Gentlemen of the press. It is quite obvious that I am denied access to my office. It is quite obvious that Mr. Talmadge is afraid to see me face to face.

"I hereby place on order all department heads . . . and notify them that henceforth they act at their peril unless expressly under direction from Ellis Arnall."

Arnall said the Attorney General had ruled that he should remain in office until his successor is duly qualified and ready to assume the office. Arnall repeatedly referred to Talmadge as "that pretender", and added that "I propose to continue to act as Governor of Georgia until Lieutenant Governor M. E. Thompson is sworn in and can take over."

During the statement by Arnall, Odum made no effort to interrupt him, but as Arnall pushed his way through the newspapermen to leave the room Odum plucked at his sleeve and said "Mr. Arnall".

Arnall paid him no attention and strode from the room directly to an information booth enclosure in the rotunda where he seated himself at a desk.

Earlier, a spokesman had told reporters that Arnall would not be permitted "to enter".

Transport Strike At London Docks Ends Saturday

Reported Many Demands Of Drivers Have Been Met

London, Jan. 16 (CP)—Heads of the transport and general workers union announced today that the 11-day-old London truck strike involving at least 50,000 men in work stoppages which immobilized the port of London, had ended and the strikers would return to work Saturday.

Unofficially, it was understood that the striker's demands for a 44-hour week, eight-hour day and payment of overtime for shift exceeding eight hours had been granted by the road haulage association, representing the employers.

The vote to return to work was almost unanimous, informed sources reported. The decision was announced after a closed meeting of delegates of the strikers and union officials.

From time to time during the closed meeting, burst of applause could be heard.

Some delegates ran down the stairs shouting "it's back to work" to strikers assembled in the street.

More than 100 ships were tied up in the port of London by the strike of 20,000 dockers and stevedores walked out in protest against use of troops to move food supplies from markets.

The troops were called in Monday in an effort to relieve the situation caused by the strike of London truckers, whose 11-day old work stoppage now involves at least 50,000 men.

All along the Thames ships lay at anchor with their cargoes half unloaded.

Leaders Summoned

In an attempt to settle the truck strike and halt the rapidly-spreading wave of sympathy walkouts—only 15,000 truck drivers were involved in the original dispute—government negotiators and union heads summoned strike leaders to two meetings today.

Because the strike is "unofficial," the labor ministry has specified that settlement of the wages and hours dispute cannot be undertaken until the drivers return to work.

The truckers demand a 44-hour week instead of 48, and eight-hour day, 14 days annual vacation with pay, half pay during illness and abolition of the cumulative week for overtime purposes.

Troops Employed

Troops, first employed last Monday to move food to shops drained during the then eight-day old strike, delivered about 700 tons of meat from Smithfield market yesterday.

"By Saturday," a spokesman for the meat transport organiza-

R.C.M.P. Summons Two More Persons To Answer Charges

Ottawa, Jan. 16. (CP)—Royal Canadian Mounted Police today announced the summoning to court of two more persons to answer charges in connection with a ration coupon ring alleged to have trafficked in ration coupons lifted from the destroying vats of a paper plant at nearby Hull, Quebec.

Police said summonses were issued for the appearance in Carleton County Court here Jan. 23 of Clifford Howard, Labor foreman at the E. B. Eddy Company plant at Hull and Fernand Cote, an Ottawa retail grocer.

The summonses charge Howard with unlawfully obtaining ration documents and retaining and transferring them and Cote with unlawfully obtaining ration documnets and unlawfully acquiring rationed foods.

The latest summonses bring to 18 the number of persons accused in the months-long investigation by the ..M.P. at the Eddy plant where ring members were alleged to have salvaged thousands of used meat, butter and sugar coupons from chemical vats where they were being assimilated for re-processing into other paper products.

Last Monday summonses were issued for 14 persons to appear in court with H. Howard Lamb, 38-year-old supervisor at the Eddy plant, who was arrested previously on four charges. All counts were laid under Prices Board Regulations.

Police charge that the coupons retrieved from the paper plant vat were spread through the black market in Ottawa and several of the accused are charged with having used them to obtain rationed foods.

Most of those charged are either store managers or store employees, three are employees of the Eddy firm and two are dairy drivers. One woman is among those charged, Mrs. Gertrude Burton, wife of an Ottawa grocer. Police said her husband was not implicated.

POLICE RECOVER CAR

Whether or not it was the work of "joy riders" or merely a case of the driver forgetting exactly where he had left his auto, Robert V. Stevenson, Wellington, had a few anxious moments late Wednesday afternoon when he found his car had been stolen. Mr. Stevenson reported he had left his car parked on Pinnacle Street near the post office and when he returned at five o'clock the car was missing.

District police officers were notified but an hour or so later the missing vehicle was recovered on Bridge Street.

TWO YOUTHS CHARGED WITH MOTOR THEFT

Two local 'teen-aged youths, William Graham and James Kennedy, have been taken into custody by local police on charges of breaking and entry with theft. The youths are charged with breaking into the privately-owned garage of Ernest Ferguson, Hillcrest Ave., on Monday night and stealing an outboard motor.

SOLDIER CAN BUY WAY OUT OF ARMY

A member of the Canadian Army active force, who, for some reason or another, no longer wishes to fulfill the terms of his engagement, can buy his way out —but it will cost him a little more than members of the prewar forces.

Under a new ruling a soldier can be discharged at his own request if he: (a) pays $100 within three months of attestation or subsequent engagement or (b) for service exceeding that period he pays $4 a month for each month of unexpired time.

The old ruling required payment of $80, and $3 on the monthly basis. The Army does not pay free transportation home for soldiers why buy their way out of the service.

KIWANIANS VISIT COBOURG CLUB

Approximately thirty members of the Kiwanis Club and their wives journeyed to Cobourg the other night where they were guests of the Kiwanis Club of that town on the occasion of its fourth anniversary. Kiwanians and their wives from the Kingston, Peterborough and Oshawa clubs were also present at the function.

Local Kiwanians report a splendid time and expressed their appreciation of the delightful hospitality of their brother clubmen in Cobourg.

"SID" FITZGERALD RE-ELECTED PRESIDENT SHANNONVILLE FAIR

The annual meeting of the Shannonville Agriculture Society was held at the home of the secretary, Ken Vivian. The president was pleased to report that the 1946 Fair was a huge success. The balance on hand showed the Society to be in good financial standing.

Plans were laid for a bigger and better fair in 1947. All officers were re-instated. After the meeting progressive euchre was played and enjoyed by all present, followed by delightful refreshments being served.

The Board wish to thank all those who helped to make the '46' Fair a success.

Fathers' Night Enjoyed At King George School

Many members and friends of the King George Home and School Association were on hand for the "Fathers' Night" program. The regular business was transacted and many important items discussed with, President Mrs. J. R. McCullough, chairman. Miss Allan's room won the attendance award. The officers retired to the audience and the fathers were called upon to take charge.

Mr. R. A. Wyatt, chairman for the evening, started the program with a sing-song on lantern slides which was thoroughly enjoyed by all. The chairman then called on Mr. Fairman to introduce the guest artist, Mr. L. G. Fozard. Mr. Fozard entertained with his magic, which he so generously displayed. This magic or confusion as Mr. Fozard calls it, is his hobby.

A vote of thanks for his enjoyable act was extended to Mr. Fozard by Mrs. R. A. Wyatt.

A motion picture was next, the "Life of John Thomson". Mr. Thomson was a Canadian artist who spent his life in the woods and northern section of Canada painting their beauties.

The film brought the evening's entertainment to a close and the ladies and friends were invited to a fine lunch prepared and served by the fathers.

Family Startled When Bullet Pierces Wall

To have a .22 bullet rip through the outside wall of the living room and ricochet about the inside walls before falling to the floor was the experience Wednesday evening of family members at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rogers, 74 Cedar Street.

The bullet, fired from a rifle in the hands of some unknown person, passed through the wall at a height half way up the window and about one foot from the window frame. The bullet came from the direction of Murney Street, but police officers were unable to ascertain who was responsible for firing the rifle.

No one was in the living room at the time of the incident, according to Mrs. Rogers who stated that at first they were at a loss to know what had caused the racket.

"Had I been alone very likely I would have been scared, but fortunately other members of the family had just come home from a show," stated Mrs. Rodgers.

Poses as Repairman, Flees When Disturbed

Oshawa, Jan. 16. (CP)—A would-be thief fled from an office in the downtown Alger Building late yesterday after posing as a typewriter repairman when an accountant, S. T. Hopkins, entered. Hopkins told police he found that an office door had been forced open with a screwdriver and that several desks had been opened.

The staff of the brokerage firm of Biggar and Crawford, in the same building, today found that the door of their officers had been tampered with overnight.

Police said it was possible that the man may have been responsible for the recent sledgehammer burglaries by someone who apparently hid in public buildings at closing time and tried to open vaults during the night.

City Meat Dealers Puzzled by Recent Marked Decline in Retail Sales

Housewives and others who daily purchase the family meat requirements are apparently taking the new increase in prices in their stride.

A survey of city butchers today revealed that there have been scarcely no complaints or comments from customers on the new price scale, but, one butcher stated, there has been a noticeable dropping off in sales since the new pork prices came into effect.

There is no shortage of meat in the city and packers are sending out sufficient stocks to butchers who rely on them for supplies. Butchers who slaughter their own cattle have lots of meat.

Just what is behind the curtain' of silence that is apparent here in meat-shopping circles is puzzling butchers to some extent, as there is usually a large number of patrons who register at least mild complaints at any increase in prices.

However, the customer is paying more for his meat, but he doesn't smile when he digs out the extra change.

Friends and Relatives Honor Tweed Couple on 45th Wedding Anniversary

Well-known and highly esteemed residents of Hastings County, Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sayers, Tweed, were the guests of honor at an informal reception at their home, Wednesday night, on the occasion of the 45th anniversary of their wedding.

Upwards of forty relatives and intimate friends of Mr. and Mrs. Sayers were present at the function, including six guests at the wedding held in the home of the bride at Moira, nearly a half century ago.

The function came as a distinct surprise to Mr. and Mrs. Sayers, but once that element was adjusted, they entered into the spirit of the occasion with as much enthusiasm as they did at the wedding party long ago.

The Rev. A. L. Sisco, of the Tweed United Church, who was present with Mrs. Sisco, proposed the toast to the guests of honor, both of whom responded with brief but appropriate addresses. Short addresses of felicitation were also given by Mr. George H. Stokes, M.P., T. C. Graham, Tweed and F. E. Brown.

Married at Moira

Mr. and Mrs. Sayers, the latter being the former Mary Beckett Morton, daughter of the late Henry Morton and Anne Henry, were married in the Morton home in Moira forty-five years ago, Thursday. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Nathaniel Harris, Methodist minister then in charge of the West Huntingdon circuit.

Following their marriage, Mr. and Mrs. Sayers lived on the farm for a number of years then moved to Tweed, where Mr. Sayers became associated with the insurance business. Later he became interested in a small chain of stores which at present he operates with his three sons, Morton, who manages the store in Campbellford; Robert in Havelock and Ronald in Wellington.

For the past few years, Mr. and Mrs. Sayers resided in Wellington, but last June came back to reside in their native Tweed. He was reeve of Tweed village for a number of years, coincidental with which, he was a member of Hastings County Council.

Farmed In Early Life

The early farming days were spent on the property of Mr. Sayers' parents, the late Robert Sayers and Elizabeth Brown at Farnsworth Corners, west of Tweed in Hungerford township. Four children were born to the union, the three sons already mentioned and one daughter, Mrs. Joseph Angus, of Toronto, who was present at the function on Thursday.

Also present were Miss Martha Hamilton, of Belleville, Mrs. Sayers' bridesmaid at her wedding, and Mrs. Bertha Emerson, Toronto, a cousin of the bride. Guests at the wedding forty-five years ago and who were present on Thursday included Mrs. Pearl Clare, now postmistress at Roslin; Arthur H. Jones, Tweed; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ketcheson now of Tweed, but formerly of Moira, and Mr. George H. Stokes.

Belleville guests included, Mrs. George H. Stokes, Mr. and Mrs. J. Ross Bateman, Mrs. Mary Morton and Mrs. Stella Waterhouse.

The evening was spent in social amenities and reunions of old friends who had not seen each other in years. Mr. and Mrs. Sayers were the recipients of many messages of congratulation on the occasion of their anniversary.

Prairie Farmers Move to Cities But Grow Grain

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Regina, Jan. 16—(CP) — Wheat farmers may be moving to cities and towns by the thousands but they are still growing the grain.

While statistics are not available, authorities say that during the last six years there has been an increasing mass movement of Saskatchewan farmers from the wheat plains to urban centres. Many have left farming altogether but the majority use the town or city as a base of operations.

The trend is indicated by comparing 1931 population statistics with 1941. In that decade the province lost approximately 30,000 of its rural population, although the urban figures increased only about 6,000.

Since the 1941 census, when a population of 896,000 was reported, it is estimated that Saskatchewan has lost approximately 50,000 citizens. But many are returning.

Dr. F. H. Auld, retired Deputy Minister of Agriculture, says more farmers are living in urban centres today than in any period in Saskatchewan's history. In some Regina plains districts, almost every fourth farm house is boarded up. Some were abandoned when farms were amalgamated, but many of the former occupants have rented new homes in nearby towns. And it hasn't helped the housing situation.

Cannot Do on Mixed Farming

It's the wheat farmer who is turning the trick of living in town and doing a good farming job at the same time. Those on mixed farms just can't do it with livestock demanding attention.

The grain grower can drive out to his land in his automobile or rubber-tired tractor — Municipal Affairs Minister J. H. Brocklebank says it is the latter that has spurred the movement as much as any single factor — do his plowing or harvesting and return to the city at night. Others make temporary quarters on their land during the working seasons while maintaining their permanent homes in town.

E. L. Gray, director of water conservation for the prairie farm rehabilitation administration, says that in the last 18 months, 2,258 more families have left Saskatchewan than have entered the province. He ascribes the move largely to lack of irrigation facilities.

L. B. Thompson, superintendent of the Swift Current experimental farm in the southwest corner of the province has another angle on the problem. He says mixed farming is a way of life and wheat farming a business.

But there are others, like George Bickerton, a director of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, who said of most farming — "It may be a way of life but it is a hell of a way of life."

tion said, "the whole week's ration should be with the retailers."

The first large supplies to reach Convent Gardens, the Citys big vegetable market, arrived today and troops were on hand to deliver them.

The situation was critical at Liverpool where more than 1,000,000 persons were expected to get less than half their meat ration because of a sympathy strike at the Liverpool cattle market.

Meanwhile, members of parliament felt the pinch of the strike as hash and cottage cheese replaced the customary roast beef or lamb in the house of commons restaurant.

MOTORISTS RUSH TO BUY PERMITS

Toronto, Jan. 16—(CP)—City motorists, in an effort to beat the Jan. 31 deadline for the issuance of 1947 motor vehicle licences and permits, are crowding the issuing office in unusually large numbers, vehicle branch officials said yesterday.

Sailor Sentenced On Two Counts

Hamilton, Jan. 16 — (CP)—Appearing for sentence before Mr. Justice J. K. MacKay in Ontario Supreme Court sessions today, 21-year-old Harold James Harris, St. Thomas sailor stationed at H. M. C. S. Star, was sentenced to four months on a charge of dangerous driving and two months consecutive on a count of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Harris had pleaded guilty on Tuesday to this latter charge and had been convicted by jury on the first. He was acquitted on a manslaughter charge.

The charges were laid as a result of an accident on Burlington Street on Nov. 20, last, in which Antonio Rosso lost his life: Accused was driving a naval staff car which he was using without permission.

TALMADGE

The spokesman who declined to permit use of his name, indicated Arnall would be carried out bodily if he appeared at the executive offices where the two claimants shared facilities yesterday.

Young Talmadge, elected by the legislature after his father, Eugene Talmadge, died 23 days before inauguration, said "as governor of Georgia I have taken complete charge of the executive offices at the state capitol."

The youthful claimant to the executive chair said it would be "ridiculous to have two governors sitting in the capitol" and said flatly there "would be but one."

Takes Over Office

Talmadge took over Arnall's inner office promptly at 9 a.m. E.S.T. after aides had ordered the locks changed during the night. Uniformed state police stood at the entrance of the private office and only news photographers and close political friends were allowed to enter.

Gladys Creel, private secretary to the late Eugene Talmadge and now private secretary to his son, said Talmadge forces had moved into the executive offices "unopposed" around 7:30 or 8 o'clock this morning and found all desks cleared and empty.

She said Governor Arnall had not made an appearance "and we do not know where he is."

Statement Issued

In a formal statement, Talmadge said:

"As Governor of Georgia, I have taken complete charge of the executive offices at the state capitol. The functions of the governor's office are proceeding in a firm and peaceable manner. No force or violence has been necessary to assume control of my office.

"Former governor Arnall and Attorney General, Mr. Eugene Cook, have instituted, according to the press, a suit against me seeking a declatory judgment.

"The canvass of the votes and the election of a governor is a prerogative vested exclusively under the constitution of the State of Georgia in the general assembly of the state. Their action in this matter is not subject to review by the courts since it would be an encroachment by the judicial branch of the government upon the legislative branch of the government.

Follow Instructions

"I am following the instructions of the legislature. It would be ridiculous to have two governors sitting in the capitol. There will be but one."

Attorney General Eugene Cook yesterday filed a petition with Fulton Superior Court Judge Walter C. Hendrix asking for a declatory judgment to settle the governorship.

The petition seeks to have the court determine whether the title of governor rightfully belongs to Talmadge, elected by the Georgia General Assembly to replace his father, the late governor-elect Eugene Talmadge or to Ellis Arnall, who has occupied the post for the last four years.

Cook also sought to have the court issue a permanent injunction against Talmadge restraining him from assuming any of the powers of a chief executive.

Argument Leaves Cadi Cold

Regina, Jan. 16 — (CP)—Ralph Stetalnick of Regina, charged under a city by-law with jay-walking, sought refuge in the British North America Act yesterday and said it gave Canadians unalienable rights to cross a street anywhere they wished. An unimpressed magistrate fined him $1 and costs.

Quadruplets Born, Two Are Dead

Paris, Jan. 16 — (Reuters) — Two of the quadruplets born last night to a Mme. Jeannenot of Rantèchaux, France, died today. Both were girls. The others — a boy and a girl — were reported doing well.

Rantechaux is a village near Besancon, a large town near the Swiss border in eastern France.

The quadruplets were Mme. Jeannenot's first children after 11 years of marriage. Following the multiple birth in Rentechaux, the three girls were taken to hospital while the boy, said to be "flourishing," remained with his mother.

Marketings of Cattle

He explained that marketings of cattle averaged 1,000,000 head a year from 1935 to 1939, 1,400,000 from 1940 to 1945, in 1945 totalled 1,785,000 head and last year 1,720,000.

On the 1945 marketings 573,000 head went to Britain and the other 1,212,000 were consumed in Canada.

He said that Canada's average yearly hog marketings from 1935 to 1939 were 3,500,000 and then increased to an average of 7,290,000 from 1943 to 1945.

"We dropped back to 5,800,000 in 1945 and to 4,350,000 in 1946," he continued. "We would like you to return to a delivery of 5,800,000 in 1948 and remain at that or a higher level of production."

Best Money in Hogs and Eggs

"There is nothing on the farms of Western Canada which will make farmers more money over the next three or four years than hogs and eggs. Their production is necessary to assure us the British market over a much longer period. I would appeal to farmers to get in to the market fast and stay long if you desire to match the income of the farm with that of any other industry in Canada."

Canada, he said, is not an exporter of butter and does not desire to become one because "we would be in competition with the chief suppliers of the British market from New Zealand and Australia. They are supplying butter to Britain at less than 32 cents a pound now and can lay it down in Canada at 39 cents a pound.

"Our producers are asking Canadians to pay 62 cents a pound for their butter. There is a possibility that Canadian consumers will be prepared to pay 62 cents, basis wholesale Montreal, a poung either in the form of a price or sibsidy if Canadian producers provide the 340,000,000 pounds of butter which can be consumed on our market.

"In my opinion there is very little possibility of their being prepared to do so if on the shelf alongside of it there is butter which can be purchased for 40 cents."

Mrs. Roosevelt's Driver's Licence Has Been Cancelled

New York, Jan. 16 (AP).—Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt received notice yesterday from the State Bureau of Motor Vehicles that her driver's licence had been cancelled, her secretary, Miss Malvina Thompson, said last night.

The action was taken as a result of a three-car collision some months ago. A car driven by the widow of President Roosevelt swerved out into the path of oncoming cars on a parkway at Yonkers, N.Y. She said at a hearing the sun blinded her for an instant, causing her to swerve.

JUMBO HAS TRUNK TROUBLE

"Kato," one of London's performing elephants at the Bertram Mills circus, Olympia, appears bewildered by the contraption that is being wrapped around its trunk. The ailing elephant, a victim of "fibrositis of the trunk," is being treated by electro-therapy. Six of the animals developed the fibrositis, which hampered them in their performances. Two were so badly affected they were unable even to flex their trunks sufficiently to feed themselves. After a second short-wave treatment the animals showed definite improvement.

Furnace Fuel Oil Shortage Critical

Toronto, Jan. 16 (CP).—Terming the present furnace-oil supply situation "critical" a spokesman here said last night that major Canadian oil companies would accept no more orders for oil-burners and no new contracts for furnace oil for the present.

Shortage of furnace fuel oil has been reported from various centres in the last few days. The demand is estimated as twice that of this time last year while oil companies were hampered by material shortages in providing for increased shipments. The oil companies furthermore have made much greater supplies available in recent months to meet demands arising from coal shortages.

Most refineries in Canada were said operating at full capacity and still unable to supply the demand aggravated by increased sales of domestic oil burners.

A factor was said to be the tremendous sale of small oil heaters for homes, particularly in Quebec province.

Kirkland Lake, Jan. 16—(CP) — Reeve Ann Shipley, who telephoned provincial fuel controller R. S. Ritchie yesterday in an attempt to ease the Tech township fuel oil shortage, said she had been promised an immediate investigation by the controller.

She said the shortage, which threatens to cut off supplies to 500 homes within a month, appears to be local and that she had been told there is no lack in southern Ontario.

PRICES WAR AMONG TORONTO BARBERS HINTED

Toronto, Jan. 16 — (CP)—The possibility of a price war among barbers appeared imminent here today with the announcement yesterday by L. H. Drane, business agent of the Toronto branch of the Ontario Barbers' Association, that the action of the executive of the Association was an "arbitrary action," in raising prices to 60 cents for an adult's haircut. Under the Ontario Barbers' Association edict new prices go into effect today. As laid down by the B. A. prices will be: adults, 60 cents, children 40 cents and shave, 35 cents.

BREEDERS ASKED TO RETAIN TOP DAIRY CATTLE

Toronto, Jan. 16—(CP) — Ontario Agriculture Minister Kennedy yesterday told provincial cattle breeders to hold back their top quality animals when selling to breeders from outside Canada. Failure to take the precaution of holding top lines of dairy cattle, he said, might lose the province her world trade. Ontario, he declared, is now producing the best cattle in the world and should continue to do so.

San Diego, Calif., Jan. 16 (CP) —The austerity of Superior laughter yesterday when attorney Ralph P. Curran of Los Angeles arose during a heated argument and said to Judge Arthur L. Mundo: "But that's not the issue, honey!" He explained with blushes, that he had just been talking with his wife by telephone.

Windsor Controller Against Dinner For County Council

Windsor, Jan. 16—(CP)—Controller W. Ernest Atkinson said last night he didn't see "why Windsor should be Santa Claus" in financing a "goodwill" dinner for city council and the Essex county council next week.

"I don't see how the city of Windsor can afford to spend any money when we've got employees working for less than $1 an hour," he told fellow controllers. He said he would not support the proposal until control board was committed to boosting wages of hourly-rated municipal employees to a $1-an-hour minimum.

The dinner was suggested recently by Controller Tom Brophy who won support from several other controllers. One, Gordon B. Ellis, said last night the affair would cost about $200. Mayor Arthur J. Reaume and Controller Brophy were directed to obtain an official estimate.

Controller Atkinson referred to the Board's approval of a move by Windsor service station operators to have a 7 p.m. closing invoked in the metropolitan area. Suburban dealers since have objected to the early closing.

"We'll have to give Sandwich East (township) more than a $1.75 dinner to restore harmonious relations," said Controller Atkinson.

Controller James S. Gow: "The cost is incidental. I think this council should meet these people and get acquainted. It's easy to pick a fight with a fellow you don't know. Let's try it for once."

Paper Says Secret A-Explosive Given To Reds by May

London, Jan. 16. (AP)—The Daily Express said today that United States scientists were producing new secret atomic explosive—uranium 233—from thorium and asserted that samples of the new substance had been turned over to Russia by Dr. Alan Nunn May.

Dr. May, a British scientist, was sentenced last May 1 to 10 years in prison for giving atom secrets to unidentified persons.

The story by Chapman Pincher, scientific writer of the Express, said uranium 233 was bringing the cost of the atomic bomb "far below" that of the bombs used on Japan and in the Bikini tests.

Pincher's story on the front page of the newspaper said:

"It can now be revealed that Dr. Alan Nunn May, the atomic scientist convicted of Official Secrets offences last year, gave a sample of this top secret material to Russian agents in Canada.

"It was probably, therefore, to uranium 233 that Sir Hartley Shawcross, the attorney general, referred at the Old Bailey when he said that Dr. May's statement contained symbols so highly secret that they could not be read in (the British) court.

Mention of uranium 233 was made in the Canadian Royal Commission's report on espionage published last June. The report quoted a statement made by Dr. Allan Nunn May in which he admitted giving samples of uranium 233 and 235 to an unidentified agent.

"At one meeting," said Dr. May in his statement, "I gave the man microscopic amounts of U. 233 and U. 235 (one of each). The U. 235 was a slightly enriched sample and was in a small glass tube and consisted of about a milligram of oxide. The U. 233 was about a tenth of a milligram and was a very thin deposit on a platinum foil and was wrapped in a piece of paper."

Vincent Auriol Premier of France

Paris, Jan. 16 — (AP)—Vincent Auriol, veteran Socialist leader, today was elected president of the Fourth French Republic at Versailles Palace.

An unofficial count gave Auriol 452 votes with 242 going to the Mouvement Republicain Populaire candidate, Augusta Champetier De Ribes, 122 to Jules Gasser of the Radical Socialists and 60 to Michel Clemenceau, son of the old Tiger of France representing the P.R.L.

WILL SELL HORSES

Windsor, Jan. 16 —(CP)— Three more horses have just about lost their battle with man's trend toward mechanization.

City Engineer R. J. Desmarais last night recommended to board of control that the city's garbage collection be strictly a wheeled proposition. The controllers said they'd pass the suggestion on to city council — if the proposal is approved there the horses will be sold.

Control board also recommended purchase of two modern "load-packer" garbage collection units.

Touring and Foreign Trade

The world which is setting about the work of reconstruction following the most devastating war in history is alert to the great possibilities in travel. Travel has intrigued men and women all through history and some of the oldest works in existence are records of travel to lands afar. One of the greatest travellers of history who might be called a tourist with a bent for historical lore was known as "the Father of History," no other than the Greek historian Herodotus. In his early day in the fifth century before Christ he travelled the known world of his time in the Hellespont and Euxine territory, Scythia, Syria, Palestine, Babylon, Egypt and North Africa, studying manners, language and customs and religions and history. These lands he visited are today still in the eyes of the world.

But though the ancient world of his time had the greatest appeal for the lover of the unusual and for the development of nations and states, the modern world in its greater extent than the whole known world of twenty-five centuries ago ever knew, has also appeal for countless writers and students of history and for tourists. Today the tourist may not be a historian but he carries back impressions which linger throughout his life and which he passes on to his friends. That is a sort of living history which helps to draw the peoples more and more closely together in friendship.

The modern world has also the advantage over the old that more people can travel abroad and afar than travelled in the days of Herodotus. The common man with today's inventions can visit countries near and far, gather inspiration and do his part in spreading the message of international goodwill and understanding among peoples. More people can travel and exert more influence for good among the visited countries than a historian could do in the long ago.

Touring or travelling in ancient days was not in such volume as touring is in the modern world nor was it so comfortable. Ancient travelling could not have affected the trade balances of nations as the tourist trade does today, though it did have its results. Modern nations are going all out for visitors, because visitors bring money, most important in a world where exchange of commodities and other products is necessary. The great Powers of today do not neglect the appeal to the visitor, nor do the smaller states. Today Britain and the United States hold out welcome signs to tourists and so do practically all lands for the world is growing more and more to know about every people. The world is becoming a unit by trading. Every land has appeal and that is something not to be disregarded for it will have a great deal to do with the coming of the time when war shall be rendered impossible because of a world federation.

This welcome to tourists will mean competition and rivalry for the tourist trade. Canada realizes this and is planning to increase further her assistance to the tourist agencies. This country, says the Minister of Trade, will be prepared to meet strong competition in the New World not only from the forty-eight American States but also from the Latin American countries.

The Minister, Mr. McKinnon, has stressed the value of tourist trade to develop and promote world peace, and he also stresses the industrial value and employment.

He sees an interesting outcome. That is that the tourist trade can bring a financial return greater than any branch of the export trade. That reveals how great an agency for development touring can become. It means by bringing the tourists here there results an expansion in exporting of goods. People come and buy what they desire and they feel the need to buy in good volume. This is one of the most intriguing suggestions because it is possible for every branch of the nation's life to help and for every citizen to develop this trade. For tourists to see what we have means that they feel the irresistible urge to buy, which reacts in creating a greater demand for Canadian products. Hence business expands.

The human contact of tourists across international boundaries means a big business, a friendly relation of two peoples, and exchange of products. At the same time it gives men and women and children the opportunity to see scenic attractions, to visit other peoples in their homelands, all of which cannot but develop the conception of neighborliness and reciprocity of feelings.

These benefits offer an invitation to every citizen to help advertise his country abroad, to entertain visitors from over the border, and to make conditions for visiting tourists in the highest degree attractive. In this way everyone is adding to his country's appeal to the millions of travellers in this age of the twentieth century.

Proper Light Adjustment

Increasing attention is being focused on the matter of headlight glare. An analysis made in the United States shows conclusively that dazzling headlights are one of the chief contributing causes of the alarmingly high highway accident toll, says Oshawa Times-Gazette.

It has been suggested that one solution would be to plant hedges between the lanes of our two-lane highways. This is a step in the right direction but it does not solve the problem on rural roads where there is only one lane. There it is a question of proper adjustment and of the exercise of courtesy when meeting other vehicles.

The difficulty with modern driving conditions arises from the improvement in road surfaces which in turn lead to increased speeds and the need for better lighting. Higher candlepower bulbs have been put into use. If properly adjusted they should give no cause for complaint. If not in proper adjustment lights are useless and dangerous.

Their Chattering May Betray

Although fish generally are not supposed to be noisy creatures, some of them do make a racket, and their talkativeness may yet lure them into the frying pan. A Boston company is experimenting with war-developed sound devices to find out whether schools of commercially valuable fish can be located by amplifying and recording their noise, remarks New York Herald Tribune.

As examples of fish that make a din, the American Museum of Natural History cites snapping shrimp which clatter their pincers, and croakers which vibrate their balloonlike air bladders.

"Real" Canadian Homes

Even if scientists, architects and builders discovered the "ideal" house for this country, probably nine out of every Canadians would have none of it, unless it looked, inside and out, pretty much like the houses in which they have always lived. We shall just edge slowly into progress in house-building, just as we, like the rest of the human family, moved slowly to acceptance of the horseless buggy and other innovations. Only in war are we spurred to jump right into the day-after-tomorrow, says a writer in Edmonton Journal.

JUST FOLKS

OH, TO BE IN STYLE!

Of many a mother of cute little girls
I've asked, when their daughters start thinking of curls
And hair-do's and ribbons and bonnets and scent
And all that creators of fashions invent?
"Very early," they say. Now I give you the news:
Ellen Elizabeth wants fancy shoes.

A little past five, and her mother reveals,
Already she's pleading for shoes that have heels.
The man at the store, with a dignified air,
Insisted that flat soles all little girls wear,
But he knew 'twas an argument shortly he'd lose.
Ellen Elizabeth wants fancy shoes.

Oh, is it environment or can it be
Heredity showing? Will someone tell me?
Are little girls born with a passion for style,
They want to be ladies in such a short while?
How long can the mother such pleadings refuse?
Ellen Elizabeth wants fancy shoes.

Claims Two In Car

One of Mrs. Dick's statements had said that she, her husband, her father and Bohozuk were in a motor car last March when Dick was killed by a shot from a gun held held by Bohozxxxxxx a gun held by Bohozuk.

At one point in that statement she said she had halted police, driving over the murder route, and told them that "this is where we got stuck." The Hamilton Post-Trial story—it has never been heard in court—was that Hines would not say whether he saw any body but had said "I could convict an innocent man or let a murderer go free."

It was on the basis of this as yet legally-undisclosed evidence that the MacLean-Bohozuk trial in Hamilton was postponed to Jan. 27, as well as on the fact that the decision had not yet been rendered in Mrs. Dick's appeal.

Defence Seeks Motion

Counsel for MacLean in Hamilton Thursday sought a motion from the bench that the crown disclose the names of new witnesses and nature of evidence to be introduced at the trial of the two men, and Mr. Justice J. Keiller Mackay took the application under advisement with intimation he would make a decision Thursday or later.

Mrs. Dick was reported earlier to have lost the glamour-girl appearance she showed during her trial. The months of solitary confinement have quietened her added pounds to her figure. During the trial she had appeared in smart black dresses, used make-up freely, had her hair fixed by a fellow prisoner—a French hair-dresser. Solitary confinement has removed those advantages.

Her own Hamilton counsel, John J. Sullivan, said that she had grown "hog-fat," was accustomed to spending the day in a skirt and sweater.

Mr. Robinette argued that if the statements now were found inadmissible a new trial was in order. If they were inadmissible, the question arose whether a properly-instructed jury could possibly return a verdict of guilty.

Vital New Evidence

For the Crown, arguing against derer and to Mrs. Dick as mere- attorney-general, told the Appeal Court that the trial had been properly conducted, that Mrs. Dick's statements had been properly admitted as evidence.
the appeal, Cecil Snyder, deputy Lordships before the hearing concluded Tuesday that since Mrs. Dick was convicted the Crown had come into possession of new and vital evidence in the 10-months-old case. Mr. Snyder would not, and could not, reveal to the appellate judges what this evidence is.

It was conjectured that he referred to a story current in Hamilton after Mrs. Dick's conviction that a witness, one George Hines, had come forward with evidence that he had helped the convicted woman "and her party" to extricate a car from the mud on the day Dick last was seen alive—March 6, 1946.

Parents Protest Nude Swimming In Detroit School

Detroit, Jan. 16 —(CP)— The question whether nude swimming in the schools of suburban Highland Park has any relation to morals was left yesterday to the Highland Park School Board to answer.

A group of parents Tuesday night protested the permission given girls of from five to 13 years to swim a la natural. They showed a petition bearing 117 names, asking withdrawal of that permission.

"Finland has a high sct of morals," Bill Hart said at the meeting. "Yet, all the Finnish people — men, women and children — go together to a public bathing house and bathe together in the nude."

Mrs. Anna Brenner: "Thank God, we live in a civilized country."

Citizenship Cards Reduced to $1

Ottawa, Jan. 16 —(CP)— The fee for a Canadian citizenship certificate has been reduced from $5 to $1 for Canadian-born citizens and persons already naturalized, and all war veterans may obtain certificates free, State Secretary Gibson announced yesterday.

Persons applying for certificates who must be examined by the courts will pay the $5 fee.

GOAT TOWS CAR

Honeywood, Ont., Jan. 16 —(CP)— When his automobile refused to move on an icy street here, Don Downey of Horning's Mills got some unexpected aid from Ronnie Mills and his goat. The goat was hitched to the car and after a few tugs got it in motion.

FOLK MYTHS IN MODERN MEDICINE
2. Digitalis for Weak Heart

I have given my opinion, for what it may be worth, that as a remedy for heart trouble digitalis is inefficacious — but bear in mind, my belief or opinion about this is shared by very few good doctors. From time to time I hear from a real doctor who assures me he has never been able to satisfy himself that digitalis did his patient any good. One such doctor of thirty-odd years of experience tells me that he believes that only by stopping the use of digitalis has he saved some patients.

But just in case your faith in the efficacy of digitalis (pronounced di-ji-tay-lis) weakens, don't let it worry you, for I am happy to offer you a succedaneum or substitute which, in my opinion, really serves the purpose which doctors and patients try to believe digitalis serves, that is, tones, improves the nutrition and strengthens the action of the heart. It is vitamin B complex. Besides the limited amount you may get in your ordinary refined diet you should supplement your diet with an optimal daily ration of Vitamin B complex, which means three or four times as much as nutrition authorities recommend as essential to maintain good nutrition and good health. Whether you now take digitalis or not, it can do no possible harm to take such an optimal daily ration of B complex whether you are subject to serious heart trouble or not — I am confident no physician can question the truth of this advice, whether he believes in digitalis or not.

For further instruction consult No. 2 Little Lesson CVD, (cardiovascular degeneration or disease, heart and artery troubles; for copy send ten cents and stamped envelope bearing your address—no clipping, please—ask for the booklet in writing—) the legend of digitalis is too modern to be called a myth. But we should remember it when we feel tempted to sound off scientifically on the current fashion in digitalis therapeutics.

Dr. William Withering won for himself a place in the history of medicine by worming out of an old woman in Shropshire, England, the secret of the use of foxglove (Digitalis purpurea) as a remedy for dropsy. The doctor reported his discovery to the medical profession in 1775, but somehow the name of the old woman of Shropshire was lost in the process of conversation. For at least 500 years before Dr. Withering learned about it the herb had been used as a cure for dropsy by the inhabitants of Britain. It was not until many years after its introduction to regular practice that physicians began to regard foxglove (digitalis) as a heart medicine.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

The Magic Ray

For several years have been troubled with bad breath. Dentist stated cause was not in mouth. However I had an X-ray taken and nothing out of order in stomach.

(H. A. R.)

Answer — You mean, I hope, that the dentist says there are no unfilled cavities in teeth and no trouble in gums, and that an X-ray negative showed no stomach abnormality — of course that is not the half of it. All kinds of stomach trouble may be present without showing anything in an X-ray negative.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What causes a person to blush?

Man is said to be the only creature that blushes. Blushing is the sudden reddening of the face, neck and breast as the result of nervousness or excitement. Basomotor nerves lie parallel with each artery and capillary in the body and control the dilation and contraction of these blood vessels and the amount of blood that passes into them.

Emotions such as shame, fear, diffidence, confusion and guiltiness often excite the nervous system in such a way that the vasomotor nerves are paralyzed, and during the suspension of their action an extra quantity of blood rushes into the superficial blood vessels. This increased flow of blood causes the skin to redden to produce the blush.

The blush is more or less general throughout the body, but it is clearly visible only on the face, neck and breast, owing perhaps to the peculiar location of the arteries and capillaries in that part of the body. Among the colored races the effects of blushing are just as real but not so obvious as in the white race.

Charles Darwin observed that savages who went almost naked often blushed to the waist. A French artist told Darwin that some of his models blushed all over and the scientist asked the English artist Thomas Woolner to have "some noteworthy young man observe young and inexperienced girls who serve as models and who at first blush much, to determine how low down the body the blush extends." The report made by Woolner to Darwin on the subject is not extant.

It is said that "sophistication" sometimes destroys the power to blush. Some persons can prevent themselves from blushing by the exercise of will power, while others are so sensitive and self-conscious that they can be made to blush merely by somebody's telling them that they are blushing.

The Bible refers to the blush of shame. Jeremiah 6:15 says: "Were they ashamed when they committed abomination? Nay, they were not at all ashamed, neither could they blush." According to Ezra 9:6, the Hebrew high priest and statesman, when he knelt to pray, said: "O my God, I am ashamed and blush to lift up my face to them, my God."

Besides the blush of shame, Shakespeare mentions the blush of modesty, bashfulness and guilt.

A proverb says that blushing is virtue's color. In "Emile" Roussea wrote: "Whoever blushes is already guilty, true innocence is ashamed of nothing." Edward Young in his "Night of Thoughts" said that the man who blushes is not quite a brute.

Actually blushing proves nothing. The innocent and guilty are equally likely to blush when suddenly accused of wrongdoing.

Sometimes fear causes the face and lips to become pale, but in that case the cause is different. The blood rushes to the internal organs and leaves the face and neck bloodless and blanched. Likewise the reddening of the face when a person is angry is not a true blush and has an entirely different origin.

Bata Co. Signs Union Agreement

Toronto, Jan. 16—(CP)—Union agreements signed by the Bata Shoe Company of Canada at Batawa, near Belleville, will mean a pay increase of $150,000 annually to 600 employees, it was announced today.

Alex Reith, representative of local 1718 of the International Association of Machinists (A.F.L.) said the agreements, signed by the firm, his association and local 715 of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union (A.F.L.), also provided a 45-hour instead of the previous 48-hour week, with no decrease in "take-home" pay, and an "incentive bonus" varying from 15 to 40 per cent.

Marmora

H. & S. Assoc. Is Organized

Marmora. (Special.) —Under the leadership of E. C. Prentice, principal of Marmora Public School, an enthusiastic meeting of parents and others interested in education, was held in Room 4 of Marmora Public School on Monday evening, the attendance numbering about forty. The object of the meeting was to discuss the proposed formation of a Home and School Association. Mrs. E. Chambers of Peterborough, local organizer, was in attendance and gave an explanatory talk of the inception and progress of this organization which started in Toronto in 1916 with a small group of eight. For the past 18 years it has enjoyed the distinction of being an International Federation. The Ontario Federation became a chartered organization in 1933 and although here and there, groups might be found which work on the same lines as the Home and School Association, they may not be regarded as such, in that they do not hold the charter certificate. In 1939 war conditions caused a temporary disbanding of the International Federation but affected countries are linking up again to assure a resumption of its activities. Mrs. Chambers mentioned that here are 535 Home and School Associations in Ontario alone. She also touched upon the creed of the Association. Having expressed her surprise and pleasure at seeing so many fathers present in the gathering, she asked those present if they felt there was a need for a branch of the Association in this community. This provoked a keen discussion in which both sexes took part, the result being that Mrs. Grace Price moved, and Mrs. Florence Vilneff, seconded a motion which was carried, that a Home and School Association be formed. A succeeding motion fixed the name as the Marmora Home and School Association. After it had been decided that the annual fees be 35 cents. A nominating committee was appointed consisting of the following:

Rev. J. M. Brownlie, chairman; Messrs. D. P. Marett, W. M. Regan, R. E. Bonter, H. W. Sabine, and J. Sproul with Mesdames H. Rennie and F. Grant. The date of the organization meeting was set for Feb. 12. Mrs. H. Rennie presided at the piano for "O Canada" at the opening and the National Anthem at the close of the meeting.

700 MILES IN 100 MINUTES

Tokyo, Jan. 16 —(AP)—United States Far East Air Force Headquarters today announced four P-80s flew yesterday from the Philippines to Okinawa — about 700 miles — in 100 minutes in the first long distance Pacific flight by jet planes. The P-80s averaged 430 miles an hour.

OFFICERS MAKE A HAUL

Toronto, Jan. 16 —(CP)— Morality officers made their largest liquor haul of the season yesterday when they seized 336 bottles of beer, three bottles of liquor and 10 beer and liquor ration books. The liquor was found in the basement of a shoe repair shop operated by Dominic Rosso, 54, who, with his wife, was taken into custody.

Two Arrested On Drug Charges

Toronto, Jan. 14. (CP)—After a rough-and-tumble battle in an alley at midnight police arrested Max Hoffman, 36, and John Murphy, 43, on charges of illegal possession of drugs. Murphy was awaiting trial on a narcotic charge resulting from a previous arrest.

Two constables of the R.C.M.P. and two Toronto plainclothes detectives hid in the alley for five hours before the two suspects appeared. The couple fled and after a chase "quite a fight" followed, according to police. No one required treatment for injuries but cuts and bruises were well distributed.

Mrs. Dick No Glamour Girl Now

Hamilton, Jan. 16 —(CP)— As she waits in her isolated cell for the decision of the court of appeal Mrs. Evelyn Dick no longer presents the appearance of a "glamour girl," her counsel, John J. Sullivan, said yesterday.

Before her conviction and sentence of death in the torso slaying of her husband, Mrs. Dick had her hair dressed frequently by an inmate to ensure a well-groomed appearance at her October trial.

"It is against prison rules that anyone have access to Mrs. Dick other than certain persons, and a hairdresser is not included," Mr. Sullivan said. He added that she wore no make-up, and was dressed in a skirt and sweater.

Mr. Sullivan said also that he understood the sheriff had been supplying her with reading material, and had permitted her to send letters to other solicitors.

Fellowship Rally Held By Hastings District Y.P.U.

On January 12, South Hastings District held a Fellowship Sunday, formerly known as a Spiritual Retreat, in Plainfield United Church, with young people from the various unions in the district in attendance.

The morning worship at 11.00 a.m., was in charge of Miss Evelyn Ray, District Fellowship convener, with Mr. Reginald Solmes, of Frankford, giving the message.

Dinner held in the Orange Hall, Plainfield, in the form of a pot-luck dinner was followed by a sing-song led by Reg. Solmes.

At 1.45 p.m., the young people moved into the church again for a worship service led by the Moira Young People under the direction of Miss Willehmine Hufman.

Following the worship service, Mr. Harold Hagerman, of Stirling, South Hastings District President, led in a period in which the conveners of the various departments explained the purpose and administration of their respective departments.

At 3.00 p.m., the Rev. Noble Hatton, B.A., of Trinity United Church, Napanee, delivered the theme address. Rev. Hatton's theme was "Finding a Faith". In his address he challenged all people to go about their daily lives as though Christ were walking by their sides. "We, as young people," he said, "must dedicate our lives to one goal, that of service to our fellow men and to extending the reach and the effect of the Christian faith and the Christian teachings. We must be completely dedicated to this goal and set it above all others. Willing one thing and that one thing being the Will of God, and clinging to that ideal, that will, that purpose, with the tenacity and courage with which Jesus followed God's Will. 'Seek ye first the Kingdom of Heaven.'"

"Our goal," concluded Mr. Hatton, "should be to heal broken humanity, to bring all people into one church, into one great fellowship in Christ, to go out into life and live it as though Christ were walking by our side."

Following the theme address, the young people broke up into discussion groups, one led by Rev. Mr. Hatton, the other by Harry Denton.

At 6.00 p.m., the ladies of the Plainfield W.M.S. played host to the young people at a Fellowship Banquet. The culinary abilities of the Plainfield ladies are deserving of commendation for the splendid meal they served.

The banquet was followed by a sing-song led by Mr. Reg Solmes with Mrs. Maude Harrison at the piano. Following the sing-song the group moved to the church for the closing address by Harry Denton. Rev. Mr. Campbell of Plainfield praised the Young People for the splendid services they had given during the day. Mr. Denton suitably thanked the Plainfield congregation for the use of their Church and for the splendid welcome they had given the young people.

LIFE IN OLD CRATES

Windsor, Jan. 16 —(CP)— There may be life in the old crates yet, but a 1914-model fire engine offered for sale by the city drew a top bid of only $280—and a 1929 service car enticed a mere $270 from a prospective purchaser.

Board of control last night accepted the offers.

One bid on the older machine was $55.

Sues for $20,000 Heart Balm — Miss Muriel Rexford, 52-year-old Montreal school teacher, who is suing David Cormack, 49, Toronto telephone company engineer, for $20,000 damages for alleged breach of promise to marry. Father of four children, Cormack is a former naval officer. Defendant said an "alcoholic haze" might have produced a state of garrulousness in which he "might have proposed marriage."

Young People Need Trained Counsel To Assist Them in Choosing Life Work

Jas. Musgrove, Director of Guidance, Addresses H. and S. Club

A pot-luck supper was in order for the January meeting at Queen Alexandra Home and School Club, on Tuesday evening, when soft candlelight and music added much to the good home-cooked food provided to present an atmosphere of geniality and goodwill. After the last piece of pie had been consumed, plates were pushed aside and the business of the meeting opened.

Mr. Wallace spoke of the need for additional sports equipment, especially for hockey and baseball and he pleaded his case so well that the sum of $35 was unanimously voted to be paid from the funds of the Club and used for this very worthy purpose.

A colored film, "The Trail of the Great Divide", loaned by the Canadian National Railways' Film Library, of Toronto, was shown. This was followed by an address from Mr. James Musgrove, director of Guidance for Belleville Schools. Mr. Musgrove briefly outlined the work that has been undertaken in Grades 7 and 8 of the public schools of the city. Cumulative records of the progress and tendencies of the pupils are being kept for present and future reference, and tests to determine the learning capacity of each pupil are given. Plans for the future include expanding of the records, and a provision for "Counselling Service".

Continuing, Mr. Musgrove stated that throughout the country 53 per cent of all pupils drop out of school before they reach collegiate. The Guidance Department hopes to better this condition by helping boys and girls develop along the lines that will eventually place them in surroundings and work most useful to their community, and in which they will be happiest. He believed that parents, as well as teachers, could do a great deal toward helping the child find his or her rightful place in society in general, and in the community in particular.

Miss G. Gillard Honored At Farewell Party

A farewell party, sponsored by members of St. John Ambulance Brigade in conjunction with their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. W. A. Watson, Victoria Ave., was tendered Miss Grace Gillard on Wednesday evening. A full report of a conference recently held in Toronto was given by the President, Mrs. McKluskey, following which refreshments were enjoyed by the members gathered around an appropriately decorated table, featuring an Indian papoose as a centrepiece.

Miss Gillard was the recipient of a farewell gift, presented by Miss Iva Waldorf on behalf of the members of the Brigade, and of a framed motto from the hostess of the evening, for which she graciously thanked the donors.

Miss Gillard is well known among a large circle of friends in the city, having been a resident of the city for the past seventeen years, during which time she has been an employee of The Bell Shirt Co., for nine years. She is a member of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, being active in the choir and Sunday School. She has also been actively associated with the Evening Branch of the Christ Church W.A.

Miss Gillard is leaving in the near future for Moose Factory, a mission station on the southernmost point of James Bay, where she will be a supervisor in a Boarding School for Indian boys. The best wishes of a host of friends go with her to her new home.

Women's Activities

MT. PLEASANT W.M.S.

Rawdon, (Special.)— Mrs. Gordon Linn opened her home for the January meeting of Mount Pleasant Woman's Missionary Society and twenty ladies attended. Mrs. Ross Hoard played quiet music. Mrs. Percy MacMullen gave a New Year's poem and prayer and installed the 1947 officers in a special service of consecration.

The new president, Mrs. Bert Jeffs, then took the chair and read as call to worship, "My Daily Prayer". Mrs. John Holmes conducted the worship service and gave a splendid paper on the theme "New Beginnings". She challenged her audience to put God first in everything and have Him at the beginning of the year as well as at the end of the year. To make a new beginning each day, and seek God throughout each hour. Mrs. Don Campbell read the Bible lesson and Mrs. Kenneth Weaver contributed a vocal solo.

Fifteen members answered roll call and the offering amounting to $6.50 was dedicated by Mrs. Frank Smith.

Mrs. Linn was extended thanks for her home and the February meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Will Potts. The World Day of Prayer in February will be held at the church.

The year's reports were as follows: 12 meetings were held and the 45th anniversary was celebrated.

There were five Life and 17 Annual members with an average attendance of 12. Mrs. Roy Thrasher attended all meetings.

The corresponding secretary wrote 14 letters and made over two dozen visits. The treasurer remitted $224.50 to Presbyterial Treasurer and of this the Mite boxes contributed $29.

The Mission Band had 18 willing workers and remitted $25 to Presbyterial Treasurer.

The Baby Band had 18 members enrolled with eight Life members and $19.70 remitted. This makes a grand total of $269.20.

Four quilts were quilted. The Community Friendship secretary and her committee made 72 visits in homes, sent 67 cards, 16 letters and made 13 hospital calls.

There were 11 subscriptions to Missionary Monthly and 18 to World Friends.

The Christian Stewardship Secretary reported average givings $1.20 for 1946. One meeting was based on this theme.

There were 31 items of W.M.S. and 20 items of Band news reported in the local press. The Temperance secretary gave brief messages at several meetings.

Ten fees were paid at this meeting and one Life Membership.

Mrs. Sid Demorest synopsized a chapter of the Study Book, "Christian Youth Bring New Life to New Tasks" and was assisted by Mrs. Arthur Phillips, Mrs. Percy MacMullen and Mrs. Will Potts. One of the largest groups of young men and women who are facing the tasks of the new freedom are those who have been in the Indian services during the war. The young recruit found himself not only being trained as a fighting man, but part of a large educational system. Junior officers presided over discussion groups and every army centre had a library.

The closing worship was based on a poem "Each Separate Task a Listening Post, a Wayside Shrine".

Miss Ruth Linn served candy and a social half hour was enjoyed.

Factories Ready To Introduce Tomato Grading

Picton (Special)—Prince Edward canning factories are ready to introduce grading of tomatoes this season, providing the necessary authority is forthcoming from the Ontario Department of Agriculture. This was agreed upon at a meeting of canners, representing 28 factories, here Tuesday night. Whether there are sufficient trained men to carry this out during 1947 remains to be seen. Earlier, it had been officially announced that grading would not be compulsory this year.

One factory, that of the Baxter Co. at Bloomfield, has had grading for three years, and growers voted to continue this method.

Representing the Dominion Department of Agriculture, J. F. Berry and E. Jones discussed the problems it would count with regard to the processing of tomatoes. It was felt by the canners that grading would help overcome this serious problem. A formal request for grading will be made this month by the Eastern Ontario Canners Association.

FEATHER HUNT

How a rare African bird was found after a relentless search of 26 years, was related by Dr. James P. Chaplin, associate curator of the American Museum of Natural History in New York City who spoke at Massey Hall under the auspices of the Province of Quebec Society for the protection of birds.

"On my first trip to Central Africa I found a feather that puzzled me," he said. "Months of thorough search in that country failed to produce any trace of a bird to whom it might belong. Finally, 26 years later, while visiting the Congo Museum in Belgium, I found what I had been looking for. There apparently abandoned in an old showcase, where two birds of the pheasant class, whose feathers exactly matched the one in my possession." The birds were later named Congo Peacocks.

FAR NORTH FOLK EAGERLY AWAIT FLYING LIBRARY

Thousand Saskatchewan Communities Supplied Fact and Fiction Reading Through Long, Lonely Winter Days

Regina (CP)—The infrequent arrival this winter of aircraft at Camsell Portage on Lake Athabaska close to the Saskatchewan Northwest Territories border, will be awaited by the isolated community not only for medical supplies and other necessities but also for books of the travelling library system.

Almost 30 years old, the service has only in recent years taken to the air to supply isolated communities of Saskatchewan with fiction and fact for long winter evenings.

About 1,000 communities in all parts of the province look forward each year to receiving large wooden boxes, each containing about 55 books of adventure, romance and mystery as well as some non-fiction.

The box stays in the community about one year and then is returned to the central library at Regina and a new set is sent out. Only cost to the community turning the box to Regina where Mrs. L. W. Brandon, a graduate of McMaster University, Hamilton, Ont., is in charge of the service.

At Camsell Portage the box of books is kept at the Indian school. Other northern points keep the books at the Hudson Bay post. In the south they may be at the local grain elevator, service station, comunity hall or even a private home.

A complement to the Travelling Library System is the Public Information Library which is also a "travelling" library. But its books are issued singly and on specific request.

Technical Information

This library of 12,000 non-fiction volumes covering subjects from agriculture to philosophy, also includes home economics, engineering, psychology and law. It is for the use of those who live outside the larger cities of Regina, Saskatoon, and Moose Jaw.

Last year, 24,600 individual requests were received for books. The membership fee is 50 cents a year.

First organized in 1922 as the Open Shelf Library to supply those who had no access to libraries, it has developed into a source of technical information used by electricians as well as medical practitioners.

Both libraries have recently developed juvenile sections for the 3-14 age group including fiction and handicraft texts.

The Traveling Library System has also attempted to acquaint Saskatchewan readers with the works of Canadian writers and Saskatchewan poets.

U.N.R.R.A. CONVOY SAILS 6,000 MILES WITH AID TO CHINA

Canadians Among 128 Volunteers Aboard Former Australian Ships Sailing From Sydney to Shanghai

By J. D. HOLDSWORTH
(Canadian Press Correspondent)

Sydney, Australia —(CP)—A convoy of eighteen small steam and diesel-powered ships is on its way from Australia to China.

The ships, which range in size from 66 feet to 125 feet expect to make the 6,000-mile trip from Sydney to Shanghai in 60 days.

They have been bought by U.N.R.R.A. from the Australian government for use in China as fishing trawlers and will help to rebuild Chinese fishing fleets, badly depleted by war, and to relieve the food shortage with their catches.

The ships are manned by 128 volunteers of many nationalities, including Canadians, and many Australians, who were selected from 1,000 applicants. Most of them are ex-servicemen, some going on the trip for adventure Others want to get to China to join the Chinese navy or air force.

Will Teach Chinese

Several experienced fishermen among the crews will stay in China after their arrival to teach the Chinese how to work the ships and modern fishing gear with which each ship is equipped.

Full safety precautions have been taken for the trip. The ships which include 15 66-foot diesel-powered craft, each with a crew of six, and two 85-foot diesel-powered vessels, one with a crew of 10 and the other with a crew of 13, will travel in convoy under control of the parent ship, the 125-foot steam trawler Pahau, with a crew of 15.

Each vessel carries a complete set of nautical instruments, and radiophone equipment, while the Pahau is fitted with a high powered radio receiving and transmiting set to establish contact with shore stations.

One of the vessels is equipped with a sick bay in case of sudden illness among the crews.

A second convoy of similar ships will follow.

Fag Smoking Santa Severely Scorched

Greymouth, N.Z. (CP)—Santa Claus caught fire here recently and local children nearly went without Christmas gifts.

For 22 years Len McGlashan has appeared at a Christmas party to distribute gifts. This time his elaborate costume caught fire while he was lighting a cigarette before the show. A bystander tore down a curtain and wrapped Santa Claus in it and extinguished the fire. But it takes more than a fire to deter Santa Claus and after his burns had been bandaged he made his usual rounds and distributed gifts.

Huge Water Project For Indian Province

Karachi, India, —(CP)— The province of Sind, which already boasts the largest irrigation system in the world—the Lloyd Barrage and canal at Sukkur—is to construct another dam.

More than $6,000,000 worth of machinery is on order from the United Kingdom and the United States. British and American experts have been engaged to train staff and to erect the plants.

It is proposed to construct a dam across the River Indus in order to ensure an adequate supply to Lower Sind, now dependent upon inundated canals.

When completed the project is expected to convert Lower Sind into the granary of the entire province, raising the area under rice cultivation from 450,000 acres. The scheme is expected to cost $60,000,000.

Mary and Charlie Throw Out David

From Time Magazine New York

Of all the unhappy families in Hollywood, United Artists Corp. seemed to be the unhappiest. One-third owner Mary Pickford and one-third owner Charlie Chaplin had not been on speaking terms for a year and a half. Yet recently, via counsel, they agreed to boot out one-third owner David Oliver Selznick.

If Mary and Charlie wanted to go to court about it, as they said they did, that was all right with David. He promptly announced that he would distribute no more of his films through U.S. Instead he would form a new distributing company, a difficult job, call it the Selznick Releasing Organization. S.R.O. (which could also mean Standing Room Only) would go to work distributing the latest Selznick epic, the $5,500,000 Technicolor Duel in the Sun.

When Mary and Charlie, along with Douglas Fairbanks and D. W. Griffith, set up the U.A. in 1919, the idea was that U.A. would distribute films made independently by each of the partners. But, one by one, the original incorporators died off or stopped producing enough pictures to pay U.A.'s operating expenses. Mary and Charlie therefore began taking in new partners. But something always went wrong. Usually, Mary and Charlie thought the newcomers tried to run things too much their own way. So the newcomers had to go. In rapid succession, such notables as Sam Goldyyn, Darryl Zanuck, Alexander Korda went through U.A.'s revolving door.

Dauntless David Selznick stepped into the door in 1941. In return for a chance to obtain one-third of U.A.'s stock (now worth an estimated $4 million), David agreed to deliver ten pictures to U.A. within 20 years. At the contract signing, was all love and kisses.

What went wrong? Everybody had a different answer. Mary and Charlie accused David of using part of a $1,000,000 loan from U.A. to develop story properties which he later sold as packages (that is, complete with scripts and even Selznick stars) to other companies, with profit to David, none to U.A. David said that these were his babies and he could do as he liked with them. Besides, the three pictures he had already turned in on his contract (Since You Went Away, I'll be Seeing You, Spellbound) had all grossed more than $5 million each. In fact, said David, he had helped save U.A. from bankruptcy.

David concluded that Mary had "an impulsive urge" to run the company, was trying to harass him into selling back his stock. Nonsense, cried Mary. In the first place, David's permanent ownership in the stock was contingent on his delivering all ten of the pictures he had contracted for; if he delivered a minimum of five, he could recall his stock to U.A. at an 'equitable' price; if he delivered less than five, as was now the case, he had no right in the stock at all. Despite David's claims to have bought the stock outright, said Mary, he had actually never paid a cent for it until a month ago, when he handed U.A. a check for $300,000.

To settle the stock-ownership dispute, a long legal fight was in prospect. Meanwhile, Mary and Charlie were busy lining up more pictures for U.A. with independent producers. Mary, in a new company formed with Lester Cowan (G.I. Joe), planned to produce four pictures of her own next year. She'd show that David.

Music on Wired Spools Soon Ready

(From Songwriters' Review, New York)

Songwriters who are alert to constant changes in the music business are keeping close eye on a new development in the recording business; music on wired spools. The success of this new war-time developed method will change the entire present method of recording and open up a wider field for songwriters.

The "spool" idea is simple, cheap and everlasting. An hour's music is recorded on a spool, which will sell for $3.00 and the spool is slipped into a special notch in an attachment to your radio. You hear music for an hour without changing any records or getting up from your seat. And the spool is good for 100,000 playings—a lifetime.

The commercial possibilities of this recording method are accepted, and it's no longer in the experimental stage. A New York company is working feverishly turning out the attachments for the spools. Arrangements are being made with the American Federation of Musicians on a scale price for musicians who will make the recordings. That is the advanced point which the new method has reached.

The public will have a cheaper and a longer lasting method of recording that will change the complexion of the present set-up of records.

The new spool method can be used for books, for special events, for symphonic numbers. And tests show that the reproduction is perfect, even better than the present records.

It is expected that complete albums of songs will be recorded on one spool. It will be a tremendous opportunity to provide more songs than ever before for home-recording consumption.

This increase in the need of music should prove a boon for new songs—more songs will be required to fill out the hour-long spools. It should provide an opportunity for more tunes to get a hearing, and once given a hearing in this new process, to last forever.

The musical department of this new industry is not as yet complete and therefore do not send music until the organization is prepared to process it.

Keep your eye on this new brain-child in the recording field: it will affect every member in the business, including the professional and new songwriters.

Releasing Frozen Assets

(By Paul R. Leach, writing from Washington, in The Chicago Daily News.)

* * *

Millions of dollars in wealth sent to America for safety by victims of war persecution may never be claimed, as billions more are returned to survivors or heirs.

The U.S. federal treasury has just begun to release nearly $13,000,000,000 in deposits, securities and property of foreign governments and nationals. They are frozen in 1940 and 1941 to save them from the Nazis and Japs.

In addition the alien property custodian is sorting out claims against nearly $500,000,000 it controls in personal and real property, royalty and copyright income, and stocks, seized here from nationals of enemy countries.

This includes property of persecuted as well as the persecutors. Persecutees will get it back.

How much of all this came to the United States from persons who are now dead or have no heirs, how much will be restored to heirs here or abroad may not be known for several years.

As the assets and ownership claims are sifted and cleared, that tremendous story will begin to be told.

Then also will the truth begin to come out about secret transfers to American safety of funds stolen from victims by war criminals who have been or will be executed or imprisoned.

* * *

There have been many tales that Hitler, Goering, Ribbentrop and others had clandestine funds on tap here. Treasury officials admit this could be true, but they have no evidence of it so far. Such transfers are more likely to have gone to neutral countries, they suggest.

Of the $13,000,000,000 of assets frozen in June, 1941, more than $8,000,000,000 was owned by nationals of European countries, or their governments, enemy as well as German-occupied. The rest was credited to African and Asiatic countries.

Of this, $2,578,000,000 was owned by 200,000,000 individuals, 84,000 of whom were residents of Germany.

Every enemy or occupied country was affected by the freeze order. Except for Germany, Austria, Poland, Yugoslavia, Hungary, Italy, Rumania and Japan, the treasury is now freezing those assets. As a liberated government certifies that deposits or property have no enemy interests, they are released.

This process will account for a large bulk of the frozen funds. But it will not immediately disclose funds of a man and his family who disappeared in Nazi concentration camps.

This man, for example, seeing trouble coming, might have had some or all of his movable wealth smuggled past vigilant Nazis into Switzerland or France. Instructions would have been given to have its value deposited for him in a New York or Chicago bank.

The deposit might have been made in the name of a relative of this country. If this relative is non-enemy he probably will recover it upon legal proof of his right.

That could take a long time, considering European as well as American inheritance procedures.

* * *

But if the deposit were made in the name of the owner himself, and that owner is now dead and has no heirs, there's no clear answer as to what becomes of it.

It might go back to the Swiss or French bank making the transfer. It could then go into the general fund of the inter-governmental refugee committee to help displaced persons.

It might go into the treasury of the United States or to the state in which the bank is located. In most states a bank account that has lain dormant for seven years without claim, the bank unable to locate the depositor, reverts to the state.

Even after a liberated government certifies a frozen account, the American treasury must investigate very carefully and thoroughly to avoid individual fraud. These conditions could create a happy hunting ground for shyster claim lawyers for years to come.

Experts of the alien property custodian's office have just begun analyzing the first batch of 1,000 claims for return of seized German property to persecutees. Victims of the Nazis as well as Nazis themselves were all regarded as German nationals in the seizure.

The largest amounts of frozen assets were to the credit of the United Kingdom, Switzerland and France. Most of these have been released already. The most interesting figure in all the frozen $13,000,000,000 is almost $300,000,000 which was owned by German nationals. Within that total lie some of the funds of persecuted persons.

However, wealth of the persecuted may turn up from any of the other countries. The movement of government and personal dollar deposits, securities and real property from uneasy Europe to America began in 1933 with the rise of Hitler.

It grew from $5,000,000,000 in 1933 to $9,000,000,000 in 1939, and to $13,000,000,000 in 1941.

The Cost of Tooting

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)

Mounting railroad costs have caused one United States road to compute the cost of sounding locomotive whistles. The statisticians found that one of those "toot-toot-toot" whistles the engineer sounds at every level crossing as his train rumbles through the countryside and which takes up only two or three seconds of time, costs the road about one-third of a cent. The longer ones, when the engineer wants clearance on a signal that is dilatory in turning green, costs a little more.

Figuring that the whistle is sounded every mile or so, the cost of operating the tooter in the 110-mile run on any of the roads between St. Thomas and Windsor would be about forty cents.

But at that they are cheap, because they serve as a warning and help speed up service. And then they sound so romantic, and so comforting. The railway financiers may, but most of us don't care a hoot about the cost. Let 'em toot.

Paid Creditors After 29 Years

Oudtshoorn, South Africa (CP)—Twenty-nine years ago a Jewish storekeeper in this Cape district, who had eight children, left for Johannesburg owing sums ranging from a few shillings to £150 because of his failure after the ostrich feather slump.

Recently he appeared with a daughter and paid his creditors or their heirs the full sum owing, with interest added. He now is 74 and wishes to remain anonymous. He has worked for years for the sole purpose of paying his creditors.

VETERANS WORK MINE

Greymouth, N.Z. (CP)—Twelve ex-servicemen in New Zealand are taking over a small coal mine under a rehabilitation scheme. The mine will be worked by the young men on a co-operative basis. They hope to treble production of the mine, which produces fast-burning, high quality coal.

PLANES LAY 'HOPPERS

Melbourne, Australia (CP)—Grasshoppers, coming in plague proportions from grasslands of Central Australia, were met last year with a chemical offensive from aircraft, which is expected to end their invasion of croplands. Gammexene was used with a resultant 98 per cent kill.

IRON HORSE ASSUMES ACROBATIC POSE

A picturesque and unusual recording is this overhead view taken at the Philadelphia, Pa., yards when this freight engine rolled over on its side after hitting an open switch device. The iron horse came to rest in an incongruous pose resembling an acrobatic jackknife.

Some Reductions In Postal Rates Possible This Year

Ottawa, Jan. 16 (CP)—Informed sources said today they thought it likely the government would make some reductions in postal rates this year, but still would retain the war-imposed one-cent tax which has boosted letter rates to four cents.

"It is possible," said one source, "that the government might make some other reductions in postage by way of compensation for the four-cent letter rate, while at the same time keeping that rate at the higher level."

It was thought possible this reduction may be by way of a cut in airmail rates, which now stand at seven cents for the first ounce and five cents for each additional ounce. The United States recently reduced its airmail rate to five cents, and it was expected Canada would follow suit.

Removal of the war-imposed one-cent tax on domestic letter rates would reduce the cost of mailing a letter to anywhere in Canada from four to three cents.

Government officials pointed out, however, that the postal rate tax was a budget matter and that any decision could be announced only by Finance Minister Abbott when he brings down the 1947 budget at the forthcoming session of parliament.

The one-cent tax originated in the First Great War and was reimposed early in the Second Great War after having been removed about 1930. At one time around the turn of the century Canada had a two-cent domestic letter rate, but this ultimately was increased to three cents.

Submersible Canoe Used Successfully Against Enemy

London, Jan. 16 (CP).—A 13-foot submersible canoe—cross between an Eskimo kayak and a Buck Rogers crash boat—was used "successfully" against enemy vessels from 1943 until the war's end, but the admiralty will not reveal deaths of the canoe's triumphs.

Pictures of the smallest underwater craft in the world, and the only one-man vessel of its type capable of resurfacing once it is submerged, has been permitted to appear in publications, but security still covers aspects of the craft and its work.

Forty-Mile Range

H. Q. A. Reeves, former British army infantry officer, who perfected the craft and acted as chief test pilot, was permitted to reveal these facts:

The motorized submersible canoe is fully decked, fitted with two electric motors operating a single screw. It is 12 feet, 8 inches long with a beam of 27 inches. Fitted with ballast tanks, the vessel can partially be submerged to travel with only the operator's head above water or it can be totally submerged.

The vessel's cruising range is 40 nautical miles at a speed of 3½ knots.

The pilot wears a heavy rubber suit fitted with an oxygen mask permitting submersion of 90 minutes. Under water, the vessel travels at a normal depth of 30 feet but can dive lower and at 50 feet can loop the loop.

Reeves said the canoes were standard equipment on many British submarines — more than 300 were used during the war — and without amplification added that they also had been used by the Americans.

In the actions which he termed "successful" the submarine would surface releasing the canoe through a torpedo vent. The canoe would approach enemy vessels—frequently in port—place an explosive of an undisclosed nature on the hull and withdraw before the explosion. Deeves said the canoes carried explosives capable of sinking a vessel up to 8,000 tons.

No admiralty communique has ever attributed damage to enemy vessels to the canoes and admiralty intelligence are silent on the subject—but they do not deny Reeves' account.

Details Likely On Friday

Ottawa, Jan. 16 —(CP)— Current Dominion - Provincial taxation discussions are aimed not only at satisfying New Brunswick, Saskatchewan and Manitoba, but also any other province which may later enter into tax negotiations with federal authorities, it was learned today.

A source in close touch with the discussions said that the objective of agreements with all nine provinces was being kept in mind in efforts to equalize the $15 per capita subsidies offered New Brunswick, Saskatchewan and Manitoba with the $21 per capita subsidies offered British Columbia and Prince Edward Island.

The source sai dan equalization formula now was under study, but details of it likely would not be disclosed until the termination of current talks, possibly Friday.

U.S. Moves to Ease Hunger, Industrial Distress in Italy

Washington, Jan. 16 (CP)—Two quick moves by the United States to alleviate hunger and industrial distress in Italy were viewed by diplomats today as America attempts to strengthen the hand of Premier Alcide de Gasperi and middle-of-the-road Christian Democratic party.

The two actions took this form:

1. The export-import bank, under state department urging, announced it will set aside $100,000,000 "to restore and expand specific segments of Italian industry."

2. The war department disclosed it was diverted six Germany-bound shiploads of wheat to ports in Italy, where U.N.R.R.A. will distribute it in famine areas.

British War Brides Of Boston Like New Homeland

Boston, Jan. 16 (AP).—British war brides of Boston like their new homeland so much they want their folks to settle here.

"We have no 'brides of despair' in this state—in fact they're all boosting the U.S.A.," an official of the English-speaking Union said.

Mrs. Henry Jackson, Jr., who made the statement, is chairman of the organization's Overseas Wives Committee, and has kept track of more than 1,000 brides in the last two years.

Referring to news stories in the English papers of dejected British brides said to be stranded in New York, she said "We know of only one homesick girl here who wants a divorce, and we hope to talk her out of it."

A happy, chattering group gathered for a weekly tea party and baby shower, heartily agreed with Mrs. Jackson.

"Those unhappy New York brides you hear about probably rushed into marriage just to get a free trip to America," suggested Mrs. Arthur M. Wells, who arrived two years ago—and paid her own passage.

"I love it here," she said, "and though I'd like to go back for a visit, I'm afraid I'm spoiled for living there."

Mrs. Stanley Staskawicz doesn't even want to go back and hopes to persuade her widowed mother to leave her Cardiff, Wales, home. "We expect her in May," said Mrs. Staskawicz.

A neighbor, Mrs. Chester Le Brocquy, has a sister married to a Canadian veteran "and she's just as happy as I am!"

CITY SAVED MONEY

Chatham, Jan. 16 —(CP)— A little "underground" work in Chatham saved the city a great deal of money during the recent stormy weather, Fred Biette, chairman of the public utilities commission said Wednesday, reporting on underground hydro-electric cables. He said the scheme is to be expanded when materials are available.

General Motors And Chrysler Mum on "Cuts"

Detroit, Jan. 16 (AP). — The Ford Motor Company reduced automobile prices yesterday and touched off immediate speculation in trade circles as to whether the action would be followed by its competitors in the low-priced field.

The competitors—General Motors for Chevrolet and Chrysler for Plymouth—withheld comment.

The cuts, ranging from $15 to $50 on the company's Ford models only, were the first to be announced by any automobile manufacturer since the war. They were made in the face of repeated statements elsewhere in the industry that prices probably would go still higher before they could be reduced. The Ford announcement said the company hoped to reduce prices further.

Youthful Henry Ford II, 29-year-old president of the Ford Company, in announcing the reductions said they were designed as the "shock treatment" needed to "halt the insane spiral of mounting costs and rising prices and to restore a sound base for the hopeful period of post-war production we are now entering."

Officials of the United Automobile Workers Union (C.I.O.), who have announced plans for a wage increase drive aimed at hourly raises of 23½ cents throughout the industry, generally deferred comment. Ford said the union had been advised in advance of the cut, and he expressed the hope the workers' organization would "help maintain these lower prices". He added:

"We hope that our suppliers, our employees, and our other economic partners will back, each to his own ability, our attempt to return to the economic pattern which has helped to make America great, — the principle that higher wages and a higher standard of living for all depend upon lower costs and lower prices through increasingly efficient large-scale production."

TRANSPORT STRIKE CAUSES DWINDLING MEAT SUPPLY IN LONDON

Rapid dwindling of stocks of point foods and unrationed meats like sausages and meat pies have resulted from the transport strike in London. Here a harassed retailer in a South London suburban area makes a gesture as if he was to say, "I'm sorry, but I can't help it." He has only a few meat pies to sell and can't possibly satisfy even a fraction of his customers who formed a long queue.

Price Ceilings, Vertical Control Cited by Lumbermen as Major Reasons for Lumber Shortages

By SHANE MacKAY
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 16 —(CP)— Price ceilings and "vertical control" by many large corporations were cited today as major reasons for the shortage of lumber in independent Canadian yards.

On one point lumbermen and government officials agree: Lumber output is not being hammered through normal peacetime outlets in sufficient quantity — despite an estimated production of 5,000,000,000 board feet, highest since 1914.

Most lumbermen advocate decontrol as the only measure for what they describe as a worsening situation. Officials blame shortages partly on "wide open" non-essential building, now in the hands of municipalities, and partly on improper distribution.

Many companies, officials said, produce and market their produce in large quantities. They sell to contractors who will take large orders rather than to minor builders who construct the bulk of Canada's houses.

Only Alternative Claim

Lumbermen retort that this is their only alternative under price control regulations. They cannot afford to sell to small retailers and builders whose orders are not worth the narrow margin of profit — or loss — involved.

"Canadian lumber price control is made possible only by the great premiums obtainable from export," said W. J. LeClair, secretary-manager of the Canadian Lumbermen's Association.

"With an uneconomic controlled price in Canada, both producers and wholesalers are driven into export markets to keep in business. Where formerly only a comparatively few so-called exporters acted as intermediaries in this trade, now every wholesaler must have a share in it to keep in business."

Lumbermen say some of the increased output is that of "fly-by-night" produce.

It's a matter for conjecture when the situation will ease sufficiently for the small buyer to be able to obtain lumber at his neighborhood yard. Government officials said it would improve when producers distributed their output more equitably between small and large consumers. They predicted a dark future for the industry if small retailers were driven to selling substitutes.

Giants of 500,000 Years Ago Ancestors of Modern Man?

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE

New York — Man's ancestors date back 500,000 years to giants —hulking, beetle-browed fellows subject to kingsize toothaches— and man's evolution apparently ran just opposite to that of animals.

This is the story told mutely by the bones and teeth of the three earliest-known primitive humans yet discovered, in a find made by G. H. R. von Koenigswald, young Dutch paleontologist, who recently reached the United States after years in the Orient.

The fossils of these giant men— two from Java and one from China—are 500,000 years old, possibly 200,000 years older than any human remains previously found.

The huge teeth of the giants are the clue, Dr. von Koenigswald said, that in evolution man became smaller, rather than growing from small to larger specimens as modern animals did. The giants had huge jaws and teeth but small brain capacity. When the size of jaws and teeth decreased and brain capacity increased, man developed human faculties — particularly those of speech and ability to make implements which gave him superiority over animals.

Dr. von Koenigswald, a prisoner of war in Java for 30 months made his discoveries before the war in river gravel beds of central Java and in Chinese drug stores. The teeth of the China giant came from the drug stores, where they were sold medicinally as "dragon's teeth".

Pending further study, Dr. von Koenigswald will not hazard guesses about the exact size or appearance of the giant men. But, he said, judging from the jawbone, they were "large all over".

The oldest Java giant, named meganthropus, was so large, that the previous oldest-known men, Pithecanthropus erectus, Pekin man, and Heidlberg man, "were elegant and dwarfish in comparison", he said. The jaw of the Java meganthropus is of the size of a large gorilla jay, and that of the China giant, named gigantopithesus, was still larger.

Medieval suits of armor indicate that modern man is larger than the knights of centuries ago, but their smaller size probably was due to diet and other conditions, Dr. van Koenigswald said. Modern man now is growing larger due to better diet.

The remains of the giant men and a treasure of other fossils, hailed as the world's outstanding and most valuable collection of fossil man, has just arrived at the American Mureum of Natural History, after being hidden under the noses of the Japanese in Java during the war.

Briefcase With $5,000 Returned to Owner

Montreal, Jan. 16 (CP)—Aime Clouthier of Ste. Adele, Que., who absent-mindedly placed his brief case containing $5,000 on a night club table and later discovered it was missing, got it back yesterday, money and all.

Clouthier lost the money early in an east-end club Aime Brouillette, a guard at Bordeaux jail reported to police with the brief case. He said he picked it up at the club after owner apparently had disappeared.

William Jewitt, Slayer of Mother, Found Insane

Windsor, Jan. 16 (Special)— William Jewitt grinned when he told pyschiatrists that he killed his mother with a hammer because he loved her and didn't want to hurt her, they reported Wednesday to a jury which decided in 15 minutes at his murder trial that the 17-year-old youth was and is insane. Mr. Justice E.R.E. Chevrier ordered the Leamington slayer held in custody for later transfer to a mental institution.

The boy loved both his father and his mother and felt sure that they loved him, but he thought that everybody outside his home was laughing at him. He was obsessed about the pimples on his face, thought that he was funny to look at and a weakling, but he was ordinary in appearance, and had ordinary strength for his age, the jury was told during 2 1-2 hours' testimony by two psychiatrists, Dr. C. S. Tennant, superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at Penetanguishene, and Dr. D. O. Lynch superintendent of the Ontario Hospital at St. Thomas.

Sudden Murder Impulse

Jewitt decided to kill himself and his mother after he went to the movies on Dec. 6 last year he told police early on the morning of Dec. 7 that when he got home, five minutes before his mother, "lots of ideas were running through my mind." He intended to kill himself with a knife, and impulse to kill his mother came upon him suddenly. "I didn't want her to grieve for me when I ended my life," he explained to police.

As his mother entered the kitchen he struck her in the doorway with a hammer he had picked up. "I wish I hadn't hit her," he said, "but I kept on hitting her because I loved her and I didn't want her to suffer or be a cripple. I felt horrible. Afterward, I ran all over the house, thinking it was a nightmare."

Tried to Drown Self

Jewitt was excluded from the courtroom at the request of Keith Laird, defense counsel, when the two psychiatrists testified about the examination they made of him on Dec. 11. They reported that the boy told them he had run away in October and tried then to kill himself with a knife and to drown himself in the Detroit River. He felt that he had brought disgrace on his family by running away and he did not want his mother to suffer again because of him.

"When talking of his mother he would grin while telling of killing her and how he had done it because he loved her," said Dr. Lynch. "He expressed wrong emotions. He smiled when he should have been showing sadness."

The boy started to withdraw within himself about two years ago. "He felt that teachers were laughing at him in school and that the students felt he was queer," Dr. Tennant testified. "He said he felt inferior to other students and to his twin brother Jack. When he heard other students laughing he thought they were laughing at him He thought that every one on the street was looking at him and laughing at him."

Lengthy Hearings By Commission Are Concluded

Toronto, Jan. 16 —(CP)— The royal commission inquiring into forestry resources in Ontario, after investigations starting last summer, and covering thousands of acres of Ontario forest lands in every type of transportation, today will hear briefs and recommendations at its final session.

Headed by Maj.-Gen. [illegible] Kennedy, the commission has held hearings at Cochrane, Sault Ste. Marie, Port Arthur, Kenora, Fort Frances, Geraldton, North Bay, Ottawa, Pembroke, London and Toronto.

Almost 200 briefs have been submitted to the commissioners, but in some cases the word "brief" is misleading. One of the "briefs" contained 112 pages of fine print, including several legislative acts. Observers estimated this classic example of the brief was 150,000 words long— the length of three short novels.

Many and varied have been the modes of travel employed by the commission, from the modern aircraft to plain ordinary walking, and by these means members covered 150,000 miles.

At the conclusion of today's session, the public part of the commission will come to an end. Out of all the discussion and evidence they must now form a report and make recommendations.

Proposed Raises Not High Enough Say Footballers

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, —(CP)—Britain's professional soccer players aren't a bit happy over proposals from the Football League management for pay increases and it is likely they will turn down the offer at a Jan. 20 meeting of players.

Soccer is booming and players feel their pay isn't commensurate with the times.

"It isn't good enough,", said James Fay, secretary of the players' union, when the league suggested the following increases £1 (4) a week for players of the basic wage of £5 or more, and 10 shillings a week for those earning less than £5; maximum wages to be £11 in winter and £9 in summer.

"The players aren't going to be satisfied with a maximum which is not 50-per -cent increase on pre-war wages," Fay said. The union demanded maximum of £12 and minimum of £7 and £5.

Professional football is recognized by the ministry of labor as an important part of the entertainment industry—movies, theatres, horse racing and motorcycle speedway racing. It gives a top-claiss performer employment for an average 12 years— provided he escapes serious injury.

Ian Coster, sport columnist for the London Evening Standard, is in sympathy with the players and has dug up a few statistics to bolster their point.

Other Increases

Quoting from labor ministry estimates, he shoys that the adult worker in all other industries in Britain has received a general wage increase of 65 per cent since 1938 and more than 7,000,000 workers in 14 divisions of industry have received £2,561,000 ($10,244,000) extra in weekly pay envelopes for the first 10 months of 1946—a rise in less than a year of 33 1-3 per cent.

In comparison, Coster points out that apart from an increase in the maximum wage of a footballer to £9 for a short period after the First World War (when there was no summer wage,) the maximum saleiasre..Ap3 SHRD maximum salaries had been £8 in winter and £6 in summer the 20s—until this season when £10 was agreed on.

Only a few players received the maximum—"the bulk are expected to exist on pittance," he said.

Arguments in favor of the players are that the gates are larger than ever—nearly 1,000,000 a week attend games—and clubs now get 1s. 2d instead of 10d., from the minimum price of admission—an increase of 25 per cent.

"My advice to the professional footballers is for them to stick out for their demands," Coster says. "Let them insist on being put on the same basis as other trades."

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 16 (CP)— Health minister Kelly of Ontario said here yesterday that the Ontario Department of Health planned to set up a small hospital in Toronto to try to cure alcoholics. He inspected the Meyer Memorial Hospital's new department for alcoholics opened last May.

TWIN BROTHERS CELEBRATE

London, Jan. 16 —(CP)— Twin brothers will celebrate their "7th birthday Saturday, but on different continents—and under different names. One is Antonius Chikrikoudes, a farmer on the Island of Hydra, 80 miles from Athens in Greece, and the other Thomas Peters, a restaurant worker of London, who changed his name from Anthanastius Chikikoudes, when he came to Canada in 1920.—

'Navy Eyes' For Half-Blind Civilians

(By William LaVarre, Condensed from The Baltimore Sun)

Until recently, a person who suffered the loss of an eye had only two choices—neither of them a happy one. He could wear a black eye patch. Or he could pick through a tray of glass eyes and find as close a match as possible for his good eye. But even the best-matched glass eye fooled no one; it was almost immovable.

Now the Navy has developed a revolutionary plastic eye, made to order for the individual — an eye that moves naturally and is extraordinarily realistic in appearance.

A wartime shortage touched off the drive for this new development. For generations glass eyes had been manufactured in Germany and Czechoslovakia. Both the Army and Navy had sent their one-eyed veterans to civilian oculists or to glass eye importers. By 1944 the supply of glass eyes was running low. The Army secured the services of the very small number of American glass-eye painters and turned to the development of a plastic replica.

• •

But at the U.S. Naval Medical Centre at Bethesda, Md., a naval staff dentist, Lieut. Commander Phelps Murphey, followed a different tack. "No two people have the same kind of eyes," he reasons. "False eyes should be made to order." Commander Murphey listed the defects of the standard glass eye—defects others had taken as inevitable ever since 1851 when the first false eyes were imported into this country. The stock eye was a hollow glass shell, deeply concaved in the back. All too often, under sudden temperature changes, these fragile glass shells "exploded" with painful results. Also, the false eye was all but rigid.

Murphey refused to accept lack of movement as inevitable. He had seen many an eye casualty try a glass eye, only to give it up in disgust and wear a black patch instead.

Murphey teamed up with another Navy specialist, Lieut. Leon Schlosberg, who headed the medical illustrating department of the Navy Medical School. Together — after their long hours of official duty—they spent the nights "cooking with plastics." After months of work they developed a hand-tailored eye of acrylic plastic — hand painted to a perfect match for the wearer's normal eye. Most important, the plastic eye moved freely in unison with its natural mate.

• •

The new eye had other advantages. Glass eyes became etched by eye fluids after a year's use. Such worn eyes—standing motionless as they did—were in constant friction with the moving "eye stump" behind them. If worn too long, they produced dangerous irritations.

Murphey's technique was developed further by a team of Navy dentists and eye specialists. First, an exact impression of the empty eye socket and its muscle tissues is taken by the same method dentists use in making the original mold for a set of false teeth. From this a negative mold is made of dental "stone." Then the same liquid plastic dentists use for false dentures is formed in this mold. To give the eye lifelike qualities under adverse lighting, it is treated with a fluorescent substance which makes it reflect light in a manner similar to a natural eye.

The medical artist paints, on a fine quality paper an iris and pupil which perfectly match the color and pattern of the patient's remaining eye. This disc of paper is slipped into a depression in the synthetic eyeball. A liquid plastic permanently seals it in place. Blood vessels are accurately penned with permanent red pigment around the outer contours of the false eye. Delicate shades of blue and yellow are brushed over the plastic until the synthetic eye exactly simulates the shade of white of the natural eyeball. A layer of clear plastic is then processed over the face of the eye. Polished with dental tools, the new eye fits perfectly, moves up and in unison with the movement of the natural eye.

Striving for the utmost refinemetn of reality, the Navy even gives the veteran a second eye made with an enlarged black pupil, for night use.

• •

The Navy's experiments have been carried out under the direction of Commander John V. Niiranen and backed up by the enthusiasm of Capt. C. V. Rault, commanding officer of the Naval Dental School. Their fruitfulness was demonstrated recently. Each casualty was asked while he wore a temporary glass eye. "Which would you rather have lost—one eye or one hand?" They looked at their faces in the mirror and most of them replied. "One hand."

But a week after a "Navy eye" had been made for each, he was asked the same question. Most of the men answered, "One eye!"

Today dental officers trained in ocular restoration at Bethesda have established other eye-making centres at San Diego and Philadelphia. Other men, who have been similarly trained, have returned to civilian life and are beginning to make the same technique available for the civilian half blind.

The new eye is not inexpensive. But thousands will welcome it because it doesn't break, because it doesn't get etched or faded, and most of all because it looks and moves like a natural eye.

Frank Battaglia One of Boxing's Gamest Fighters

By ALAN VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Winnipeg (CP)—You won't find his name listed in boxing records as world's champion but for Winnipeg's money Frank Battaglia, now 36 and living in Minneapolis, still curly-haired, unspoiled and unmarked, was the middleweight king of the 1930s.

Go back to New York on the night of Jan. 13, 1933, and you'll find Canadian boxing fans, and especially those in Winnipeg, glued to their radios as a sports commentator rattles through round 12:

"A right under the heart hurt Jeby, but he fired rights and lefts to the Canadian's head. The crowd is roaring for the referee to stop the bloody encounter but doesn't intervene. The Canadian is battered across the ring. Blinded in one eye, he holds on tightly until referee Britton calls a halt and awards Ben Jeby a technical knockout over Canada's Frankie Battaglia after one minute and 46 seconds of the 12th round."

So it was that Winnipeggers, shooting for their first world's title, watched or heard their Frankie Battaglia, one of boxing's gamest, go down following a great display of sportsmanship and courage.

Battaglia, who became a fur farmer in the United States after hanging up his gloves, had worked hard for this title shot. He held a one-round triumph over Ben Jeby about a year before. Frankie opened strongly in the title bout but a wild left hook by Jeby in the second round burst a blood vessel under the Manitoban's right eye and Jeby played on the eye throughout the entire 12 rounds as Battaglia staggered blindly around the ring.

Four years later at Seattle, having defeated all challengers, Battaglia got another crack at the middleweight crown, then held by Freddie Steele.

Battaglia's eye had not bothered him during his four-year comeback but by some strange fate Steele hit him on exactly the same spot during the first round and Frankie was unable to see. That fight ended in the third round. The Italian-Canadian continued fighting until 1937.

Frankie Battaglia was born in Winnipeg, Sept. 13, 1910. His father, Nunzio, then known as the "Banana King" of Winnipeg, did much to encourage Frankie on his way up in the fight game. His mother, as do all mothers, worried.

"I hated the idea of his being battered about," she said. Frankie proved he could take care of himself and his mother became his staunchest supporter.

Young Battaglia started his ring career working out at the O. B. U. gymnasium in Winnipeg and in 1928 won the Manitoba lightweight championship. The same year, Canadian Olympic trials were held in Montreal where Frankie lost in the lightweight final. The decision was "so bad," the selection committee decided to send the youngster to the Olympics at Amsterdam. There he lost in the semi-finals.

Back in Canada in 1929, he turned professional as a welterweight under the guidance of his uncle, Jack Cancilla. Later, Ernie Fliegel of Minneapolis took over Frankie's contract and brought him along slowly.

Twice-Tough Iron New U.K. Process

London (CP)—A new process which doubles the toughness of cast iron and enables it to compete with more resilient metals was announced to the British Cast Iron Research Association by its president, Dr. Harold Hartley.

Association officials said the process overcame the metal's brittleness and permitted its use in crankshafts and can shafts of internal combustion engines. However, the process has not yet been applied generally in industry.

London Society Dresses up For Pacific "1860"

London, Jan. 13 (CP) — London society still loves to dress up and wartime austerity is gradually giving way to flowing evening dresses and white ties and toppers.

"First nights" are always dress-up occasions, with the opening of Noel Coward's new show, "Pacific 1860", a sparkling example Domestic and imported models kept London gossip columnists chattering for days.

Mrs. Walter Payne, wife of a former manager of the Drury Lane Theatre Royal, appeared in a dress especially designed by Schiaperelli for the occasion — strapless, bustle-backed, striped in shocking-pink and black taffeta, with a cameo brooch pinned to the black velvet bodice.

A Marcel Rochas model, long-sleeved, had a black bodice and skirt striped in parchment and black chenille satin ribbon and cyclamen velvet ribbon.

Diana Wynyard, the actress, wore a short black velvet dress under her ermine coat, the low square neckline filled with a strip of ermine. Another black velvet, floor-length dress, hips well padded, had a strapless bodice edged with white lace.

Mrs. Anthony Eden appeared in a red crepe dress, black lamb coat and diamond dog-collar. Many women wore the latter and large cluster earrings were also popular.

There were mink coats galore, though evening coats included a full-length quilted gold satin model and stiff white satin coolie jacket with turquoise sequins about the neckline.

Long black evening gloves were popular, the backs covered in eyelet holes embossed in silver sequins.

Toronto-born Bea Lillie (Lady Peel), the comedienne, wore a black evening dress. But it was a bitterly cold night, and under it she warded off chilblains with a pair of old green felt boots with lambskin turnups.

BUFFALO BISONS ON UPWARD PATH IN LEAGUE RACE

Move Into Second Place by Downing Indianapolis Indians

(By The Canadian Press)

Buffalo Bisons are on the upward path in the American Hockey League's Western Division.

Buffalo was in fourth place a few weeks back. Then they moved into third, overtaking Pittsburgh Hornets. Now they are tied with Indianapolis Caps for second place in that division.

The Bisons moved into second-place by Downing visiting Indianapolis 5-3 last night. Tommy Cooper and Jerry Brown paced the Bisons with two markers each and Jimmy McMahon added a fifth.

Gerry Couture, Enio Sclisizzi dna Bob Weist scored, for the losers.

Both teams now are only six points behind division-leading Hershey.

Hershet, meanwhile, scored twice in the last frame on tallies by Frank Mario to shut out visiting Philadelphia 2-0. Philadelphia played under the direction of Phile Hergesheimer, the league's leading scorer who has replaced Herb Gardiner as acting coach. Gardiner has gone scouting for the Phils; Babe Pratt, former Boston Bruins star who was sent down to Hershey this week, helped with Mario's first tally.

Four goals for Cleveland and two for St. Louis in a wild last-period scoring spree climaxed Cleveland's 5-3 trouncing of the Flyers as Pete Leswick, Hank Goldup, Jimmy Drummond and Johnny Holota scored for the Eastern Division-leading Barons and Billy McComb and Eddie Olson scored for the losers. Centre Fred Thurier notched the Barons' first goal.

Pittsburgh visited the Springfield Coliseum for the first-time this season last night and handily downed the Indians 5-2 on counters by Bill Benson, Pete Backor, Peanuts O'Flaherty, Armand Lemieux and Al Sloan. Eddie Kobussen and Bill Gooden notched the Indians goals.

LLOYD MANGRUM FAVORED TO WIN

Richmond, Calif., Jan. 16 (AP)—Leading United States golfers with few top-flight players missing, tee off today in the first round of the 72-hole, $10,000 Richmond open tournament.

Favorites as the 153 qualifiers took off in the chase for top money of $1,500 included such big names as United States open champion Lloyd Mangrum; Professional Golfers' Association title-holder and leading money winner Ben Hogan; and two former P. G. A. leaders, Vic Ghezzi and Bob Hamilton.

Defending Champion Tony Penna, whose 280 won last year, could not be counted out, although the experts believed his score would be bettered this time.

Other solid contenders included Harold (Jug) McSpaden, who set the court record of 64 last year. Par for the Richmond course is 71.

Baseball Bonus Plan Moves Step Nearer Enactment

(By The Canadian Press)

A baseball bonus plan, whereby any free agent (a player not under contract) who signs a player's contract with a major or minor club in consideration of a bonus or promise of bonus, shall be classified as a bonus player throughout the remainder of his baseball career, moved a step nearer enactment yesterday as Commissioner A. B. Chandler's advisory council meeting at Cincinnati reached agreement on the measure and sent it to the minor leagues for approval.

The advisory council made only slight changes in the bonus provision approved earlier by each of the major leagues.

St. Louis Browns of the American League announced yesterday that Jeff Heath, native of Fort William and a frequent hold-out in past seasons, became the first player to sign and return his 1947 contract.

Sale of Tom Ferrick, right-handed pitcher to the Washington Senators, was announced yesterday by the St. Louis Browns.

James T. (Jimmy) Skeckard of the famous Chicago Cub "S" outfield died yesterday at Lancaster, Pa., as a result of head injuries suffered in a car accident Sunday. Sheckard roved the Chicago outfield with Jimmy Slagle and Frank Schulte from 1906 to 1916, backing up the equally famous Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance combination.

Golfer Sam Snead, who last year became the first American to win the British Open since Denny Shute turned the trick in 1933, is heading for South Africa next month to play Bobby Locke, Great Britain's leading money winner of the gold links, in a series of matches, it was announced at Chicago yesterday.

Chicago City Council yesterday authorized Mayor Edward J. Kelly to extend Chicago's official bid for the 1952 Olympic games. Kelly said the competition would be held in Soldier Field, "one of the largest stadiums in the world."

TRENTON FLYERS AGAIN DEFEAT BOMBERS BY 5-3

Both Sides Check Hard and Use Bodies With Telling Effect

Trenton Flyers flashing a consistent attack with hard checking and a bumping defence, maintained their undefeated record in the Intermediate "B" group at the Memorial Arena last night, staving off a desperate Mountain View Bomber squad to win their fourth straight victory by a 5-3 count.

The game was another of those boisterous jousts that have characterized the "B's" this season, with both sides checking hard and using their bodies with telling effect.

It was another goalies' night, with Bridgeman of the Flyers, and Wellstead of the Bombers, urning in sensational efforts. Wellstead outshone his opponent because he had much more work ot do and at times his efforts bordered on the spectacular. At one time he held off the flying Trenton attackers practically single-handed.

Bridgeman at the other end, turned in an outstanding chore and on not a few occasions outguessed the incoming Bomber forwards when they raced in to his doorstep.

Definitely Superior

Trenton was definitely superior on the night's play and the difference in the score is about the difference in the teams on last night's play. The Flyer team has an edge in polish and they have a hard-hitting defence which gives its goalie plenty of protection. The front lines skated miles going both ways and their back-checking was one of the factors in the victory. The Bombers were continually outlucked in front of the Trenton goal, or else their shots were off the target.

The game was tide at two-all at the end of the first period and rested at 4-3 at the end of the second. Flyers added another in the third to cinch the victory, but were hard pressed in the dying minutes of the game to hold off the desperate attacks of the Bombers.

Crawford Opens Scoring

Crawford, bespectacled Flyer defenceman, opened the scoring at the two-minute mark in the first period when he tobied in Sargent's pass who is turn had taken the rubber from linemate Brackenbury.

Ouellette, fast-skating Bomber forward evened the count when he scored one of the prettiest goals of the game on a breakaway. The diminutive French-Canadian raced down centre ice, rushed in on Bridgeman, faked a shot that drew the goalie out of position and then quietly sidestepped and poked in the rubber.

Trenton raced back to the attack and Bullock put the Flyers one up at the seven - minute mark. Flyers again tied the score after 14 minutes of play when Casselman dunked the rubber with assists going to Ouellette and McNab.

Had Narrow Escapes

Sargent and Hallett scored for Flyers in seven minutes of the second half with Sherman taking Elliott's pass for the Bombers' lone tally of the period. Play surged up and down the ice in the third stanza with both goalies having narrow escapes. Flyers finally cashed in when Hallett took Martell's long flip to race in on Wellstead and score the final goal of the game. Eight penalties were handed out by Referee Speedy St. Louis.

Tricky Nicky Sargent was the outstanding player for the winners with Brackenbury, Miller, Crawford, Norris, Martell and Hallett turning in stellar efforts. For the Bombers, Wellstead was the hero of the piece while up front Ouellette, McNab, Casselman, Sherman and Elliott turned in good efforts.

The teams:

Trenton Flyers: goal, Bridgeman; defence, Crawford, Middleton; centre, Sargent; wings, Miller, Brackenbury; subs: Norris, Hallett, Martell, Wade, Bullock, Swant, Ault, Robertson.

Mountain View Bombers: goal, Welstead; defence, Sherman, Brant; centre, Casselman; wings, Ouellette, McNab; subs: Elliott, Rutherford, Ellse, Nadon, Dennis, Doherty.

BRANDON ELKS DEFEAT OSHAWA

Brandon, Man., Jan. 16—(CP)—Brandon Elks, currently atop the Manitoba Junior A Association, turned back Oshawa Generals, second-place squad in the O.H.A. junior A circuit, 3-1 here last night to make a clear sweep of their two-game exhibition series.

The score in the first game Monday also was 3-1 and tonight, as then, Oshawa counted first.

Bauer got it at the 13 - minute mark but Gord Watters tied it up before the period ended and Bud Evans and Ray Manson added second-period goals. Eighteen penalties were handed out to bring the series total to 31.

Leo Curik drew a match misconduct penalty in the first period when he tried to push referee Vic Lindquist in protesting a penalty to his teammate Cameron. Jimmy Mann of Brandon got five minutes for fighting.

Best for Brandon were McDiarmid in goal, Manson and Evans, while Bauer, Cerisino and McPherson were the pick of the losers.

New York, Jan. 16 —(CP)—Eddie Egan's second year as chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission can be put down as a financial success... the Athletic Commission's financial report shows that the state revenue from the allied trades nearly doubled last year...during 1946 the gross receipts from 892 boxing and wrestling shows brought $7,771,031 into the fold and the state's share, derived mainly from taxes and licence fees, amounted to $469,249...

This figure represents an amazing inccrease of 91.2 per cent over 1945 when 673 shows throughout the state produced a total revenue of $245,321...in New York City 599 shows including numerous small clubs, Madison Square Garden, and the three big outdoor championship affairs at Yankee Stadium, drew a gross gate of $6,622,527 and produced $333,245 in taxes ....Buffalo held its place as the biggest upstate boxing centre with a gross take of $554,700...

Punching The Bag

Billy Conn, the former heavyweight contender who has buried himself in his friendly hometown surroundings in Pittsburgh since last June's fiasco with Champion Joe Louis, dropped into New York yesterday...asked if he was considering a ring comeback, he told sports writers "I have no such intentions."

—Later, when matchmaker Nat Rogers of the 20th century sporting club put the query to him in the presence of the sport writers, Billy the Kid said: "I haven't made up my mind." The impression he left: Conn is through with boxing just as he announced after losing his second challenge match to the champion...

Sports Post For Tunney

Rumors are around, following Gene Tunney's formal visit with President Truman, that the former heavyweight champion may be appointed president to a new government post probably supervisor of a national athletic program...factors pointing to some sort of an athletic setup, either supervised or aided by the government are: the president's keen interest sports; scandal; anxiety in Congress over the state of health of United states youth; and a proposed $12,000,000 National Memorial Stadium to be built in Washington, D.C....

Glass and Plastic Boats

The 37th United States motor boat show, first since 1941, has a variety of interesting craft ranging from the $25,000 luxury 40-footers with galleys that can be converted into bars, to the $38 aluminum dinghy...one novelty is a hull of glass. Others are made of steel, aluminum, magnesium and various types of plastic...

Build Up Strength And Energy to Guard Against Colds—Flu

Many Persons Taking Syntona Say They Have Had Fewer Colds, Rids System of Acids and Poisons. Improves Action of Stomach, Liver and Bowels. Helps Throw Off Lingering After-Effects.

If you are unable to throw off the after effects of colds, flu or grippe you are probably rundown and need a good tonic like Syntona to improve the action of the stomach, increase appetite, promote elimination of excess acids and poisonous waste matter, and to purify the blood.

Syntona contains 12 medicinal ingredients in a perfectly balanced formula to give the best of results and hundreds who have used this new medicine state that they have never taken anything like it before. Mrs. Jennie Rouse, of Elmira, says:

"I was run down, had a weak, sickly stomach and felt so nervous that the least thing startled me. I had pains through my side and chest and seemed to have pains through my joints and muscles. I'd get severe colds and didn't seem to be able to get rid of them.

"I started taking Syntona and right from the first my food began to digest better. The aches and pains went away and now it is wonderful how different I feel. The nervous, irritable feeling is all cleared up and I haven't had a cold since. I am certainly pleased with Syntona and I will use it whenever I am feeling rundown."

BOOM TOWN GIVES SEAWEED WORKER HOME AND JOB

British Bomb-Blitzed Families Find Post-War Employment on Wild Argyllshire Coast

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Dunstaffnage, Scotland (CP)—This is Scotland's post-war "boom-town."

Built on the wild Argyllshire coast for workmen servicing convoys that sheltered in Loch Etive behind the Isle of Mull, Dunstaffnage now is "overflow" housing for crowded Oban and its people earn their living in a seaweed factory a few miles away.

Before the war the townsite historic home of Scottish clansmen, had only a few farms and a strip of waste land. Then, in 1942, the Admiralty decided to move in a floating dock. Shipping casualties were heavy and the wild, hilly country afforded enemy planes less oportunity for damage than city ports.

More than 1,000 Royal Marines were put on the job. Bulldozers levelled the muddy ground and in a few months more than 200 homes were built.

To make Dunstaffnage as self-contained as possible, a canteen recreation hall, schools and church were provided. Across Loch Etive in the hills around Benderloch a dam was constructed and water-pipes laid.

Blitz Victims' Haven

Tradesmen and workers of all kinds were brought in with their families, mostly from heavily bombed Portsmouth and Chatham districts. They found comfortable two and three-room apartments, with every modern convenience.

End off the war brought an end to the jobs because the dock was towed away but Oban had a serious housing shortage. The Admiralty gave the complete town to the municipality.

Next problem was to find jobs for the former war workers who wanted to stay in the highlands. A seaweed factory in the village of Melfort, south of Oban wanted to expand. Workers now travel back and forth by bus.

Today Dunstaffnage is one of the few west-coast settlements that has survived the peace. Its conversion of a derelict district into an industrial area has been so successful that many Argyll residents hope something similar can be done for the Highlands in general to reverse the depopulation trend of recent decades.

Britain Will Boost Beauty Aids 50 P.C.

London —(CP)— Regulations restricting the manufacture of toilet preparations for the home market are to be eased in Britain but manufacturers say that due to shortages there will be little increase in supplies.

Unrestricted licences are to be granted by the Board of Trade for the manufacture of permanent waving products, except cold wave lotions, and hair dyes. In most cases the proportion of supplies which manufacturers may place on the home market will be raised 50 per cent.

"Bottlemakers and container manufacturers are short of coal skilled workmen and materials and it is doubtful if the situation will improve for some time," a manufacturer said.

SAYS CANADA HOLDS KEY TO WORLD PEACE

Writer on Empire Affairs Urges Meeting of Dominion Ministers to Lay Basis of a World Union

By STUART UNDERHILL
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London (CP)—Britons who argue that the only way to avoid a third world war is to submerge national sovereignties in a world state have a supporter in Lionel Curtis, well-known writer on Empire affairs, who says the lead must come from Britain and the Dominions.

In a 66-page book entitled "War or Peace" he says that Britain alone now is incapable of Empire defence. He urges that the problem be discussed at a conference of dominions ministers who could be joined by representatives of other nations anxious to lay the foundations of a world union.

Curtis says the first practical steps must be taken by Britain, but in a closing chapter entitled "Canada's Century" in which he outlines the potentialities of the Dominion as a site for settlement, military training and a future world capital, he adds that the world looks to Canada for a lead.

The theory that Britain can defend all sectors of the empire is a "policy of make-believe," Curtis says, although dominion statesmen carefully avoid any reference to the problem.

"Dominion spokesmen have developed a habit of emphasizing their sovereign right to be consulted, and indeed to share in all decisions affecting peace and war. But as to their duty to share in the cost of defence in time of peace they have little to say."

Calls For Statement

Britain, he says, should make an immediate avowal of its inability to maintain the burden of defence, and "ask the dominion governments to appoint ministers to consider with those of the United Kingdom whether it is possible to create an authority competent to defend the Commonwealth as a whole, an authority which commands resources adequate to the task.

"Dominion governments should be asked to agree that the communication made to them should be circulated to the western powers of Europe, great and small with an indication that their presence with the British democracies in consultations to consult a common defence would be welcome."

While the United States would probably remain aloof at first, he says, "I have no doubt that when Americans saw that an international union of European and British democracies had for one or two generations maintained their common security from war, and had yet been able to leave the national governments in full and final control of their own domestic affairs, they would enter that union.

"It would then be strong enough to secure the peace of the world for all time. In that atmosphere of security states outside the union would surely reduce their armaments, acquire constitutional habits, and finally enter the union themselves."

Curtis devotes three pages of his slim book to describing British Columbia, "the best field for settlement still available." The dominions and particularly Canada are recommended as logical training grounds for defence forces, and Quebec as "the best spot on the face of the globe for the capital of an international state."

"In a word the twentieth century is Canada's century," he concludes. "She holds the key to the peace of the world. It is also the key to her own domestic problems. In her hand lies the destiny of her vast domain and also the fate of the five continents."

'Easy Come, Go' British Punters "Blow" Millions

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London —(CP)—The "easy come, easy go" philosophy, with lots of money floating around and nothing much to spend it on is raising the dickens with the anti-gambling campaigners.

Using 1945 figures—the latest on record—the British Churches' Committee on gambling complains that the gambling craze "constitutes a serious threat to moral welfare and national reconstruction."

Officials of the big greyhound racing tracks, now almost as big a betting drawing card as the "Sport Kings," don't deny business is booming. "Well over the 1938 figure" is their careful admission for attendances, but they claim there's been a drop since 1945.

"Things are getting back to normal," said one track director. "With the reduction in overtime and war bonuses, backers have less to spend."

These are the Churches' Committee's conclusions:—

Greyhounds—Bets on the "tote" in 1945 were almost £138,000,000 ($552,000,000) twice the 1944 figure and three times that of 1938. Bookies operating at the country's 109 tracks probably handled four-fifths that much, pushing total wagering on the dogs over the £250,000,000 mark.

Horses—From £200,000,000 in 1923, horse-race betting has jumped to between £275,000,000 and £325,000,000.

Minor Gambling Vast

Other forms of gambling—Football pools handle £60,000,000 to £70,000,000 yearly; slot machines take 10,000,000 to £20,000,000; and public lotteries another £5,000,000 to £10,000,000. pounds.

"These estimates," says the committee, "take no account of (1) the money spent on many minor forms of gambling; (2) the vaster sums gambled in those transactions in securities, commodities, and stocks and shares which are no more than wagers that prices will rise or fall before a given date."

"The money wagered on dogs alone in 1945 was equal to one-quarter of the gigantic American loan of £1,000,000,000," it moans. "The amount spent on drink is £530,000,000 on tobacco £685,000,000 and on food £1,414,000,000.

Greater London had the biggest gambling increase in 1945. Part of the boost came from the lifting of wartime restrictions which increased dog-racing days from 84 to 80. The tote at 20 London tracks marked up £69,451,000—more than double the 1944 figure and more than half the total, for all England, Scotland and Wales.

No wonder Hugh Dalton, Chancellor of the Exchequer is thinking of imposing a betting tax.

Canned Food Supply Nudges Record Mark

Hamilton, Ont. —(CP)—Canadian housewives will soon find a more abundant supply of canned fruits and vegetables available than at any time since the pre-war days as the result of a record-breaking 1946 food pack which is expected to go well over the 1,000,000,000-can mark.

Although all-time high volumes were packed in such items as tomato juice, green beans, peas, peaches, plums and apple juice, with near record volumes in corn, cherries and apricots according to an industry-wide review, there still will not be unlimited quantities of all food items available to Canadian households. Lower-than-average packs included whole tomatoes, pears and raspberries, the study showed.

Canned meat products and canned fish, including salmon, will still not be very plentiful, it was estimated, because of overseas commitments, but packs of soups, jams and marmalades, and vacuum-pack coffee were well above pre-war levels.

Despite material shortages and heavy demands resulting from bumper fruit and vegetable crops and from expansions in the canning industry, can manufacturers were able to fill all food container requirements, Gordon Mann, American Can Company general manager, said. The achievement, he added, was made possible by results of the wartime tin conservation program digging deeply into stockpile reserves and by diversion of metal from other types of containers.

AFRICA COUNCIL MEETS

Lusaka, Northern Rhodesia—(CP)—The African representative council of Northern Rhodesia recently held its inaugural meeting. Main function of the council, which consists of a secretary for native affairs and 29 members from the seven provinces, is to advise the governor of matters affecting the African population in Northern Rhodesia.

"DROWN" GAS BOMBS

Plymouth, England —(CP)—Loaded with gas bombs and high explosives which can only be destroyed by "drowning," the steamer Empire Lark will be towed to sea and sunk.

Safe Driving Trio Travel 118 Years Without Mishap

Toronto (CP)—Let anyone who blames vehicle accidents on "the other fellow" take a leaf from the notebooks of three Torontonians. Between them the trio has 118 accident-free years of driving, and one has covered more than 1,000,000 miles as a taxi driver since 1909.

John Webster, steamship agent, hasn't scratched a fender in 50 years' driving. His father's 1896 car was the fifth motor car in Toronto.

Thomas C. Ingrouille is the million-mile veteran of trips to and from his King Edward Hotel stand since 1909. His great mileage in all kinds of weather makes him Toronto police department's nominee for the city's safest driver.

Frank Brown has been driving a heavy truck for Canada Cartage Systems, Ltd., for 30 years—with no accidents, no scratches.

Though Mr. Webster said simply, "I've just been lucky," the other two prescribe mindfulness of "the other fellow" for safe driving.

"I work on the theory that all other drivers are crazy," said Cabbie Ingrouille, "so I'm prepared for anything they do. That's how I've avoided accidents."

"Let the other fellow have the road," is Mr. Brown's advice. Also, "It seems the younger fellows are always in a great hurry to get some place. I think the older man is steadier and therefore a better driver than the young man."

Indicative that accident-free driving is on the increase, however, is the Ontario Safety League's figure of 100 Toronto drivers and 33,000 in the whole province who have received its medal for one year's unblemished driving since the award was instituted 14 years ago. A total of 97 have received the medal annually since its inception. Awards for 1946 driving will be made in February.

HAIR-DO FOR TENANCY

London —(CP)—An advertiser for a house concluded his appeal by saying: "My wife, an experienced hairdresser, will gladly give careful attention to your wife's hair each week for a year in return for a key to the place."

Rally Round Family Club Mothers Urged

Montreal —(CP)— Women's clubs "are very good things but they should not be supported by mothers of growing families at the expense of time necessary to promotion of moral and physical development of their children," Sophie L. Elliot said in an address under the auspices of the City Improvement League and the Municipal Service Bureau.

Miss Elliot appealed to women to rally round the imperilled home, and bring family life and spirit back into fashion.

Efficient motherhood is essential to modern living "if we are to bring to healthful spiritual maturity the young of the nation."

Experts on child education proclaimed there is nothing to take the place of family life in the education of a child. Well-adjusted parents could give to their children a psychological sense of security which no other agency, however, efficient, could offer.

The child returning home from school should not be faced with the prospect of entering an empty house which upsets his sense of security.

Scientific progress during the last 100 years had lessened the duties of a housewife.

Consequently, claimed Miss Elliot, women have spent much of this free time in social activities.

"Women have left to men the responsibilities of life's cultural, financial, municipal and religious development. However, a few of the more headstrong stepped beyond conventional modes of behavior, and now they are allowed to use their brains for the betterment of man."

The burden of reclaiming the home and re-establishing it to its rightful place rests with the modern women as much as with the modern man.

"This is a heritage which modern women must support and cherish."

WHEAT FARMER

New Haven, Conn. —(CP)— Alex Shibicky, veteran left wing with the American Hockey League, in partnership with Neil Colville of the New York Rangers, purchased a thousand acre wheat farm near Winnipeg just a year ago for $57,000, all in cash. The boys brought in a bumper crop during the last summer.

Land of Promise

Few countries rate that term today. But Canada, with its established and expanding industries, its great developed and undeveloped natural resources, can look forward to the future with substantial confidence in continued progress.

From an investment viewpoint, there are certain situations in this land of promise which are especially interesting.

We shall be glad to discuss these with you personally—or by correspondence if you will write us.

"Yes . . . Sir Oliver! THERE WAS ROOM"

"The projectors of The Imperial Life thought, in view of the great amount of life insurance business done and to be done in the future, that there was room for another Canadian Life Insurance Company."

Sir Oliver Mowat, at the First Annual Meeting of The Imperial Life, 1898.

SIR OLIVER MOWAT, Prime Minister and Attorney General of Ontario, 1872 to 1896. First President of The Imperial Life.

IMPERIAL LIFE policyholders will smile at Sir Oliver's understatement. "Room for another Life Insurance Company" there certainly proved to be, as evidenced by The Imperial Life's position today: There is in force in the Company at the present time 1½ times as much insurance as there was in the whole of Canada with all companies at the time he spoke!

This year The Imperial Life Assurance Company will complete fifty years of business operations. The fiftieth Annual Report now being presented to policyholders and shareholders reveals a new peak in service and growth. Investments in Imperial Life policies by the public reached an all-time high, both in numbers of policies, and total amount purchased. The development of the Company over the past half-century is shown by the following comparison:

	End of Year 1906	End of Year 1926	End of Year 1946
Benefits Disbursed	$ 103,000	$ 3,236,000	$ 7,396,000
Assets to meet obligations to policyholders	3,332,000	40,124,000	137,567,000
Premiums and Interest in year	855,000	10,041,000	19,502,000
Insurance Purchased in year	2,930,000	37,110,000	60,786,000
Total Insurance In Force	19,254,000	218,230,000	437,339,000

SECURITY AND PROGRESS THROUGH HALF A CENTURY

Women's Activities

ST. ANDREW'S W.M.S.

The regular monthly meeting of St. Andrew's Women's Missionary Society was held in the church hall, on Tuesday afternoon, with the newly-elected president in the chair.

Mrs. McCullough asked for the prayers and co-operation of the members in undertaking the work of president, and hoped for interesting meetings in the year that lies ahead.

The treasurer reported the allocation for 1946 had been met with a small balance on hand.

Mrs. James Miller read the Scripture lesson and Mrs. Fleming led in prayer.

Mrs. H. S. Graham gave a very interesting and comprehensive resume of the first part of the new study book "Toward a Christian India". She said in part,

"India is a land of contrasts, with a variety of religions and races. Eighty-seven per cent of her people can neither read nor write and Indian contains one-fifth of the world's population.

It was decided that the next meeting would take the form of a pot-luck dinner to be in charge of Mrs. Baragar and her group.

Mrs. Hornsby closed the meeting with prayer, the members remaining for a social half-hour while refreshments were served by Mrs. J. Miller, Mrs. J. Hill, Mrs. H. S. Graham and Mrs. Fleming.

SHANNONVILLE UNITED CHURCH WOMAN'S AUX.

The January meeting of the W. A. of Shannonville United Church was held at the home of Mrs. K. R. Vivian on Thursday afternoon, with the new President, Mrs. Robert McFarlane, in charge and Miss Sara Stickney presiding at the piano. The meeting opened by singing the W.A. Theme song and with the use of the W.A. prayer repeated in unison.

Mrs. K. R. Vivian read the Scripture lesson and contributed thoughts explaining the Psalm just read. The president distributed talent money to the members, requesting that they make more out of it by increasing the amount as much as possible during the year. Eight members paid fees and the Group leaders drew the names of members for their respective groups.

After the closing hymn and benediction the hostess' and her assistants served refreshments.

HAZZARD'S W.M.S.

The ladies of Hazzard's W.M.S. held their first meeting of the New Year on the afternoon of January 8th.

After a brief worship service, the pastor, Rev. G. Patten, conducted the installation service, following which the President, Mrs. R. N. Broad, presided for the remainder of the meeting.

Mrs. M. Howard, past president, has been a very faithful and capable leader for the past three years. Her presentation of the chapter from the Study Book on India was interesting, the story centring on the desire for, and the results of Christian education of India's young people.

Mrs. A. Ketcheson closed the service with a prayer and the benediction.

EGGLETON W.M.S.-W.A.

Madoc Jct., —On Thursday afternoon the January joint meeting of Eggleton W.M.S. and W.A. took the form of a membership tea at the home of Mrs. Clarence Fitchett, with a good number in attendance.

The 1947 president, Mrs. Carl Brydges, (who had prepared the program), opened the meeting by reading a few thoughts for the New Year.

The Scripture Lesson was read by Mrs. C. Fitchett, and Mr. K. Stewart led in prayer. Three readings were given by Mrs. Harlow, "A Troubled World"; Mrs. Clarke "A New Year's Promise"; Mrs. M. Kirkey "Judge Not". Mrs. Bruce Stapley contributed a piano solo, which was greatly enjoyed.

The February meeting is to be at Mrs. Harry Clarke's home on the regular date; and a quilting is to be held at Mrs. Clarke's home on the first Wednesday in February.

Two more readings were given by Mrs. R. Danford "How to have a Happy New Year"; and Mrs. N. Wannamaker, "New Year's Wishes". A hymn and prayer by the president closed the meeting after which the hostess served dainty refreshments.

The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa —(CP)—How much food to have on hand is the biggest problem of the housewife who has been apointed head chef for the church banquet or club social. Whether she's managing the making of sandwiches, or the cooking of a three-course meal this problem of how much to prepare hangs heavy over her.

A group of "old hands" at this game of cooking for a large number of people has come up with a general list of amounts.

To serve 100 people: Six gallons of milk; 18 pounds of meat; 50 pounds of potatoes, four gallons of soup; three pounds of butter; six long loaves bread; 10 pounds of cheese; 18 pies.

Sandwiches: One large sandwich loaf cuts 65 slices; one small sandwich loaf cuts 20 slices; one large loaf requires one-half pound butter and three-quarters pound of filling.

Tea to serve 100: One pound tea, five gallons boiling water. Tie tea loosely in cheese cloth and place bag in a large kettle of boiling water. Cover tightly for five to eight minutes, but don't allow to boil. Remove the bag before serving.

Coffee to serve 100: 1 3-4 pounds of coffee, two eggs, one teaspoon salt, five gallons boiling water. Beat the egg and add the crushed shell and salt with half cup of boiling water. Boil gently for 15 or 20 minutes and remove coffee bag and the shells.

After the surfeit of holiday food it may be difficult to tempt the family with more simple and less expensive dishes. The secret lies in subtle seasoning whether it be a meat stew, an oven dish, or custard dessert. It is the flavor and aroma that coaxes the appetite.

Home economists of the consumer section, Dominion department of agriculture, offer certain rules which, if followed, give best results.

To hold the maximum flavor dried herbs such as savory sage celery leaves and thyme should be kept in a tightly-covered tin box and in a cool spot.

As dried herbs are several times stronger than fresh herbs they should not be added too generously.

As most flavorings are held in volatile aromatic oils therefore they should not be added until near the end of the cooking time of pot roast, stews or soups.

The best way to extend and hold their flavor is to add them them with a little of the cooking fat for sauces, to the fat in making a cake.

A blend in flavorings produces the most delectable flavors. Use a little more of one so it will be more pronounced and combine one of several with it.

BAN DISTURBS MERCHANTS

Toronto, Jan. 16 —(CP)— Merchants in the downtown area affected by new regulations on curb parking expressed concern yesterday that the ban will drive would-be customers away from the main business section and to other stores in outlying areas of the city or in the suburbs.

The new regulations forbid curb parking, except in the case of commercial vehicles which stop to load or unload in the area, during business hours.

HOW NOT TO FIGHT FIRES

Tokyo, Jan. 16—(AP)—Tokyo's smoke eaters yesterday staged their first post-war fire department day — a gallant show winding up with the firemen demonstrating how (not) to fight fires.

Two shacks were destroyed by flames despite the tons of water the firemen sprayed AT their targets and ON spectators.

Trumpets of Tutankhamen

One of the most romantic and unusual broadcasts in the history of radio was the blowing of the Trumpets of Tutankhamen, after thirty-four centuries of silence—an event which was hailed by one American paper as "Tut's Toots Tootle Round the World."

Rex Keating, in a recent BBC broadcast, described the exciting and mysterious "incidents" that accompanied the broadcast. It took six months to get the Museum authorities in Cairo to give their permission, and in the meantime the broadcast was widely publicized, and captured public imagination everywhere. The BBC arranged to relay it, and so did one of the big American radio networks, and a large number of European stations. Six days before the broadcast a British military bandsman was selected to blow the two trumpets, and he began to work out the various possible notes in daily rehearsals.

The broadcast was to take the form of an interview with Alfred Lucas—the man whose life work has been the restoration of hundreds of objects found in Tutankhamen's Tomb. Then the "incidents" began. The silver trumpet (the other is of copper) had crystallized with the passage of 3,000 odd years and was as brittle almost as glass. Four days before the broadcast it was found to have been so damaged during a rehearsal that it was feared that it would not be usable, and when Lucas heard what had happened, he was so upset that his heart gave out and he collapsed. In the meantime, superhuman efforts were made to restore the silver trumpet. Lucas was still in hospital, and the broadcast was only twenty-four hours off.

On the way to the broadcast, Keating was involved in his first accident for years, when his car was run into by a runaway horse and carriage. Just before the broadcast, the electric light was found to be cut off at the main and it was completely dark, but a frantic search produced two watchmen's electric lanterns. By this time, Lucas had arrived, accompanied by a doctor, and looking very shaky indeed. With five minutes to go both the watchmen's lanterns failed, leaving the party in total darkness, and with only two minutes to go someone produced one candle. Then, with the looming relics of a long dead civilization stretching into the shadows all around them, and with only that one tiny flickering light, the broadcast began, and the trumpets were introduced with the words: "The trumpets of the Pharoah Tutankhamen, Lord of the Two Lands, King of the North and South, Beloved of Re."

After the broadcast letters came in from all over the world, many of them drawing attention to the much publicized "curse" of Tutankhamen's Tomb, alleging that these were war trumpets and that by broadcasting them far and wide Keating had released the curse of war on the world.

Six months later war DID break out.

Leo Goyer, star centre of the first string forward line of the Belleville Anafs (Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans) squad will be seen in action Friday night when the Belleville squad meets Queen's University to open the Intermediate "A" schedule here. Leo will be flanked by Timmy Williams and the starry Walt Gerow, the line that carried the scoring torch for the Redmen of 1946 vintage.

Consistently good along the right wing lanes, Timmy Williams will again team up with his old hockey buddies Leo Goyer and Walt Gerow, Jr. when the Belleville Intermediate "A" teams step out on the ice against Queen's University in Memorial Arena here Friday night. Timmy was one of the ace wingman of the team last year and current reports state that he is going great guns again this year.

Leafs Take Nine-Point Lead Over Canadiens With 2-1 Win In Which Turk Broda Stars

Teams Play Again Tonight in Montreal but Loss Will Not Hurt Leafs

By JACK MITCHELL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

In these days of sugar rationing, two victories as sweet as those Boston Bruins and Toronto Maple Leafs still smacked their lips over today could go a long way toward saving wear on the old sugar bowl.

Victory always tastes good the day after, as New York Rangers will freely testify following their 4-3 win over Detroit Red Wings last night. But the boys who could take their coffee straight today and not even notice are the personnel of the night's other two winning National Hockey League clubs.

For the limping Leafs, their ranks decimated by injuries, the 2-1 triumph over Montreal Canadiens marked an evening of the score with the Stanley Cup champions, only team to hold an edge over Toronto's forces of youth in season's meetings. Each now have won two and tied one in five clashes.

It meant too that the Leafs can go into Montreal tonight for a return engagement assured that their nine-point lead on the second-place Canadiens could be no worse than when the home-and-home series started.

Spotted Hawks Three Goals

It was not so much who the Bruins beat but how they did it. In other-days a 6-3 triumph over a last-place team such as Chicago Black Hawks would be of little satisfaction to the big Boston team. But the Bruins, faltering and shaken up for this game, spotted the Hawks three straight goals and then won in a walk.

The victory, their third in 12 starts, left the Bruins still with a shaky, one-point hold on third position in the standings, however, when the Rangers kept pace by edging Detroit. The Red Wings slipped three points behind the New Yorkers by the loss. Walter (Turk) Broda, the stocky veteran of the Leafs' nets, reached new heights as he held the Canadiens at bay before a Toronto crowd of 14,550. The Montrealers fell behind 2-0 in the opening period and then outshot the Leafs 34-26 in pressing to get them back.

Syl Apps, lanky Leafian centre, shot the opening goal with Gaye Stewart firing another at 13:20 of the first frame and it wasn't until 17.30 of the last that rugged Murph Chamberlain beat Broda.

With defencemen Garth Boesch and Bob Goldham and forwards Vic Lynn and Harry Watson on the injury list, Leafs dressed only 14 players against Montreal's full-strength 16.

Four New Players

Four new players introduced in the Bruins' recent shake-up got off to a good start before a capacity crowd of 13,900 in the Boston Garden. Mark Marquess, a 21-year-old right winger up from Hershey Bears of the American Hockey League was the flashiest of the trio, clicking for 2 goals.

He formed a new line with Jack McGill, a veteran of previous N. H. L. experience, and Eddie Barrie, 27-year-old American-born coast guard veteran who both drew an assist on one of Marquess' goals.

The Kitchener line still paced the Boston win, however, centre Milt Schmidt firing two tallies and little Bobby Bauer one. Pat Egan netted the other. For Chicago, Red Hamill, George Gee and Alex Kaleta started off the scoring.

The Rangers, watched by 14,573, came from behind with two third-period goals for their home triumph over Detroit. Veteran Phil Watson fired two goals while Tony Leswick and Grant Watson got one each for the blueshirts. Pete Horeck, Billy Taylor and Jimmy Conacher scored for the losers.

HAMILTON TIGERS AND ST. MIKES LEADING PARADES

Tabbies Lead Senior O.H.A. Race and Irish Squad Away Ahead in Junior

Toronto, Jan. 16. (CP)—Hamilton Tigers and Toronto St. Michael's today were still coasting along with comfortable leads in the senior and junior divisions respectively of the O.H.A. still favorites to represent the province in the Allan and Memorial Cup playdowns next Spring—as they did last year.

Tigers are bouncing along cleanly, yet to taste the acid tang of defeat. Sixteen wins in 16 starts is hockey in anybody's league.

Without them, the O.H.A. would acquire the look of a real race because six points are all that separate the second place Toronto Staffords from Stratford, which trails along in last place in the five-team league.

St. Michaels, under the foxy tutelage of Coach Joe Primeau, are eight points in front of Galt, which has given them the toughest arguments of the season. But Uncle Joe isn't worrying; the betting—nasty word—is that St. Mikes will not be extended to sew up the league, neatly.

In the eastern end of the province where they grow their Winter cold and their players hot, sticks are flying with a vengeance.

Gananoque Leading

Gananoque is leading the six team Rideau intermediate loop while in the Upper Ottawa Intermediate circuit, the Senators and the Pembroke Lumber Kings are glaring at each other with 12 points apiece. It is a four-team league and Renfrew and Arnprior are likewise glaring, each with six points.

And in the Ottawa Senior Interscholastic League that has foaled hockey greats, tOttawa University and St. Patrick's College are tied for first honors, not far ahead of the five other teams in the league.

When Kirkland Lake Legionnaires knocked back Hollinger Greenshirts by a 7-5 score they did themselves a lot of good. They nudged their way past Porcupine Combines to gain third place and to pant hotly on the neck of Dome Porkies who are a notch behind the league leading McIntyres. It has been a see-saw race most of the season.

TROPICAL PARK ENDS SEASON

Miami, Jan. 16 (AP)—Tropical Park ends a successful 40-day meeting today with the running of the second half of the $30,000 double event and Florida's racing scene then shifts to Hialeah in the face of a threatened strike by grooms and exercise boys. Westminster and Statesman ruled favorites in the field of 11 named for Tropical's closing feature. The former equalled Armed's track record in winning the first half. Statesman will pack top weight of 126 pounds for the event.

A closing day crowd of about 12,000 was anticipated, bringing total attendance for the meet to about 50,000 more than last season. Wagering for the first 39 days amounted to $24,763,107 compared with last season's $26,273,471.

Meanwhile, President John C. Clark reiterated an earlier declaration that Hialeah would open as planned. Alfred Kreisler, lawyer for the grooms and exercise boys, expressed confidence that 90 per cent of them would strike.

The strike was voted Tuesday night after the track had announced it would discontinue special awards for leading horses to the post and extra awards for winners.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

The main hockey attraction of the week will be the long-looked for clash between the 1947 edition of the Belleville Intermediate "A" squad and Queen's University Seconds who will pry the lid off the "A" hockey pot at the Memorial Arena here on Friday night.

• • •

The Belleville Anafs (Army, Navy and Air Force), according to paper, have a strong team, one that should be even more powerful than the squad that swept through to the Van Horne Series finals in Kingston last year. The most of the old faces will be back plus a few new ones.

• • •

Manager Frank Butler of the Anafs, informed this desk last night that Walt Gerow Jr., starry left winger of last year's Redmen and who has been playing with the Kingston Lions in the Limestone City League, has signed with the Belleville team, and will be seen in action with the squad's ace forward line of Leo Geyer and Timmy Williams.

• • •

Another line which may be seen in action is that of Don Barrett, flashy junior player who played with the Stratford Kroehlers earlier in the season, and Wardhaugh and Bastedo. Then there are the two Meagher brothers, Al and Bernie, Clare Williamson, Vern (Jumbo) Goyer and Cal Yorks, a former junior who has been going exceptionally well in the practice sessions.

• • •

"Robby" Robertson, of Mountain View, may be seen between the goal-posts when the squad trots out on the ice next Friday. In any event team officials stated that Robby will turn out to practice tonight with the team.

• • •

But don't sell this Queen's team short. The studes have been going great guns down Kingston way and at the moment are batting the highly touted Lions team of that city in the city league finals. Starring on the squad is a Belleville boy Jerry Wagar who centres the first string forward line and who has been scintillating for the students. He paced the Queens' attack to their victory over Lions the other night, and the Kingston scribes are loud in their praises of the Belleville student.

• • •

Jerry, it is recalled, played on the Batawa baseball team last summer and was also a member of the Flashes' softball squad, veterans team that played in the senior softball loop here last season. He also played on the senior intercollegiate football squad of Quebec.

• • •

However, there is a high note of optimism in the Belleville team's ranks. There is plenty of harmony and the team has been rounded into a smooth-working aggregation by Coach Les Shiels who thinks highly of his proteges. The acquisition of Walt Gerow, Jr. has bolstered the feelings of the members of the team and he will add plenty of scoring punch to the squad.

• • •

And here's a real treat for hockey fans of the city and district. On Friday, January 24th the crack St. Michaels College Junior "A" team, one of the best junior hockey aggregations in Canada, will play at the Memorial Arena against an all-star team gathered from the intermediate teams of the city and district.

• • •

coached by Joe Primeau, former member of the famous Toronto Maple Leafs Kid Line of Primeau, Conacher and Jackson, are being brought here by the Royal Canadian Air Force and the proceeds of the game will go to the RCAF Benevolent Fund.

St. Mike's who were nudged from the Memorial Cup championship last winter by the Winnipeg Monarchs will bring such famous junior stars as Fleming Mackell, Costello, and others, and the game should be one of the hockey highlights of the season. But more about that later.

• • •

RCAF officials today expressed their grateful appreciation of the gesture of the Belleville and Trenton Intermediate teams which were scheduled to play here in loop fixtures on January 24. Managements of both teams acceded to the RCAF request for the date and will play their game as part of a double - header on the following Monday night.

• • •

Trenton Flyers have yet to say "uncle" to any team in their Intermediate "B" loop. Last night in Memorial Arena, the flying Flyers added another scalp to their belts when they downed a fighting Mountain View Bombers team by a 5-3 score. It was their fourth straight victory in as many starts. The game was another of those fan-pleasing heavy belting affairs. It appears that these service squads glory in chucking each other about the 'blarsted arena' and last night's tilt was no exception to the now accepted rule.

• • •

Flyers have a well-balanced team. Their defence is about the best we have seen in "B" circles and their fast-skating forward lines are not afraid to backcheck. In "Nicky" Sargent, diminutive half-pint from Picton, they have an elusive tricky player, who can break fast, skate fast, and is a good stick-handler. The small centre is a nice playmaker and isn't afraid to feed his wing-mates if they are in scoring position.

• • •

Bridgeman, Flyer goalie, may not believe in black cats crossing his path, breaking mirrors or upsetting salt shakers but when it comes to hockey superstition, Bridgy is in there. It appears he was given a sweater with the number "11" on the back instead of the customary Number 1 that all goalies are supposed to wear, prior to the first game of the season.

• • •

In any event, superstitious athletes once they have donned a sweater feel that it is bad luck to change it. Anyway, Flyers went out and won that first game and Bridgeman refused to change the sweater. Flyers have now won four in a row and you just try and pry Bridgy away from that sweater with the "11" tacked on the back.

• • •

Mountain View Bombers were minus the services of their star centre "Doc" Murray, who does painless extraction of RCAF molars in his official capacity at the air station. "Doc" is believed to have injured his foot and reports around the dressing room last night were to the effect that the rangy centre had been sent to a Toronto hospital.

• • •

Bombers, however, showed a marked improvement over the calibre of hockey they played on Monday when they were dunked 16-3 by the service arch-enemy from 'Moose' Matthews' air bailiwick. They showed better teamwork and their checking was improved. They strayed from their checks on occasions and their defence could cover up better when the opposition is threatening around the goal mouth.

• • •

Have you seen "Joe Palooka" at the Capitol Theatre yet? Better take it in if you like sport especially golf and the busting of the honorable beak. Tommy Harmon, famous former Michigan football star is also in the film. It's good.

FIREMEN SAVE FAMILY

Cornwall, Jan. 16 —(CP)—A family of four had a narrow escape from asphyxiation last night when their home was filled by coal gas fumes. Prompt action by city firemen averted a disaster.

Overcome by fumes were Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Barnhart and their one-year-old twins who were only slightly affected. Mrs. Barnhart collapsed after waking up during the night. Her husband heard her fall, and telephoned the fire department. He was told to open all the doors and windows, and firemen rushed to the scene. Shortly after firemen arrived Barnhart collapsed, and firemen applied artificial respiration. All were reported to be recovering today.

FORGIVE TARDINESS

London —(CP)— Beckenham Library, in need of books, announced a "forgiveness period" during which it would take back with no questions asked, books not returned when air raids were taking place.

LAST NIGHT'S STARS

(By The Canadian Press)

Milt Schmidt and Mark Marquess, Boston veteran and rookie, who each tallied twice as Bruins defeated Chicago Black Hawks 6-3.

Alex Kaleta, Chicago, who tallied once and assisted once.

Phil Watson, New York, veteran forward, who chalked up two markers, including the winner, as Rangers edged Detroit Red Wings 4-3.

KROEHLERS BEAT WINDSOR 15-3, BARRIE A WINNER

Two Junior O.H.A. Games Allow Winness to Creep Up on Leaders

(By The Canadian Press)

The Stratford Kroehlers on their home rink walloped the Windsor Spitfires 15-3 in an O.H.A. Junior "A" game last night that counted four points, and the Barrie Flyers, also at home, defeated Hamilton Szabos 9-2.

The two games didn't change the standing noticeably. Barrie and Stratford simply crept up on the two teams who are tied for third, Oshawa and Toronto Marlboros. They didn't at all affect the league-leading Toronto St. Michaels nor the second-place Galt Red Wings, who are eight points behind the leaders.

At Stratford last night the Kroehlers scored after a minute and a half of the first period, and Windsor tied it up within 14 seconds. Five minutes later Stratford took the lead, and they never let up.

Kroehlers led by 4-2 at the first interval and 10-2 after the second period. Roth and Kullman each scored three goals and Mosich, Flick and Air each scored twice. Robertson got the other. Keyes scored two of the Windsor goals, Marchand the third. Only five penalties were handed out.

At Barrie, the Flyers were always ahead of the Hamilton Szabos, scoring three goals before Hamilton counted. Mousseau, Fife and Favero each scored twice, St. Pierre, Aikin and Gariepy getting the others. Cadieux and Hogan were the Hamilton scorers.

Barrie led 2-0 at the end of the first and 6-2 after the second. As at Stratford, it was a comparatively peaceful game with only eight penalties.

PEP PUT IN CAST

Hartford, Conn., Jan. 16 (AP)—A spokesman at Hartford hospital said last night that Featherweight Boxing Champion Willie Pep, injured in a plane crash Jan. 5, has two split and chipped vertebrae and that his back has been put in a cast.

These injuries, in addition to a fractured leg he received in the crash, were revealed by X-ray.

The hospital spokesman said Pep's back injuries were "neither serious nor uncommon" and expressed the belief they will not interfere with his ring career.

The Big Seven

Bobby Bauer, Boston Bruins forward, earned a goal and an assist in one of last night's three National Hockey League games to take over fifth spot in the scoring race. Milt Schmidt, Boston, consolidated his hold on third place while Detroit's Syd Abel jumped into a tie for seventh place with Max Bentley, Chicago, held scoreless.

The Leaders	G.	A.	Pts.
Richard, Montreal	23	17	40
Kennedy, Toronto	17	18	35
Schmidt, Boston	14	19	33
Taylor, Detroit	10	22	32

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

There is no apparent excuse for playing bridge the hard way. Or in any manner that is unnatural. Do your stuff in a manner that is sensible. This will get you the best results.

Naturally, your pair should try to find the suit that will be your best trump. To do this you must show each other the suits you have and how many cards in each.

Naturally, you should tell your partner when a game or a slam is probable. To do this you must signal him when you have enough to help him accomplish such aims.

We are going to talk about this pair of hands:

SOUTH
♠K J 10 8 5
♥A
♦Q 8 7 6 2
♣A 3
NORTH
♠A Q 4 2
♥Q 10 9 8 6 3
♦A
♣9 2

With unequal lengths, it is natural to first show the longer suit. Higher rank of equal length is shown first. Naturally. This is how partner knows the second suit is never longer.

South opens with a spade and north responds in hearts. In the north hand are seven tricks; four high cards, two short cards in diamonds, a short in clubs. Among them are two sure tricks.

With at least six tricks with two sure tricks, responder can see enough for a game. The signal for it is a one-jump. Therefore, the first response by north is three hearts.

You can sprinkle several conditions around such a bid. You may add this or that. Or inject some exceptions. All such things can be done to make it cumbersome. But not necessary.

Be sure six tricks are there. See that two of them are sure. Take care that the suit is at least biddable. The rest will truly and automatically be there. So, make it easy on yourself.

After the north three hearts, south bids four diamonds. Then north is ready to show his strong support with a bid of four spades.

This is where it really becomes interesting.

The Movie Column

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal's dancing Johnny Coy, whom a lot of people think is a sure bet to step into Fred Astaire's vacated shoes, is sharing with Spike Jones all the critics' praise for the new picture "Ladies' Man" starring Eddie Bracken.

To a man, the New York critics have been doleful about the film which fails to give Bracken or its other players a chance. But they all have had nice things to say about the Coy boy.

Johnny's main place in the film is beating out expert rhythms in two tap numbers while he is theoretically a bell-boy delivering a message in a hotel lobby. Spike Jones and the City Slickers tear into "Holiday for Strings" and other numbers in a crowded subway train.

Children's Specials

South of the border a good many children go to the movies regularly on Saturdays, just as they do in Canada, and parents, teachers and others with the youngsters' welfare at heart have been justifiably alarmed at the unsuitable programs they aften see.

Until recently exhibitors seldom took their child audiences into consideration except perhaps to add a western serial or cartoon to the regular program. The result was that children often had to see films not at all suited to either their understanding or their morals.

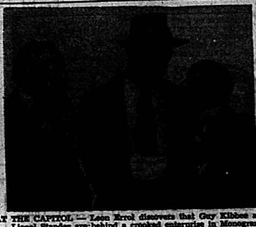
To remedy this the Motion Picture Association headed by Eric Johnston, has arranged with 10 major producers to make available prints of the best children's pictures of the last 20 years. Already 28 features, all approved by reviewing troups as ideal for children, have been made available in United States film exchanges.

These films include favorites like "Adventures of Huckleberry Finn," "Alice in Wonderland," "Anne of Green Gables," "Anne of Windy Poplars," "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch," and "Poor Little Rich Girl."

DIES OF HEART ATTACK

Napanee, Ont., Jan. 16 —(CP) —A well-known farmer of Richmond township north of here, Grant Cook, 51, died Tuesday following a heart attack. Surviving are his widow and a daughter Mrs. Jack VanKoughnett.

McCARTHY—Al Jolson greets his favorite star backstage after he helped make her Broadway debut a smash success by singing "Liza" from the audience. Larry Parks portrays Jolson and Evelyn Keyes is Ziegfeld beauty Julie Benson in Columbia's Technicolor "The Jolson Story" now playing at the McCarthy Theatre.



AT THE CAPITOL — Leon Errol discovers that Guy Kibbee and Lionel Stander are behind a crooked enterprise in Monogram's "Gentleman Joe Palooka." Errol co-stars with Joe Kirkwood in the comedy-drama now at the Capitol Theatre. On the same program "Colorado Pioneers," starring Wild Bill Elliott. Both features are being shown for the first time.

AT THE BELLE — Homecoming for a hero—portraying an emotionally weary widow, lovely Dorothy McGuire stars with Guy Madison in RKO Radio's absorbing love story "Till the End of Time." Robert Mitchum and Bill Williams co-star with them.

NEW KINSHIPS

Tulsa, Okla., Jan. 16 —(AP)— Mrs. T. A. Bates gave birth to a girl just 22 hours after her daughter, Mrs. H. D. Martin, had borne a boy.

Yesterday the Bates and Martins, pondering new kinships, figured at the very simplest there was a new grandson, sister, brother, aunt, nephew and sister-in-law — all acquired in 22 hours.

Mrs. Bates is 39, Mrs. Martin 22. The Bates have three additional children and the Martins one.

BANANAS STREW BEACH

Rhosneigh, Wales, Jan. 16 — (Reuters)— After many bananaless years, villagers on this island off the Welsh coast yesterday received a gift from the seas of the rare fruit. Waking up after a heavy storm, they found one of the beaches strewn with the unusual sea-food.

CHAPTER 7

He danced as beautifully, as gallantly as he did everything else. To melodies she was always to remember and associate with this night with him, they danced, her head close to his, one hand pressed warmly in his. When he put his face near and when his lips brushed her hair, she closed her eyes to the madness of it, wanting to be tender and yielding to this boy who loved her but drawing back, saving all her tenderness for a man who could never be more than a friend.

Back at the table he lifted his glass and said, "I love you, Arlen. I never planned for any girl I've been in love with before because I knew it wouldn't last that long. But this is going to last with me—I want to marry you." He took a sip of the drink and put it down on the table. "I'm not proposing—yet. When I do, a lot of twisted things will have had to be straightened out."

She smiled. "Then I'm glad because I know of no answer to give you tonight.

"Let's get the car and go riding. We can dance any time but it'll soon be too cold for riding."

In a deserted dark lane he stopped the car and switched off the lights. A sleepy autumn moon threw its light between the trees and on Arlen's face. She leaned her head on the seat and closed her eyes, thinking. "I shall marry Toby one of these nights when the conservative side of me gives away. I shall marry him and face Fanny and be a good wife to him. Not all women marry the men they really love. That's a beastly thought."

"Cold?" he asked.

She smiled. "You may put your arm around me, Toby."

"You need my arm around you, Arlen, to protect you from men who won't love you as much as I do. You think this is the usual talk with me, don't you? I've parked my car in a dark lane and I'm making pretty compliments for you. But," he smiled, "I've never been just satisfied with my arm around a girl's shoulder."

"Are you satisfied now?"

"Not entirely, and you should not tempt me into kissing you." He caught a wisp of her hair. "You want love. I know it when I'm dancing with you. You have so much of it to give, Arlen, so much depth and warmth. But you've put reins on yourself."

"I've always wanted to be sure, Toby, so very sure."

He leaned closer and touched the white fur of her collar. "That's what I thought the first time I saw you. You looked—new. Do you like me at all or . . . does Mother stand in the way of you liking me?" He drew away, frowning. "She's had a hard life and she's been awfully good to me. She's not well. She doesn't tell people what the doctors say about her. That's why I want her to have a good time and I can't bear to hurt her."

"I know, Toby."

He lighted a cigarette. Arlen closed her eyes again, feeling the wind, liking it as it blew through her hair and cooled her face. She thought, sighing, "I should like so much to say the true thing. I should like to tell Toby that I like him and pity him and one night perhaps I shall marry him. My feelings toward him won't change. He'd never repulse me and I could never hate him. I should like to tell Fanny to grow old gracefully as women should and to set Toby free of her. And I should like to tell Renny that I shall always love him."

Toby flipped his cigarette on the dirt road. "That I can sit beside you, Arlen, and not touch you and feel a crazy sort of happiness makes me know that I shall always love you."

She opened her eyes. "You make me ashamed when you talk like that." She smiled at him. "The hours between night and day are the maddest hours, Toby. Let's go back."

"I'm boring you."

"You are not boring me. I've had a wonderful evening and now I'm tired."

At Louise's he stepped into the drawing-room only a moment. Arlen held out her hand and Toby kissed it gently. He said nothing and turned away, leaving her suddenly frightened at this serious Toby and his serious adoration, and frightened, too, at the future that seemed so clearly destined to be shared with him.

* * *

Arlen felt that breakfast with Richard began the day well. At no other time did she feel close to him, for he seemed to be the silent patient spring from which all this luxury was drawn.

"Since you've been here," he said, "I've eaten a larger breakfast. Even the servants notice it. Louise calls eight o'clock the middle of the night."

Arlen folded her napkin across her lap. Richard said, "It just occurred to me that there's no reason for you to take a bus to school in the morning. I can drop you off."

"I don't mind at all," said Arlen. "It makes me feel in the swim of things to get out in the morning with people hurrying to work."

"Do you see Elissa?"

"I lunch with her every day," Arlen answered, ready to defend Elissa. "She's quite happy, I don't think she's lonely at all."

She wondered about him as much as he wondered about her. Arlen thought him handsome, in spite of his gray hair, and she wondered how this quiet patient man controlled the vast industries he undoubtedly did control. He did not think of her as an intruder in his home or a girl that Renny, out of his kindness, had thrust on him. It was enough for Richard to breakfast with her, noticing the severe inexpensive clothes she wore, liking the young ambitious energy of her. He wondered what she thought of many things but he was too shy to ask her. Most of all he wondered if she loved Toby Sanner.

In front of the business school she stepped out of the car, thanked him, and he saw her run up the steps. Richard got a pleasing vanishing glimpse of tall heels, a slim body in a dark dress, and an impudent feather on a dark felt hat.

She never saw Elissa until lunch for Elissa, in a class lower than hers, worked in another room. Arlen found when the instructor was dictating that no longer did her hand pause and her mind lose track of the letter. Her hand fairly flew across the page and she could read it back without faltering.

When the four hours had passed in the warm sunny room, she went to the cloak-room and took a step back when Elissa turned and faced her, laughing at her surprised face.

"What have you done to yourself?"

Elissa had clipped her dark curls short and a fringe of bangs hid her forehead.

"Bangs! Don't you love them?" Elissa cried, touching them tenderly. "Suppressed desire, darling. All my life I've wanted bangs and tweed suits and sensible shoes, and Aunt Grace was horrified at such unfeminine things. I'm doing and living and dressing as I've always wanted to. Everything against the family tradition. Let's go to lunch. I'm starving."

In a busy restaurant they took a corner table and gave the order to a waiter who distinguished them by thinking of them as the dark one and the light one.

"Now tell me what the upper world has been doing," said Elissa. "Hasn't Louise gotten on your nerves yet? Has Renny come back? Is Toby still sitting adoringly on the doorstep?"

"I can only look at the bangs," said Arlen. "Louise and I are going shopping this afternoon and to get a wave. Renny isn't back yet. Toby is in Washington.

"What took him there? Fanny's idea, I guess, to get him away from you."

"No," 'said Arlen," a wedding. Fanny insisted on his motoring her down."

"His job is a joke. Richard lets him go anywhere — any time." She took a puff of her cigarette and said seriously, "You'll be good for Toby, Arlen. He needs some one stronger than he is. He could make a success of himself if some one cared enough."

"But I don't care enough."

"I guess Louise and the others think I'm decaying in my solitude," Elissa said to Arlen. "They'd be surprised to know that I've made friends. Three boys have an apartment down the hall from mine. They've come east to get work. I'm sure they haven't any money. I hear them cooking dinner at night and often I smell it burning. They have parties and the girls bring the refreshments. I've never seen people with so little have such a good time.

"After one of the boys spoke to me on the elevator and apologized for disturbing me the night before, I couldn't sleep but I enjoyed listening to them. I didn't mind the noise. Last night," said Elissa, "when they didn't know how to candy sweet potatoes, they came after me. I didn't know any more than they did but somehow we got the meal together and they asked me to stay.

Arlen laughed. "And then you were the bohemian that Fanny calls you, and now more than ever with the bangs."

"They're quite young," said Elissa, "and very ambitious. They've made a pact to stick together until they made good and share what little they have. Two are Pete and Harry and the other is Julian Heywood. He's even taller than Renny. They're real people. It was twelve o'clock when I left. We didn't do anything or go any place. We just laughed a great deal. I am learning the difference between pleasure and happiness, Arlen. Tonight, since last night's meal was so cheap, we're dining out. If only Aunt Grace or Fanny could see me sitting in a cheap restaurant dining with three shabby boys. you know, you haven't been to see my room yet."

"I'm trying to finish this course in record time," said Arlen. "I even neglect to write to my father. It's terrible not to want to hear from him but there's an undertone of despair in his letters that — that scares me."

"I'm the only one of you who is happy,' 'said Elissa. "It's no pose. I am. When the manager at the shop discovered I could speak French, my job was assured. The other day when a girl I used to know came in and looked at me with such shocked surprise and pity, it didn't hurt me at all. I have so much more than I've ever had. I like being poor because it has set me free."

That afternoon while Arlen sat under a hair dryer in a chair some distance from Louise's, she thought of Elissa going back to the tiny room and eating dinner with Pete and Harry and Julian Heywood. Elissa had been radiant today. Arlen dreaded the evening before her.

Louise was more irritable than usual, having discharged her maid that morning. "I hated to do it," she had said, "because she has a mother and father absolutely dependent on her, but my clothes were in such a frightful state. The dress I wanted to wear today wasn't pressed and all my stockings were mismatched. I don't pay servants to be moody and sulky and gossip with the other servants. Richard will be furious."

To ease her tired nerves she had bought three dresses, a rug, and new draperies for Arlen's room.

"Arlen," Louise's husky voice carried the length of the long white room, "I'm expecting Renny the latter part of the week. Isn't that fine? Of course, I shall adore to see Mother and Allison but I know that I shall have to find the apartment for them and get them settled. Allison is the most precious child but at times she's stubborn and nervous and it upsets me terribly. She doesn't get that from the Maynards — certainly not from Renny."

"I shall be awfully glad to see him," said Arlen.

Louise's nervousness had driven her into a guarded silence. Shopping with her, Arlen had turned crimson at the supercilious remarks to salespeople. Watching her finger flip the ashes of her cigarette on the tile floor, she thought, "I came here to be free, to escape prison. This is a worse prison. Elissa is the only free one of us all. I miss Toby."

Twice she had seen Richard angry, the first time when Christa's name had been mentioned, and that night when he confronted Louise with discharging her maid.

"How could you do such a heartless thing?" he asked.

"But my clothes, Richard . . ."

"You knew that her father has been out of work for two years. He's old and finished. Her mother is dying from cancer."

"I didn't know that," Louise said innocently.

"Naturally. Nora came to my office this afternoon in tears and told me. The girl is worried sick about her mother and money."

"Oh, my dear, I didn't know. And didn't you do something for her? Poor Nora. How thoughtless of me, Richard."

"I made arrangements for her mother to go to a hospital. Her case is hopeless, of course. And I let Nora have some money. I told her to come back in the morning."

"Richard, I'm dreadfully sorry, but you always insist upon getting the most out of your employees."

Arlen wanted to flee from the table. Instead she sat picking at the delicate food, thinking envious thoughts of Elissa, seeing her flushed face, the new bangs, and hearing her warm happy laughter as she dined with three shabby boys.

Mary Albert, petite and blonde, with two boys away at school, came that evening for bridge. The longer they played the warmer and more suffocating the room became to Arlen. She played badly, she knew. Mary and Louise bickered across the table.

"My dear, you shouldn't have raised me!" . . . "The teacher distinctly said, Louise . . . And Arlen and Richard smiled at each other.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 16. (CP)—Early session gains in Base Metals were lost in a general decline today which set in during later trading of Toronto Stock Exchange. Denison, still a great trader at 50,000 shares for the first three hours went back to 1-2 loss, East Sullivan dropped 5, Normetal lost a 6 point gain, Nickel was down a point. Waite Amulet gold showed a gain and Falconbridge upped 5.

Volume for the first three hours of trading was 677,000 shares.

Papers were weak all along the line on fractional losses, as were steels and utilities. Golds were down with point losses spotted on the boards and Western Oils were inactive.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 16 —(AP)— Selling continued to dominate today's stock market with leaders yielding fractions to a point or so.

Dealings, quiet at the opening, picked up when offerings became a bit more urgent around midday. Extreme declines were shaded here and there near the fourth hour.

Canadian issues were off with the main list. Dome mines, Hiram Walker and Distillers Seagrams each were down ⅛ at mid-day. C.P.R. lost ¼ and McIntyre ½.

HOGS

Toronto, Jan. 16 —(CP)— Stratford reported, Grade A, bacon-hog prices early today at: delivered, to farmers $21.60, to truckers $21. This was down 25 cents to farmers and down 25 cents to truckers from the previous settled quotation reported there.

Bacon-hog markets throughout the province have been unsettled during the past week. Locally salesmen asked higher prices at Monday's opening and a few lots reached $23 for Grade A. On Tuesday sales were generally $22.50. Wednesday's bids from local packers were down to $21.75 and no price was established early today.

Hull reported prices unchanged there today at Grade A $22 delivered.

Expects 60,000 Housing Units Can be Attained

Niagara Falls, Ont., Jan. 16 (CP)— The Canadian Government Construction Association was told by government spokesman yesterday that there was little doubt that a target of 60,000 housing units for the year ending March 31, 1947 would be attained but it was informed that "very substantial-increased efforts will be necessary both in the production of building materials and supplies and in actual construction to better this total."

In annual convention, the Association heard this statement from W. E. Uren, co-ordinator of building materials for the reconstruction department as he outlined in an address government steps to meet the recommendations of the Association's committee on materials.

Mr. Uren's address followed the report of Robert Drummond of Toronto, head of the materials committee which was appointed a year ago by reconstruction Minister Howe to undertake a fact-finding study of the underlying causes of the shortages of building materials in post-war, house-short Canada.

Demand Outstrips Supply

Both Mr. Uren and Mr. Drummond covered the field under its various headings, but generally they agreed that the obvious and continuing reason for shortages was the fact that demand was outrunning supply.

"The fact is," said Mr. Uren, "that with the war over the construction industry has been asked to undertake an unprecedented volume of construction of all kinds at a time when, following six years of depletion, inventories were low or even non-existent and there has been no breathing space for the industry to replenish its stocks."

Basing its study on government targets of 350,000 houses within the next five years, the committee gunned for recommendations to fit annual programs of 50,000 units for 1946 and 70,000 for the next four years.

Here, in brief, is a summary of some of the committee's recommendations and government action:

Committee: Surplus armed forces buildings should be dismantled and their equipment salvaged or they should be used for emergency shelter.

Thorny Rights Tiff Not Founders Fault

By DOUGLAS HOW
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

A lengthy analysis of the fiscal economic phases of Canada's thorny Dominion-Provincial relations, "The Road to Nationhood" (Oxford University Press) by Wilfred Eggleston, comes at a time when it should serve as a valuable background for the current piecemeal efforts at agreement arising out of the collapse of the taxation conferences of 1946.

Eggleston's background for the 336-page book demonstrates a training that makes him something of an expert on his subject. A graduate of Queen's University, he served on the secretariat of the Rowell-Sirois commission whose study laid the groundwork for the ineffectual attempts in 1941 and 1946 to reach a broad, all-embracing agreement.

Generally speaking, the book is a comprehensive if swift-moving study of Canada's grasping for fiscal harmony since the pro-confederation era. And as such the author permits himself few fluctuations from the task of narration.

Only in the foreward does this journalist, a member of the Parliamentary Press Gallery, permit himself to speak at length. And what he has to say reflects a concern over the fate of a Canada which fails to find order in what was exposed in the depressed 1930's as fiscal chaos.

He contends there that the history of Canada since 1867 is a commentary on the fundamental question of whether a federated state can become a nation. "Nor," he says, "can it be said that the answer has even yet been finally given."

Eggleston traces his tale from the compromise of confederation which yielded a federation rather than a unitary or legislative state. He finds there ample evidence that the Fathers of Confederation plotted an administrative setup based on a strong federal government.

"If Dominion-Provincial relations have grown in recent years into such a formidable and even discouraging issue, the blame is not, I think to be laid on the myopia or incompetence of the Fathers," says the author. "It is rather that while events have tended to emphasize the vital need of a strong federal union, the drift of the last 80 years in the interpretation of the constitution and in the aggrandizement of provincial and municipal powers, has been in the opposite direction.

"The remedy today, therefore, may not lie in any fundamental change in the constitution or any centralization which would violate the spirit of the British North America Act, but rather in a return to the aims and intentions of the Fathers of Confederation."

"No one," he says, "can view with equanimity the prospect that we are going into the difficult post-war world with the defects of the 1930's still uncorrected, and with the same fatal deadlock, the same fatal disparity between constitutional authority and fiscal capacity as contributing so materially to the incidence of the depression upon Canada, and threatened for a while to undermine the whole existence of this country as a federal state.

"A harmonious and concerted drive upon Canada's domestic problems, notably high rational income, full employment and the provision of adequate minimum social services is imperative; and if the Dominion formula is not satisfactory, some alternative must be found which is."

Had 23 Children Cheerful Mother Says Chores Fun

Peterborough, Ont. —(CP)— At 49 she's happy and carefree, says her nerves are "either good or I haven't any," has had 23 children and today manages a household of 21 persons

However, Mrs. James Crough of this city says her chores aren't as difficult as they were in the slim days between 1932-38.

"We baked our own bread when we were living out of the city," Mrs. Crough recalled. "About every nine days we used 100 pounds of bread flour."

Of her 23 children, 17 are now living, four of whom are married and living away from home. But the household still consists of Mr. and Mrs. Crough and family, the husband and three children of one daughter, and Mrs. Crough's brother, Oswald Crowley.

Of course, her household doesn't eat as much as formerly—the children are older and bigger—but it does require six loaves of bread and six quarts of milk daily.

"We have no trouble using up our butter coupons," said Mrs. Crough. "Our ration books allow us about eight pounds weekly."

Starting her day at 6 a. m., she rarely retires earlier than 10 p.m.—sometimes it's one a.m. And, like most mothers admits she breathes easier when eight of her brood are dressed, washed fed and on their way to school.

Four of her sons answered Canada's call during the war and three served overseas. Medical grounds barred the fourth.

Comes end of any normal day, Mrs. Crough tired out but cheerful repeats—children don't bother her nerves.

Rail Doctor Checks Health of Thousands

Edmonton —(CP)—Dr. N. L. Phoenix is probably one of Western Canada's most travelled doctors. Near the end of a two-year swing thoughout Western Canada, he has stopped at every city town or village on the Canadian National Railways between the Great Lakes and the Pacific ocean.

He reports he has given a medical check-up to every Canadian National Railways running trades employee in the west with the exception of Northern Alberta and Saskatchewan. Running trades employees include conductors, engineers, firemen, yardmen and brakemen. They were checked for eyesight, hearing, color blindness and general physical fitness.

The doctor travels with his wife in a specially fitted railway coach that is a combination living quarters and medical examining office. The coach is a converted hospital car that was completely rebuilt in Winnipeg.

The doctor says that outside of Winnipeg, Edmonton provided him with the heaviest business During his stay in Edmonton he examined close to 1,000 men and he estimates his lists will total from 8,000 to 10,000 men before he is through. He hopes to check employees in Northern Alberta and Saskatchewan before starting all over again this summer. When he is finished he will have covered 10,000 miles.

LONE-HANDED HERO

Canberra —(CP)— Lieut. P. E. Mason R. A. N. V. R., has been invested with his second D. S. C. for "courageous and sometimes lone-handed work" as a coast watcher on Japanese-occupied Bougainville His first decoration was from the American Army, and, to his knowledge, he now is the only British Naval officer to receive both decorations.

Convictions For Drunkenness Hit 46,745 in 1945

Ottawa, Jan. 15 —(CP)— Convictions for drunkenness in Canada hit a high of 46,745 in 1945, the last year for which figures are available, but statistical officials here stressed that the figure might represent sterner law enforcement rather than excessive drinking.

A Dominion Bureau of Statistics report on the control, sale and use of alcoholic beverages since 1920 showed that convictions for drunkenness were high during the prosperous 1920's, low during the depression, and at their peak during the war years.

The high of 39,769 convictions in 1920 was not matched until 1941 when there were 40,002. The number jumped to 44,801 in 1942, dropped to 42,292 in 1943, dropped again to 41,521 in 1944 and then rose in 1945 to 46,745.

Lowest Year Was 1933.

The low was 18,910 convictions in 1933.

"While statistics of convictions are generally used as an index of crime, they are at best merely indicative of apparent criminality," said the report.

"A conviction rate reflects not only criminal behavior but the attitude towards criminal behavior of the public and of administrative and judicial personnel. These vary from time to time and from place to place and the separation of the various variables is difficult and perhaps impossible."

Drunkenness convictions by provinces and territories during 1945, with 1944 figures in brackets, were as follows:

Prince Edward Island, 612 (395); Nova Scotia, 3,064 (2,063); New Brunswick, 4,158 (4,292); Quebec, 10,336 (8,843); Ontario, 19,573 (17,258); Manitoba, 2,040, (1,451); Saskatchewan, 1,010 (864); Alberta, 1,515 (1,534); British Columbia, 4,342 (4,744); Yukon, 85 (54); Northwest Territories, 10 (13).

Like the number of convictions, the volume of consumption varied with the nation's prosperity. In the 1920's apparent consumption of spirituous liquor hit a high of 3,669,324 gallons, It fell off during the 1930's and following the outbreak of war rose to a peak of 5,863,512 gallons in the fiscal year ended March 31, 1946.

Beer Follows Pattern.

Beer consumption followed an almost similar pattern. It hit a new high of 62,100,225 gallons in 1930 and then after the outbreak of war climbed to a peak of 130,086,099 gallons in the 1945-46 fiscal year.

Native and imported wine consumption hit an all-time high in 1930 of 5,061,162 gallons. During the war, consumption ranged annually between the 3,500,000 and 4,800,000 mark.

Deaths attributed to alcoholism were set at 83 in 1941, 59 in 1942, 57 in 1943 and 66 in 1944. In 1941 there was a revision in the classification of causes of death and prior to the change a greater number of deaths were attributed to alcoholism, for instance, in 1929 the number was set at 747.

MRS DICK WINS APPEAL, NEW TRIAL DIRECTED

Cardinal Villeneuve Dies in California

Had Suffered From Weakened Heart Since Last July

Occupied Highest Position In His Church in Canada

Quebec, Jan. 17 —(CP)—Rodrique, Cardinal Villeneuve, 63-year-old Archbishop of Quebec died early today in a convent near Los Angeles where he had gone only recently for continued rest after recuperation in hospital from a long illness.

The Archbishop's palace announced the Cardinal's death which occurred at 6.50 A.M., Pacific Standard Time, at the Romana Convent of the Holy Names at Alhambra, Calif., about 20 miles from Los Angeles. The palace said it had no further details at present.

Stricken by a heart attack last July, shortly after returning from religious ceremonies, in Western Canada, the Cardinal, who rose from the humble position as son of a shoemaker to the highest Roman Catholic rank in Canada, had been failing health since then.

He recovered, temporarily from his first attack, but his weakened heart failed him again and he entered hospital in New York. He was released from there only last week after a long period of convalescence.

Cardinal Villeneuve was elevated to the Cardinalate in March 1933, just a year after being named Archbishop of Quebec. He was Canada's fourth Cardinal; the fifth, James Cardinal McGuigan of Toronto, was elevated at a Consistory early last year.

A brilliant scholar, he advanced rapidly in the ranks of his church from the time he entered the Lachine Novitiate of the Oblates in 1901. He had a brilliant career as a student and teacher at the scholasticate of Oblates in Ottawa and was ordained priest at the age of 23, the earliest age permitted under canon law of the church.

His success as a teacher of philosophy, canon law and theology led to his election as Bishop of Gravelbourg, Sask., in June, 1930, and little more than a year later he was named archbishop of Quebec. He was enthroned in February, 1932.

Man May be Blinded After Shooting Affray in North

Kirkland Lake, Jan. 17. (CP)—Said by police to have stemmed from jealously over a woman, a gunfight early today sent William Steinfield and Kennethe O'Donoghue, both formerly of Toronto, to hospital.

Steinfield faces charges of attempted murder and of shooting with intent to kill a police officer.

Police seized a .32-calibre five-shot revolver. They alleged Steinfield used it to shoot O'Donoghue twice in the left side of the head, exchanged shots with police, and then shot himself through the head.

It was learned on good authority today that if Steinfield recovers he may be permanently blind.

Police who pieced together the story of the gunfight said that apparently Steinfield followed his wife and O'Donoghue from a restaurant to premises on Wishman street where, police said, O'Donoghue had been boarding with Mrs. Steinfield.

As the couple approached the rear door, Mrs. Steinfield told police, Steinfield drew the revolver and shot O'Donoghue twice in the head.

Mrs. Steinfield ran into the house and locked the door. Steinfield pulled a full bottle of whiskey from his pocket and used it to smash the glass out of the door.

Sped to Scene

Sgt. A. Mortson and Constable N. Donis of the Teck Township police sped to the scene in a police cruiser and Constable Donis took O'Donoghue to the hospital. Sgt. Mortson called headquarters for reinforcements to help apprehend Steinfield and Sgt. Gordon Smith arrived in a second cruiser.

The two sergeants closed in on the dwelling. The door opened slightly. Steinfield, police said, fired a shot at the officers and missed. Then he closed the door again.

Sgt. Mortson shot at Steinfield but missed.

Sgt. Smith took cover by dropping into a snowbank as Sgt. Mortson advanced toward the side of the house. Sgt. Smith then rushed the door and another shot came from inside the house. The bullet ripped through the shoulder of Sgt. Smith's tunic, tearing a two-inch hole, but did not touch the officer.

Sgt. Smith moved to the rear of the house and saw a light in a window. Behind a drawn blind he saw someone moving.

A few minutes later he heard a shot from inside the house. He called to Steinfield to come out. Then he heard Steinfield say "I'm finished."

At that moment Constable Donis returned and joined Sgt. Smith. The two officers kicked in the door. In the light of their flashlights, they saw Steinfield lying on the floor, his face covered with blood which streamed from a wound above his right cheekbone.

A revolver with blood lay on the floor beside him.

The police took Steinfield to hospital and constable Donis mounted guard beside his hospital bed.

Chief Constable Reginald Pinegar said later that Steinfield called on him last Saturday to ask for help in making a reconciliation with his wife but the Chief told him it was not a police matter. Steinfield said he and his wife, originally from Calgary ran a boarding house in Toronto until they separated a month ago.

NARCOTICS STOLEN

Toronto, Jan. 17 (CP).—An assortment of narcotics, including morphine, cocaine and heroin, was stolen yesterday from the Kingsway Pharmacy in suburban Swansea, I. S. Wolfe, proprietor told police.

British Government's First Test Case of Nationalization Begins

By JOHN DAUPHINEE
(Canadian Press Sports Writer)

London, Jan. 17 (CP). —The government's nationalization "test case" has started. From his office in Lansdowne House, one-time luxury apartment block in Berkeley Square, John Scott Hyndley, First Baron of Meas, holds the strings that will make it succees or failure.

The 63-year-old Hyndley is chairman of the nine-man National Coal Board which Jan. 1 took over 700 colliery companies and their 1,500 pits with an annual turnover of almost £400,000,000 ($1,200,000,000).

"We have the biggest job in any industry in this country," he said.

Next to manpower, the fuel shortage is recognized as Britain's toughest problem. Inefficient workings and lack of skilled men have combined to cut production from 4,610,000 tons weekly in 1937 to considerably less than 4,000,000 tons now.

As Lord Hyndley's board took over, British factories were at the bottom of their coal bins. Some had actually shut down because transport difficulties meant exhausted stock piles could not be replaced from day to day.

Next to the Crown, N.C.B. is Britain's biggest landowner. It will control more locomotives and motor trucks than sprawling London Passenger Transport Board. Pithead canteens will make it the country's biggest catering firm.

For administrative purposes, the country is divided into eight divisions, each with from 200 to 300 mines and each with its own regional board with chairman, deputy chairman, and production, marketing, labor and finance directors.

One of N.C.B.'s first big jobs will be to settle the allocation of £164,000,000 worth of government stock being issued as compensation to pre-nationalization shareholders. So far only the one over all valuation has been made. Now it must be split up, among the individual collieries.

A three-year, partial modernization plan already started by Fuel Minister Shinwell must be carried through at the same time; and plans must be completed for a proposed 10-year, £150,000,000 reorganization scheme.

FIVE PLEAD GUILTY TO ILLEGAL USE RATION COUPONS

R.C.M.P. Corporal Tells Of Devices Alleged To Have Been Used In Coupon Case

Ottawa, Jan. 17 — (CP)—Five men pleaded guilty in magistrate's court today to a series of charges involving illegal use of ration coupons in what the Crown called "huge black market operations" in this area.

Arrested with 13 others — including one woman — in the R.C.M.P. roundup of an alleged ring, the five were alleged to have been involved in the theft or black market distribution of large quantities of ration coupons sent by the Prices Board for destruction at the E. B. Eddy Company's paper mill at Hull, Que.

As the five admitted involvement in the black market operation, an R.C.M.P. police officer told the court at least 15,000 illegal coupons were under seizure and many more were believed to have disappeared from the plant in thefts stretching at least from Feb. 1 to Oct. 31, 1946.

Sentencing of the five was deferred until later today by Magistrate Glen Strike. Eleven others who appeared for arraignment today and had their cases deferred, one of them pleading not guilty and the others entering no plea.

Admit Charges

These pleading guilty admitted from one to four charges of conspiring to obtain or traffic in ration coupons, obtaining them and obtaining ration books illegally.

They were:

Gt Howard Lamb, $4.200-a-year mill supervisor at the Eddy plant, who pleaded guilty to three counts involving coupons and rationed food and one of giving a false statement to a police officer.

Emery E. Leblanc, a dairy truck driver, three charges.

Cosimo John Mandia, who pleaded guilty to one charge after two were dropped.

Adrien Provost, guilty to three charges.

Rolland Arvisais, guilty to three charges.

The only woman in the group — Mrs. Gertrude Burton — had her trial put over for a week without entering a plea. Wife of a grocery owner who is not implicated in the case, she is alleged to have bought 800 butter and sugar coupons through Leblanc, paying $50.

Ingenious Contrivances

Ingenious contrivances used by alleged ring members to retrieve coupons from a big processing vat at the Eddy plant were described by Cpl. R. W. James, R.C.M.P., at the trial of Lamb, the only one in which evidence was taken.

The officer said Lamb and "certain millwrights" had specially-constructed baskets which were

Seven Killed When Passenger Train Hits Broken Rail

55 Treated for Injuries At Scene in California

Bakersfield, Calif., Jan. 17 — (AP) — Seven persons were known to have been killed, Coroner Norman Houze said, and many others were injured when a Southern Pacific passenger train struck a broken rail 12 miles northwest of here early today. He added one or two more might have died in the wreck.

Deputy Coroner John Wertz also at the wreck scene, said 3 of the known dead were women. Some of the bodies removed from the wreckage were mangled, making determination of the exact number killed difficult.

Kern county general hospital, where most of the injured were being treated, estimated them at 75 to 100, including those less seriously hurt.

The sheriff's deputy reported that the wreckage was a ghastly scene and that legs and arms were torn from some of the victims.

Dr. Robert J. Doud̈s, district surgeon for the Southern Pacific, said that as far as he could determine there were five or six dead. He placed the number of injured at 27.

He said two or three were dead in one coach and rescuers had been unable to extricate them.

Superstition Forces Rhona Churchill To Buy 2nd Gown

Derby, England, Jan. 17 (CP).—Because she had been wearing her lace bridal dress while sitting for a full-length oil portrait, pretty, dark-haired Rhona Churchill, 21, will not wear it when she is married next month to FO. Murray Hallford, R.C.A.F., of Toronto.

"I'm not superstitious," Miss Churchill, who is leaving for Canada Jan. 27, explained. "I'll buy another wedding gown when I get there. That will solve the coupon problem."

The lace dress was specially made for the Toronto wedding but when painter Harold Gresley saw it he insisted that Rhona should wear it for her portrait.

BEER AND WINE RATIONING WILL END FEBRUARY 1

Discarding of Ration Books Puts Province in Line With Other Provinces

Toronto, Jan. 17, (CP)—After nearly four years of rationing, the sale of beer and wine becomes free and commercial in Ontario Feb. 1. From that date ration coupons will not be required.

The announcement by William A. Griesinger, chief commissioner of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, of the discarding of Ontario Beer and Wine ration books put the province in line with most of the Canadian provinces.

Rationing systems remain in the Western provinces, but on such a high level that the ration is purely technical. Nova Scotia has no beer or wine ration. Neither has New Brunswick, and Prince Edward Island has prohibition. Quebec has no ration.

West of Ontario, Manitoba has a rationing system, but it allows 24 points of beer and six bottles of wine daily. Saskatchewan allows 24 pints daily, two bottle of wine. Alberta has no rationing system at all. British Columbia allows six dozen pints of beer a month, or two gallons of domestic wine or eight quarts of imported wine a month.

In Ontario, rationing of beer was instituted in May, 1943, as a result of the Federal Government Act restricting production to 90 per cent of the base period. Since then the quota for home consumption—for purchases of beer from retail warehouses to take home—has varied between 24 and 36 pints a month. Juggling of coupon dates by the Ontario Liquor Board resulting actually in 48 pints a month being available this month.

The quota system for beer supply to hotel beverage rooms also is lifted in Ontario. The official announcement was a mere formality. Under new Ontario liquor regulations new hours of sale went into effect Jan. 1, namely from noon to midnight, and since that date hotel beverage rooms, selling beer only, have been able to obtain all the draft beer they needed.

CANADA PROTESTS ROLE BEING GIVEN IN PEACE PARLEYS

Active Participant In Two Wars Against Germany Claim Being Made for Greater Voice

Ottawa, Jan. 17 — (CP)—Canadian government circles today awaited word from London on a protest that Canada, as an active veteran of two world wars against Germany, is not being given its fair say in drafting the German and Austrian peace treaties.

The Canadian protest, implied in a statement to the special deputies of the council of foreign ministers now meeting in London, and underlined yesterday at a press conference by External Affairs Minister St. Laurent, was launched in terms believed to be some of the strongest in the history of the Dominion's international relations.

It centred around the invitations received by this country to participate in the drafting of the treaties. The invitation, Mr. St. Laurent said, was made through the United States government and was available for consideration here on Jan. 6 — only about a week before the date on which the views of the Canadian government were to be presented.

Implication in the invitation was that Canada would be able merely to present its views in a written statement, supplemented with a few oral comments at the meeting of the deputies of the foreign ministers.

The former Canadian justice minister released a statement which he said was presented to the deputies Wednesday by Norman Robertson, Canadian High Commissioner to London.

WANTS TWO MILLS FOR PARKS

St. Catharines, Jan. 17 —(CP)—St. Catharines city council is to be asked by the city's board of park management to consider requesting the provincial government for more money for municipal park boards.

It was contended that the current income of one mill on the tax rate provided only for salaries and leave little for the improvement of parks and playgrounds. The recommended increase will be for two mills. If obtained it will raise the St. Kitts' board's budget to $120,000.

HEAVY AGENDA IS EXPECTED IN COMING SESSION

Bulk of Parliament's Work Will Likely Centre Around Issue Of Continued Controls

By R. K. CARNEGIE
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 17 —(CP)—Despite the prospect of a heavy and contentious pile of legislation, present indications are the new session of parliament will be traditionally slow in getting down to serious work.

It is expected that when parliament opens Jan. 30 the House will follow its usual procedure of sitting for a few minutes after the throne speech has been read. The next day will be Friday and the House will sit for an hour or so and adjourn until Monday afternoon.

At that time debate on the reply to the throne speech will start, and probably proceed in its leisurely way for two or three weeks. After that the House will begin its real legislative business but in no great hurry.

Bulk of the sessions work is expected to centre around the question of continued government controls. A pre-session study of probable legislation indicates the following as likely subjects:—

1. Some legislation to give the Prices Board authority to control rents and commodity prices which the government is expected to keep under ceilings for some months, possibly years.

2. Legislation to continue the powers of the meat board to ensure that Canada's contracts to supply Britain with bacon and beef products are fulfilled.

Housing is Problem

3. Control on wheat marketing and prices exercised by the Canadian Wheat Board are expected to require some action by parliament.

4. Possibly legislation will be necessary to give the reconstruction department sufficient authority, particularly in regard to housing.

5. Redistribution of the federal electoral districts under the amendment passed last year to the British North America Act which changed the basis of representation.

6. Extending the Prairie Farms Rehabilitation Act to cover all Canada.

7. A new bacon agreement with Great Britain will require attention.

8. Creation of a national labor code if agreement can be reached with the provinces.

9. Revamping of the Prairie Farms Assistance Act.

10. Amalgamation of the three defence departments.

Churchill Near Victim of Sub Warfare In Early Part of War Says Doenitz

Nuernberg, Jan. 17 (AP).—Admiral Karl Doenitz asserted today that a German U-boat nearly counted Winston Churchill among her victims one month after the Second World War started.

Doenitz, serving 10 years as a war criminal, told an interrogator in his prison cell here that the incident happened west of the Orkney Islands in October, 1939 when a U-boat struck the 33,000-ton British battleship Nelson with three torpedoes which failed to explode because they were faulty.

Doenitz said the U-boat captain was a "broken man" when he discovered later that Churchill was aboard the Nelson. He added that "faulty torpedoes "greatly hampered U-boat warfare, especially at the beginning of the war.

Doenitz did not say how he knew for certain Churchill was aboard the Nelson at the time, but he declared it had been confirmed through intelligence.

London, Jan. 17 —(CP)—The Admiralty said today it was aware of German claims that three torpedoes were fired at H.M.S. Nelson while Winston Churchill was on board shortly after the start of the war but declared "we have no record of them."

Churchill was on board the battleship in November, 1939, a spokesman said.

"But we have no record of three torpedoes being fired and no record of any of them having been seen," he declared.

Murder Conviction Set Aside By Appellate Court

Justices to Hand Down Reason for Judgment

By ALAN RANDAL
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 17 — (CP)—The Ontario Court of Appeal today allowed the appeal of Mrs. Evelyn Dick of Hamilton from her conviction of the murder of her husband, John Dick, last March 6 and directed that there be a new trial for her.

In setting aside the conviction registered last October by a Wentworth county assize court jury which listened to evidence in Mrs. Dick's nine-day trial, the five justices of the Ontario Appeal Court said they hoped "to hand down written reasons for their judgment early next week."

The decision was announced by the Registrar at Osgoode Hall at 11 a.m. after the judgment had been received from Chief Justice R. S. Robertson who presided over the five-judge court which listened to the Crown and defence arguments in the appeal from last Thursday through to noon last Tuesday.

The word was immediately transmitted to the counsel for the Crown, Deputy Attorney-General Cecil Snyder, and to John Robinette of Toronto, counsel for th binette of Toronto, counsel for the comely 26-year-old widow who had been anxiously awaiting the verdict in her solitary confinement cell in Hamilton jail where she was under sentence to be hanged Feb. 7.

Plea Not Met in Full

In setting aside her conviction of the brutal torso slaying of John Dick, 40-year-old Hamilton Street Railway tram driver whose saw-hacked torso was found on Hamilton Mountain, the court did not meet Mrs. Dick's plea in full.

Through her counsel she has asked that her conviction be quashed and Mr. Robinette had thgued that the Crown should not have a second chance to convict her on the murder count. He admitted though that were the conviction quashed the Crown could proceed against her on a charge of being an accessory after the fact.

There was no immediate indication when Mrs. Dick would stand trial or whether she would go before a judge and jury on Jan. 27 with her father, Donald MacLean, and her former friend, William Bohozuk, who also are charged with the slaying.

No Great Surprise

The decision of the highest court in Ontario came as no great

Chatham, Ont., Jan. 17—(CP)—Provincial Police said last night W. Murdoch, 71, of this city, was found dead in his car last night in a ditch on No. 2 highway one mile east of here. He was apparently victim of a heart attack, they added.

THREE DIE AFTER WATERTOWN N.Y. HOTEL BURNS

Twenty-Seven Guests Occupied Rooms on Second and Third Floors

Watertown, N.Y., Jan. 17 (AP).—Three persons died today and two others were injured when fire swept the three-storey Graystone Hotel in downtown Watertown.

Twenty-two other guests fled to safety or were rescued by firemen.

Two of the dead were identified as William Mullen, 65, and Eugene E. Godfrey, 63, both of this city.

Samuel Poole, 65, also of Watertown, died in hospital, where the condition of Joseph Kling, 74, was listed as serious.

A fifth person, Clarence Kendrew, 22, was treated for shock.

Cause of the blaze, brought under control after three hours, has not been determined.

Twenty-seven guests occupied rooms on the second and third floors of the 37-room brick-and-wood hotel, known for years as the City Hotel, a landmark in this northern New York locality.

Three persons were rescued by firemen and police from the third floor, where the fire apparently started. One of the rescued, Thos. Coleman, 40, clung for a time to a ledge 30 feet above the street after closing his room window behind him.

Some of the persons who occupied the third floor were able to make their way through the smoke-filled corridors to safety. All occupants of the second floor escaped.

The roof of the hotel plunged to the third floor after the fire had raged an hour.

$30,000 FIRE

St. Marys, Ont., Jan. 17 —(CP)—Damage estimated between $25,000 and $30,000 was caused to the Great Star flour mill here yesterday when fire swept through a section of the three-storey stone building.

HANDICRAFT COURSE ADDED TO CURRICULUM

Night school instruction at the Belleville Collegiate saw one more class added last week when a course in handicrafts was added to the many different branches of vocational study already offered. With 15 students enrolled the class started on the first Tuesday of the New Year and will continue each Tuesday during the winter season.

Leather work, including the tooling of leather and instruction in the art of manufacturing purses will be the aim of the class instructor Miss Ruth Carswell during the first few weeks which the class meets. Miss Carswell is day school teacher at the collegiate, teaching home economics and art.

TWO ASPIRANTS FOR WARDENSHIP

With the important business of electing a warden for 1947 the main item on the sessional agenda the Hastings County Council will convene for its annual January four-day conclave starting Tuesday, January 21.

Pre-session rumors regarding the wardenship link the names of Reeve Archie A. Harvey, Mayo township, and Reeve Bartley Welsh, Tyendinaga, as being aspirants to the chair.

Seven new faces will be present when the council convenes on Tuesday afternoon and the most familiar face missing will be that of former Reeve James Moore, of Elzevir township who resigned this year after 35 years continuous service as the municipal head of his township. Reeve Carman Kleinstuber has succeeded him.

A. A. WYNNE NAMED CHOIR LEADER

A. A. Wynne of this city, well known in musical circles in this city has been appointed choir leader at Victoria Avenue Baptist Church. Though he has been directing the choir for some time, he officially takes over his position on Sunday.

GIVEN REFORMATORY TERM FOR CAR THEFT

Pleading guilty to the theft of a motor vehicle last December, Thomas Derushie of this city was sentenced to 18 months definite and one year indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory when he appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city police court Friday morning.

According to Inspector Hayes who gave evidence in the matter, Derushie had stolen a car belonging to a Herchimer Ave. resident and had later wrecked it against a telephone pole on the 2nd concession of Thurlow township. Following the accident he had been given a ride back to the city by a local farmer who was able to give police a description.

ABANDONS EFFORT

Tokyo, Jan. 17 — (AP). — The Japanese government abandoned efforts today to form a coalition cabinet with the social democrats, Kyodo news agency said, and decided to reorganize by drawing new men from the ranks of Conservative parties.

The agency said premier Yoshida's negotiations to obtain active support of the Social Democrats split on a disagreement over distribution of cabinet portfolios.

The cabinet crisis has been brought on by economic conditions.

Pleased to Know Daughter Granted New Trial

Hamilton — (CP) — I'm very pleased to know that."

With these words Mrs. Alexandra MacLean, mother of Evelyn Dick, learned that her daughter, convicted of murdering her husband John Dick last March and under sentence to be hanged Feb. 7, had been granted a new trial.

"I guess there is nothing more I can say," said the grey-haired, bespectacled mother, still with the light trace of Scotland's burr in her voice.

Then she added, "The man with the eggs is at the door and I must go and pay him."

"I'm very grateful to have this news," she said before hanging up her telephone.

Mrs. MacLean, herself charged last April with the murder — a charge which later was withdrawn after her appearance for preliminary hearing — was a Crown witness at the trial of her daughter last October.

Her appearance in the witness box provided one of the most dramatic moments of the nine-day trial of the 26-year-old widow and she testified that two days after John Dick was last seen alive her daughter told her, "John Dick is dead and you keep your mouth shut."

While she awaited the outcome of the appeal, Mrs. Dick has been writing letters to her mother who has been supplementing Evelyn's prison fare with things from home and sending her love stories to read, and letters telling the jailed widow, how her daughter, Heather, is getting along.

F.G. Adamson Dies In Pasadena, Calif.

Frederick G. Adamson, one of the three original founders of the Stephens-Adamson Manufacturing Company, of Aurora, Illinois died December 29, at the Huntingdon Memorial Hospital, Pasadena, California, officials of the local branch of the company said today. The late Mr. Adamson was in his 81st year.

Born in Toronto he went to Aurora in 1901 where, with W. Stephens and D. B. Pierson, he founded the Stephens-Adamson Company. The firm started operations in a small shop making a few belt conveyors. Later it developed into one of the great machine-materials moving industry of the United States.

Former director and treasurer, the late Mr. Adamson retired from active service with the firm in 1942. Mr. Adamson spent some time in Belleville when the branch was established here. He made periodic trips to the city but it has been two or three years since his last trip.

For 28 years Mr. Adamson took an active part in civic and community enterprise in his home city of Aurora, Ill. He was a director of the YMCA, the Civic Art League, the Aurora Hospital Association and helped organize the community chest, the Juvenile Protective Association and Aurora Country Club. During the First World War he served as chairman of the State War Fund organization.

Says Social Work Should Begin in Home

The last meeting of the Ontario Alpha Lambda Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi was held at the home of Mrs. Robert Boyce, at which Mr. Stevens of the Kiwanis Centre was the guest speaker.

In his talk, he pointed out that there is a great need for social work in the city. There is no formula set out which must be followed in dealing with each case, but each one must be solved individually. Canada is a land of plenty, yet the field of social work presents an ever-increasing problem. People should not look for large crimes. The small things reflect the way people think. Any social work should be begun in the home and each case should be contacted once a week through the home.

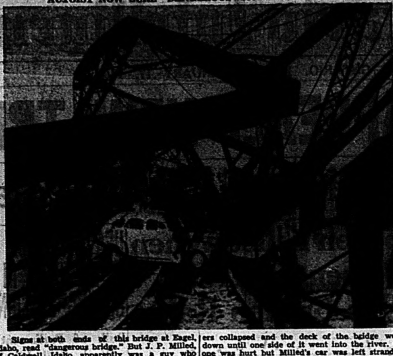
AUTOIST NOW SURE "DANGEROUS" SIGNS WERE RIGHT



Signs at both ends of this bridge at Eagel, Idaho, read "dangerous bridge." But J. P. Milled, of Caldwell, Idaho, apparently was a guy who didn't believe in signs. He does now. Shortly after he drove his automobile on to the structure, girders collapsed and the deck of the bridge went down until one side of it went into the river. No one was hurt but Milled's car was left stranded and damaged on the collapsed structure.

Eight Houses for Vets Completed DVA Willing to Build 28 More

Some alleviation of the housing situation has been arrived at by the Department of Veterans Affairs here, representative Everett Liddle told the Chamber of Commerce directors at their weekly luncheon yesterday.

Eight houses originally built for veterans but were not completed for some reason or other, have now been finished and sold.

His department, Mr. Liddle said is willing to build 28 additional houses for war veterans this year. Veterans will have to pay for the lot and the department will construct the dwellings which will be ready for occupancy at the end of this year. The DVA has the necessary priorities for building material and expect to go ahead with the building project as quickly as possible.

Mr. Liddle gave a brief resume of the activities of his office quoting figures and problems of veterans and of the assistance being given returned people by his department.

President Lorne McDougall, reviewing the industrial situation here, said the outlook was bright for 1947. Two firms have definitely assured him that they will locate here this year, and will employ a fairly large number of people.

Phillip Morris Honored By Fellow Workmen

In the Mess Room of the Motive Power Department, Belleville, the shopmen congregated in the closing hours of the day's work, Thursday, January 16, to make a presentation to one of their number, Mr. Phillip Morris who had reached his 65th birthday and in accordance with the company's policy when employees reach that age, was retiring from the company's service.

A very tangible appreciation was presented to him from his fellow workmen of a sum of money, presentation being made by Mr. Gordon Shaw and company appreciation extended by Mr. A. H. Jones, locomotive foreman.

Mr. Phillip Morris was born in Stamford, Ont., and first entered the railroad service as a sectionman in Capreol, Ont., in 1919 and transferred to the Stores Dept. in 1928 in Capreol and then to Belleville in 1943 as a stores issuer in the Motive Power Stores. He expects to make his home with his son recently returned from the armed forces in Sudbury, Ont.

Interest Increases In Reforestation

Increasing interest in reforestation in this area is being shown and many land owners have applied to the Department of Lands and Forests for trees to plant this Spring. The tree seedlings are supplied without charge but the applicant must pay for transportation by express from the nursery.

Mr. W. E. Edwards, zone forester, in the Quinte district, urges that all persons intending to apply for trees should do so at once as there will not be sufficient trees to fill all orders. No applications will be accepted after Feb. 28th.

Application forms and pamphlets may be obtained by writing to the Department of Lands and Forests, Box 299, Napanee, or by calling at the department office. Wherever possible visits will be made to inspect the property and give advice on planting and selection of species.

Nearly every farm has an area which is now lying idle or producing very little which could be reclaimed by reforestation. The main costs include fencing the area from livestock and the planting. On average sites a two-man crew can plant 1,000 trees a day. Twelve hundred trees are required to plant an acre when spaced 6 feet apart each way.

Underwriters Hear Walter MacDonald At Meeting

"Signposts on Route 1947" was the theme of an interesting and very practical address delivered at the regular monthly luncheon meeting of the Life Underwriters' Association on Thursday by Mr. Walter MacDonald, C.L.U., Field Training Assistant of the Personal Service Bureau of the London Life Insurance Company. The meeting was held in the Y.M.C.A., with the President, Mr. Don Williams, in the chair.

The program was in charge of the London Life and one of the highlights of the afternoon was the vocal solos by Mr. Earl Morrison who represents that company at Napanee. Mr. Morrison possesses a very fine voice which was heard to advantage in two selections "Without a Song" and "One Alone". Mrs. J. J. Hibbard very capably acted as accompanist and also played for community singing which was in charge of Bill Oliver, who has been appointed song leader for the year. Mr. J. Anton was sergeant-at-arms. Mr. S. R. Burrows was welcomed to the gathering after several absences because of ill health. Greetings were also extended to two new members, Mr. Allan Simmie, district manager of the Great West Life, and Mr. Mac Thompson of the same company.

Held Ladies' Night

During the business of the meeting, Mr. P. C. McGuire gave the report of the committee which was appointed to consider the possibility of the Association sponsoring a radio program. Mr. McGuire outlined the reasons which the committee thought made it inadvisable to begin such publicity at the present time, and his report was adopted. It was announced that Ladies' Night will be held this year at the Hotel Quinte on February 20. At the annual meeting of the Life Underwriters' Association of Canada, being held in the Royal York Hotel on Jan. 23, 24 and 25, President Don Williams, and Past Presidents P. C. McGuire and A. L. Burke will represent the local association.

The guest speaker of the meeting was introduced by Mr. C. Lundy of the London Life, who referred to Mr. MacDonald's outstanding record as underwriter, manager and as field training assistant which well qualified him to speak with authority on a subject of vital importance to all life underwriters.

Better Type of Security

Mr. MacDonald in presenting "Signposts on Route 1947" said that underwriters could count on a continuation of those factors which had resulted in last year having the largest volume of life insurance bought in the history of the business. There were certain outside influences which would, however, have a bearing on business and which all should recognize and correctly interpret. First of these was the trend towards a better type of social security for everybody. As this embodied the basis of the life insurance business and a problem which life insurance has been designed to solve it was a challenge to underwriters.

The continuation of the period of high taxes and low interest rates is indicated which makes it impossible for men to save as much as formerly from their incomes and also impossible from their savings to get the interest rate they formerly enjoyed. It follows then that the average man does not have enough money, nor enough time to create an interest-estate nor any assurance that premature death will not make his plans for his family fall far short of his hopes. For this reason he recognizes that at the present time, life insurance solves, as does no other way, his financial problems.

For his retirement years, the deferred income plans, of all plans of investment, offers the average man the opportunity of having available when he wishes to retire, an income which will be favored by greatly reduced income taxes. Deferred income plans are a great hedge against inflation by providing for, now, dollars which will be income later on, under more favorable circumstances.

Mr. MacDonald discussed the fields of Juvenile Insurance, Business Insurance and Programming. The future calls for the highest type of salesmanship and with the development of a proper philosophy, the desire from within to serve.

The appreciation of the Association was expressed by Mr. A. L. Burke who referred to the address as outstanding in the Association's programs.

concealed within the "beater" vat almost under the eyes of Prices Board Inspectors, to catch coupons being poured into the vat.

In addition, he said, nets and screens were used to filter off coupons from the churning water in the vat, and an arrangement had been rigged up to divert by pipe some of the vat's contents to a container on the floor below it.

On one occasion, the corporal said, a piece of scantling was used to plug up a vat outlet so coupons would be washed out. Another time, men plunged into the beater with the water up to their armpits to scoop up handfuls of coupons after the inspectors had left.

OBITUARY

MRS. MARY ANN WEBB

Mrs. Mary Ann (Polly) Webb, wife of Mr. John Webb, 76 Victoria Ave., died in the Belleville General Hospital early Friday morning. She was in failing health for some time.

The late Mrs. Webb, who was in her 69th year, was born at Cheltenham, Ontario, and was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Tessel. For some years she lived at Cannifton and for the past two years she resided in this city. She was a member of Christ Church.

Surviving her are her husband; two sons, Roy of Detroit, Mich., and Clayton of Belleville; one brother, William Tessel, Vancouver, B.C.

Resting at the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street; the funeral announcement is made in this edition.

FRANCIS WILLIAM H. EVANS

Francis William Hitchon Evans, 47 Alexander Street, died in the Kingston General Hospital on Thursday after an illness of ten days' duration.

Born in Brockville the late Mr. Evans was in his 59th year and was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Charles Langley Evans. For a few years he lived in Brantford and for the past thirty-nine years he was a resident of this city. For a considerable time he was engaged in the tire and automobile supply business here. He was a member of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Arlie Ormond; one son, Charles Langley Evans, Kingston; and one brother, Harry Evans, Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Lovers' Quarrel Ends in Laying Of Arson Charge

Aftermath of what was termed by the court as a "lovers' quarrel" George McGillivray, Kingston Road, appeared in local magistrate's court Friday morning charged with attempted arson and following a plea of guilty was remanded for one week for sentence pending a mental examination.

Giving summary evidence in court Inspector Hayes told Magistrate T. Y. Wills that firemen had been called to 19 Bridge Street, West, at one-thirty on the morning of January 15th to extinguish a fire in the hallway of an upstairs apartment. Subsequent investigation of the matter resulted in McGillivray being taken into custody on the above charge.

In admitting his guilt to police McGillivray stated that he had been keeping company with a young woman who lived at the Bridge Street address. They had quarrelled and apparently after trying to drown his sorrows the accused had endeavoured to take out his vengeance against the young woman by setting fire to her room.

Inspector Hayes told the court that McGillivray had poured fuel oil on the floorway of the hall and then had ignited it.

"This man very casually attempted not only to destroy property, but also endangered the lives of several persons," pointed out Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan after summary evidence had been taken.

"Remanded for one week for mental examination," returned Magistrate Wills.

Civic Affairs Subject of Talk By Jamieson Bone

Mr. Jamieson Bone, insurance and investment broker, and former mayor of Belleville, was guest speaker at the regular Y's Men's dinner meeting at the Y.M.C.A. on Thursday evening, when he delivered a very interesting address on general civic administration. The speaker discussed the need of closer co-operation between the city council and the Chamber of Commerce, and expressed himself in favor of a definite plan of expansion for the city which included, purchase of more land for new industries, completion of Riverside Drive, effective flood control, installation of parking meters, and the complete co-operation of all factions of the city for the good of the city.

Discussing the present set-up of taxes from the standpoint of the home owner, the speaker stated that both home owner and tenant should share the taxes on the property occupied, even if rents were reduced, thereby making the tenant more vote conscious.

The speaker was introduced by Vice President Bud Trill and thanked by Oscar Wagar.

President Archie Boyd presided at the meeting, and Vic Lancaster was Sgt. at Arms.

During the evening it was decided that the club would sponsor bowling at the Y.M.C.A. for the blind of Belleville, and special equipment for the alleys is being obtained from Kingston.

Bing of the Golden Touch Is the Greatest Money Maker In the History of Music

The roaring success of Bing Crosby is always a matter of keen interest and an article in "Fortune" Magazine tells of his money-making career. The article is condensed and reproduced as follows:

* * *

Bing Crosby is Big Business—a business that has no inventory, no labor troubles, and that has suffered only a slight depreciation in last 15 years, a depreciation easily fixed by a Max Factor front wig costing $75. In all other respects this industry has proved impervious to a depression, a recession, the New Deal, a war and age. The business is 42 years old, exactly 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighs 150 pounds and can be shipped or wired for delivery anywhere in the world. As a one man factory, the Great Throat makes about a million dollars a year, which is a lot more than the gross of thousands of American small businesses; but since almost all of this return is in the 91 per cent income bracket the annual Crosby tax problem has the frightening suspense of an Alfred Hitchcock movie. Bob Hope, Bing's punching bag, puts it simply: "Crosby just asks Uncle Sam how much he needs".

How big is Crosby actually? The most accurate measure may be in the fact that in the last few months, single-handed, he has started something that no group of stars or corporations or porticians has been able to bring about in more than 20 years—a real revolution in the radio industry. During the last few years he has had other triumphs and made a lot of news: He won the 1944 academy award as the best movie actor of the year; last year his recorded voice sold 12,000,000 phonograph records in the United States alone. In 1946 he earned $867,500, conservatively estimated. He also sold his interest in the Del Mar race track last summer for another $481,000. He bought 14 per cent of the Pittsburg baseball club, the Pirates, for $215,000; he took a six year lease, at $35,000 a year, on a 30,000 acre cattle ranch in San Luis Gonzaga in California.

Gives Network the Jitters

All these doings are notable enough. But none of the other achievements measures up to the magnitude of his assault on the established framework of radio.

Each Wednesday night since Oct. 16, Bing has been heard in a transcribed half hour radio program presented by Philco and its dealers over 202 American Broadcasting Co. stations and some 200 other stations.

The transcribed Crosby show is a direct attack on the radio business as constituted—or at least on the two biggest networks, the National Broadcasting Co and the Columbia Broadcasting System. Both have an absolute ban on transcribed shows for big name stars (NBC does sell many cheaper recorded programs). For CBS and NBC have built themselves up around one main function, the merchandising of "live" shows. If complete top calibre programs can be recorded and sold directly to individual stations, what is to become of networks as networks? The two biggest chains also know very well—and deplore—the fact that most of their top stars are not only sympathetic to Crosby's revolt but envy him; and worse, that such top draws as Fred Allen and Fibber McGee may insist next season on new contracts permitting them the same freedom of transcription.

The golden touch goes, with the golden voice. Nearly everything he does is the most, the best, the first—and brings in pots of gold. The day after he sings a song on the air, music counter clerks all over the United States sell 50,000 copies Bing Crosbys patent leather larynx is far and away the greatest moneymaker in the history of music.

In the 13 years, 1933 through 1945, Bing made from all sources about $8,000,000. After taxes, the two biggest outgo items are charities and necessary expenses. Bing is a naturally generous character, and is never permitted to forget it.

Bing has a lot of fun, and knows it: when people sympathize with him—how hard he must work, how little he has left after taxes—Bing murmurs, "Well, I don't know. My golf handicap is quite low, and I haven't missed a pheasant season in Idaho or the opening of the deer in Nevada in four years."

Early Riser; Casual Dresser

When he is making movies, some five to six months of each year, Bing gets up at 6:45 a.m., showers, shaves and jerks on some nondescript clothes—any pants, a sports shirt, any socks—shoves his feet into a pair of old brown and white sport shoes, and shuffles downstairs, moving with that easy grace slightly marred by the fact that he never laces his shoes and they tend to come off.

Breakfast over, Bing picks up a wrinkled old sports jacket and a dilapidated hat from a sofa in the hall and walks out to the garage, shoelaces trailing. Alone, he drives a rather dingy 1940 Cadillac coupe the eight miles to the Paramount studio. He is in his dressing room, ready for makeup, a little after 8.30 a.m.

The glance with which Bing skims the day's script while dressing is extraordinarily retentive. He is a "quick sturdy," with a fabulous memory; he never bones up, except for the glance during make-up. Yet hour after hour, all day, he will be letter perfect in his lines and serving as a prompter to the muddleheads.

Bing's memory is awe inspiring; he knows the music and at least half the words of thousands of songs. This memory is one of his great gifts, but it is also a product of continuous training since earliest boyhood. Year in and year out, the Jesuit fathers of his schooling worked him rigorously in the full range of elocution, from long poems to the altar boy's responses.

With people Bing has a simple standard: Is this guy regular or not? He is unimpressed by the size, shape, clothes, title, rank, color and economic status of people. If the guy is regular, he's Crosby's boy; if he isn't regular, whether president or prop man, Bing has no time for him.

One reason people work so hard for Bing is that he chooses experts to work around him — then gives them free rein and loyal support. Example. Two of Bing's closest friends are the composers Johnny Burke and Jimmy Van Heusen. They will work for weeks to concoct such tunes as "Swinging on a Star" and "Moonlight Becomes You."

Was With Paul Whiteman

Outside the Crosby family itself, and beyond the great circle of "friends" he found when he had become a success, four men, above most others, helped Bing along the way. One was his boyhood friend, Alton Rinker of Spokane, now a Hollywood radio producer; the second was a slender little hot piano player, Harry Barris, of Denver; the third was the man who first made jazz respectable and then took it to the concert stage, Paul Whiteman, and the fourth was Jack Knapp of the Brunswick record laboratory, who rose to become president of Decca records.

Rinker was Bing's indispensable and loyal companion, who put in half of the $40 with which they bought an antiquated Ford in 1926 for their onslaught on show business in Los Angeles. After 12 tough months Paul Whiteman found them irresistible and hired them.

They flopped in New York. Patient Paul, in the midst of a champagne binge one night, hired Harry Barris, a youth who used to take piano-lessons from his father, Wilberforce Whiteman, in Denver. He then welded Barris to Crosby and Rinker came up with Paul Whiteman's Rhythm Boys, a jazz singing trio like no other trio before or since. Barris turned out to be a composer—the songs the trio worked out in a few weeks are now classics in the jazz repertory: "Mississippi Mud," "Bluebirds and Blackbirds," "From Monday On," "I Left My Sugar Standing in the Rain," "My Suppressed Desire," "Rhythm King," "Louise."

After two years with Whiteman, the Rhythm Boys stayed in Hollywood, singing with Gus Arnheim's orchestra at the Cocoanut Grove. There Barris composed some of the great modern popular ballads such as "It Must Be True," "At Your Command," "Lies," "Wrap Your Troubles in Dreams" and "I surrender, Dear." Crosby became a solo sensation singing these songs, but when the Rhythm Boys asked for a raise from $175 a week each, the Grove's manager turned them down. They walked out. Crosby's brother, Everett, sold Bing to Mack Sennett, the veteran who made so many stars (and millions) in two reel quickie shorts. Sennett decided to risk six shorts on Bing, who was happily staggered to find himself worth $750 a week—even if it was for only six weeks.

Rolls to Success on Discs

Jobless but carefree, Bing now married Dixie Lee, a handsome Fox starlet; this was the spring of 1931. Everett saw he must work fast to keep Bing in golf balls; he wired Jack Knapp, begging him to take a chance on Bing. The deal: 12 records at $125 a side. Original copies are worth $30 each today, and Knapp is a rich man, through that O.K.

In those days the big phonograph record companies had grown rich in spite of the fact that they consistently ignored public demand. The handling of Crosby was a clear example. Bing was already one of the most popular vocalists in history as far back as 1928. Yet neither Victor nor Columbia did anything to satisfy that demand; it is doubtful that they even were aware of it.

The situation was ripe for the entry of a tough businessman with an ear for good popular music, an eye for promotion, and the nerve to bet a few hundred dollars. Only Jack Knapp had brains enough to grab the opportunity.

On a royalty that now runs 2½ to 4½c a record, Bing since 1934 has made $2,000,000 from the sale of Decca records. No one knows how much Jack Knapp has taken in from Bing's records, but $5,000,000 would be most conservative. Knapp has long since affected a patronizing and fatherly air toward Crosby, whom he has on an ironbound, rock ribbed contract extending to $195.

Kapp's program for Crosby, planned carefully ahead for years, has Bing singing every variety of tune—hillbilly, Hawaiian, jazz, Cowboy, "Ave Marie stuff," South American, Swiss yodels and boogie-woogie; he also has begun to use Bing as a read of such dramatic pieces as Oscar Wilde's "The Happy Prince." Kapp explains delicately that one has to build up a big backlog of Crosby stuff against the day when Bing's voice cracks with age; by 1950 he expects to have enough unissued Crosbyana to keep going for another generation.

Communismn is Seen As Growing Menace, Enemy of Christianity

St. Catharines, Jan. 17. (CP)—Senator J. J. Bench speaking before the First United Church Men's Club warned Wednesday night that Communism is not an abstract political fad but rather a growing menace and dangerous enemy of Christian ideals.

He paid tribute to Ontario Premier Drew as "one of the few men in the public life of this country" who is preaching the dangers of Communism.

"If more Canadian citizens, instead of being content with being mere armchair critics, would take a more active part and interest in the affairs of government, whether they be federal, provincial, or municipal, our social betterment along constructive lines could be greatly accelerated," he said.

Best Greyhounds For Racing Come From Ireland

By JACK SULLIVAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

London, Jan. 17. (CP)—George Bernard Shaw probably was kidding everybody but himself and his fellow-Irishmen when he once pontificated: "Only one good thing ever came out of Ireland and I left three years ago."

Any Irishman doesn't have to flip his memory once over lightly to prove fun-loving Dublin-born G. B. S. wrong, and far down on the export list, to be sure, are Greyhounds.

As far back as 1941 British owners realized this "awful truth" and before Paddy could finish the last verse of "Mother Machree", a lot of blokes with ready cash were knocking at his door. Paddy obliged and more than £75,000 ($300,000) worth of dogs came to England to do their stuff.

The well-fed and well-trained Irish dogs soon showed their superiority over the rationed British pups. The English owner does admit Irish dogs have more bone than English, an advantage for these sleek streaks.

The export figures continued upward at rapid-fire rate and in 1944 hit $435,685—Ireland customs figures. Estimates by Greyhounds authorities put the figure at nearly £1,000,000 in 1946, and don't be surprised if they take an appreciable jump this year.

Things came to such a pass that Frank Gentles, chairman and managing director of the Greyhound Racing Association, thought of a G.R.A. stud farm—in Eire. A 140-acre establishment has been set up at Maudlins, Naas, just 17 miles from Dublin and plumb in the middle of Eire's breeding industry.

Main purpose of the establishment, staffed by Irish experts under the direction of Richard Critchley, brother of Calgary-born Brig.-Gen. A. C. Critchley, is to provide a collecting centre for Greyhounds bought, or to be bought, in Eire.

Research Plant May Produce Some By-Products

Ottawa, Jan. 17 (CP) — The Chalk River Atomic Research plant may produce some by-products of value for defence purposes, Defence Minister Claxton told a Press Conference today. He did not elaborate.

His statement coincided with the most recent annual report of the National Research Council which said the results attained at Chalk River would serve both civilian and defence purposes.

Mr. Claxton said the Chalk River project would remain under the National Research Council and be separate from the Defence Research Board recently established as a fourth branch of the forces.

Some research projects of the N.R.C., he said, would have a combined military-civilian function.

$5,000,000 Goal 1947 Objective Of Red Cross

Toronto, Jan. 17 —(CP)— With a $5,000,000 objective, the 1947 national Red Cross appeal will open Monday, March 3, it was announced Thursday by Arthur L. Bishop, chairman of the Canadian Red Cross national executive committee.

Mr. Bishop said the money sought in the coming campaign will be for the civilian blood transfusion service being developed to meet emergency needs across the country; to maintain and build more outpost hospitals; to widen the society's service to disabled veterans, and to expand its peace-time services.

"Voluntary contributions of Canadians, per capita, during the war were the highest of any country in the world. They were for war purposes only, however, and most of this money has been expended. The balance is being spent on civilian war relief—under the War Charities Act it cannot otherwise be used."

The Canadian Red Cross "is equipped and ready to redirect the experience and strength developed in the war to a great program for the benefit of all Canada," said Mr. Bishop. "Canadians are asked to give their whole-hearted support."

Husband Wants His Wife Back

Grand Rapids, Mich., Jan. 17 —(AP)— The husband of an attractive choir singer, accused of adultery with the pastor of her Methodist Church, said Thursday that he wants his missing wife back.

Paul Cowles, a salesman, whose complaint led to a warrant, said of his wife, Mrs. Marguerite Cowles, 40-year-old mother of a grown son:

"I don't blame her. My only interest in making the complaint was to bring the two families back together again."

Mrs. Cowles has been under a doctor's care for a year, he added, because of a nervous condition.

Grand Rapids police said they have no clue to the whereabouts of Mrs. Cowles and the 54-year-old Rev. Daniel L. Reedy, a grandfather and veteran of 27 years in the ministry.

They were named in a warrant issued by Police Judge Edward C. Burleson. Dallas, Tex., police were asked to look for them after they were reported in the southern city.

The warrant alleges that Mrs. Cowles and the minister committed adultery last Oct. 1 at an unspecified place.

Reedy sent his resignation to Methodist superiors Jan. 8 and it was accepted as "a withdrawal under charges."

The Cowles, parents of a 22-year-old son, were members of the congregation at Reedy's Plainfield Methodist Church in Grand Rapids.

Reedy, honored in September, 1944, upon completion of 25 years in the ministry, is the father of two daughters. One is a college student, the other, married, recently gave birth to a child.

Briton Starts 300-Mile Walk Around Britain

(By The Canadian Press)

Unsettled housing conditions have caused many a tenant to break away from his landlady in an atmosphere of unfriendliness but a report last night from London offers a refreshing contrast. The report states: "Breaking away from a send-off embrace with his landlady, Bert Couzens, 47-year-old long distance walking champion, started off today on a 3,000-mile trek around Britain." Couzens picked his way through the traffic of Fleet Street — London's famous newspaper row — and headed for Brighton on the south coast.

He will continue to Land's End — covering a scheduled 60 miles a day — then north to Glasgow and through Scotland to John O'Groats. Then he will turn south to Edinburgh and down the east coast to London.

A St. Louis report yesterday said no agreement has been reached between officials of the St. Louis American Hockey League club and Charlie Conacher of Oshawa regarding the St. Louis coaching berth for next season. Conacher has been discussing terms with St. Louis officials for several days.

As part of his forthcoming South American tour, heavyweight champion Joe Louis will meet a Peruvian heavyweight, as yet unselected, in a six-round exhibition bout at Lima, Feb. 15, it was announced yesterday.

A 4-2 win over a touring United States hockey team, last night gave a strengthened English all-star team its first victory in five exhibition games between the 2 teams. The game was played at London.

FOR YOUR SAFETY...

THE RAILWAYS leave nothing to chance. Signals must not fail. The automatic and sure protection at grade crossings is but one example of the deep concern shown for your safety.

Behind the eternal vigilance of these signals stands the sure and certain performance of Exide Storage Batteries. The railways' exacting specifications demand the best. The fact that they use Exides is proof of the trustworthiness of these batteries.

In your car an Exide will be just as dependable—ready to start your car instantly in any weather — with ample capacity to operate the other electrical equipment on your car.

And — you will find the Exide Dealers ready to serve your needs. They have the necessary experience and modern testing equipment to give you full satisfaction.

Fair Board Progress

Success of the Belleville Agricultural Society's exhibition last year, which was one of the best in the board's history, proves how important a place the district fair and the rural fairs occupy in the minds of the people. Last year's exhibitions in this district were successful and there were the marks of expansion. The total result of the exhibitions year after year by/the fair societies amounts to the confirmation of the opinion that these shows are essential and vital to the life of the communities in which they are held and to agriculture and industry in the district and in the entire country. They are part and parcel of the district and community life and as such will continue to express the spirit of the farming class and the urban communities. Their influence points the way of progress.

The Belleville Exhibition is fortunate in its location in one of the finest agricultural districts, surrounded on all sides by a good farming country and located in a progressive industrial area. It has fine grounds and has added to its accommodation in the past year.

From financial and attendance standpoints the local 1946 exhibition was a success and the society carries over a surplus from the year's operation of $2,028, while the total income for the last year was over sixteen thousand dollars.

With a public-spirited board such as the society possesses there are all the signs of its continued growth and influence.

Everyone feels that there is a place in the life of the province and of the various districts for such institutions as the district exhibition and the rural fair. The boards are made up of active men, who know the possibilities and the needs of their communities and who are certain of the worthwhile results of such agricultural organizations. They represent the district and in a larger sense they are an inspiration to the Province and the Dominion.

The future looks bright for progress of the agricultural organizations associated with these annual shows and exhibitions.

Filling the Lamps

How clear and shining are the chimneys of lamps ranged on a kitchen mantel shelf can be taken as a glistening gauge of farm housekeeping, remarks the New York Tribune. On farms to which electricity has not yet brought its bright beneficence there is always a day set aside for the simple but rather fussy ceremony of "filling the lamps." The filling process covers more than appears in the verb. It means also a trimming of wicks, with sometimes one or more to be replaced, and it includes a washing of chimneys in hot suds and a polishing of them inside and out, usually with old newspapers. Then the lamps — which themselves have been rubbed or perhaps washed — go back on the shelf, to be carried that night to rooms from which they have been collected.

Despite the spread of rural electrification, there are still plenty of farms where oil lamps serve long hours on winter nights and mornings, and in summer make lures for moth and mosquito. Statisticians report that during 1940 there were more than five hundred thousand more farms "connected up." But even with this good-sized increase in wires and bulbs there remain some 1,500,000 farms where "filling the lamps" is a chore to be accomplished each week. And this filling, of course, counts a couple of barn lanterns.

The kerosene lamp, particularly in its larger sizes, is now ranking as an antique in a fast-moving age when "antiques" grow to commercial maturity with astounding rapidity. But in many hill-country homes tonight a warm, yellow glow from such lamps shines out, through polished chimneys, across near-by snowbanks and a well shovelled path to the barn.

Pytheas Before Caesar

"Answers" of London, England, tells of an earlier landing in Britain than that by Julius Caesar, the invader being Pytheas of Massilia. The story is as follows:

The recent celebrations of the two thousandth anniversary of Julius Caesar's visit to Britain suggest that we have a soft spot in our hearts for invaders, always provided, of course, that they did their invading a few centuries ago. But it is a bit ironical that we should make a fuss about this would-be conqueror, who didn't stay long enough to do the job, and forget an earlier guest, who saw much more of the country and who came as a friend.

This was Pytheas of Massilia (the modern Marseille, then a Greek colony), who was the first Greek explorer to sail beyond the pillars of Hercules and coast along the western shores of Europe. He landed, as Caesar did, in Kent, but wasn't satisfied so easily as the Roman. He sailed his ship right up the east coast of Britain to the Orkneys, and then cut across to the Baltic before returning to Massilia. He also tramped on foot over quite a part of Britain.

All this was in the fourth century B.C.—about the time Alexander the Great was sighing for fresh worlds to conquer. Pytheas found them, but fortunately for our ancestors, nobody told Alexander.

Bottlenecks

In order to illustrate the progress (or whatever it is) of our language, I am compiling a brochure on bottlenecks, Henry Strauss, M.P., writes in The London Times. I shall accordingly be grateful for any significant additions to these examples from recent journalism:

1. "The biggest bottleneck in housing," meaning the worst, most constricting and presumably narrowest bottleneck.
2. "Bottlenecks must be ironed out" (leading article in the daily press).
3. "Bottlenecks ahead" and "bottlenecks in bottles" (recent headlines).
4. "The economy of the Ruhr is bound to move within a vicious circle of interdependent bottlenecks."
5. "What is planned is actually a series of bottlenecks. The most drastic bottleneck is that of machine tools."
6. "One bottleneck . . . which is particularly far-reaching and decisive."

Boy, Bring a Toga

Raymond Duncan, 72-year-old brother of the late dancer, Isadore Duncan, is back. He arrived at New York aboard the Ile de France wrapped in Grecian togs. He came down the gangway in toga, sandals and headdress of a design familiar in Socrates' garden guests. For 43 years he's worn nothing else, says the Cleveland Plain-Dealer.

We're searching for the Greek type to wish him "happy days." Meanwhile we urge all to emulate Duncan, each designing his own outfit.

No matter how much we moderns boast of freedoms, when it comes to clothes we're slaves. Our suits and overcoats, hats and shirts, socks and underwear are fashioned by machines on standard patterns.

Even in the age of knee breeches, silver buckles, powdered wigs, cutaway coats and stand-up collars the scholar could be distinguished from the farmer, the physician from the mechanic. But no more. You can't even pick out a New Dealer when he isn't carrying his strike banner.

On Poaching

Claiming to share with the late Governor-General of Canada (the late Lord Tweedsmuir—John Buchan) the privilege of boasting that he had passed some of the most enjoyable hours of his youth poaching in the burns and rivers of his richer neighbours, Moray McLaren in a recent BBC overseas talk lamented a new and sinister development in Scottish poaching. In place of the old-fashioned sporting form of poaching, which never seriously threatened the wild life of the country and was always kept in bounds, there is today a tendency towards large-scale mass poaching, made easy by cheap and fast long-distance transport. Fish are dynamited out of the Highland waters, and McLaren says that on one loch, which used to be carefully preserved when he was a boy, one can now see night lines laid nearly every twenty yards. People come out of the neighboring town and collect the fish in the morning with as much ease as they would collect washing left out to dry. As a result, the fish life in the Scottish lochs and rivers is being seriously reduced.

DESK TOP

Time was, when it was shiny new,
My gleaming desk top I could view.
I took a solemn vow that day
As fair to look upon 'twould stay.
But here's what makes the women wince,
No one has seen its surface since.

Who comes to visit, sadly looks
Upon a pile of favorite books,
Some magazines I thought I'd need
And later find the time to read;
Letters I've tossed aside, which I
Intend to answer by and by.

I shout when women stand and moan:
"Hands off! You leave my desk alone!
Sweep, scrub and rearrange and dust,
Hang up and hide things if you must,
But shake your heads and go away;
That's how, till death, my desk will stay."

JAN. 17TH., 1927

In a game of hockey at the arena last night the Intelligencer team defeated the Butchers' team, the score being 3 to 0. The referee was "Gilly" Goyer in the first half and "Pick" Arnott in the second half. Jack Arnott, Gene Doyle and Brown were the pick of the winners, with Dan O'Donahue showing flashes of his real form. Lorne Cook on the wing played a hard game, Bob Miles and "Feather" Naphan worked hard for their team, but their rushes were always stopped at the printers' defence.

Mr. G. A. C. Weir returned home from Toronto today.

Rt. Rev. Monsignor Farrelly of St. Michael's Church spent yesterday in Brockville, the guest of Vicar General Gauthier.

Washington Spotlight

By CLYDE BLACKBURN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Washington, Jan. 17. (CP)—Money —such huge quantities of it that an ordinary person cannot envision them—is the main theme of thought in the new Repubican Congress.

President Truman has estimated that expenditures of $37,500,000,000 which he thinks will be sufficient to see the administration through the year ending June 30, 1948, will be exceeded by $200,000,000 in revenue.

At that rate it would take 1,300 years to pay off the $260,000,000,000 national debt.

Eager new Republican Congressmen and some of the old-timers tasting power for the first time in 15 years are determined to cut down expenditures, reduce the national debt substantially, and still take less money from taxpayers.

The administration points out that it has reduced the public payroll to 2,300,000 persons from the wartime high of 3,770,000.

But the axe-wielding Congressional economists retort that the public service still employs about twice the number it did before the war.

They are aiming to reduce taxation by about $5,500,000,000 a year.

Unless Congress heeds the President's plea to extend wartime taxes the excise on liquor will drop from $9 a gallon to $6 next July 1. Advocates of the reduction are raising the possibility, if not the likelihood, that to continue the tax would be to invite a return of large scale moonshining and bootlegging.

American departmental heads could read with envy the Ottawa announcement that Canadian deputy ministers would be paid up to $17,500 a year. Ministers of the government here are called secretaries and their salaries is $15,000 top. Their deputy ministers, (assistant secretaries), are paid $10,000. However, some branch directors get $12,000.

Comment on the political situation, heard at the annual press club dinner to the President: 1st Comedian—"How do you like Washington?" 2nd Comedian—"Great. I'm going to stay here and run for President." 1st Comedian—"Who ain't?"

HEAVY AGENDA

11. Amendments to the Immigration Act lifting the clause that prevents Chinese immigration.

12. Revamping the Canada Shipping Act objected to by labor organizations on the claim it hinders collective bargaining.

13. A bill to set up a maritime commission which would control routine of shipping, bonusing lines to develop export trade and the general development of a merchant marine.

14. More important than all these will be the bills to bring into effect the budget changes in taxes and tariffs.

15. What legislation will be required to cover tax agreements with the provinces cannot be forecast until the negotiations are further advanced.

Termination of the national Emergency Powers Act may force the House to get a move on. This Act, which extended the government's wartime powers into the transitional period, will end March 31 unless something is done to keep it alive.

It is under these powers that the government controls prices, regulates marketing and exercises other unusual authority. The House is expected to agree with the government that much of this power is still needed and will not want it to end abruptly.

Two courses are before the government; either to ask for an extension of the act or to bring in permanent legislation giving it the statutory authority to continue the controls it deems necessary and which it now is exercising under Orders-in-Council.

The opposition is expected to object strenuously to certain controls being made permanent. Last session it took weeks to get the bill through the House and Senate authorizing the Foreign Control Board. It is regarded as impossible to get a series of similar bills through parliament by March 31.

The present control on wheat marketing and prices exercised by the Canadian Wheat Board is almost certain to require parliamentary action. The present Wheat Board Act gives the government power to compel wheat growers to sell exclusively to the Board, but these clauses were never proclaimed.

Before the war the government fixed wheat prices each year and if the fixed price was higher than the world price the Board got all the wheat. If the world prices went higher than the fixed prices, the wheat went to the private traders.

The present Wheat Board Act provides for participation certificates. Growers share in any profits the Board makes, but they have to be paid annually whereas the Board under the Emergency Powers Act plans to defer them.

Last session, which ended Aug. 31, broke all records for the number of weeks occupied in the final drive for prorogation, and members were outspoken in demanding that something be done about it. But nothing is heard now about changes with a fresh session coming up and everyone rested.

Letters to the Editor

Editor,
The Ontario Intelligencer,

Sunday delivery of milk in Brantford, St. Catharines, London, Campbellford, Ottawa and a small place like Tweed, are a thing of the past.

Why can't we, like the rest of these places, have no delivery of milk on Sunday so the milk salesman can have one day of rest?

Tea Coffee, or Cocktail 'For Cup That Cheers'

(By Grace Lockhart, In the Vancouver Daily Province)

"Get a York shilling's worth of Japan tea," my mother would say as she packed the eggs in my basket for the trip up the 12th concession to the store.

We were always running out of tea, perhaps because the whole family drank it, and because it was served every meal. Japan tea, of course, was what everybody drank in those days. At twenty-five cents a pound, cash or trade.

I'd always thought the various kinds of tea belonged on different bushes. Now I learn they all grow on the same kind of bush. It is during the process of manufacture the final state is determined. If they want black tea, oxidization takes place before firing. If they want green, it is steamed before firing and its original color retained. Simple as that. Likewise I've learned, the higher the altitude in which the plant grows, the finer the tea.

* * *

Dropping in for tea, especially across the line, often means anything but that. In New York before the war, Isabel Paterson of the New York Tribune took me along to a "tea" given by a famous publishing firm for their latest author.

It was held in a very swanky Park Avenue apartment. When we arrived the place was jammed while maids and butlers and whatnots carried around laden trays. Isabel takes nothing alcoholic, while I was very doubtful of the concoctions being served.

"Let's upset the machinery by taking them at their word and asking for tea," said Isabel. So when the butler asked us what we would have to drink, Isabel said: "Tea, with lemon, please."

He looked simply stunned, and then said: "Very good, Madam."

"I'll bet he has to borrow it from the neighbors," said Isabel.

One tea picture that comes to my mind is that of my mother sitting at the end of the big kitchen table, the end handiest to the stove and the tea kettle, pouring the family tea from a big white and gold teapot. My father was served with the first cup, as befitted his station, and we children were served in a series of steps down, the younger the child the weaker the brew. If it was too hot to drink, we poured it in the saucer and blew it till it cooled.

* * *

Another tea picture in my mind, was the smart lobby of the Park Lane Hotel in London, which I would say is the horse's mouth as far as tea drinking goes. The tea drinkers were mostly local gentry, with a sprinkling of rich American tourists. It was a favorite rendezvous. The tea itself was hot, fragrant and beautifully served. I didn't see any "saucering" going on.

Last Summer I was a guest at a newspaper tea, given by Bob Kison of Washington and "Pete" his wife. There was the usual pretty tea table that in this country we take for granted.

There were garden flowers in the centre, with someone pouring from a shining old silver tea service. There was fragile china and sandwiches so pretty they ought to have been worn instead of eaten.

"Isn't all this lovely?" said Pete, "I mean this whole ritual or ceremony, or whatever you might call it, of serving tea to your guests. I haven't been to a tea in the five years I have lived in Washington and New York. Everybody has coffee parties or cocktail parties."

But imagine, buying tea at twenty-five cents a pound!

PERSONAL HEALTH TALKS

By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D.

IT'S A GOOD TRICK IF YOU CAN DO IT

The head of a department of a manufacturing plant in the west was a pilot some time ago. He had to pass medical examination every six months. Finally the doctor said he would not approve the pilot's application for renewal of license until the pilot had his tonsils out.

When the pilot asked a doctor he knew to take his tonsils out the doctor examined his throat and said "No, son. They are swollen, and maybe they require treatment, but I'll not remove them. I'll treat them with diathermy, if you wish." The doctor explained this and the pilot agreed to report for a five-minute treatment once a week for several weeks.

After each diathermy (electro-coagulation) treatment administered with the aid of local anesthetic, the patient enjoyed his regular lunch, and never missed a meal or had any more than mild soreness of the throat throughout the six or eight treatments.

Shortly afterward the pilot moved west. After an interval of three years he had to have a medical examination again as required in his job. The medical examiner went out of his way to comment on the excellent, clean condition of the pilot's throat and tonsils. When the pilot corrected the doctor's impression that it was a skilled surgical job (he assumed the pilot had had tonsillectomy) the doctor was chagrined, but, oddly enough, seemed mollified when the pilot assured him the electro-coagulation had been done by a regular M.D.

The pilot adds that he has enjoyed perfect health since the diathermy treatment, and he doesn't know whether to ascribe his good health to that or to the change in climate . . .

Well, I have no idea what would explain it—the pilot tells nothing about the condition of his health prior to the diathermy.

The odd reaction of the doctor is characteristic of the attitude of the majority of the medical profession in respect to new methods. First the old timers condemn the "untried" or radical new method out of hand. Then they try to believe that only shady characters, near-doctors, irregular practitioners use the method. After twenty years or so they begin to concede it may have some value in cases where the old treatment is not applicable.

A more familiar reaction of brass specialists when they get a chance to look at the throat of a patient who has had tonsils extirpated by diathermy, is the observation, intended to dismay: "Well, you still have your tonsils."

The right rejoinder to that being "So what?"

After all, these knuckleheads ought to begin to realize there is no reason why we should ever attempt to remove the entire tonsil—except malignancy—and on the other hand there are too many tragic results of the unjustifiable attempt to do that by the brutal, life-endangering major operation, tonsillectomy.

This tonsillectomy atrocity is perpetrated much less frequently today than in grandfather's day—haven't you noticed? Gradually the doctor's are beginning to realize that the effective treatment of infection in a tonsil does not warrant removing the entire tonsil.

I'm sorry, folks, that I can't tell you which physicians in your community are skilled in tonsil diathermy. The task of maintaining such lists proved far beyond my capacity to carry on.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Everybody Needs It

May I ask how one knows whether he needs Iodin Ration? (P. R.)

Answer—Everybody needs a wee nip of iodine in one form or another every day—the minimum daily requirement for child or adult is 0.1 mg. of iodine, nutrition authorities say. Send stamped self addressed envelope and ask in writing (I do not read or answer clippings) for pamphlet "The Iodin Ration."

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

Where and by whom was coffee first used?

The coffee tree is indigenous to Africa and still grows wild in Ethiopia and Liberia. Apparently it was noticed in the Ethiopian province of Kafa about the 9th century by Arab travellers who took seeds to Yemen in southern Arabia, where the tree was first cultivated and whence the use of coffee as a beverage gradually spread. Until the 17th century Yemen virtually supplied the world with coffee and the Red Sea port of Mocha and coffee became synonymous.

"Coffee" is derived through Turkish "gahreh" from Arabic "k'hawah," a decoction of berries, which may be from Kafa (Caffa) the name of the Ethiopian province where the Arabs first found it growing.

Coffee beans, really berries, were first used, not for a drink but as a food eaten in paste form like chocolate bars.

Legend says an Ethiopian priest accidentally discovered the stimulating effect of coffee when a flock of goats ate some of the berries and then neglected their proper sleep!

The use of coffee as a beverage was common among the Arabs before the Turks captured Constantinople in 1453. Moslem pilgrims to Mecca used coffee to keep themselves awake and some Moslem sects still use the beverage in connection with religious rites.

The Moslems, denied the use of intoxicants by their religion, took a fancy to coffee. In 1511 the authorities at Mecca placed a ban on the use of coffee, but in Egypt Sultan Selim resisted the prohibition and had two Persians executed for warning the people against drinking it. The Turks also at first regarded coffee as an intoxicating beverage forbidden by Moslem law and tried unsuccessfully to prohibit its use, but by the end of the 16th century coffee houses were common in Constantinople.

Europeans learned the coffee habit from either the Arabs or the Turks or perhaps separately from both. A manuscript in the National Library of France suggests a knowledge of the use of coffee in Europe as early as the 9th century. Legend says the use of coffee in central Europe began after several bags of the beans were picked up on the battlefield after the Turks were defeated before Vienna in 1529. It is said that Christians frowned on coffee as an "infidel drink" until Clement VIII, Pope from 1592 to 1605, tasted a cu p and observed that it was "so delicious that it would b e a pity to let the infidels have exclusive use of it."

About 1736 Johann Sebastian Bach at Leipzig composed a comic cantata in praise of coffee. Voltaire drank 70 cups a day and Catherine the Great drank at breakfast five cups made of a pound of coffee.

Picton

P.E. Yacht Club To Hold Regatta On Civic Holiday

Picton (Special) — Prince Edward Yacht Club will hold their annual regatta on Civic holiday, Aug. 4, whether or not it is sanctioned by the American Power Boat Association. This decision was arrived at during the annual meeting of the club here Wednesday night. It was disclosed that a number of other yacht clubs are seeking this date, and the matter is to be settled at the annual meeting of the APBA next month.

The Picton Club is confident that the Association will confirm this date for Picton since it was the pioneer club in holding these powerboat regattas and its course is the best in Ontario or Quebec. Leading drivers prefer the Picton course, it was stated.

Should the date be given any other club, Picton will hold a powerboat and sailing regatta on that date and at least two of the most famous drivers have promised to attend. Aquatic sports would be added to the usual program.

A review of last year's regatta showed that it was the most largely attended of any on the A.P.B.A. circuit. Two world records have been set on Picton Bay.

Robert Finlayson of Toronto expressed the opinion that other clubs would favor Picton when the matter comes to be decided. He pointed out where a number of improvements could be made. Last year's unforeseen crowds had created a number of unexpected problems.

Treasurer Harold Knapman reported regatta receipts as $3,560. These were not as large as they would have been had help not been lacking to collect from the crowds which saw the races from other than the specified field. The club surplus was given as $1,911. The sum of $1,500 had been spent to build a dock.

C. R. Widdifield, K.C., succeeds J. C. Cooper as Commodore. Keith Gilmore is Vice Commodore, Charles Lewis, secretary and Harold Knapman, treasurer. Directors named were T. W. Learie, Dr. E. D. Fyffe, C. H. McGibbon, Emmerson Mason, Nesbitt McKibbon, H. B. Tully, Dayton Wark.

Picton (Special)—The town of Picton has been notified that it will receive the bell of the frigate 'Hallowell' which was decommissioned last year. This ship was adopted by the town and county and funds raised to provide many comforts for the crew. Mayor Lance Nethery was advised of the offer and plans for its acceptance and use will be discussed at the special meeting of town council Tuesday night.

Defence Expenditure Possibly $50,000,000 Below Estimates

Ottawa, Jan. 17 —(CP)— Defence Minister Claxton estimated Thursday that defence expenditures for the 1946-47 fiscal year actually would total $500,000,000 less than had been budgeted because demobilization of forces had been accomplished more quickly than had been expected.

He said there would be a "fair-sized" reduction in the total of non-essential construction which had been postponed due to the need for materials for home building.

He also forecast a "very substantial" reduction in defence estimates for the 1947-48 fiscal year but declined to indicate what the total might be. The estimates had to be studied and approved by the government.

Canada's permanent forces rank lowest among those of the world in the amount of personal services supplied officers, Defence Minister Claxton said at a press conference Thursday.

He said the number of cars provided during the war for officers had been "considerably reduced" and that consolidation of the three forces would permit this reduction to be extended.

FORMER ARMY STAFF CHIEF ARRIVES HOME

Lieut.-Gen. J. C. Murchie, former chief of the Canadian General Staff overseas and last senior army officer to be repatriated, arrived in Saint John aboard the cargo-passenger liner Beaverford. Pictured above, Gen. Murchie is thanking the ship's master, Capt. R. A. Leicester (left) for his courtesies during the voyage. Maj.-Gen. H. W. Foster, general officer commanding Eastern Command, who officially welcomed Gen. Murchie, is in the centre. It was Gen. Murchie's desire to travel home on the Beaverford, rather than by passenger liner.

Where Bighorn Sheep Live Under Protection

From the National Parks Bureau

A report from the Superintendent of Jasper National Park, Alberta, that two men had each been fined $200 and costs for the illegal killing of a Rocky Mountain (Bighorn) sheep has been received by the Department of Mines and Resources. The sheep was killed near the Jasper-Edmonton Highway and the culprits were apprehended by one of the park wardens.

The largest flock of Bighorn sheep on the North American continent, about 3,000 head, is contained in Jasper Park. They range in bands over much of its rocky terrain, feeding and breeding among its crags and canyons. In Summer they are to be found high on its alpine meadows, and in Winter down in its sheltered valleys.

Bighorn sheep are common throughout the national parks in the Canadian Rockies. Banff has about 500 of them and they are present in Kootenay and Waterton Lakes Parks in smaller numbers. In 1941, epidemic disease decimated the Bighorn sheep in Kootenay and Waterton, but the latest reports indicate that flocks in these parks are gradually recovering from this disaster.

The range of Bighorn sheep extends from northern Alaska to Lower California and there are several geographical forms scattered throughout this vast area. The rams are distinguished by their huge curling horns, which were noted by the earliest visitors to the regions inhabited by wild sheep. By contrast the ewes have small, short, erect horns, much flatter than those of the rams. The head of a Bighorn ram has always been a coveted trophy of sportsmen.

Wild sheep can traverse, with comparative ease, mountain terrain that would test the skill of the greatest climber, and can move through difficult country about ten times as fast as a hunter on foot. Yet their innate curiosity, which impels them to stop after running a short distance, and survey the intruder from a nearby mountain crag, makes them particularly vulnerable to the high-powered rifle. Also their habit of visiting certain watering places and salt licks often resulted in mass slaughter in the days before protective laws were enacted for their preservation.

Frank Boehler,

Hamilton war veteran, who is said to be the new witness to be called when the Dick murder case is resumed. He helped pull an auto from a mud road near where Dick's torso was found and saw the occupants of the car.

PRESS LORD ARRIVES

MURDER

surprise. Throughout the hearing the justices had shown sympathy toward Mrs. Dick's appeal as they questioned both defence counsel and the Crown's representative.

Mr. Robinette had based his plea for a new trial on his contention that the trial judge, Mr. Justice F. H. Barlow, had misdirected the jury, failed to point out that some Crown evidence brought out at the trial pointed to MacLean as the killer, rather than Evelyn. He held also that the trial judge had wrongly admitted Mrs. Dick's several statements to police as evidence because, said Mr. Robinette, she had not been properly warned before making them and he held they were not voluntary statements.

Claims Proceedings Fair

The crown, in asking the court to uphold the verdict of last Autumn's trial—the most celebrated trial perhaps, in Hamilton's history—claimed the proceedings had been fairly and properly conducted, that the statements were rightly considered as evidence and made known that since Mrs. Dick's conviction new evidence had come to the hands of the crown.

Mr. Snyder did not say what it was but only yesterday it was learned in Hamilton that a new crown witness against the woman likely be Frank Boehler, 24, whose testimony is thought to be the most important information yet brought to police notice in the grimmest of Hamilton murders.

So far there has been no official confirmation of what evidence Boehler has to offer but the general belief is that while working near the remote side-road where the killing allegedly took place he was called on to help pull from the mud the big black sedan in which Mrs. Dick has said her husband was killed.

In her final statement to police the woman declared Dick died on a remote road about 15 miles from Hamilton from gunshots fired by Bill Bohozuk from the back seat of the car while Dick sat beside his wife in the front seat. That statement said Mr. MacLean supplied the weapon.

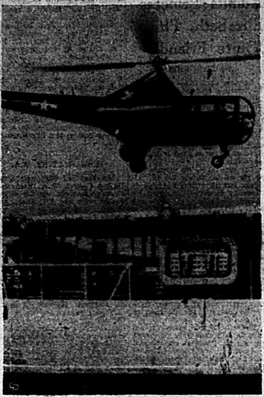
Date Postponed Month

Mrs. Dick originally was sentenced to be hanged Jan. 7 but that date was postponed one month to allow for disposition of her appeal and when judgment in the appeal court was delayed the trial of MacLean and Bohozuk, originally scheduled for Jan. 20 was put off one week.

The two men faced trial for three days last October after Mrs. Dick had been convicted and sentenced. Then their trial was traversed to the winter assizes because Mrs. Dick refused to testify for the crown against her father and one-time friend and without her testimony the crown felt it should not proceed. Her statements were not admissible as evidence at the trial of the men, falling for that trial, into the category of hearsay evidence.

Here it was thought likely the crown would proceed jointly against the three accused and the disposition of additional murder charges against Evelyn and Bohozuk in the death of her baby, Peter David White MacLean, would await outcome of the trial for John Dick's murder. The baby's body, missing one foot, was found entombed in cement inside a suitcase recovered at Mrs. Dick's home when police probed the murder of her husband.

HELICOPTER DESIGNED TO AID ADMIRAL BYRD



Destined for use in the Antarctic with Admiral Byrd's expedition, a U. S. Navy helicopter lowers slowly after a test hop over Los Angeles Harbor. The craft is landing on the 40 by 60-foot flight deck of the ice breaker Burton Island. The aerial "windmill" is equipped with long range facilities for scouting and possible rescue assignments with the South Pole exploratory fleet.

A Little Girl's Year

My childish pleasures were many, though so simple that a little girl of today would certainly think them woefully dull. We played paper dolls, jackstraws and jackstones; we "tilted"; we built houses from "stickings" and "cut-rounds"; and gave parties with dishes made of broken china. We pulled hairs from the horse's tail and put them in the brook to grow snakes, which, to our surprise and regret, they never did; we waded in the river and ran to and fro on the rafted logs; we fished for "shiners"; we made cakes of rose-leaves and brown sugar, folded them in paper and buried them in the earth for a week, when we dug them up with great ceremony and ate them with much lip-smacking.

In the spring we searched for mayflowers and waded in the full brooks and gathered fluffy pussy willows. There were anemones and frail hepaticas in the woods and blue flags and wild violets in the marshy places. We watched the yellow dandelions come, one by one, in the short green grass, and we stood under the maple trees and saw the sap trickle from their trunks into the great wooden buckets placed beneath.

If spring seemed wonderful, summer was even more joyous, with strawberrying and blueberrying and hay-making — long days of play and long twilights and moonlight nights.

One of our pleasures was a little out of the common. I asked my stepfather one day if he would give us a part of the garden brook for our froggery. The garden in question covered an acre or two of ground, with little up-hills and down-dales, while a dashing, tumultuous brook, with here and there a bit of quiet water, ran through it. There were many trees, with flower-beds bordering the road, and there was a green-and-white latticed summerhouse on the brink of the hill at the foot of which flowed our beloved Saco River. In one of the deep, quiet pools of the brook, hidden by green alder bushes, my father put pieces of fine wire netting, and so arranged them that the frogs we caught and placed there lived a pleasant and secluded life free from the cares and dangers that we fancied existed in large ponds . . .

We held a frog singing-school once a week. It was very troublesome, but exciting. We used to put a nice little board across the pool and then catch the frogs and try to keep them in line with their heads all facing the same way during the brief lesson. They never really caught the idea, and were never in a singing mood until just before our own early bedtime, when the baby frogs were so sleepy that they kept falling from the board into the pool. They could never quite apprehend the difference between school and pool; but at the end of the summer's training we twice succeeded in getting them into line, quiet, and docile, motionless, without a hint of the application of force; tact, moral suasion, and superhuman patience being the only means employed. It was a beautiful sight worth any amount of toil and trouble! Twenty-one frogs in line, for a minute and a half, all graded nicely as to size, all in fresh green suits with white shirt fronts . . .

Summer waned, but in the fall we went nutting and pressed red, yellow, and bronze autumn leaves between the pages of our great Webster's Dictionary. We gathered apples and watched the men working at the cider presses and the farmers as they threshed their wheat and husked their corn.

Then came winter, with snowballing and coasting downhill, and long evenings before the open fire, popping corn and roasting apples. — From "My Garden of Memory," by Kate Douglas Wiggins. (Boston: Houghton Mifflin, 1923.)

ENGAGEMENT NOTICE

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stone, of Toronto, announce the engagement of their daughter, Patricia Pearl, to Jack Finley Tummon, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Tummon, of Foxboro, Ontario. The marriage will take place Saturday, January 25, at 2 o'clock, in Park Rd. Baptist Church, Toronto.

Dr. Lily Mathieson will join her family to fly to New York today, to see her daughter, Mary, who is on brief leave from U.N.R.R.A. service in Hong Kong, China.

The many friends of Mrs. Frank Belnap will be glad to know she is progressing favorably in Belleville General Hospital after a serious operation.

Friends of Mrs. Clarence Hall, R.R. 1, Belleville, who underwent a major operation in Belleville General Hospital recently, will be pleased to learn that her condition is greatly improved and she is progressing favorably.

Miss Jean Fairbairn, Charles Street, was guest of honor last evening, at the Queen's Hotel, when members of a former bridge group of which she was a member, entertained her at dinner and presented her with a beautiful gold compact on the eve of her departure to the States, where she has accepted a position.

SOMETHING NEW ADDED

Toronto, Jan. 17 (CP)—Something new has been added to the annals of Toronto crime. Two women who broke into a suburban home yesterday, smashed the glass in a cellar coal shute, and in professional style sawed a hole in the cellar door at the top of the steps. They stole 20 pairs of nylons, jewelry, and an amount of clothing then left a lipsticked message on a mirror "You should not lock your doors."

Carmel United Church Holds Pastoral Meeting

Cannifton Official Board met in Carmel United Church on Monday with each appointment well represented. After a brief worship service, conducted by the minister, Rev. J. R. Trumpour, and the reading and confirming of the minutes the following reports were presented and adopted:

Admits Princess Elizabeth, Philip 'Quite Friendly'

By JACK SMITH

London, Jan. 16 — (AP)—One of Britain's best-informed officials broke down today and admitted without qualification that Princess Elizabeth and Prince Philip of Greece are "quite friendly."

It was the first official admission that Philip and the princess have much more than a nodding acquaintance.

The official — he wouldn't go so far as to permit use of his name, but his offices are near 10 Downing Street — imparted his information with a sly smile and a faint emphasis on "quite."

The Whitehall man dropped his nugget of news when asked if the government had given any consideration to the Sunday Pictorial's public opinion poll on the desirability of the marriage. Forty per cent of those who addressed letters to the newspaper opposed the union, chiefly because of Philip's connection with Greece.

Another five per cent said the princess should give up her right to the throne if she married Prince Philip.

The official said many cabinet ministers indubitably had read the Sunday Pictorial, but the poll had not been mentioned officially because, officially, there is no engagement.

When and if things reach the right stage, the informant said, the cabinet could be expected to take its own soundings of public opinion in the tried and true British method, by setting up a full-dress debate on the subject.

Women's Activities

W.I. MEETING

Mountain View. —Mrs. Willett Barber opened her home for the January meeting of the Women's Institute when there were about 20 members present. The President, Mrs. Clifford Barber, presided. A number of business details were discussed. Mrs. L. Wallbridge as convener of "Home Economics", then took charge of the program. She was assisted with readings given by Mrs. E. Hall, Mrs. William Burkitt and Miss Olive Nightingale. All of the members assisted by reading items on "Useful Household Hints".

Mrs. George Jackson gave an interesting account on Current Events during the past month.

The meeting then closed when Mrs. Barber assisted by several ladies served dainty refreshments.

STONE CHURCH W.M.S.-W.A.

4th Sidney. —Stone United Church W.M.S. met Wednesday afternoon in the church hall. Mrs. A. Walt presided over the opening worship service, assisted by Mrs. C. Rushnell, Mrs. O. Chisholm and Mrs. F. Tucker. "Prayer to a Heart of Lowly Love" was sung as a solo by Mrs. A. Seeley. During the business period it was decided to hold the next meeting on the same day as The World Day of Prayer, at the home of Mrs. E. B. Phillips. A special collection was taken for the "Canadian Aid to China" fund.

An article, "The Homes of India and Christian Culture" was read by Mrs. H. Gray. Mrs. F. Vermilyea contributed a solo, "If Jesus Goes With Me I'll Go", and Mrs. W. Tufts offered prayer for the missionaries overseas, and for all missionary workers. The meeting closed with the benediction, and Mrs. E. B. Phillips took charge for a short W.A. meeting.

Group leaders for 1947 are as follows: Mrs. E. B. Phillips, Mrs. Detlor and Mrs. F. Vermilyea. It was decided to have a dinner next week prior to the annual congregational meeting. The group leaders chose their helpers and plans were completed for the work of 1947.

PLAINFIELD W.M.S. MEETING

Plainfield. — The regular monthly meeting of Plainfield United Church W.M.S. was held at the home of Mrs. Violet Elliott on January 15. The President, Mrs. Clarence Marshall, opened the meeting with a poem for the New Year. A hymn and The Lord's Prayer followed. Mrs. Erle Denyes had charge of the devotional period, with quiet music by Mrs. Ralph Wilder. The hymn "Standing at the Portal" was used, after which Mrs. Denyes spoke on the theme "Fulfilling Our Church Membership in Witnessing for Christ". Passages of Scripture were read by Mesdames Elliott, Hazard and Fred Hall. Prayer by Mrs. Denyes closed the service.

During the business period the treasurer reported the allocation of $187.50 had been reached, including $154 by W.M.S.; $20 by Mission Band, $10 by Circle and $4 by Baby Band. Departmental reports were given by Miss Annie Hamilton for Community Friendship and Strangers; by Mrs. Clayton Hall for Temperance, by Mrs. S. Hazard for Baby Band, by Mrs. F. Hall for Mission Band. Mrs. McCreary spoke regarding the Mission Circle which she recently re-organized. She also contributed a reading.

In the absence of Rev. A. C. Campbell, Mrs. Fred Hall, past-president, capably installed the officers for 1947. Mrs. C. Hall had charge of the program as follows—reading by Mrs. S. Parks; solo, "Teach Me to Pray", by Mrs. McCreary, with Mrs. C. Beatty at the piano. Mrs. Hall was assisted in presenting the Study Book by Mesdames Norman Hall Sr., Clayton Hall and E. Emerson. A hymn and the Mizpah benediction closed the meeting. Refreshments were served by the hostess and her assistants.

HOLLOWAY ST. W.A.

Members of Holloway Street United Church W.A. held their January meeting in the church parlor, with Mrs. Ed. Shortt presiding. The opening hymn was "More Love to Thee", which was followed by The Lord's Prayer in unison. During the business meeting, plans were made for the annual congregational meeting to be held next week. Reports from departmental secretaries were received and adopted.

Rev. C. A. Perkins had charge of the devotional period, using Paul's shipwreck as the theme for his address. He said in part—"Life is a voyage and we are on the sea for another New Year". Mr. Perkins made particular mention of the well-known hymn "Jesus Saviour Pilot Me" saying—"We have a Saviour to pilot us. St. Paul was a man who believed in God at all times, and particularly in time of danger. Jesus is a great Pilot, Who can direct us and guide us if we place our confidence in Him." The above mentioned hymn was sung as a closing prayer for the Worship Service, following which Mr. Perkins installed the W.A. officers for 1947.

Mrs. L. Buck presided for the remainder of the meeting. She thanked the ladies for the honour bestowed upon her as president for 1947. Plans were made for the serving of meals to the Young People's meeting in the Winter School Sessions to be held next week in Bridge St. Church.

The meeting closed with the Mizpah benediction, and refreshments were served by the executive.

PLAINFIELD MISSION CIRCLE

Plainfield.— The Mission Circle of Plainfield United Church held its meeting on the evening of January 14, at the home of Mrs. Harry McCreary. The meeting was opened with devotional exercises with Mrs. Norman Hall Jr., as leader, taking the order of service from the Missionary Monthly magazine. Parts were read by Marjorie Reid, Helen Beatty, Joan and Faye Rollins. Readings were given by Hazel Prindle, Edna Jones and Mary Reid. Marion and Hazel Prindle contributed a duet "Only a Smile" and prayer was offered by Jean Reid.

Mrs. McCreary conducted election of officers for 1947 resulting as follows—President, Hazel Prindle; 1st Vice President, Joan Rollins; Recording Secretary, Dorothy Meeks; Treasurer, Helen Beatty; Pianist, Beryl Platt; Assistant, Isabelle Elliott; Group Leaders: Jean Reid, Joan Cronkright, Verna Prindle and Marjorie Reid. Eight members were enrolled. A period of recreation included games and a sing-song, after which refreshments were served by the hostess.

NEVER HAD QUARREL

Midland, Jan. 17 —(CP)—Married couples live long and happily in this Georgian Bay community. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Belfry this week celebrated their 52nd anniversary; Mr. and Mrs. John Hanley their 69th. Mrs. Belfry interviewed, said "I have yet to have my first quarrel with my husband."

SHE'S MAYOR AT 80

In a sudden upheaval in city politics in Berkeley, Calif., 80-year-old Mrs. Carrie Hoyt, wife of a retired newspaperman, found herself mayor of the city. Her elevation from vice-mayor followed the surprise triple resignation of Fitch Robertson from the posts of mayor, city council member and city manager-elect. His resignations came after a protest by the Berkeley League of Voters that Robertson was a member of the city council which not only voted him into office, but also raised the city manager's salary from $7,000 to $10,000. Mrs. Hoyt has been a member of the city council for 24 years and she and her husband celebrated their golden wedding anniversary seven years ago. The new mayor is pictured in a pensive mood.

Young Married Couple Presented With Gifts

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Jose, Massassaga, was the scene on the evening of Jan. 8, for a gathering of about forty friends and neighbors, who came to honor Mr. John Jose and his bride, with a miscellaneous shower of gifts. Cards supplied entertainment for the early evening, after which Mr. Gordon Boyle, acting as chairman, invited Mrs. Albert Wallbridge to read an address offering congratulations and good wishes for a happy future to the newlyweds, at the same time presenting them with the assembled gift packages.

After opening the parcels, Mr. and Mrs. Jose graciously thanked their friends for their kindness and for the many useful presents. The serving of refreshments brought another pleasant occasion to a close.

Burr's

Burr's—The Congregational meeting for the Burr Appointment convened at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Brooks on Tuesday evening. Rev. Lane presided during the meeting which was opened with prayer. Mr. Merritt Adams acted as secretary Mr. Gerald Brooks Sec.-Treas. for the Board of Stewards gave the annual financial report. The envelope system of giving has been adopted. The Experts Say . . .

By KAY REX
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Jan. 17 (CP)—There's snow for skiing and ice for skating and if there are any children or athletic adults in the family chances are the winter outdoors will cause their appetite to demand hot, nutritious meals.

Not only does an oven-cooked meal save on your fuel bill, but it also allows you plenty of scope and is usually something you can prepare beforehand and just slip in to cook at the last minute if you're pressed for time.

And for the main course, how about macaroni and cheese.

Ingredients: one cup macaroni, one teaspoon salt; two cups milk (or milk and vegetable stock); one cup buttered crumbs; two teaspoons grated onion (if desired); four tablespoons flour; two tablespoons dripping; one cup (one-third pound) grated cheese.

Break macaroni into pieces, wash, cook uncovered in large amount boiling water (salted) half an hour. When tender, drain in a sieve. Save this water for sauce or soup. Rinse macaroni. Make white sauce, stir in grated cheese and onion, then add macaroni. Heat through. You may serve this way, or—turn into greased baking dish, cover with crumbs, cook. Set in pan of water in oven until crumbs are browned.

And here is a baked or steamed fruit pudding for dessert.

Ingredients: Six cooking apples; three-quarters cup brown sugar; one and one-half cup flour; three teaspoons baking powder; one teaspoon salt; three tablespoons shortening; three-quarters cup milk or water.

Wipe, quarter, core, pare and slice apples. Spread in buttered baking-dish; sprinkle with sugar. Bake or cook on top of stove until apples are nearly tender. Combine the remaining ingredients and pour over apples. Bake or steam half an hour. Serve with a sauce.

Home economists of the consumer section, department of agriculture, suggest baked stuffed apples as an ideal winter dessert.

Ingredients: six medium apples; six tablespoons grated cheese; one-quarter cup sugar; peppermint flavoring; one-half cup water.

Wash and core apples. Place in baking-dish. Mix cheese and sugar and add three or four drops peppermint flavoring. Fill centres of apples with this mixture. Pour water into pan and bake in a moderate oven until apples are tender. Serve hot. This recipe allows for six servings.

FIGHTS MARK RIVALRY OF TWO GEORGIA GOVERNORS

The state supreme court will probably get the job of sorting out the tangled question of just who is governor of Georgia, since the incumbent governor, Ellis Arnall, declines to turn over his office to 34-year-old Herman Talmadge, son of the governor-elect who died before taking office. Talmadge, chosen by the state assembly after a 14-hour session, has set up an administration to rival Arnall's but tried unsuccessfully to budge the incumbent governor from his office. They met (top) in the state capitol in Atlanta when Talmadge (extreme right) demanded that Arnall (left) vacate the gubernatorial offices so that he could take over. Arnall refused; later a pitched battle (lower) ensued when followers of Talmadge tried to escort him into the building and were met by Arnall's supporters in the governor's anteroom. Now Georgia has two governors — and a first-class legal headache.

TOMMIES MOVE MEAT FOR LONDON

Soldiers in fatigue uniforms handle carcases of meat at London's famed Smithfield Market after the government sent troops to take over deliveries of meat to ensure essential supplies of food for the public. The transport strike has tied up all normal movement of supplies. Following employment of troops, matters became worse, for a rash of sympathy strikes has broken out all over England.

Cabinet Studies Report Against Free Ports

Ottawa, Jan. 17 —(CP)— An unfavorable report on the Canadian possibilities of free ports—foreign trade zones—was before the Dominion government today.

From its inter-departmental committee that studied the question, the cabinet had an opinion that the system was not practicable for Canada at present and that, in fact, this country's own bonded warehouse set-up held many of the advantages of free ports.

A long string of objections and disadvantages was cited by the committee, which began study last fall of the free zone set-up whereby goods might be brought into a designated area for trans-shipment or processing without payment of duty before they entered the country proper.

The inquiry by the body under Vice-Chairman J. E. St. Laurent of the National Harbors Board was launched at the behest of organizations in a number of harbor cities — led by Quebec and Halifax — which wanted a full investigation into the potentialities of a free port system for Canada. Its report was released yesterday by Transport Minister Chevrier.

Objections to the system for Canada, according to the committee, included unsettled world conditions, possible tariff changes, the Canadian tariff structure itself, and lack of convincing evidence it would attract additional trans-shipment traffic.

Another factor cited was the "ease" with which such shipments now can be handled under Canada's bonding and manifesting regulations, which offered exporters and importers "advantages comparable to those offered by a foreign trade zone."

Actually, the report said, such zones might tend to discourage trade to some extent because of high duties charged on some goods entering the country by way of a free port.

Other disadvantages, the committee found, were that free port zones were expensive to establish and police and required provisions for transit in bond for goods sent to a foreign destination by rial. They lacked both the flexibility and the inexpensive factor of bonded warehouses.

In Europe, it was admitted, the plan had been successful in numerous cases. But this was due to a number of factors not present here, including good shipping facilities to popular nearby countries and the fact that these countries levied specific duties only, at uniform rates.

Night Classes In Agriculture Proving Popular

Agricultural night classes at the Belleville Collegiate are proving popular among young farmers in the rural district immediately surrounding the city with a total of 66 now taking the courses. The night classes were inaugurated at the vocational school only last autumn.

Subjects taken in the agricultural classes include tractor maintenance, woodworking, farm mechanics and general agriculture with Robert Phillips acting as head instructor for the course.

There had been many requests for establishment of night classes for rural students and with Belleville being the county vocational school it was logical that the course for country people should be inaugurated.

Wednesday, January 22nd., will be open night for the agricultural class when a swine carcass demonstration will be staged in the collegiate auditorium. All four agricultural groups will be together to view the demonstration which is being held in the auditorium. The demonstration is open to the public who will be shown through other school departments, if desired.

The swine carcass demonstration is being arranged through H. Lynn Fair, agricultural representative, and W. S. McMullen, district field man for the Department of Agriculture.

PLEASED WITH UNIFORMS

Toronto, Jan. 17 —(CP)—Inspectors of the city police force are pleased with their new-style uniforms. The old ones had no buttons or other police identification on them, and one inspector said people looked doubtfully at him when he told them he was a policeman. "They thought I was a bank messenger or a department store delivery man," he said.

"Now you're talkin', Joe! The little woman might toss my hat out again but she'll never part with a package of malty-rich, nut-sweet Post's Grape-Nuts Flakes. And while she's fondly caressing 'em, I'll sneak upstairs to bed."

"Sure enough these Grape-Nuts Flakes are wonderful smile bait. And they stick-to-your ribs, too — with carbohydrates for energy; proteins for muscle; phosphorus for teeth and bones; iron for the blood; and other food essentials."

"My wife knows that Grape-Nuts Flakes are doubly good because they're made of two grains—wheat and malted barley—cleverly blended, baked and then toasted for matchless flavor, delightful crispness, easy digestion. Those recipes on the package for cookies and other good things will catch her eye, too!"

LLOYD MANGRUM IN SECOND PLACE GOLF TOURNEY

U. S. Champion Shoots Seven-Under-Par Golf in First Round

Richmond, Calif., Jan. 17 (AP) —Spurred by seven-under-par 64 posted by United States Open Golf Champion Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, leading United States golfers teed off today in the second round of the $10,000 Richmond 72-hole Open Golf tournament play.

Forty-eight of the 152 entrants bettered par 71 over the 6,209-yard Richmond course. Perfect golfing weather, a course in top playing condition and lack of wind combined to provide a "made-to-order" layout for the pros and top amateurs.

Despite his scoring splurge, which equalled the course competitive record set two years ago by Harold (Jug) McSpaden, Mangrum at the end of the first round was only one stroke ahead of William Fritz, California professional.

Mangrum carded a 34-30 for his 64 while Fritz turned in a 32-33 for 65.

Bunched on the heels of the leaders was a group of three professional including Ben Hogan, top money winner of the tournament circuit in 1946. The other two were Toney Penna of Cincinnati and Geo. Schoux, San Bruno, Calif. All had identical cards of 33-33-66.

Altogether, 15 amateurs were among the 109 golfers who survived the first-round cut, in which all posting cards of more than 73 were eliminated from competition. The top 60 will be left to finish the last two rounds of the tournament after another cut tonight.

One Canadian pro, Ben Colk, of Vancouver, survived the first round with a 71, but Dale Dixon, the other Vancouver pro, came up with a 39-37-76 and was eliminated.

TORONTO LEAFS AND CANADIENS PLAY 1-1 DRAW

Gus Mortson Accidentally Slipped Puck to Fillion Who Scored Easily

By VIC MORRIS, Jr.
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Montreal puck fans are wondering if the Montreal Canadiens are trying to cash in on Jack Adams' plan of pensions for National Hockey League "has beens" —that's how it looks to the bench rooter who has seen his champion Habitants crumble under the hand of the arch-enemy, Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Leafs almost dropped Canadiens under the foundation of the Forum with humiliation last night as they handed the Canucks a 1-1 draw after winning 2-1 Wednesday night in Toronto in the first game, of the important home-and-home series between the two Canadian clubs.

With a monkey wrench temporarily tossed in their four-game losing streak, Canucks are in the sad plight of having the best in the league in players, but no winning games. They have chased the league-leading Leafs for the past three weeks trying to regain their prestige by climbing atop the ladder in the N.H.L. "pennant" race, but the elusive Leafs refused to have their three-point margin trimmed and instead boosted it up to the present nine-point lead.

Mortson the Goat

Rearguard Gus Mortson acted the goat for Toronto when he twirled behind his own net and accidentally slipped the disc to Habs' Bobby Fillion who was roosting on Broda's doorstep and easily beat the bewildered netminder.

The Leafs sparkled as Bud Poile sank the opening counter before 12,066 sad-faced Montrealers less than three minutes after the opening whistle.

Feelings ran high and referee King Clancy thumbed 20 players into the "sin bin". Leafs led the penalty parade with 11, but Howie Meeker wasn't far behind when he set something of a record for a rookie, collecting four banishments.

The two top men on the ice were the opposing netminders Durnan and Broda who at times were left to fend for themselves by penalty-stricken players.

The league swings back into action tomorrow night with all six clubs active. Montreal will have a chance to "revenge" the 2-0 goose-egg they received from the Broadway Blue Shirts in their last encounter on Christmas Day. Toronto play hosts to the Detroit Red Wings while Chicago makes the jump to Boston.

Schoolboy Rowe Balks on Contract

Philadelphia, Jan. 17—(AP) — Lynnwood (Schoolboy) Rowe, aged right-hander who turned out to be the ace of the Philadelphia Phillies pitching staff last year in the National League, is having contract trouble with the Blue Jay management.

The former Detroit hurler says he "can't understand" Herb Pennock, Phil general manager.

"He offered me what amounts to a cut, asked me to work on a bonus contract and I never worked on a bonus in my life," Rowe said. "If I am to make as much as I did last year I have to win 12 games".

Countered Pennock: "Rowe signed a bonus contract last year based on winning 12 games. This year I offered him the same contract as last. I don't see where he has any kick."

Del Ennis, Phils' outfielder who won the 1946 "rookie of the year" title, is also balking at contract terms offered him.

Starry defenceman who is a strong offensive player, Clare Williamson will be battling his Alma Mater squad tonight at the Memorial Arena when Belleville's 1947 edition of Intermediate "A" hockeyists meet Queen's U. Clare was one of the defence bulwarks of the Redmen last year and his stick accounted for many a goal.

CHARLEY TRIPPI ON CHEAP SIDE SAYS RED GRANGE

Georgia Lad to Receive $100,000 With Chicago for Next Four Years

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

Chicago, Jan. 17 ((AP) — It was Red Grange on the telephone.

"So this Charley Trippi thinks he's getting the most money in pro football history, eh?" boomed the old gallopin' ghost of Illinois. "Why, that $100,000 contract with the Cardinals is peanuts—absolutely peanuts."

All this was shortly after Trippi announced yesterday in New York that he would sign a contract with Chicago Cardinals of the National Football League for $100,000 to perform for the next four years. Previously the All-American halfback from Georgia apparently was set to play with New York Yankees.

Continued Red, the United States football immortal:

"I mean that $100,000 over a four-season period that Georgia lad is going to sign for amounts to $25,000 per season. Even I can figure that. And I used to get $25,000 or more for one game. That's what I mean by peanuts."

Trippi said in New York that when he signs with the Cardinals it will be for "the biggest salary in the history of pro football—even more than Red Grange got."

"Again, I say peanuts when he compares what he's going to get with what I got," said Red. "It would take me a couple of hours to figure out what I made playing football from 1925 to 1934 and even then the total would just be an estimate. I wasn't getting paid a certain amount each game. I got a hunk of the gate receipts.

"The biggest chunk of cash I picked up ine one game was $50,000 when George Halas (Chicago) Bears and I met an all-star bunch captained by George Wilson, the 1925 All-America from Washington. The game was played in January of 1926 in Los Angeles before some 80,000 fans. And just before that I got $35,000 for a game appearance in New York."

"Let me add," said Grange, now a successful insurance executive, "that I am for Trippi 100 per cent—I am for him getting all he can. He's got a great future. And I'm not trying to belittle a $100,000 contract 'cause that would be silly. I'm just saying what I made out of the game."

Houston Skippers Making Progress

(By The Canadian Press)

Houston skippers, heavily armed with new players, no longer are underdogs in the southern division of the United States Hockey League.

Houston smashed Kansas City Pla-Mors 10-3 last night for their best showing since hitting the comeback trail last week. Johnny Horeck and Ching Dheere each pounded two tallies into the Kansas City net and Moe White, Tom Rockey, Andy Brown, George Agar, Paul Mundrick and Joe Madynski notched six other Houston goals.

Doug Olmstead, Wingy Johnston and Hank Blade notched the Kansas City Markers in the third frame.

Scotty Mair, Pete Kapusta and Johnny Ubriaco drove three Tulsa oilers goals into the net in the first period and then St. Paul went to work downing the Oilers 5-3. Gus Schwartz and Davies notched two St. Paul goals apiece and Nordin added a fifth.

Fort Worth skated from behind the gain a 4-4 tie with Omaha. Frank Porteous, Lavitt, Mousseau and Joe Iannarelli counted for Omaha and Weaver McPherson, S. Jones and Ken Kilrea notched the Fort Worth tallies.

Chips Off The Sports Block

By George H. Carver, Sports Editor

Tonight's the night. For the Intermediate "A" gang, that is. The fast-skating Queen's University Seconds, you can take that last word with a gulp, for we are informed there are a number of the Intercollegiate players involved will be the special guests of Coach Les Shiels, Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans Belleville squad, in the curtain-raiser of the "A" loop here.

• • •

And from all accounts the game should be a dilly. In fact with the Queen's squad riding high on the crest of a Kingston City League finals, (and the studes have been playing competitive hockey for the past four weeks on artificial ice) and our own gallant Anafs (Army and Navy and Air Force veterans) being sent through their paces, the joust tonight should be productive of some outstanding hockey action.

• • •

The Belleville squad was sent through a final workout at the Municipal Arena last night under the eagle eye of Coach Shiels. Garbed in their new sweaters which by the way are scarlet and yellow with the Army and Navy Crests on the breast and scarlet and yellow stockings, the squad went through a stiff preliminary session which wound up with a sharp clash between the first and second lines with Manager Frank Butler adopting a referee's role.

Coach, Shiels sent his first line stalwarts through special plays and drilled the entire squad hard. This first game is an important one, he figures, and from what we saw last night. The Queen's studes have a special hockey chore on their hands to take this scarlet sweatered squad which will carry the hockey torch for Belleville in the "A" loop.

• • •

And here is the probable line-up of the Anafs: — Gordie Cook, or Bobby Robertson will be between the posts. Vern Goyer and Cal Yorke will be behind the blue lines while the first string forward line will be the veterans Lee Goyer, Walt. Gerow, Jr. and Timmy Williams. Clare Williamson and Mark Storms will take care of extra defence duties while the flying squadron of youngsters, Don Barrett, Doug Bastedo and Jackie Wardhaugh will be the second string up front. Available for duty and up there in the forefront of battle will be the Meagher brothers Al. and Bernie.

• • •

And lest we forget, there is a significant thing about this Belleville hockey squad. Practically all of them are "home brews" with the exemption of Bastedo who gets his mail in Stirling. So the fans hereabouts will be rooting for an all-out Belleville team, which should, on paper, make the best of the teams step in the forthcoming race.

• • •

It should be a real old - fashioned hockey night. Arrangements have been made to have special opening night trimmings, and Mayor Frank Follwell will drop the puck to open the festivities. Facing off will be President Bill McKenna, of the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans branch here and Rex Young, chairman of the sports committee of the same club which is sponsoring the team. The Belleville Municipal Band will be in attendance and it looks like a good night all round.

• • •

Last night in practice the boys were fairly flying despite the heavy condition of the ice. Don Barrett, centering Wardhaugh and Bastedo, caught the railbirds' eyes with their speed and stick-handling trickiness, while the Meagher brothers were also going great guns. The veterans of the squad skated miles with their youthful opponents and on the whole the team appeared rarin' and ready to go against their formidable Queen's opponents.

• • •

Handling the game will be the venerable veteran of the whistle-tooting brigade, His Honor Michael J. Rodden, of Kingston who will be the referee while assisting him in the capacity of linesman will be Speedy St. Louis.

• • •

The Belleville Softball Association at a special meeting last night will award present special championship pins to the Point Anne team, 1945 city league champions and to the Belleville Sacos, 1946 titlists at a special banquet which will be held here on March 28. The banquet which will embrace the annual business meeting of the executive will see a new slate of officers elected as well as other important business including the officers elected as well as other important business including the naming of delegates to the Ontario Amateur Softball Association annual meeting which is being held in Hamilton at Easter.

The Association, according to the report of Secretary Harry Knott, was in good financial condition and prospects for a banner season in 1947 appear to be bright. It is hoped that service teams from Mountain View and Trenton air stations will again be available, while there are possibilities of a new city team being formed.

Among other business items, it was decided to have the trophy, emblematic of the Association championship of the Association, be reconditioned and title plaques of last year's winners being placed on the pedestal. It is hoped that all members of softball teams, past, present and future together with their officials and others interested in this popular summer pastime, will attend the banquet.

• • •

The game, it was stated, appears to be on a plane of increasing enthusiasm and the incoming executive with the cooperation of the city and the Parks Board will, no doubt, make 1947 a banner year for softball.

WORTH TRYING FOR

If Bill Durnan, Montreal Canadiens' great goalkeeper, wins the Vezina Trophy this season it will be his fourth year in a row. This would set a record unequalled in N.H.L. history. Only other goalie to capture the Vézina Trophy three years in succession was George Hainsworth, who also played for Canadiens. Hainsworth won it in 1926-27, 1927-28 and 1928-29. This season the winner will receive a $1,000 bonus which is really something for Durnan and all the other netminders to battle for.

• • •

Rare as the 100-yard run in football, is the rink-length shot which scores in hockey even with the goalkeeper out of his net. Jack Lavoie, center of the Cleveland Barons in the American Hockey League, hit the jackpot against Pittsburgh last week with a 190 foot drive after goalie "Baz" Bastien had been removed from the ice in the closing seconds of the game.

Vancouver, Jan. 17. (CP) — One of the Pacific Coast's most ardent supporters of English Rugby—68-year-old Lancashire-born Harry W. Maloney—is back from a tour of Australia and still convinced that his pet sport is the most civilizing influence on earth.

Mr. Maloney, former rugby coach at Stanford University in California, went to Australia to examine the possibility of exchanging University students between the two countries. But the rugger "missionary" also managed to do considerable rugby spade work.

He just "happened" to drop in on the New South Wales Rugby Union while in Australia and ended up arranging matches here and in California for an Australian International team in 1948. Mr. Maloney, who stopped off here enroute for California, said he hoped the "Aussies" would play on the West Coast on their return from an English tour next year.

Mr. Maloney has a notable record in American sports. He was coach of the California fifteen which took part in the 1920 Olympics, he coached a university tennis team in a 1924 trip to Australia, besides being responsible for the popularization of the English code in California.

He went to Stanford in 1908, and when he retired three years ago he looked much younger than a man who had been actively engaged in sport at Stanford for 36 years.

Although interested in many other activities, he said his first love was still rugby. "After all, it's the only amateur game left. It's the finest game to play and the finest game to watch—and I am glad to be called a missionary in such a great cause."

Bata Defeats Stirling 12-2 In T.V. Loop

Stirling (Special) — Batawa defeated Stirling by a score of 12-2 in the second game held in Stirling rink this week. Batawa scored in the 1st. ten seconds of the play and chalked up two more. Bastedo scored on a breakaway to get the 1st. Stirling goal. The game was held up for a few minutes in the first period due to Bata's Lamorre receiving a severe gash requiring five stitches. In the second period Bata came back strong again to score 5 more goals without a reply from Stirling. In the third period Grant Stapley scored one goal for Stirling but Bata gained 4 more to give them a 12-2 victory over their opponents.

CAPITALS MOVE UP ON BARONS

(By The Canadian Press)

Indianapolis Caps now are within striking distance of Cleveland Barons, leaders of the Western Division of the American Hockey League.

Blasting St. Louis 8-0 last night, the Caps broke their tie with Buffalo for second place in the division and now are only four points behind the Barons.

Enio Sclisizzi scored three times for the victorious Caps while Gerry Courture, Steve Wochy, Kennedy, Weist and Cliff Simpson counted the other five goals.

Pittsburgh Hornets snapped New Haven's four-game winning streak with a 2-1 verdict as the third period saw Jack Hamilton and Pete Langelle score for the Hornets and Alex Shibicky count for the Ramblers.

The Big Seven

(By The Canadian Press)

The two goals scored in last night's sole National Hockey League game had no effect on the scoring race standings. Leader Maurice Richard of Montreal, with 23 goals and 17 assists for 40 points, and runner-up Ted (Teeter) Kennedy, Toronto with 17 and 18 for 35, both were held scoreless they were the only scoring leaders in action.

The Leader	G.	A.	Pts.
Richard, Montreal	23	17	40
Kennedy, Toronto	17	18	35
Schmidt, Boston	14	19	33
Taylor, Detroit	10	22	32

HORSE SENSE BRIDGE

By SAM GORDON
The Kibitzer

You are in a heaven of a fix when you can confidently bid a grand slam that is there. Too many grands are dangerous to bid. Like when I was south in this deal:

NORTH
♠A Q 4 2
♥Q 10 9 8 6 3
♦A
♣9 2

WEST
♠9 7 6
♥K 7
♦K 9
♣K Q J 8 7 5

EAST
♠3
♥J 5 4 2
♦J10 5 4 3
♣10 6 4

SOUTH
♠K J 10 8 5
♥A
♦Q 8 7 6 2
♣A 3

It was a duplicate match. The bidding started like this:

SOUTH	NORTH
1 S	3 H
4 D	4 S

By this time it was evident that spades will be our trump. It was already known that our hands could count at least 12 tricks. So, make way for a trip to a slam.

To determine how big a slam we have, it is necessary for me to know how many aces and kings my partner holds. So, I bid four no-trump, the ace and king asking convention.

The response from my partner was six clubs. In The Kibitzer convention code this shows two aces with no kings in his hand. In that case, the opponents must have three kings.

There are too many holes in my hand. There must also be holes in my partner's hand if he has no kings. Therefore, no criticism can be found against my decision to stop at six spades.

Someone might be able to look into a crystal ball and see a grand slam with these hands. But I did not have one with me at the time. And if I did, the mystic words would have been lost.

The lead from west was club king. By careful play, all 13 tricks fell into my lap. This did not seem odd at the time. So far as I could see, it was a matter of routine.

In the bull session afterward, we wondered if it was plan or luck. There may be a lesson in showing the play. May do me good, too.

The Movie Column

By HELEN BANNERMAN
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

There's news from Britain that will warm the cockles of every Irishman's heart—J. Arthur Rank's producing units have acquired rights to three more Irish stories and there are important rumors flying about Dublin that the Emerald Isle will soon have its own producing company.

The name of rank has been whispered in these rumors but with typical secrecy Rank's Dublin representatives have maintained they have no information on the subject. A similar denial has come from Sir Alexander Korda's representatives.

The Rank organization decided it had picked a winner with the Frank Launder-Sidney Gilliat production of the Irish story "I See a Dark Stranger" starring Deborah Kerr. They followed it up with Daphne Du Maurier's "Hungry Hill" with Margaret Lockwood, and Carol Reed's thriller, "Odd Man Out" starring James Mason. Now the Launder-Gilliat combination are working on "Captain Boycott" which stars Stewart Granger.

The three new stories bought by the company are James Stephens' "Crock of Gold", Liam O'Flaherty's "Famine" and Sean O'Casey's "The Shadow of a Gunman".

The Irish ventures have been a boon to movie-minded players at Dublins Abbey and Gate theatres which were called on to supply featured players and people for crowd scenes. A number of these actors have clicked in these parts and gone on to large roles in other British films.

Figure Skating Championships Now Being Held at Toronto Rink

By WILF GRUSON

Toronto, Jan. 17 —(CP)— Vera Virginia Smith, 14-year-old "darling" of the Toronto Skating Club, and Slim Bill Lewis, 18-year-old entry from the Vancouver Skating Club, today heading figure skating champions as they outpaced their respective fields in the opening events of the Canadian figure skating championships.

Both came out on top in the compulsory figures competition of their classes and appeared certain to take the titles tonight at the conclusion of the free skating competition, the scores of which are combined with those obtained in the figures in the complex scoring used to decide the title winners.

In a field of 14, the five-foot-one Vera Virginia, affectionately called "Ve Vi," led her much older competitors with 628.2 points to place well ahead of 17-year-old Jeanne Matthews of the Vancouver Skating Club who scored 589.4 points for second place. Marlene Elizabeth Smith, 15-year-old blonde skater from the St. Catharines Winter Club, obtained 587 points for third.

Lewis, 150-pound high school student from New Westminster, B.C., failed to obtain as commanding a lead as "Ve Vi" in his figures competition as he took first place with 599.8 points of a possible 800 a few hours after arriving from the coast. He and other members of the Vancouver club were forced to finish a long trip by train after their plane was grounded at Regina.

Competing for the title won last year by Walter Diestelmeyer of the Toronto Skating Club, Lewis finished in front of Alan George Pinard of the Minto Skating Club, Ottawa, who scored 578 points for second place. Gerrard Blair of the University Skating Club, Toronto, followed in third place with 575.6 points and Thornton Opie, the only other entry in the junior men's event, trailed with 551.4.

Former Tennis Champion Given 9 Months Term

Los Angeles, Jan. 18 (AP)—William T. (Big Bill) Tilden, former World Tennis Champion, Thursday was sentenced to nine months in the county jail after pleading guilty of contributing to the delinquency of a 14-year-old Junior High School boy.

Ordering Tilden to see a psychiatrist after his release, Judge A. A. Scott denied Tilden's plea for immediate probation and stay of execution.

"It comes as a great shock to all, particularly sport fans, that you should admit to such practices," Judge Scott said.

After serving his time, the court ruled, Tilden will be on probation for five years and "must never be in the company of either male or female juveniles unaccompanied by their parents."

The tennis pro was arrested last November in his automobile in company with the youngster.

"You have been an idol to thousands of youngsters and admired by millions of adults throughout the world because of your prowess as a tennis player," Judge Scott said.

"Your admitted practice is a thing we do not expect from great athletes. Also let this be an object lesson to parents so they might more closely supervise their growing children."

RESTING QUIETLY

Orlando, Fla., Jan. 17—(AP)—Joe Tinker, former Chicago Cub shortstop, was recovering in a hospital here today from a leg amputation performed to halt an infection which started last October.

Hospital attendants reported shortly after midnight that the 66-year-old member of the Tinker-to-Evers-to-Chance infield combination was "resting very quietly" and that his condition was good.

Tinker's left leg was removed yesterday just above the knee. Barring complications, medical authorities expect Tinker to be able to leave the hospital in 10 days or so.

Sports Roundup

By AL COLLETTI

New York, Jan. 17 (CP)—A little bit of heaven down on the farm is what Manager Frank Boucher needs as an antidote to the crop of injuries which have beset his New York Rangers most of the season...in the midst of the torrid race for the N.H.L.'s fourth-place Stanley Cup spot, and with crucial games in Montreal and Chicago this weekend Boucher stands to lose two-thirds of his best line—the "Rover Boy" trio....Church Russell, bothered for weeks with a bone bruise on his heel, and Cal Gardner, out with an injured hand and a charley horse, haven't come around and possibly won't make the trip to Montreal.... meanwhile, Boucher has been burning up the wires to his New Haven farm run by Lynn Patrick....if Gardner or Russell can't make the Montreal trip "I'll want that good line of Lynn's," Boucher said...the good line Boucher was referring to is made up of Chick Webster Sherman White and Jean Paul Denis....

Known as the three-province line since they are from Toronto Cape Tormentine, N.B., and Montreal, respectively the three rookies constitute one of the big reasons for New Haven's strong showing in the American League ....Dennis is the line's high scorer and is particularly dangerous around the net..."I'd rather give them a fling as a unit," Boucher emphasized... "But if Gardner or Russell can make the trip I'll go along with a makeshift line."

Hockey's Man of Steel

A medical student might do well to consult stocky Billy Juzda, the man with the head of picked up in a collision with Detroit's Fernand Gauthier here Wednesday night boosted his total to 16 in his noggin since his November arrival from New Haven...but the locomotive fireman still keeps on playing and losing blood to inject into the game some of the rapidly fading rough-and-tumble play synonymous with hockey before the speedup.

Odds And Ends

Sports editor Bus Ham of the Washington Post says there's a "Distinct possibility" that the 1947 Navy-Notre Dame football game will be played in Yankee Stadium...Ham quoted a U. S. Naval Academy official as saying that Notre Dame "unquestionably would like to have the Middies and Irish meet in New York... "The move on this would have to come from Notre Dame since our 1947 contest with the Irish is Notre Dame's home game," the official was quoted as saying....A New York Notre Dame-Navy game would, in effect, replace the recently dropped Army-Notre Dame game.... only thing that seems strange is that the previous Irish-Middie affairs pulled in some 103,000 at Franklin Field, Philadelphia, while the big Yankee Ballpark would be lucky to fit in 80,000.

Hoopsters Incommunicado

The New York World-Telegram says the threat of a basketball fix has metropolitan colleges so concerned that players are closeted in a hotel room on game days and denied the use of telephones..the schools are employing strict supervision to keep their players free of association or even casual contact with gamblers and all strangers....the players are supposed to be chaperoned by a coach or assistant coach.

CHAPTER 8

When the apartment was dark, she went out on the roof. The stars were close tonight and a cool night breeze blew through the satin negligee. In the apartment below an orchestra was playing an old song. She stood still and tense, thinking that Ronny was like a song half-finished, but a song that had left a clear echo of its melody. Wherever she went she would hear the echo of that half finished song and that half begun love, and it would remind her of all beautiful things crushed before fulfillment.

• • •

At a big country house in Maine, Renny leaned against the door that led out to a moonlit terrace. One hand held his pipe, the other was dug into the pocket of his coat.

Thoughts and impressions that were crowded out in the hubbub of business were recalled vividly here. A flicker of pain crossed his face as he remembered Christa. But there were two Christas, he thought, the girl he had married and the unhappy woman who had run away. To think of the first Christa with whom he had gone on a honeymoon to Bermuda was to wish fervently that she would come back. It was the indifferent woman of many moods and petty unfaithfulness — he had come upon her at a country club dance drawn in an ardent embrace with a boy home from college — that made his mouth harden. Two women, he thought, one whom he had loved as long as he remembered himself, the other the woman who had left him with their child to look after.

He walked out on the terrace. Would he, he asked himself, continue to love a ghost all his life, the ghost of that gay young Christa who had made weekend visits to see him when he was at Harvard? They had been very happy then, and when she left Renny had gone back to his law books with his head in a whirl and his feet treading air. There were richer, more intimate memories, of course, but they were associated not with the girl but with the sarcastic pleasure loving woman who now had had a year in Paris.

It was the feeling that some one was staring at him that made him turn. Some one was. Little Allison, three years old, with a small tilted nose, a small red mouth, and a head that was a mass of dark ringlets, stood in the doorway, wearing her nightie, clutching her doll, and looking at her father with clear startled eyes.

Renny said, "Hello, what's this? Dissipating at this hour? I thought you were in bed." He picked her up in his arms, took her into the study, and closed the door.

"How are you?" asked Allison Maynard, impishly.

"I'm fine, thank you. How are you?" asked Renny and frowned at her. "Now I'm supposed to ask, 'How's your aunt Minnie?' and this will go on for hours." He laughed at her, tossed her over his head, and bore her to the nursery. "You're going on a long trip soon to New York."

"On a vacation?" she asked.

"Do you know what a vacation is?"

"I want one," said Allison.

She astonished and amused him by the things she did and said. When her French nurse had been discharged, his mother, while interviewing other French nurses, had temporarily hired a young girl from the village who turned out to be a devoted patron of the movies. While Renny's mother thought that Allison was being taught the story of the Three Little Bears, the village girl was actually teaching her impersonations of Mae West, Joe Penner, and Jimmy Durante. His mother had been heart-sick at Allison's tongue-twisting impersonations but Renny had shaken with laughter.

He put her in her bed, tucked her favorite doll between the covers, and kissed her. While he sat beside her, she opened her eyes and grinned at him. Her eyes were neither blue like Christa's nor brown like his. They were, he suddenly thought, like Arlen's eyes.

Toby, bearing signs of a gay wedding on his tired face, waited outside the business school.

Elissa said, "Positively I will not be the third party again, Arlen, you go with Toby."

Arlen asked, "Have you taken another afternoon off, Toby?"

"I haven't reported at the office since the wedding," he said. He laughed at Elissa. "You look like something that comes out of the Village."

"Some good novels have come out of the Village," retorted Elissa.

Toby drove so fast that Arlen had to hold onto her hat, and she got only a fleeting glimpse of trees changing color and corn stacked in tall brown cones. He brought the car to an abrupt stop before an inn. As she followed the waiter to a corner table by the window, she wondered how many other girls Toby had brought here for lunch, for tea, and for talk.

He jeered, "Schoolgirl," when she put her books on the window-seat. "How much longer will it be before you're a full-fledged graduate of typing, shorthand and tricky business words?"

"In three weeks," said Arlen, "I will either ask for an increase in salary or look for a job that's less charity." She pulled off her brown gloves and put the brown swagger coat on the back of the chair.

"How was the wedding? Were the bridesmaids beautiful?" Arlen asked Toby as they settled at their table in the inn for lunch.

"One was so beautiful that if I hadn't been in love with you I couldn't have helped falling in love with her."

"I'm touched by your faithfulness, Toby."

"You're making fun of me again."

"Forgive me," said Arlen, "if I forget that a playboy can be sensitive." She smiled at him. "Let's not argue."

"No," he said, "because during the entire drive back Mother and I argued constantly. She had such a good time in Washington she wants to go there for the winter. Somebody told her about a house in Virginia, just outside of Washington, and suddenly nothing will she have but that house."

How blind Toby was, she thought. Couldn't he see that Fanny would feign illness and put forth every conceivable excuse to get him away from her!

"She tried to bribe me by promising to buy me a plane. She knows that ever since I finished flying school last summer I've wanted a plane of my own."

Arlen hated her thoughts. Fanny would rather run the risk of seeing Toby crash down in flames than see him transfer his affections permanently to another woman.

"So you accepted the bribe," she said quietly.

"What else could I do? It's so futile to argue with Mother."

"Toby," said Arlen, who looked considerably less than twenty-one today in a brown skirt and high necked yellow sweater, "don't you have any plans for yourself? Don't you want to make something of yourself?"

"People only work for money and I don't need that," he said gloomily. "I could never put my nose to the grindstone the way Renny has. That man's loyalty! Why, he sticks with old Winstead when he's dying to go into criminal law just because he's the only man Winstead can trust. Renny'd feel he was sending the old man to a premature grave if he quit. With his family background and reputation, he might be Attorney General some day, maybe Governor."

And Christa would come back to the Governor's lady, Arlen thought bitterly.

Toby reached for her hand and looked at her. "I don't want to leave you. My personal affairs have pever been in the mess they're in now. I'm between you and Mother, Arlen, and you're more important to me than I am to you. You'd never marry a man who couldn't support you himself. You'd refuse to live on Mother's money. I can't blame you. But I'm going to get a job in Washington. I'm not going to dash around with a lot of senators' daughters and go to a lot of parties. Perhaps," he said seriously, "when I go away you'll miss me enough to want me back.... to marry me."

"I can't say that now, Toby."

"By Christmas?"

"By Christmas I don't know where I shall be," said Arlen. "There's nothing permanent about my job with Louise. There isn't enough for me to do, and Richard is paying me and paying for my schooling out of the kindness of his heart."

"Richard thinks you're marvelous...."

"But that's no reason why I should accept money I don't earn. If I stay in New York, I'll probably look for another job, and Elissa and I will get an apartment and live together." She smiled at him. "I really don't know, Toby. I'm a rolling stone, too, and until I attach myself I won't be happy."

"Attach yourself to me," he said. "I need you more than you need me. That's why I kept saying to myself in Washington, 'I need her.' You're the only girl I've ever known, Arlen, that I could talk to like this, and you're the only person who has ever made me ashamed of being so useless. I didn't kiss the beautiful bridesmaid after the ceremony because you were the last girl I'd kissed. Whether you love me or not, I shall not be gotten rid of easily. That," said Toby vigorously, "is that."

"You are a persistent fellow."

"At Christmas," said Toby, "I'm coming back to show you my pay envelope, and ask you to marry me. On your answer hinges whether I'm going to continue being useless or make something of myself. You're the only girl I know who won't live on Mother's money."

This was not the opportune time to attack the problem of Fanny who was luring Toby away from forbidden sweets with promises of a plane and a country house swarming on week-ends with new faces. What effect the separation would have on him Arlen did not know. If he forgot her, he would continue, as he said, to be the amusing useless person who was bound to his mother by ties of money and blind pity. If this was, as he declared, a serious love for him, it would result in a final break with his mother and Toby would have to face a bleak impersonal world in trying to make a living.

There were too many other things pressing on her mind — Renny, Elissa, and her father—to admit the problem of Toby and his firm intention to marry her. As time would settle the questions of the others, so would it be for Tobby a test between infatuation for a new girl or love for a girl for whom he was willing to give up his mother and settle down to a steady position.

"You don't encourage me," he said.

She shifted her eyes from the window and the peaceful country scene to him. "I'll miss you, Toby, miss luncheons like this in a quiet place, miss cocktails and tea in the afternoon, and dancing with you on hotel roofs at midnight. You typify New York to me even more than Louise does. If I go away and some one just mentions New York, I'll think of Toby Sanner looking at me through a cocktail and driving down Fifth avenue in the late afternoon.

"You promise nothing."

"I won't make vague promises."

"But you do like me?"

Arlen frowned. "But I'm not in love with you. I like to be with you, and I'll miss you when you go away. Toby, don't look like that! You'll have me crying! Let's talk about something else .... or better, still, let's go for a walk. If you're going to be a country gentleman this winter, you should begin to appreciate the beauties of nature. There are a lot of things you don't appreciate, Toby, a world of things you haven't discovered. You go to the opera because everybody else goes, and probably go to sleep. You don't read and you've probably never been inside an art museum in your life.

"Do you like things like that?"

"My mother reared me on a steady diet of good books, good music, art museums, and a love for everything out of doors. Let's leave the car here, Toby, and walk."

When they had walked an hour over the damp earth, they stopped and perched on a wooden fence. Their faces were flushed, their hands chilled. Their shoes were crusted with mud and small thorns and briars stuck to their coats.

"This is the kind of a life I like," said Arlen, lighting a cigarette.

Toby laughed. "I heard Renny once say that he wanted to have a large country estate. He wanted to stand on a hill and as far as he could see he wanted the land to belong to him, fertile, bearing land. I remember that Christa laughed wildly at the idea and said that all Renny cared about were children and horses. I'm Manhattan all of me. The quietness in a place like this sets me crazy. I like to hear saxophones sobbing and see a lot of people going in and out of doors."

"That's the difference between you and me."

"And Renny," said Toby, "who is all the things rolled into one that a man should be. When I was younger, I hero-worshipped Renny. Later, because I was jealous, I guess, I resented him."

"He makes me feel small, too. We'd better go back, Toby, before a suspicious farmer sets his dogs on us."

"This air is wonderful. Do you think I'll come back from a winter in the country with bulging muscles and a weather-beaten face? Mother will probably hate it and want to go to Florida by Christmas."

Walking back, he leaned over and picked up a handful of dry earth. "It never occurred to me before that everything I eat and wear comes—from this."

Arlen smiled. "You're touching philosophy now, Toby."

"That's too lofty a subject for me, my Arlen."

"On the contrary, Toby, it is simplicity that people can't attain."

Russia May Seek Five Billion Dollar Loan From U.S.

London, Jan. 17 —(AP)— British sources predicted today that Russia might seek a $5,000,000,000 loan from the United States as the price of scaling down reparations claims on Germany — one of the thorniest issues facing the deputy foreign ministers drafting German and Austrian peace treaties here.

The influential London Economist, terming reparations "the crux of the whole matter," said the "key to a German settlement" might lie in a United States loan to Russia.

"The Russians have asked for $10,000,000,000 worth of reparations from Germany," the paper said, "but the certainty of half that figure in dollars now would be of infinitely greater economic value."

Australia apparently lost her appeal for active participation by the "little nations" in discussing the German and Austrian treaties. Feodor T. Gousev, Russian foreign minister, insisted that the smaller countries appear before the deputies council only when presenting their own treaty proposals.

The United States, Britain and France appeared to have dropped their earlier support of the Australian proposal.

Canada, as one of the major fighters of the war against Germany, objected strenuously last night to the method adopted by the Big Four deputies for hearing other countries' views on the peace settlements.

The deputies yesterday agreed to invite Austria to state her views on the Austrian peace treaty and placed Poland at the head of the list of Nazi victims to make recommendations for the German peace treaty.

Jury Unable To Agree In Heartbalm Suit

Toronto, Jan. 17 —(CP)— Unable to agree on a finding in 52-year-old Muriel Rexford's action for $20,000 heartbalm from David Cormack, at Ontario Assize Court Jury here was discharged last night by Mr. Justice Walter Schroeder.

The Montreal school teacher's breach of promise case was sequel to a romantic wartime friendship in Halifax where, she alleged, Cormack, then a naval officer and now a Toronto telephone engineer, culminated a three-day acquaintanceship with a proposal of marriage. He was married and had four children at the time.

After retiring at 5 p.m. to consider a finding, the jury returned seven times in seven hours to ask advice or directions from his lordship. At midnight its inability to agree was reported and Mr. Justice Schroeder immediately discharged the members.

In his charge to the jury Mr. Justice Schroeder had stressed that promises of marriage were void if the person to whom the pledge was given knew the other party to be married. He added that if the contract was impossible of performance because of circumstances unknown to the other party then the contract was "illegal" and the other person was entitled to sue for breach of promise.

Before the final disagreement on the Judge's instructions, the jury placed Miss Rexford's damages, if there had been a breach of promise at $100.

Information Is Now Stamped 'Military Secret'

Washington, Jan. 17 —(AP)— Five months after publishing details of how the Germans went underground to avoid Allied bombing, the United States army and navy have stamped the information as a military secret.

Involved, it was learned today, are three reports on construction and design of 116 German underground installations such as Hitler's Berchtesgaden retreat.

The joint army-navy intelligence objectives agency released the reports for public consumption before the commerce department's Office of Technical Services (O.T.S.) offered photographic and microfilm copies for sale to anyone interested last Aug. 22.

Now the O.T.S. has been directed to withdraw the copies, and a war department official said today no explanation is likely to be made public.

O.T.S. officials said it would be logical to assume the intelligence agency believes something in the reports might involve the security of the country.

They said the army-navy arm has done the same thing with a number of other reports.

TORONTO STOCKS

Toronto, Jan. 17 —(CP)— The ticker idled throughout early session on Toronto Stock Exchange today and volume for the first three hours of trading, 440,000 shares, was lowest since early December.

Papers firmed fractionally. Banks upped fractions, foods were down and utilities broke even. Steels were inactive.

Golds were uneven with losers shading. Base Metals were holding for point gains as against fractional loses except for Labrador, which lost 15 at 565.

NEW YORK EXCHANGE

New York, Jan. 17 —(AP)— Stocks generally reached timidly for recovery in today's market.

While rails lost the buoyancy of the preceding session, most industrials and utilities managed to add fractions to a point or so.

Canadian issues were off fractionally at mid-day. Canadian Pacific and Hiram Walker each slipped ¼. Distillers Seagram lost ⅛.

FALLS 60 FEET TO DEATH

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 17 —(CP)— A 60-foot fall inside No. 2 open hearth furnace at the Algoma Steel Corporation plant here yesterday brought instant death to W. H. Lewis, 42-year-old crane repair man. There were no eye-witnesses. An inquest will be held.

Two Bullet Holes In Upholstery Of Motor Car

London, Ont., Jan. 17. (CP) —Police evidence on two bullet holes in the upholstery of the car of Eldon Meredith, was given at the Supreme Court jury trial today of Lloyd Nicholas and Joseph French, Muncey Reserve Indians, charged with killing Meredith, University of Western Ontario medical student, August 24 last.

Provincial Constable Dave Adair testified that two spent bullets were located in the auto after it had been found in possession of Nicholas and French.

The Crown's case in the week-long trial was expected to end today.

Men Identified By Witness

Windsor, Jan. 17 (CP).—Angus Robinson, 30, and Mike Kosowan, 21, were identified as two of the three men who robbed her of over $4,600 by Mrs. Bertha Thomas, proprietor of Thomas' Edgewater Inn, a popular suburban roadhouse in Ontario Supreme Court yesterday.

The pair are on trial for the armed robbery which took place last Nov. 25, when three men thrust their way into Mrs. Thomas' bedroom, forcing her to open the safe and turn over the silver money in the inn.

Before the trial started Mr. Justice E. R. E. Chevrier told the jury that the problem facing them was to determine if the men on trial were two of the men who took part in the robbery.

Crown Attorney E. C. Awrey gave his opinion of the facts in the case, saying that over $200 in silver was found at Robinson's house a few hours after the robbery.

A 40-year-old American silver dollar was recognized in the silver recovered.

CATARRHAL JAUNDICE

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Jan. 17 —(CP)—Dr. J. E. Gimby, Medical Officer of Health, yesterday reported the outbreak of an epidemic of catarrhal jaundice. He said 503 cases have been discovered to date. Cause of the spread of the disease is not known. It has not resulted in any deaths, he said.

Canada's Pulp and Paper Mills Are Resuming Their Position As Leading Peacetime Industry

By SHANE MACKAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Ottawa, Jan. 17-(CP)—Source of two-thirds of the world's newsprint exports and half the paper consumed in the United States, Canada's sprawling, prosperous pulp and paper mills are resuming their position as a leading peace-time industry.

When 1946 figures become available, officials expect to report the equivalent of 11,000,000 cords produced last year. Barring labor difficulties and an unanticipated decline in demand the 1947 output will exceed this record figure.

Canada's forests produce between 20 and 25 per cent of the country's primary production, and by far the largest proportion flows from the pulp and paper industry.

In gross value of production the industry was surpassed during war only by non-ferrous metal and refining. On the basis of current output, it is expected to regain its position as the greatest single manufacturer and largest individual exporter in Canada.

Among the manufacturing industries, it stands first in total wages paid, first in export values and first in capital investment.

First Mill in Quebec

Canada's' first paper mill was established at St. Andrews, Que., in 1803 by United States citizens who obtained concessions from district seigneurs. Ontario's first mill is still in operation. It was built in 1813 at Crook's Hollow, now Greensville, near Hamilton.

Ninety per cent of the forests used by timber operators are owned by the crown and most of them administered by provincial governments. The total amount of commercial timber is estimated by federal authorities at 311,201,000,000 cubic feet of which 191,347,000,000 is accessible.

Timber experts have estimated 60 per cent of Canada's original forest has been destroyed by fire over the years. About 22,000 square miles have been partially destroyed by the spruce budworm plague. To combat these menaces, timber operators advocate further air surveys and maps to aid protection services, roads over which to rush fire fighting or spraying equipment and increased research work on forest and forest products.

27 P. C. Eaten Up

They say circumstances beyond their control—insects and fire bugs—may obviate their efforts to provide annual wood harvests for the pulp and paper industry in perpetuity. Twenty-seven per cent of the nation's annual forest depletion is accounted for by these two factors. Pulp and paper companies account for an additional 17 per cent, and the remainder is used chiefly for lumber and fuel wood.

The forests, they claim, are a "forgotten resource" and have not received attention comparable to government aid in the development of mining, agriculture and fishing.

FIERCE ATLANTIC GALES BUFFET GIANT "S. S. AMERICA"

Smashing into the giant waves, the luxury liner America digs her bow under and tosses the spray high as she pounds along to New York, delayed more than two days by North Atlantic storms of near-tropical hurricane violence. The ship's skipper, Commodore Harry Manning, described the crossing as the roughest he could remember in 34 years at sea. The vessel brought 1,005 passengers from Europe.

Food, Medical Supplies Help Isolated Hamlet

By ROSS TRUEMAN

Havre St. Pierre, Que., Jan. 17—(CP)— Without a supply of provisions since Dec. 9, this north shore St. Lawrence village about 325 miles downriver from Quebec City presented a grim picture as a diphtheria epidemic raged, medical supplies were short and food stocks low, but the arrival yesterday of the Clarke Steamship Company freighter North Voyageur with food and medical supplied helped the population.

The epidemic, which broke out about two weeks ago, has caused the death of one child here and three deaths were reported at Aguanish, 70 miles east. Doctors say the epidemic is under control.

Preceded by the government ice-breaker Ernest LaPointe which smashed a channel through heavy ice fields, the Voyageur was dispatched to unload badly needed supplies at approximately 16 ice-bound villages.

Ordinarily, the Voyageur services the villages alone but abnormal snow and ice conditions necessitated summoning the LaPointe for aid.

Doctors from this town's hospital went to the coast by plane to inoculate 170 children with anti diphtheria serum, flown in by special plane from Quebec by the Provincial Department of Health.

Just how serious the food and medical situation was before arrival of the Voyageur was emphasized by Dr. Leo Cote, director of the 150-bed St. Pierre Hospital who said that had the ship not arrived within a few days, he would have been forced to close the hospital.

The 1,500 population of Havre St. Pierre is engaged mainly in mining, fishing and pulp and paper industries.

Sailing under special orders from the Department of Transport, the LaPointe is loading food and supplies for the villages of Baie John Beetz and Kegaska, 40 and 115 miles respectively, east of here. She is scheduled to leave today.

FIRST CITIZEN AWARD

Seattle, Jan. 17—(CP)—Royal Brougham, Peteran Post-Intelligencer sports editor, was presented an award as "Seattle's first citizen of 1946" last night.

Jack Dempsey, a close friend for 30 years who flew here from Hollywood, recalled their first meeting and described Brougham as a "guy who is respected and loved throughout our profession.

"He has done more good than any other person in the sporting fraternity, and I say that from the bottom of my heart," the former heavyweight champion said.

The award is an annual one by the Seattle Real Estate Board. Brougham's fight for clean sports, adequate recreational facilities, and his campaign against juvenile delinquency won the award.

CANADA PROTESTS

Statement Issued

In his press release accompanying a copy of the statement presented to the deputies, Mr. St. Laurent said:

"The Canadian government does not regard the invitation in its present form as affording Canada an opportunity for participating in the peace settlement in the way which would be appropriate for a country which contributed substantially to the war against Germany . . ."

"There is no indication whether there would be opportunity for the Canadian representative to discuss with the special deputies either the substance of the peace treaties with Germany and Austria or the procedure by which those treaties will be drafted. It may have been intended that discussion should take place, but the invitation does not make this clear."

It was learned that protests similar to Canada's have been lodged by South Africa, The Netherlands, and Australia.

In its statement to the deputies, Canada said:—

"The essential interest of Canada, as of other countries, in the terms of the German settlement, is that it should provide the basis for a lasting peace. The Canadian government hope to submit later a statement of principles which, in their view, would contribute to this end, and on which detailed political, territorial and economic provisions of the settlement could be based.

"The Canadian government is, however, limiting its submission at this stage to the question of procedure and, in this connection, proposes that appropriate provision should be made by the council of foreign ministers for the continued association of Canada, as an active participant in two years against Germany, in the preparation of the German treaty.

"It then suggested that Canada and other interested allies might work with the deputies and take a full part in discussions "both on questions of procedure and of substance relating to the German treaty. It added:—

"This procedure would also prevent the recurrence of the situation at the Paris Conference, where the smaller powers were faced with previously drafted treaties, the details of which were unfamiliar to them, and which were difficult to change."

KURODA ARRESTED

Manila, Jan. 17 — (AP)—Lt.-Gen. Shigemori Kuroda, long-sought "playboy general" who commanded in the Philippines, has been arrested in Japan, authorities said today.

Kuroda is wanted to answer for atrocities committed against prisoners of war and for outrages against guerillas during a cleanup campaign on Panay in 1943.

CHUCKIE KNOWS ALL THE ANSWERS

Nothing to it, gurgles Charles J. "Chuckie" Black, 2½ months old, as he does a "handstand" specialty with some help from his uncle, Alfred Dolfi. This sort of thing is an old routine to "Chuckie" now. He has been doing gymnastic tricks since he was only a little more than a month old. The junior acrobat now tips the scales at 16 pounds. "Chuckie's" cousin, Buddy Dolfi, 22 months old, will have to be on his toes to keep his title of champ gymnast of the family. Buddy started his tricks at the same age as his cousin, his specialty being to lie on the floor and remain in a horizontal position while he is "swooped" upward. Former Governor Carries On Battle From Business Office in Downtown Atlanta

By NORMAN BRADLEY

Atlanta, Jan. 18 (AP)—Shunted first from the executive offices he has occupied for four years and then from a temporary desk in the state capital rotunda, Ellis Arnall today carried on his battle for Georgia's governorship from a downtown office building.

"I have just begun to fight," he declared.

Herman Talmadge, occupying the capital offices on basis of his election as governor by the State General Assembly, declared that "everything is quiet" and said "the reluctance of the former governor to quit the scene of his triumphs has not disturbed me in the least."

The fight over the chief executive's chair evolved more and more into a war of words between the two principals, each issuing frequent statements supporting his claim or appearing in radio broadcasts to expound his case.

In a reference to a suit Arnall instructed Attorney General Eugene Cook to institute action seeking a judgment on whether the legislature had the right to elect Talmadge, Arnall said he was "sure the courts will uphold me as legal governor and not the forces bent on violence."

Talmadge, in turn, reiterated a previous statement that the courts had no jurisdiction in the matter. He had been served with court papers, resulting from Arnall's suit, ordering him to show cause February 7 why he should continue as governor but added that he did not know whether he would answer the summons.

At Augusta, Roy Harris, former house speaker and now a chief Talmadge lieutenant, asserted that Talmadge was "governor of Georgia and will be governor of Georgia for the next four years."

Talmadge, 33, managed the campaign of his father, the late Eugene Talmadge, who was elected for a fourth term as governor but did not live to begin it.

C.I.O. Protests Legislation To Outlaw Portal Pay

Washington, Jan. 18 — (AP) — The C.I.O. declared today that proposed United States government legislation to outlaw portal-to-portal pay suits "violates the principles of our constitution."

Lee Pressman, the C.I.O.'s general counsel, told a Senate judiciary sub-committee that bills designed to nullify employer liability "only serve to implant in workers the apprehension and the fear that the present Congress does not propose to play the game according to the rules where workers rights are concerned."

The sub-committee is considering bills introduced by senators Alexander Wiley (Rep.-Wis.) and Homer Capehart (Rep.-Ind.). Both measures would knock out suits for more than $4,000,000,000 in back pay. They also would outlaw or restrict future suits.

The pending claims were filed after the Supreme Court held that time employees are required to spend getting ready for their job is work and that they should be paid for it. A C.I.O. union won the high court ruling which opened the run of back pay suits. The decision went against the Mount Clemens (Mich.) Pottery Company.

Pressman, also representing the C.I.O. United Steelworkers, told the sub-committee that the bills before Congress "present implications which are catastrophic to the public welfare."

Weather Synopsis

Toronto, Jan. 18 (CP)—Synopsis: Polar air covers most of the Prairie Provinces, Northern Ontario and Quebec, and has pushed southward past Toronto and will reach the southern shore of Lake Erie by noon. By Sunday afternoon, this wedge of cold air will begin to recede northward again, allowing milder Pacific air to push into Southern Ontario.

Bachelor Motherhood Advocated For Britain's 200,000 Surplus Women

By RONALD BEDFORD

London, Jan. 18 (Reuters)—A moon cudding across a jet black sky formed a bizarre background for 46-year-old Edward Alexander Wilson as he launched a bizarre campaign for "bachelor" motherhood for Britain's spinsters.

Addressing a meeting of 28 women—including three young blondes, two white-haired women and a sprinkling of middle-aged spinsters as well as nine men—Wilson disclosed last night that 12 volunteers were prepared to aid him in his experiment to establish a bachelor league.

The league, Wilson said, has three aims: First, it is designed to work for the social acceptance and the legislation of bachelor motherhood for women. Second, it will try to conduct an experiment in England toward this end. Third, it will encourage women to take the step of bachelor motherhood "with a due sense of responsibility."

Wilson said that he was forming the league "to solve the problem of the nation's 200,000 spinsters."

Shaking his fist he said "I do not advocate irresponsibility nor do I preach sex for the sake of sex. I want to bachelor motherhood established on a sound basis with a contract between the two parties drawn up in a solicitor's office."

"I want to see this system accepted not only by society but by the church. There is no reason why it should not be accepted."

Wilson spoke from a platform which held a wooden trestle table and a blackboard. At his elbow was a grinning skull which he tapped from time to time to illustrate his theories about the relationship between the sexual organs and the brain

Cupping his chin in his hand, the baldish, moustached Wilson who join the league will avoid the evils of anger and resentment.

"This problem of the nation's surplus women must be solved," he declared. "To solve it will mean that some married men must look after two women. To the wives of these men I say: Is it not better to share your husband with another woman and ensure that he lives to be 80 or 100 than to keep him to yourself and see him die at 65?"

Wilson added that not everyone will want to support the bachelor motherhood league. Many people, he said, will regard it as a joke and only a few will want to have their responsibilities recognized.

"But if only a few come forward the experiment will have been worthwhile."

FIVE BELIEVED DEAD IN FIRE AT CLEVELAND

Seventeen Persons Are Rescued in 'Flash Blaze' Caused By Blast in Furnace Room

Cleveland, Jan. 18 — (AP)—At least five persons were unaccounted for today in the debris of a flash fire that wrecked Knickerbocker Manor, an uptown rooming house. Fire Chief James E. Nimmo said at least some of them were probably dead.

A number of roomers jumped from open windows of the three-storey brick, frame and stone structure. One man, Hugo Hamfeld, 52, was not expected to live after he jumped from the third floor. Firemen said he had been trapped.

Seventeen were rescued and at least 11 were taken to hospital.

The fire was caused by an explosion in the furnace room which tore an enormous hole in one side of the structure, enabling rescuers to get roomers safely to the street, Nimmo said.

Extend Search For Youth Who Escapes Police

Tillsonburg, Jan. 18—(CP) — Search for Bruce Saunders, 21-year-old convicted car thief who last night broke away from Chief Constable Roy Corbett of Tillsonburg, who was taking him to Woodstock county jail, was extended early today into areas of Norfolk and Elgin counties.

Chief Corbett's car, which Saunders took from him after producing a gun and stealing the car and the officer's revolver, was found today five miles south of Courtland. Courtland is on No. 3 highway, between here and Delhi.

Chief Corbett said provincial constable Well Heuser of Delhi had reported that a second abandoned car had been found ditched between Staffordville and Vienna, on No. 19 highway.

Police believe the second car was used by Saunders after he had abandoned Corbett's car. Corbett said rainstorms have played havoc with telephone lines in the area in which search is being made, adding to the difficulty of the task.

Officers believe Saunders, a resident of clear Creek, near Port Burwell, obtained the gun with which he threatened Chief Corbett from an accomplice who handed it to Saunders through the window of the local jail, where he had been held since Dec. 30.

Saunders and two companions, Robert Ross and Ross Merrifield, of Tillsonburg, were arrested here Dec. 30 for theft of a car the previous day.

Saunders was remanded for sentence today. Ross and Merriefield were later released.

Hon. St. Laurent Unveils Plaque Commemorating 2 Quebec Conferences

Quebec, Jan. 18 (CP). — The freedom and future of "all humanity . . . were at stake" when the late President Roosevelt and Rt. Hon. Winston Churchill, Britain's wartime prime minister, held their historic meetings in Quebec in 1943 and 1944, External Affairs Minister St. Laurent said today.

He made the statement in a speech prepared for delivery at the unveiling of a plaque commemorating the two Quebec conferences at which Prime Minister Mackenzie King and the Canadian Government acted as hosts to Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt.

The plaque, situated in the Chateau Frontenac, famed hotel operated by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, would be commemorative of two significant moments in the history of the world.

During the two conferences the hotel had served as headquarters for the British and American military staffs. Within its walls the military experts had worked "in that close harmony which was so essential to final victory".

The planning done, they met with Mr. Churchill and Mr. Roosevelt in the Citadel, summer home of the Canadian Governor-General, a few hundred yards away from the hotel. There the great strategic decisions were given final approval.

"Those decisions led to victory because they were carried out by the allied nations in harmony and co-operation," said Mr. St. Laurent. "Harmony and co-operation are no less needed to achieve security and peace than they were to achieve victory in war.

"It is right that we should record and cherish our history, particularly when our history becomes world history. The events recorded on this plaque are a part of that history. But they are more than a record of the past: they are a guide to the future.

"At the two Quebec conferences decisions were taken which involved the lives of thousands and thousands of fighting men. These men were prepared to give their lives — and thousands did give their lives — to uphold the ideals of freedom and justice among men and nations.

"The fighting has stopped, but the eternal struggle for freedom and justice continues. To be worthy of the sacrifice, it is our part to continue the struggle without pause."

TAX AGREEMENTS NEARER SOLUTION THAN EVER BEFORE

Manitoba, Saskatchewan, British Columbia and P.E.I. Likely to Sign

By D'ARCY O'DONNELL

Ottawa, Jan. 18 —(CP)— The future of Dominion-Provincial financial relations looked brighter today than at any time since a conference of the provinces with the Dominion broke up in failure last May.

New taxation agreements appeared likely with New Brunswick, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Prince Edward Island. Alberta and Nova Scotia, previously unsuccessful in attempts to reach agreements, have opened the way for new negotiations. Only Ontario and Quebec remained outside the field.

Finance Minister Abbott concluded yesterday five days of discussions with New Brunswick, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. He reported "most satisfactory" progress had been made but said that any further statement on the discussions would be withheld until after he meets Premier Manning of Alberta here next Wednesday.

It is known that Mr. Abbott put forward to New Brunswick, Manitoba and Saskatchewan a formula that was aimed at bringing about equalization of the $15 per capita subsidies originally offered them with the $21 per capita subsidies later offered British Columbia and Prince Ed-

Details Guarded.

The details of the formula have been carefully guarded, along with any figures which might indicate how much the new offers would cost the Dominion.

The subsidies would be paid to the provinces in return for their giving the Dominion almost exclusive jurisdiction in the personal income, corporation and inheritance tax fields.

Premier MacDonald of Nova Scotia was given an outline of the new formula Thursday and he said he would discuss it with his cabinet. On the outcome of those discussions would hinge the next move i nhis taxation negotiations.

Premier McNair of New Brunswick, Premier Douglas of Saskatchewan and Premier Garson of Manitoba are scheduled to outline their renegotiated agreements to their respective cabinets before disclosing definitely whether their legislatures will be asked to ratify the new pacts.

Premier Jones of Prince Edward Island announced in Charlottetown yesterday that he was leaving for Ottawa for taxation discussions. It is believed here that during his trip he will put the final touches to an agreement already accepted in principle.

SILVER CROSS WOMEN ELECTS OFFICERS

Hamilton, Jan. 18. (CP)—Mrs. Rutherford Edwards of Toronto, was elected secretary of the provisional executive of the Silver Cross Women of Canada at a meeting here yesterday. The organization aims at the care of women who lost husbands and sons in the war. Mrs. C. E Hayes, of Kitchener, was elected treasurer.

A Canadian Press dispatch from Hamilton last night erroneously reported that Mrs. Hayes was elected secretary and Mrs. Edwards, treasurer.

FIGHT COMMUNISM URGES PREMIER DREW AT KINGSTON

Also Requests Co-Operation Between Labor and Management

Kingston, Jan. 18 —(CP)— Premier Drew of Ontario issued a two-fold appeal to Canadian businessmen in an address to the Kingston Chamber of Commerce last night. He urged that they encourage co-operation between labor and management with the aim of assuring a steady supply of high-quality export goods and that they do their utmost to fight Communism.

"We are exporting now because disrupted conditions in other parts of the world create a demand for our goods," he said. "If we are to hold those markets when the now disorganized countries have begun to produce again, then we must produce goods of high quality, at a reasonable price and assure steady delivery.

"That can only be accomplished through co-operation between the workers and management . . . The way to prosperity in Canada is through co-operation, the co-operation of every citizen is necessary, and in the interests of the country at large, Chambers of Commerce could well make it their duty to cultivate this co-operation in their individual cities and throughout the country."

In speaking of the future development of Canada, the Premier paid special tribute to Principal R. C. Wallace of Queen's University for his work and accomplishments as chairman of the Ontario Research Commission.

The Premier spoke of the degree to which Russian influence has spread since the end of the war. By direct force or through satellite governments Russia now controlled 80,000,000 people more than she did before the war.

"There will be war if we allow Russia to occupy other countries by force and supply them with the mechanical equipment to do the job," he said.

"We must take a firm stand now if we wish to set ourselves on the road to peace."

35,000 London Truck Drivers Return to Job

London, Jan. 18. (AP)—More than 35,000 truck drivers and dock workers involved in London's transport strike went back to work today and the government withdrew troops from the job of transporting food to shops drained of supplies during the 11-day unofficial walkout.

More than 20,000 dockers, stevedores and Thames lightermen were among those returning to work and there was a possibility they would work tomorrow to speed the unloading of more than 100 ships tied up when they walked off the job in sympathy for the truck drivers, who asked a shorter work week and other concessions.

PRICE CEILINGS ON USED CARS MAY GO UP 10 P.C.

Similar Increase Was Allowed on New Cars And Adjustment Only Natural Consequence

Ottawa, Jan. 18. (CP)—Reports were current here today that a 10-per-cent advance in price ceilings on used cars will be announced by the Prices Board shortly, possibly Monday.

Prices Board officials declined to comment on the reports but it was recalled that a similar increase was allowed on the prices of new cars last month and it was considered likely that an adjustment for old cars thus would be a natural consequence.

If an increase is granted, it will be on the board formula which allows for price advances when the producers or distributors of goods can prove financial disability.

A week ago the Board announced a mass relaxation of price control but said that ceilings would be kept on motor cars, tires and gasoline. The announcement did not rule out, however, the possibility of adjustments where these were considered necessary.

Probably Limit Customers to One Case Beer a Day

Toronto, Jan. 18. (CP)—Liquor Board officials said yesterday Ontario Beer consumers will "probably" be limited to one case per day when beer rationing ends.

They agreed, however, "there is nothing to stop a purchaser going to another store and getting another case the same way."

William Griesinger, chief commissioner of the Ontario Liquor Control Board, said "I am not in a position to make any statement as to when or how the government will undertake the distribution of beer from brewer's warehouses or as to what hours in which beer will be sold. It is likely that the stores will remain open as at present from 12 noon to eight p.m."

Officials of Brewers' Warehousing company said they had no idea when the government will take over the sale of beer.

They said the supply of beer will be regulated by supplies of bottles and the consumer's promptness in returning them.

"We are short of equipment, trucks and materials," they said "but we feel we are in good enough shape to carry on under the new basis."

"Whispering Campaign" Leads Shopkeeper To Get Out of Trade

London, Jan. 18 —(Reuters)—A whispering campaign has brought the eight-year-old business career of a Manchester shopkeeper to an end because he felt "He could not stand it any more" when people stared at him because he sold a hammer to a murderer.

Edward MacDonald, 58, sold a hammer in his little shop for three shillings and six pence (72 cents) in a two-minute transaction and tragically altered the course of his life.

MacDonald said he realized that anyone might have sold the hammer—which was used to batter a woman to death. But, he aid, "for a fortnight people used to stare at me through the shop window and whisper. I felt that I could not stand it any more. So I decided to get out."

Declining Food Prices in Many Sections of U.S. Cheer Housewives

Washington, January 18 (AP)—Further drops in food prices cheered housewives in many sections of the United States today.

Butter again headed the list, falling as low as 65 cents a pound in New York compared with the $1-a-pound peak for the golden commodity last winter. The Office of Price Administration's old ceiling price was 67 cents a pound.

In Washington Government officials forecast a fairly general reduction in the price of milk by February 1. Cuts of about one cent a quart at retail were ordered the doday for five northeastern areas.

On the other hand, OPA authorized an increase in the cost of sugar which it said, would amount to about one-quarter cent a pound at retail.

Washington chain-store markets advertised butter at 69 cents a pound, a drop of around 10 cents in a week, and grade A fryer chickens at 35 cents a pound. Chickens were selling retail at five or six cents a pound less than the wholesale price last month.

In Chicago, the Atlantic and Pacific Tea Company announced a two-cent cut in 93-score butter will apply to the company's stores throughout Northern Indiana and Illinois tomorrow. The new price will be 69 cents a pound, compared with 93 cents December 10.

Formation of New Fr. Cabinet Takes Favorable Turn

Populaire Leaders Willing To Enter a Coalition Govt.

Paris, Jan. 18 (AP).—Socialist Paul Ramadier's negotiations toward the formation of a new French cabinet took a favorable turn today when M.R.P. (Mouvement Republican Populaire) leaders let it be known that they might be willing to enter a coalition government after all.

These leaders explained that the party's formal motion yesterday calling for the continuance of an all-Socialist government meant that they preferred a re-creation of such a government only if Leon Blum were at its head. They said they were convinced now that Blum was definitely out of the running.

Socialist party leaders expressed confidence that Ramadier, who was nominated premier yesterday would be able to report success to President Vincent Auriol this afternoon and set about drafting a presentation to the National Assembly next Tuesday.

Ramadier's efforts to form a cabinet earlier had appeared to be stymied by the M.R.P.'s apparent reluctance to enter another coalition cabinet and their call for an all-Socialist cabinet.

The Communists oppose the new all-Socialist cabinet. They want to be in the government and they claim the M.R.P. stand is aimed solely at keeping them out of it.

According to Plan.

Many observers believe that if Ramadier does abandon his efforts it will be all according to plan. One Radical-Socialist source flatly declared he did not think Ramadier's nomination was "seriously made".

These sources interpret the manoeuvring this way:

President Vincent Auriol offered Blum the premiership. The latter refused, explaining publicly that presiding over an uneasy coalition would be too tiring at his age—74. At the present stage it is necessary to envisage a coalition cabinet, because the Communists demand it.

Auriol chose Ramadier, knowing—these informants say—that he could not succeed, with the aim of demonstrating clearly—to the Communists and everyone else—that it is impossible to form a coalition cabinet.

One such proof is given, Auriol will make another plea to Blum to reform his all-Socialist government, and Blum—they foresee—will accept.

Viscountess Alexander To Speak on Radio

An urgent appeal for young Canadian women to join the nursing profession will be aired over the Trans-Canada network of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation on the program "The People Ask" by the Viscountess Alexander on Sunday, January 19 at 3 p.m.

Also speaking on the same program will be Dr. J. McCann, Minister of National Revenue and Arthur McNamara, deputy minister of Labor.

An acute shortage of student nurses in Canada is apparent and approximately 8,700 are needed immediately in the nursing profession.

Viscountess Alexander will speak in connection with the national appeal to young women to join the nursing ranks.

'Nazi,' Swastika Carved on Chest N.Y. Youth Dies

New York, Jan. 18. (AP)—The broken body of an 18-year-old commercial art student, with the word "Nazi" and a swastika carved in deep and bleeding lines on his chest and abdomen, was found today in a quiet Brooklyn residential street.

The young student, Anthony Charles Trabasso, died 45 minutes later without regaining consciousness. He had suffered a fractured skull, a fracture of the right hip and internal injuries.

The gruesome, bloody inscriptions were cut so large they virtually covered the victim's torso. The letter "A" also had been etched into the chest. Police said the freely bleeding brands indicated they had been inflicted only a short time before. When found, the youth was barefooted and clad only in blue-striped pajamas and underwear.

Trans-Canada Air Line Crash Kills Two in Manitoba

Headingley, Man., Jan. 18. — (CP)—Eyewitness accounts of the crash of a plane four miles west of here revealed today that had the plane struck about 300 feet from where it did, the death toll might have included residents of a nearby home, in addition to the two pilots who died in the flaming wreckage.

The two men killed in yesterday's crash of a trans-Canada Lockheed plane were Capt. G. E. Brown, 24, and first officer G. R. Symington, 23, both of Winnipeg. They were up on a routine training flight.

A slight deviation in the plane's sudden plummet earthward and it would have crashed into the home of George and Oliver Richard, who, with the latter's wife and two children, and Mrs. Richard's brother, Lawrence Daniel, were all at home at the time.

A vibrating house was the first intimation the Richard family had that anything was wrong. Then they saw sudden flames spurting up outside their home. At first they thought the building was blazing, but, rushing outside, they saw the scattered remnants of the plane.

"There was nothing we could do," said George Richard. Flames were leaping from the scattered parts of the plane, and even without a fire, it was believed that both men died instantly with the 14-passenger aircraft hit the ground.

Transport Department officials, meanwhile, started a minute investigation of the wreck today in the doubtful hope that they would discover the cause of the crash.

Victoria Ave. Baptist Church Had Fine Year

Twenty-four new members were received during the past year, it was reported at the annual business meeting of Victoria Avenue Baptist Church, held Thursday evening. The meeting was preceded by a congregational supper prepared by a committee of ladies under the convenership of Mrs. A. G. Fox. The Reverend H. O. Eastman, pastor, presided over the activities of the evening.

The financial statement presented by Mr. M. B. White, treasurer, indicated that $7,107.64 had been raised for all purposes during the year. Missionary donations totalled $1,593.76, the largest figure for this purpose in the history of the church. Balance on hand Jan. 1st., 1947, is $1,700.10, which includes the organ repair account of $1,145.74.

Reviewing the year's work and plans for the future, Mr. Eastman voiced satisfaction with the material progress; but he reminded the gathering that these accomplishments would prove to be futile unless the primary purpose of the church was kept in view, that of uplifting Jesus Christ and leading men to Him.

The pastor spoke appreciatively of the happy fellowship he had enjoyed with the Deacons Board and the splendid co-operation afforded by the various officers and departments of the church.

Council Favors Survey of City For Social Worker

Recommendation for a survey of the city to determine the need of a full time social worker was given by members of city council at their Thursday evening committee meeting following being approached by the newly formed inter-service club council.

Alderman Mark Vanner was authorized to place the matter of the survey of the city before the inter-service club council advising that the city council is prepared to share with them on a pro-rata basis the cost of the survey.

The city will also employ seven veterans to act as school guides at $30 per month until the end of the school term. In passing the committee recommendation, council indicated that the guides would place sandwich boards on the streets warning motorists to "drive slow". These boards would be placed on the streets in front of the schools and at other localities previous to the closing and opening of school and also at noon hours.

Guides would also carry discs bearing the word "stop" and would be authorized to stop traffic if necessary to permit children to cross the street with safety. The recommendation was proposed by Alderman Tice.

Committees Named

A committee of Aldermen Harvey, Armstrong, Butler and Hyde and Mayor Follwell was recommended appointed to investigate the proposed purchase of a jeep equipped with air compressor, snowplow and with covered top and heater at a cost of $3,036. A committee of Aldermen Armstrong Hyde Harvey and Tice was recommended to carry out the completion of the public lavatory on the Market Square.

Tenders for new uniforms for firemen will be called and also for leasing the market.

Kenneth Smith was recommended given permission to erect a sign at 8 Bridge Street, E., while the Brewer's retail Store on Front Street were likewise given permission to erect a neon sign.

Extention of building covenants were given to Fred Day and to William Glover, while refunds of $25 were recommended for N. K. Kellar and John Daley, both of whom had purchased city lots on Russell Street. Lots 10 and 14 on the Emily Street extension will be repossessed from Carl Brethour and Mr. Welch, these men indicating they no longer required the lots.

Application of Joseph Seames regarding the purchase of lot 34 St. Paul Street was referred to the special property committee and to Mayor Follwell for report and recommendation as the property in question may be required by the city as an industrial site.

Sidney Junior Farmers Elect 1947 Officers

The annual meeting of the Sidney Junior Farmers was held at the home of Harry Faul, 5th concession, on Wednesday evening, with Carl Sine, Frankford No. 2, being elected president for the current year.

Vice president named was Edison Sine, Frankford, and secretary treasurer, Douglas Harry of Trenton No. 5. Directors are Maitland Harder, Wilmott Shortt and Don Nicholson. Auditors are Walter Harder and Don Nicholson.

Members of the dance committee are Harry Faul and Harry Wickson, while the livestock and grain judging committee are Wilmott Shortt and Ray Hall, both of Trenton.

Last year's president Don Nicholson was in the chair for the business part of the meeting while the treasurer's report was given by Edison Sine. It was decided to appoint a program committee of three to take charge of each meeting. Each of these three will prepare a topic of timely interest in connection with agriculture and will address the club. Club meetings will be held on the second Thursday of each month.

Penalties Given For Thefts From B.C.I., Creameries

Penalties ranging from one year suspended sentence to three months in the county jail were handed out by Magistrate T. Y. Wills in city police court on Friday to six local youths and one local young man involved in breaking and entering the Belleville Collegiate and Belleville Creameries warehouse last November.

Four of the seven receiving either suspended sentence or jail terms were charged with receiving stolen goods, while another young man, Jerry Scripture, was assessed $50 and costs for "receiving".

Three other persons, two of them juveniles, face charges of breaking and entering the York Trading Company and Belleville Creameries warehouse but their cases have been enlarged to Jan. 27. Pleas of guilty were entered by all persons tried on Friday.

Charged with breaking and entering were William Stapley, 16, who with Robert Nickle and Robert Carey, also 16 years, was alleged by police to have entered the Belleville Collegiate and to have stolen rifles and football sweaters. Stapley was also charged with breaking and entering the Belleville Creameries on two occasions and stealing butter, and with stealing an automobile radio from a car parked near the Collegiate.

Stapley was sentenced to one month in the county jail for his part in the offences, while Nickle and Carey were given suspended sentence. Stapley was represented in court by Alan Sprague, while the last two named lads were represented by R. D. Arnott.

Charged with "receiving" butter stolen from the Belleville Creameries were Jerry Scripture, fined $50 and costs; William Galbraith and Bruce Diamond, both 16, given suspended sentence; Howard Sandford, aged 17, given three months in jail, and Edward Broad, 24, given one month in jail. One juvenile, whose case was heard during the afternoon, was also given suspended sentence.

Inspector Hayes told of the Collegiate and of Belleville Creameries being entered. Goods valued at $67 had been taken from the Collegiate, $390 in goods taken from the York Trading and $199 worth of butter from the creameries.

In presenting evidence on the B.C.I. break-in the officer stated that Carey had acted as a lookout and had not actually benefited as result of the "job."

In addition to being charged with "receiving" Sandford had been charged with being an accessory after the fact in the Belleville Creameries break-in.

Explaining the charge Inspector Hayes stated that the youths entering the creamery had later approached Sandford who in turn had secured the services of a taxi to take the butter to the country where it was hidden in a field. Sandford and Broad had later returned for the butter and sold it to various parties about the city.

Galbraith and Diamond had also "received" some of the stolen butter which they had hidden in a sawdust pile at Houstons. Later when the thefts were being investigated the two youths became scared and dumped the butter in the bay.

Two character witnesses were called for Stapley by Defence Counsel Sprague, these attesting to the youth's previous character. Mr. Arnott also pointed out to the court that the youths he was representing came from good families.

Central Ontario Leads All Agencies N.A. Life

The Central Ontario Agency of the North American Life of which D. V. Ketcheson, an old Belleville boy, is branch manager at Peterborough, has again been successful in winning the Company's Premier Award, Nalaco Cup, emblematic of the highest accomplishment on the continent for North American Life.

To win this coveted trophy not only requires the greatest volume of sales but also the largest increase in business in force as well as exceptional service to policyholders.

The greatest underwriting record in the history of the company and of the agency with a sensational increase of 85 per cent over the year 1945 brings this award to Central Ontario Agency for the sixth time during the past few years.

The presentation of the Cup will take place at Toronto when those associated with the Agency will be the guests of the directors and officials of the company at a banquet at which the Cup will be presented by the President, Norman Robertson.

Those associated with the Agency at Belleville are: R. B. Cooper, J. E. Marsh, C. Stringer, P. Snider, J. Carson and A. Wilson.

THIRTY-FIVE PIGS IN YEAR

Flesherton, Jan. 18 (CP). — James McKenzie of Feversham district has a sow that is personally trying to meet bacon committments for Britain. During the period of a year she gave birth to three litters of shoats for a total of 35, 30 of which she raised.

Fowl Plentiful On City Market

Despite increased pork prices during the past week the price of eggs on the local produce market held steady on Saturday with Grade "A" selling for 45 cents; mediums were 38 cents and pullets 35 cents the dozen.

Fowl seemed fairly plentiful with the general price asked being 40 cents the pound, although a number of capons sold at from 45 to 48 cents per pound.

On the outside market winter apples such as Spy, McIntosh and Delicious sold at 90 cents the peck with Talman Sweets bringing 75 cents the peck. Cooking apples sold at 60 and 65 cents the peck.

Potatoes were quite freely offered at $1.50 the bag, while carrots and parsnips sold at 50 cents the peck. Cabbages sold at a dime and sauerkraut at 15 cents the quart.

Two or three loads of cordwood were offered with mixed wood selling at $11 the cord.

Four Elected Directors Of Chamber of Commerce

Messrs. Bruce Lattimer, Harold Seldon, Lorne McDougall and T. A. Tucker were elected to the directorate of the Chamber of Commerce as a result of the annual ballot elections, it was announced today. The new directors will serve a term of two years. Other directors who remain in office for another year are C. A. Jewell, G. A. Freeman, F. H. Deacon, J. G. Galloway and Jamieson Bone.

The newly elected directors were the selection of members of the chamber in the final ballots out of ten who received the highest number of votes in the primaries.

The board will elect its president at the first meeting which will be held in the near future.

Wife of Former Resident Dies

Word was received here today of the death in Detroit of Mrs. Viola Edmunds, wife of E. Edmunds formerly of this city. Mrs. Edmunds was 45 years of age and passed away after a lingering illness.

Mr. Edmunds was well-known in sports circles here years ago and was former welterweight boxing champion of this city. He states in his letter that his family was the victim of a vicious racket which preys upon relatives of deceased persons.

The "racketeer" calls on the family of the deceased and poses as a warm friend. He then tells them that his car has broken down and wants to borrow money to have it repaired, so he can go to the funeral. Needless to say, as soon as the "loan" is effected, he disappears. Mr. Edmunds donated $3 to this illegal "cause".

OBITUARY

LATE MELVIN O. WHITEMAN

The funeral of Melvin O. Whiteman was held Friday afternoon from the Belleville Burial Company Funeral Home, Campbell Street, to Trinity United Church, Madoc, where service was conducted by the Rev. E. A. Wicks, pastor of Grace Chapel, Dundas Street, Belleville, who also conducted the services at the graveside in Lakeview Cemetery.

Members of the Army and Navy Veterans in Madoc attended the service and the last rites of the Veterans Association were conducted by Mr. William McKenna, President of the Army and Navy Veterans, Belleville.

The bearers were H. McCreary, M. Rashotte, Fred Coon, Charles Court, R. Naffin and O. Brant.

LATE MRS. CATHERINE M. SMITH

The funeral of Mrs. Catherine Melissa (Brown) Smith, wife of Mr. Charles F. Smith, 40 North Front street, was held Friday afternoon from the Grant Funeral Home 68 North Front street. The service there and at Glenwood Cemetery, Picton, was conducted by the Rev. C. A. Perkins, minister of Holloway Street United Church.

The bearers were Fred Lazier, Mac. Thompson, Ford Mastin, Clifford Mastin, Robert Bews and William Juniper, all of whom are grandsons of the late Mrs. Smith.

ALBERT S. DAFOE
(Shannonville)

Albert S. Dafoe, Shannonville, was taken suddenly with a heart attack at his home Friday evening and was conveyed to the Belleville General Hospital where he died early Saturday morning.

Born in the Sixth Concession of Sidney Township the late Mr. Dafoe was in his 67th year. His parents were the late Mr. and Mrs. Anson Dafoe. For many years he resided in this city and was an operator in the employ of the Ontario Hydro Commission. For the past year he lived in Shannonville. He was a member of the United Church.

Surviving him are his wife, the former Emma Bowen; three sons, Ray of Belleville, Gerald of Shannonville and Donald of Belleville; one daughter, Miss Emma Dafoe, Belleville; one sister, Mrs. John Moore, Belleville.

The funeral announcement is made in this edition.

Council Members Luncheon Guests Of Parks Board

Members of city council together with various city officials, were guests of the local Parks Board at a special dinner meeting at the Queen's Hotel on Friday evening. Chairman of the Parks Board, Cleo B. Colling, welcomed the guests and expressed the wish that the social get-to-gether be an annual event.

"It is only at meetings such as this that members of city council can meet and get to know the various board officials who are appointed to act for the city," said Chairman Colling. "I trust that this can be an annual event."

Guest artist for the evening was Harry Curtiss, popular Kingston story teller, who kept his audience in a continuous round of laughter at his many witticisms. Mayor Frank S. Follwell expressed the appreciation of the Parks Board to the guest artist.

GARBAGE MAN TAKES THEM

London, Jan. 18 (CP). — The City Claims Department has a tough one to handle. It seems that a mother washed a dozen baby diapers and other little items of clothing and put them outside on a new garbage can, intending to hang them up later. Yes, the garbage man came along. . . .

Our 100th-year

AND STEADILY MOVING FORWARD
At the first annual meeting of our company our first president said: "The directors are much gratified with the share they have had in extending to many of their fellow subjects the comforting protection of life assurance".
Many thousands of Canadians joined our great family of policyholders in 1946. Life Insurance business in force, excluding annuities, now exceeds one billion dollars. This includes more than 100 million dollars of new business, other than annuities, paid for in 1946.
Payments in 1946 amounted to almost 25 million dollars of which more than 62 per cent was paid to living policyholders. To ensure the payment of those amounts which the company has contracted to disburse in the future, the company's assets have increased to nearly 350 million dollars in investments of the highest quality.
Our company, founded 20 years before Canada itself came into being, has progressed consistently with the growth of the Dominion, and we look forward to the next century with the expectation of still greater accomplishments.

Spending Christmas in Mid-Air While Flying To Canada From Australia One of Many Thrills for Mrs. I. L. Moore Who Made Journey

City Resident Spent Six Months in Her Native Land

By GEO. H. CARVER
(Staff Reporter)

The big Australian National Airways four-motored air-liner drove through the airy hallways high above the ocean. Matching the azure of the clear sky above was the blue of the Pacific ten thousand feet below. On board, forty-four passengers and the aircraft's crew of nine, dreamed of home and a "White Christmas."

For it was Christmas Eve and the flying liner, her streamlined fuselage glinting in the brilliant Pacific sunshine, was headed for San Francisco, and Vancouver, B.C., on her trans-Pacific flight from Melbourne, Australia.

At a cruising speed of 230 miles per hour the Queen Mary of the skyways sped through the clear skies. Hours passed. Passengers reclined in their seats, played cards, or carried on quiet conversation.

Storm Ahead

The pilot suddenly straightened up in his seat. He looked at his co-pilot and pointed ahead. The co-pilot nodded. In the distance far below them, jagged forks of lightning ripped through masses of clouds that had suddenly appeared out of the horizon.

The sun-tipped banks of thunderheads slowly rolled towards the plane in serried formation.

The co-pilot rose and walked back into the passenger compartment. "Better attach your safety belts," he said. "Looks like we're running into a storm."

A trim Australian hostess, immaculate in a neat uniform, and her assistant walked slowly from seat to seat, unworried, unhurried and smiling, assisting the passengers to arrange their belts.

"Purely routine, y'know," they said in their broad Australian accents. "Positively nothing to be alarmed about."

The pilot turned over his controls to his assistant and strolled back through the passenger quarters. He paused before a shining-eyed lady in her sixties who gazed at him with a look of eager anticipation.

"Afraid, ma'am?" he asked.

New Experience

"Not much," replied the lady, "in fact I'm looking forward to it. Just for the experience," she added quickly. "This trip has been delightful from a weather point of view and a little diversion will not come amiss."

"Stout fella," murmured the pilot as he moved away.

The plane plunged into the misty mass that was the storm. The brief interlude was a bit "bumpy" but there was nothing of a sensational nature about the experience.

When the liner merged from the storm area, and a Pacific Christmas sun once more shone down from the "wild blue yonder" the silver-haired lady relaxed with a smile.

She was Mrs. I. L. Moore, of 54 Forin Street, Belleville, a native-born Australian, who was on the last sea leg of a 8,800 mile journey from her birthplace home in Melbourne to her residence in this city. It was the tenth time she had visited her home in the land of Waltzing Matildas and kangaroos, but her first long distance journey by air.

Christmas in a Plane

That night as people in Canada, United States and other White Christmas countries prepared the traditional Yuletide Eve ceremonies; while little children hung their stocking by the chimney and fond parents made last arrangements for the great morrow, these forty-four people of mixed nationalities whose lives were held in the palms of skilled pilots, looked out into the clear Pacific moonlight, with mixed emotions.

Brilliant stars hung down in a black sky. Silver moonlight bathed the sleek sides of the airliner as she forged steadily ahead. There was no sound except the consistent roar of the quartet of powerful engines as they drove the big aircraft toward its destination in far-off Frisco.

Ten thousand feet above the Pacific these people felt they were close to God on this night of nights. Some one started to sing a carol. Gradually the entire party joined in. The deep voices of the men blended with the lighter tones of the women and children in the words of beautiful "Holy Night". The aircraft dipped gently as if in recognition and appreciation of the great season at hand.

Then at the magic hour of midnight this small company of people, alone in the vast dome of space high above the Pacific Ocean, clasped hands and wished one another the season's compliments.

Santa Claus Appears

Scarcely had these ceremonies ceased than the door of the pilot's cabin opened and out walked Santa Claus himself. Dressed in the traditional garb of red and white, with a jolly face and flowing white beard, this St. Nick of the Skies shook hands with the passengers and gave them presents from his bag.

Then hostesses appeared from the kitchen quarters with plates of tasty lunch, steaming coffee. The refreshments were served and the little Christmas party enjoyed to the utmost. The Santa Claus was the chief pilot whose Christmas garb had been made by the hostesses from some red cloth. His whiskers were made from strips of tissue paper.

"It was a grand little party," Mrs. Moore said, "and we all enjoyed ourselves. Even Shirley Skinner, sixteen-year-old Australian girl who was travelling from her home in Adelaide to New York to have a large nail removed from her lung, sang with the rest of us."

Needed Operation

Miss Skinner, swallowed the nail when she was two-and-one-half years of age, and it had lain in her lung since. Recently it started to move and physicians said that only a major operation performed by a New York specialist could remove it.

The operation and journey would cost 800 pounds or roughly $3,800.

But Shirley's people could not afford such money, and they despaired of having the operation performed. Then the big hearts of the pretty young girl's fellow townsmen in that far-off community on the other side of the world, asserted themselves. In less than a week they had contributed 2,000 pounds, almost $10,000 to Shirley's fund, and she was able to make the trip.

By pure coincidence, Mrs. Moore said, there have been three Australians taken to the United States to undergo operations for the removal of foreign elements from their lungs, and she has been present on each occasion.

Four-Day Trip

The trip from Melbourne, Australia, to San Francisco took one Sunday, two Mondays and a Tuesday, or four days in all. The reason for the extra Monday is due to the fact that a day is lost going to Australia, but is made up for on the return trip.

"In fact," laughed Mrs. Moore, "a person going to Australia to remain permanently loses a day out of his life that he will never be able to account for."

The sleek air-liner, named the "Amana" took off from the Melbourne airport at four o'clock on Sunday afternoon, and arrived at Sydney, some 500 miles distant, two hours later.

Here she picked up her full complement of passengers, three of whom were Australian war brides going to join their husbands in the United States, and at eight o'clock soared into the air en route to her first stop at Nadi, in the Fijian Islands.

Here in the brilliant tropical sunshine the travellers spent the entire next day. Specially constructed native huts of bamboo, with thatched roofs were set aside for them. There were hot showers and washrooms. Passengers could rest at their ease or go sightseeing through the island in automobiles. The food was excellent.

Head For Canton Isles

At 7 p.m. Monday night, the big liner soared gracefully into the air with her nose headed toward the Canton Islands, a group of beautiful coral formations that nestle in the deep blue of the South seas.

At four in the morning the passengers were wakened by the hostesses who requested them to get ready to land. Brilliant searchlights sent rapiers of light stabbing into the almost Stygian blackness of a tropical night. Swift motor launches transported the passengers to a large island some miles away where they were taken to a modern American style hotel, after riding in heavy army trucks.

Here they had a typical American breakfast, ham and eggs country style, plenty of coffee, orange juice, etc. Then they were whisked back to the motor launches taken to the original small island which in the pearly dawn of the South Seas proved to be an air base, then into the army trucks and back to the aircraft.

At ten o'clock that morning they flashed into the air once again, destination Honolulu.

Enjoyed Honolulu Visit

In that beautiful tropical gem of storied tradition and song, the travellers were escorted by automobile to one of the swankiest hotels on the island. "Here," related Mrs. Moore, "we were treated like kings. Nothing was too good for us. The food was excellent, in fact we could get anything we wanted."

The stay there was all too short, Mrs. Moore commented. "We took off shortly after for San Francisco and our Christmas 10,000 feet above the Pacific."

Four-and-one-half days after the airliner had left the Melbourne airport, the big ship hovered over the Golden Gate at San Francisco. The Australian passengers, according to immigration rules had to proceed with Canadians and British to Vancouver to get clearance before proceeding through the U.S.A.

The trip from Frisco to Vancouver was one of the outstanding scenic features of the entire aerial journey, Mrs. Moore said. "We flew through the Oregons and the mountain scenery was superb. Deep green valleys offset the rugged grandeur of snow-capped mountain peaks. It was breath-taking in color and sheer beauty."

Hit Thick Fog

But their "fun" was not yet over. Forty miles south of Vancouver the aircraft ran into a thick pea-soup fog. The pilot circled the craft high over the city but there was no let-up in the mist and he was forced to fly back some forty miles. Here the plane was landed and passengers huddled together for four hours until taxis arrived to take them into the Canadian city.

Mrs. Moore visited relatives in the British Columbia metropolis before taking the train for her home here.

Six months previous Mrs. Moore embarked on, as has been said before, her tenth visit to her former home in Adelaide. She travelled by steamship from San Francisco at a time when the Pacific seaboard was seething with a seamen's strike. This had affected the world apparently, for at nearly every port at which the ship was scheduled to dock, seamen were "out."

As a matter of fact, Mrs. Moore said, the S. S. Monterey on which she travelled to "down under," was supposed to stop at Suva, the Fijis, Auckland and other ports, but the captain drove the ship through to her destination, in case his crew stepped ashore or were forced to abandon the ship by striking seamen.

Record Trip

The "Monterey" made a record journey, Mrs. Moore said. "It negotiated the distance between Frisco and Sydney, Australia in 11 days. The first day at sea she logged 520 miles. The boat was a former troopship and had not yet been converted to civilian use.

In Mrs. Moore's cabin on the liner were eighteen bunks alone, which will give some idea of crowded conditions on troopships in wartime. It was on "C" deck and one of the best appointed staterooms on the ship.

Arriving at Sydney, the strike bugbear reared its ugly head again. Here the railroad employees were "out" and only a few special trains were moving. Railway stations were crowded with impatient passengers awaiting train movements.

Fortunately Mrs. Moore had wirelessed her brother, Mr. Roy Liddelow, of Melbourne, and he had been able to secure a reservation for her on a train leaving the night she arrived at Sydney. Other passengers of the steamship were forced to wait in Sydney several days before they could get rail transportation to their various destinations.

Poor Accommodation

And here another novel experience awaited Mrs. Moore. There were no sleeping cars or diners on the train and she was forced to stand up most of the time and snatch "forty winks" whenever she could. She travelled 500 miles to Melbourne and then another 500 to Adelaide.

And the Australian railroads have ways of their own. It appears that each state of the Commonwealth has its own railway gauge, thus making it impossible for the trains of one state to travel in another. Consequently Mrs. Moore had the experience, a tiresome one at that, of changing trains at the border in the middle of the night.

Australia at that time was definitely a land of steaks and strikes. Gas, coal and railway workers were "out" causing disruption of these important services and no end of inconvenience to the public.

Housewives, the majority of whom use gas for cooking purposes, received it only between 6 and 8 in the morning; from 11.30 to 12.30 at mid-day and from 5.30 to 7 at night. They were not allowed to use their electric radiators and with an acute shortage of fuel, many lived in cold discomfort.

But they took it in their stride, and many an afternoon party had its tea brewed over small primus stoves.

Country of Flowers

One of the outstanding features of Australia, Mrs. Moore said, is its flora. The most beautiful flowers in the world grow in the down-under continent and practically every householder has his own garden. Cities, villages and towns are a riot of color the year round and many beautiful specimens are to be found. In her brother's garden, she said, are 66 varieties of roses alone. The garden is surrounded with a six-foot hedge of hydrangea, afire with blossoms of scarlet, pink and blue. The gardens bloom continuously making the country a floral "Garden of Eden."

The cost of living has increased considerably in Australia during the past ten years, and its rate now is much higher than that of Canada. There is plenty of food with meat available in large quantities and varieties. "Aussie" steaks and chops, however, cost much less than do the Canadian counterpart.

But Mr. and Mrs. Australia have to carry coupons for practically everything they buy. Boots, shoes, clothes, etc., are strictly rationed. The Australian male feels this pinch more than does his spouse for clothing prices are mountainous, and coupons few.

For an example, a lady's hat which would cost about four or five dollars in Canada, is priced at twenty dollars in an Australian salon.

Plenty of Money

But the average Australian is happy despite all this. He has plenty of money, and he fills the theatres, dance-halls and other places of amusement nightly. There seems to be no shortage of ready cash, and everybody appears to be working. Mr. Australia is looking forward to the future of himself and his country with pleasurable anticipation for American and British capital is flowing into the country. In fact a large number of the fellow passengers of Mrs. Moore on board the S. S. Monterey were American industrialists and businessmen, going to Australia to invest in the country.

He, also, takes heavy government taxation in his stride. Practically everything from food to marbles carries a tax. As an instance, tennis-minded Aussies who took in the recent Davis Cup matches between Australia and the United States, paid thirty shillings, roughly seven dollars for their tickets, and in addition handed over "ten bob", $2.50 tax on each pasteboard.

Australia, like every other country in the world, has its housing problems. But listen to this!

In that country, if a householder leaves his home for over a period of a week at a time, homeless families can walk in and take over the place as tenants. The householder is forced to accept rent—and he is out on his ear. To prevent this, Australian families who intend visiting friends or relatives for over a seven-day period, install another friend in their homes who remains there during the family's absence.

Cars Expensive

And if Mr. Australia wants to buy himself a new automobile all he has to do is put $3,500 on the line and he gets a new Vauxhall (a small British-made car) or an American Chevrolet or Plymouth. The trouble is, there are not enough cars to satisfy the demand. There is a movement afoot to manufacture cars in Australia, but until this comes about, there will be waiting lines outside dealers' doors.

Unemployment is not too common in the cities and towns of the continent, but like every other war-torn country, Australia has a large quota of youthful war veterans who joined the armed services from the schools and colleges, and who are finding it difficult to adjust themselves to strange peacetime conditions.

Transportation problems are more or less acute down there especially trans-oceanic travel. It is estimated, Mrs. Moore said, that there are 10,000 British, Canadian and Americans who have been in the country for the past four years, and cannot secure transportation home. Steamships have not yet been reconverted to civilian travel in a majority of cases and until this is done Australia will have transportation problems on her hands.

Canadian News Scarce

The Australian press carries a lot of American news as well as world events. Canadian news is scarce over there, and in Mrs. Moore's opinion there could be a closer relationship between Canada and Australia as far as news is concerned. "And this closer relationship within the Empire could be applied to other things as well," she added.

The world knows the magnificent job done by the armed forces of the Australian Commonwealth in both world wars. Her sons and daughters rallied to the call of Empire and in the darkest days of World War Two when the Japanese invader was but a short distance away, the dauntless Aussies determined to fight and die for their beloved country in defence of their homes and loved ones. Like Churchill, "we will fight on the beaches and in the streets, in the hills and in the valleys, We shall never surrender."

Their dauntless British spirit stood out, as they waited for the enemy to land on their shores. They were ready and willing. Then came the Americans, who with their Australian comrades hurled the yellow invader back into the sea.

They fought and died in the islands; in Africa and in Europe. They flew their planes and fought their naval guns, manned their tanks and fixed their bayonets in the common cause and Australia's efforts emblazoned a golden page in the shining book of Empire history.

Son Died in Service

And among her gallant sons who gave his life for his country was Major S. L. Seymour, a son of Mrs. Moore. The late officer was a member of the Australian Army Medical Corps. He was killed in the fierce fighting around El Alamein, when Rommel, the Nazi Desert Fox, was hurling the British Army back towards Alexandria.

Perhaps Mrs. Moore will visit her Australian home again some time in the future. And if she does, she won't book passage on a steamship. That journey of 8,800 miles by air has completely sold her on this type of travel. It gave her the thrill of her life, even if the Australian airways companies do give their passengers barley sugar to chew instead of the traditional American gum.

She is proud of her record of having crossed the equator eleven times, and she is equally proud of the souvenir given her by the Australian National Airways when its huge airliner "Anama" was directly over the mythical line that encircles the earth. It is a highly colored card which depicts Neptune, trident-armed rising out of the sea, and on it are the autographs of Mrs. Moore's fellow passengers.

Jean Fairbairn Honored By Fellow Workers

A very enjoyable social evening was spent Tuesday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Lennox, Bleecker Ave., when the members of the staff of the Divisional Dept. of the Stewart-Warner-Alemite met for a farewell party in honor of Miss Jean Fairbairn, who is leaving Belleville in the near future to accept a position in Detroit, Mich.

On Wednesday afternoon members of the office staff presented Miss Fairbairn with a set of matched travelling cases, and from the employees of the 'plant' she received a bouquet of Spring flowers.

Miss Fairbairn is well known among a large circle of friends in the city and the best wishes of all go with her to her new place of employment.

Long Years of Service

Two men who have given long service with the Canadian Pacific Railway have been in the news of late, D. C. Coleman who has retired as chairman and president and W. M. Neal, director and vice-president since 1942, who becomes the new president of the railway. Their lives make interesting reading for they are railwaymen who have intimate knowledge of the business which they have followed so long. Both have been strong and able men. Mr. Coleman began with the railway back in 1899 and Mr. Neal in 1902. The former started at the age of twenty years and his successor at the age of fifteen. Both therefore had every opportunity to learn the business of railroading from the bottom upward to the highest position in the company.

With Mr. Coleman Belleville has ties which antedate his entry into the service of the C.P.R. As a youth he spent some time in Belleville on the editorial staff of the Intelligencer. His rise in the service of the railway was steady and when the time came for the assumption of the presidency he was prepared for the task at the most important period in the history of Canada, that is, during World War II, a period which imposed immense labor upon the leaders of every department of the nation's life and on all the people. How well he was able to carry out the wartime responsibilities has been proven by the achievement of the railway. Recognition of his service was indicated in the honors list last year when he was named a Companion of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, and the man who now succeeds him as president, Mr. Neal, was honored with the award of C.B.E

Mr. Coleman's life story is inspiring. It tells of the rise of a young man who began with the company as assistant engineer's clerk to become in the course of years through faithful service to his duties the head of one of the great transportation organizations of the world.

Fire Losses

Ontario Fire Marshal in his report for the last quarter shows the fire fatalities totalled 28 persons of whom 13 were men, 4 women and 11 children while the number of injured reached 64. The total deaths for the year 1946 as a result of fire were 108 and the injured 237.

Fires in the last quarter of the year just closed numbered 5,129 for a loss of $3,980,511. Fire loss in 17,698 fires last year caused a loss of $14,530,231, according to preliminary figures.

While the loss of nearly fifteen million dollars of property in Ontario in a year by fire is a large amount the more serious matter is the loss of life in fires and the number of persons who are injured through these untoward events.

1,400 Reports

At a recent press conference in London, Sir Stafford Cripps, President of the United Kingdom Board of Trade, announced details of a little-known United Kingdom Service, — the British Intelligence Objectives Sub-Committee—which replaced the Anglo-American Organization obtaining knowledge of German scientific and technical developments. The work has been a joint effort by government and industry: the information gained is available to all industry. To date B.I.O.S. has issued 1,400 reports covering the whole range of industry. Further detailed information is available which may save the United Kingdom researcher from timewaste. Questioned as to the possible difficulties arising from patent rights, Sir Stafford Cripps stated that the information was available to all countries which were signatories at the London Patent Conference.

Radio on Royal Train

When King George VI and Queen Elizabeth tour the Union of South Africa early in 1947, the officials and pressmen aboard the two Royal Trains will be able to keep in touch with the outside world every minute of the day and night by radio. Both trains will be fitted with broadcast receiving equipment and announcing facilities for broadcasting announcements over the more than 60 loudspeakers with which each train will be provided. For the King's personal use there will be a receiver housed in a special cabinet to harmonize with the surrounding furniture. The pilot train will also have installed high-speed short-wave radio transmitter and keying equipment together with a short-wave receiver, for transmission of press reports of the tour and for general communication purposes.

Peace For Austria

(New York Times)

In opening the London Conference of the Deputies of the Big Four Foreign Ministers, charged with preparing the ground for a German peace treaty, Foreign Secretary Bevin noted that this conference is also supposed to prepare a peace treaty with Austria. That unhappy land, once the center of a large empire, was Hitler's first victim.

Unlike Germany, Austria has a Government of her own with which peace can be made, so that there is no excuse for delay. Despite this, Austria is still occupied enemy country, divided into four differing occupation zones and subject to such rigid and often divided Allied control that its Government is powerless. Moreover, the Russians have been stripping the country for "reparations," seizing Austrian factories, lands, shipping, oil wells, and even homes first seized by the Germans, on the ground that they are "German assets" and therefore belong to Russia, despite all declarations to the contrary.

As a result, Austria is today in desperate straits. Scarcely able to live without outside assistance even before the German annexation, it is now saddled with proportionately large occupation armies and another army of displaced persons, without even the right of helping itself. The Allied Control Council has at last agreed to pool the food resources of the four occupation zones to keep up the starvation rations. But Austria is bereft of fuel and at the present moment, in the midst of winter, most of its industry is idle, its transportation and lighting are interrupted, and its citizens are forced to work in cold shops and live in cold homes.

Ever since peace treaty discussions began Secretary Byrnes has been urging consideration of an Austrian treaty. But all his efforts have been blocked by Russian opposition. Recently, however, Russia has been displaying signs of greater accommodation on problems in general and on Austria in particular, where its occupation methods appear to have reached the point of diminishing returns. It is to be hoped, therefore, that when the Big Four Foreign Ministers met in Moscow they will be more inclined to agree on an Austrian treaty and to establish that country as a genuinely free and independent nation.

Where 95 Percent Voted

The little village of Scotland, Ontario, is great in this newspaper's estimation, by reason of its election-day achievement. Monday was the occasion for the annual election of police trustees for the community in question. The results show that, of 184 people eligible to vote, no fewer than 176 — better than 95 per cent—cast ballots. Of the eight who failed to go to the polls, five were ill in bed and it is probable that the remaining three had good and proper reasons for absenting themselves, says Brantford Expositor.

Meat for Americans will be produced in 1947 to the amount of 150 pounds for every person. That is the forecast from the Department of Commerce says New York Times. It will be the largest per capita supply in a generation. Electrical appliances willl continue tight till the middle of 1947. Radio production will set a new record. From other sources we learn that automobiles will begin to flow easily only late in 1948.

Under the law sponsored by Gen. MacArthur, only direct male heirs of the emperor could succeed to the Japanese throne. How times have changed! Royalty used always to insist that monarch ruled by divine right. Now a five star general can decide who is and who isn't going to have the concession, remarks the Milwaukee Journal.

ABOUT DRESS

Men and women, young and old,
Differently small things behold.

Women, when they sit to chat,
Note each other's choice of hat.

They'll remember weeks or more,
What it was each other wore.

Men give neither thought nor care
To the garb their comrades wear.

Many a wife has lived to find
Unto dress her man is blind.

This her rage has often stirred:
New dress on, but not a word!

Hair-do new, and freshly gowned,
From her husband, not a sound!

GLEANINGS FROM OUR FYLES OF BY-GONE YEARS.

20 YEARS AGO

Jan. 18th., 1927.

At the annual vestry meeting of Christ Church Parish, the rector, the Rev. C. E. Clarke, presided. Mr. J. V. White was reported vestry clerk. All reports were highly satisfactory and the financial report showed that the sum of $11,275.29 was raised during the year. The rector appointed Mr. Fred Chamberlain as his warden and the vestry elected Mr. S. T. Leggott as People's Warden. The following were elected to compose the executive council: O. H. Scott, G. B. Smith, W. H. Nugent, Wesley Grey, J. Sargeant, George Watkin, R. A. Backus, D. Row Dr. A. D. Proctor, Thomas Marshall, J. Reid, Alfred R. Symons, together with the rector and wardens. The following sidesmen were appointed for the year: Fred Wiggins, Frank Bowyer, A. H. Mills, H. J. Carter, H. Lennox, W. Adams, D. Row, K. Matthews, R. A. Backus, S. Lennox, K. Deshane, P. O'Reilly, G. Craven, E. Day, E. Bateman, R. Bone, W. Fair, A. Lennox, C. Waddell, J. White, James Varley, Fred Symons, G. B. Smith and Alfred R. Symons.

At a large and enthusiastic meeting of the members of the Presbyterian Church in Foxboro, the mortgage on the building was burned. It is only three years since the beautiful little church was erected, yet in that short time the entire cost of $4,800 has been paid. Much credit is due Mr. P. C. VanAllen for the energetic and capable manner in which he handled the finances of the church.

Prof. Denmark and Mrs. Denmark were agreeably surprised recently when the members of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church choir invaded their home and presented them a handsome clock. Mrs. Denmark is the organist and Prof. Denmark is the choirmaster at St. Andrew's Church.

50 YEARS AGO

Jan. 18th., 1897.

The Belleville hockey team went to Napanee to play their first scheduled league match with the team of that town. The Napanee team had an unbroken record of successes for our boys to face. They had defeated Deseronto by a big score and had also downed the Trenton team. It was with some misgivings that the local boys left home to play the game, but they were determined to put up a good fight and they certainly did a good job as they won after a close and exciting game, the score being 6 to 5. The Belleville boys were not used to a small rink and at half time the score was 3 to 1 against them. In the second half they put up a good game and soon covered the lead and just before the call of time, they scored the winning goal. The following composed the teams: Mack Jamieson, Glencoe Hulme, J. Spafford, Harry McGuire, Ernie Lang, Harry Kelso, Russell Weller and Harry Twining; Napanee: J. Ham, W. H. Ponton, F. Rockwell, W. Rockwell, W. Richardson, Trimball and Ward. The referee was Carlisle of Trenton. Lang and McGuire put up a strong game for young players; it was their first game away from home.

INFORMATION ROUNDUP

What are the Cinque Ports?

The Cinque Ports are a group of ancient seaports on the east coast of Sussex and Kent in southeastern England.

The name, pronounced "sink ports," is an Anglo-French term meaning "five ports" and was originally applied to Hastings, Sandwich, Dover, Homney and Hythe.

Owing to their position in respect to the continent they were the five most important maritime towns in the kingdom. It is supposed that even as early as the time of Edward the Confessor they were granted certain tax exemptions and other privileges in exchange for their defence of the English Channel. About the time of the Norman Conquest these seaports were formed into a corporation or association with many important privileges and franchises. In return they were obligated to give the King certain sea services, consisting chiefly of men and ships for the national defence in the event of war.

In fact the quasi-privateers furnished by Cinque Ports comprised virtually all the navy England had until the time of Henry VII. The "Great Harry," a three-masted man-of-war built in 1488, is believed to have been the first ship that belonged to the Royal Navy. In 1278 Edward I granted the "sink pors" a charter confirming their privileges. At that time they had to provide 57 ships in time of war. Later the two "ancient towns" of Rye and Winchelsea were added to the association, and many minor incorporated and unincorporated towns were made dependent on the original Cinque Ports. Finally the total number reached 39, but the group continued to bear the misnomer "Cinque" (five) Ports.

The Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports had extensive powers, most of which have been annulled. In "Henry VIII" Shakespeare employed "Cinque Ports" in the sense of the "Barons of the Cinque Ports." Even at present time the Lord Warden, who is admiral of the ports and constable of Dover, has a shadow of authority and honor and a certain amount of admiralty jurisdiction, and the quaint courts of the ancient towns meet occasionally, when the 16 Barons of the Cinque Ports wear gold and scarlet robes.

In 1941 King George VI as a mark of honor appointed Winston Churchill Lord Warden of the Cinque Ports, among the prerequisites of the office being "the flotsam, jetsam and lagan" within the jurisdiction of the ports. The official residence of the Lord Warden — Walmer Castle near Dover — was opened to the public in 1905. In one of its rooms the Duke of Wellington died in 1852.

Canada's Japanese Problem Studied By Top Officials

By JOHN LEBLANC
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Ottawa, Jan. 18 — (CP) — A recurring headache since Pearl Harbor, Canada's Japanese problem in being studied by the government at top level with a view to a final and complete cleanup of the issue.

The renewed cabinet consideration of measures to settle the question stems from a recent privy council decision confirming Canadian orders-in-council for voluntary shipment of Canadian-born and British-subject Japanese to Japan.

The Department of Labor has made a number of recommendations, one of which is understood to be that there should be no further transfers of Japanese Nationals or persons of Japanese descent to the war-wrecked islands across the Pacific.

The view of the department, it is understood, is that measures already instituted for breaking down the Japan concentration on the Pacific coast — which have resulted in more than 20,000 of them being scattered through the prairies and central Canada — are working out satisfactorily.

It appeared today there would be no permitted westward trek of Japanese to the coastal areas of British Columbia.

Only 5,800 Japanese now remain in all British Columbia, of the 26,000 left in Canada following the voluntary migration of 4,000 to Japan after the war under government auspices.

These are kept well away from the coast, with a deadline for them of about 200 miles from salt water.

About 800 of their number are maintained by the government in a camp at New Denver in the British Columbia interior. Officials here say the camp's inhabitants are either aged, sick or otherwise unemployable.

Some question has arisen whether the government is to continue the camp, but it was not known today if the recommendations before cabinet include any for disposition of the establishment.

Outside British Columbia, about 20,000 Japanese are scattered all the way across Canada as far as Quebec.

The Japanese now are engaged mostly as workers in lumbering, farm labor and similar industries.

On the whole, the once-prosperous Japanese now are without land of their own, though a number in British Columbia possess small agricultural holdings.

Where a permit to move east is granted for a married Japanese, the government pays the transportation of his family as well as his own.

In selecting Japanese for transfer to an eastern job, it was stated, no distinction is made between single and married men, except insofar as a family might be a handicap to him in the particular job for which he is destined.

Wants Theatres Nationalized

London, Jan. 18 — (Reuters)—Dame Sybil Thorndike, famous British actress, declared last night that the theatre should be nationalized. "It is a crying wrong" the veteran actress said in a speech, "that the theatre is in the hands of big business. "It should be owned by the people and open to them at a price they can pay and not exist as a luxury entertainment. Dame Sybil also said that motion pictures should be nationalized.

VOLCANO SUBSIDES

Manila, Jan. 18 —(AP)—Mayon Volcano subsided today after 24 hours of violence but plans were rushed to evacuate villages still menaced by lava and volcanic gas.

The once-green slopes of the towering peak were black with falling ashes and from fires set by molten rock, which burned away most of the tropical forest.

Rains swept the southern Luzon region, washing away much of the ash that had blanketed vegetation. This relieved the critical plight of livestock.

FOLK MYTHS IN MODERN MEDICINE

2. Pure Drinking Water

You can hardly listen to the radio or rifle through current magazines (popular and medical) these days without realizing that "eminent medical authorities" are a dime a dozen.

These opinions of doctors (who become "eminent authorities" automatically when quoted in print or on the air) are not always bought and paid for; as often as not they are supplied free of charge — aside from an incidental purchase of a page or two of advertising space or a guest card to our hunting club or some such gesture to the right party.

This, however, is the modern way. In the good old days doctors in quest of eminence gave with their opinions prodigally and felt happy if by chance anything they uttered was seized upon and used to sell the goods. On that foundation the fancy drinking water business was built.

Far be it from me—or anyway just far enough to make everything clear—to say that tap water from the municipal water supply is necessarily safe, pure and good to drink. Occasionally, I know, the municipal water is too full of natural foreign matter such as silt, vegetable material and undesirable mineral impurities; and often enough even the best municipal water tastes of chlorine or some compound of it with algae or other harmless material in the water. Rarely if ever, in our time, is any serious or epidemic disease traced to municipal water — thanks to constant chlorination of such water, as well as the constant care taken to protect the sources of water supply from pollution.

Now, now, if the municipal water in your community has a bad taste, I do not say you are a sucker to spend money for water from another source if such water tastes better. But if you spend money for fancy drinking water just because somebody has made you think the municipal water is not quite pure, or too hard, or something equally untrue, I say you are—well, misinformed. As long as there is a health department or a health officer or a sanitary administration in your community you may drink the water from the tap or faucet with assurance of safety unless the health department proclaims a warning that the water is unsafe to drink. And it is well to remember that if or when the health authorities anywhere find the municipal water supply polluted, impure or unsafe for drinking they do not give warning about it in whispers. No such betrayal of trust has ever been committed by health administrators in America.

The question of taste is not a health question at all. You like the water or you don't like it. I remember when we lived in Elmira and drank Chemung river water, which was "diluted sewage" just as is the water from any stream or lake into which sewage or waste empties, the face brother Andy made when he tasted the water—it was unobjectionable drinking water on that score or any other, but Andy had never forgotten what he had seen on an excursion up river, so the drinking water which was satisfactory to us was unpotable to Andy — and Andy was not my drinking brother, he was my fighting brother—that is, whenever I got pushed around or bullied by some big stiff it was Andy who took care of the fellow.

Few municipal water supplies are not regularly or constantly chlorinated to guard against the possibility of typhoid or other intestinal infections if the source should be polluted. Sometimes the chlorine taste becomes noticeable or repugnant for a day or two — but that's nothing to squawk about—on the contrary it should remind us that we are well guarded against disease reaching us by that route.

QUESTIONS & ANSWERS

Worms

Please send me information concerning worms pertaining to humans. (K. W. H.)

Send ten cents (clean — not messed with stickum) and stamped envelope bearing your address, and ask in writing for booklet "Unhidden Guests." It deals with round worms, pinworms, tapeworms, ringworms, hookworms, etc., roaches, ants, fleas, spiders, mosquitoes, flies, bedbugs, lice, trichinosis, scabies. If you ask for symptoms, there are none that tell whether an individual has worms—only by finding the worms or their microscopic eggs can a doctor tell the individual has worms.

No Authority

Howard Wood, Winnipeg, Wins At Nipawin Spiel

Nipawin, Sask., Jan. 18 (CP)—Howard Wood of the Winnipeg Granite Club Dominion Brier champion in 1930, 1932 and 1940, became the first winner of the $12,000 Nepawin Bonspiel when he scored a spectacular 13 end and 13-12 victory over Dalt Henderson of the Saskatoon Nutana Club in the early hours of this morning.

The victory was the second in the 11-day-old 'spiel for the veteran Manitoba curler. Earlier he had triumphed in the No. 2 event final to win prizes for his rink totalling $1,000.

His final win entitled Wood and the three members of his rink to four new automobiles. The cars—grand prize in the competition—were on display at the rink throughout the competition.

The final match had the more than 800 spectators see Henderson last year's Saskatchewan Consols' winner, lead 7-3 at the sixth end and maintain this lead until the 11th, when Wood came back with a five-ender to move ahead for the first time.

The Saskatoon rink evened the count on the 12th, but Wood counted one on the extra end to win the match and wind up the bonspiel.

It was Wood himself who won the match. He came through with one of the most spectacular shots of the entire 'spiel to count the five points to his rink made on the 11th. He came through again on the 13th with the winning shot after Jack Brower skipping the Henderson rink, had thrown two great draws. Brower's last shot was a shade too heavy to be a good guard, but Wood, after missing completely with his first, still had to take out the Henderson counters and stay in with his own to win.

He did, and the game was won.

For Henderson, the sixth end was the best, when he counted four. Wood picked up three on the ninth to add to the five he got on the 11th.

Higher Newsprint Prices to Raise Cost of Papers

By JOHN DAUPHNEE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

London, Jan. 18 (CP)—Higher newsprint prices and wage rates will cut so seriously into profits that "the odds are in favor" of the popular press increasing prices from one penny to three-halfpence (three cents), World's Press News, authoritative newspaper trade weekly, reports.

Referring to recent North American price boosts, the magazine said British newspaper managements feel similar action would be a "tragic development" involving "big adjustments in circulation and influence."

"Most will hold out as long as they can against any such increase (to 1½D.)" it continued.

"Unquestionably, however, the times are bringing the possibility of such a decision nearer. Once any single paper or group makes that decision it will be impossible for others to refrain. They will all go up in prices."

All London newspapers except the Times (3D.) and Telegraph 1½D.) now sell for one penny. So does the Yorkshire Post, published in Leeds, but the Manchester Guardian is priced at twopence.

World's Press News predicted rigid economies would be imposed by most newspapers to avoid a price increase. It said at least two national dailies already have cut their editorial staffs and that a third has launched a £500-a-week editorial economy drive.

World's Press News said a forthcoming increase in the price of home-produced newsprint, coupled with a recent Canadian price boost, probably means British newspapers will have to pay between £32 and £33 a ton for supplies, compared with the present £30.

"An increase of £3 a ton will place on present consumption upwards of £1,500,000 sterling on the prime costs of the industry. What that means to individual newspapers can be assessed from the fact that the express group uses 1,000 tons of newsprint a week.

"1947 presents the biggest challenge to newspaper managements than they have faced for many years," World's Press News said.

Sidney Twp. Expects to Spend $30,000 on Roads

Members of Sidney Township council estimated an expenditure of $30,000 on the township road system for the current year when they met for their inaugural meeting this week. The above amount will also include purchase of new equipment during the year.

Council members who took their declaration of office were Reeve Fred Campbell, Foxboro; Deputy Reeve, Ben Bleecker, Holloway, R.R.4 and councillors H. Morrow, Stirling, L. Grills, Trenton and Carman Frost Belleville R.R.2.

By-laws given their third reading included one for the appointment of Frank J. Woods as assessor; for the appointment of G. W. Shortt as auditor, and authorization for the tax collector to continue collecting 1946 taxes of which there is $9,000 outstanding.

Clerk Roscoe Vanderwater was instructed to write School Inspector R. H. Macklem regarding the debenture to be sold in connection with the construction of the new school in S.S. No.2 Sidney. The Hospital for Sick Children, Toronto, was given a donation of $10 while an advance of $200 on account of the 1946 levy, was forwarded to the secretary of the Hastings County Federation of Agriculture, the balance to be paid on or before June 1st.

English Teacher Tells of Troubles During Wartime

On Wednesday night the Women Teachers' Federation held its first meeting of 1947 at the Y.M.C.A. Business consisted mainly of correspondence from the Consumer Branch and from Federation Headquarters in Toronto.

Miss Norah Dane, of King George School, spoke to the teachers about School Problems in England in War-Time. As Miss Dane lives in Ilford, England, her talk was of true experiences which made it doubly interesting.

During the war there, school went on—but not as usual! On several occasions the school children had to be evacuated to the country. School was carried on, for a time, in homes. The teachers would teach six pupils in one home for three-quarters of an hour a day and then on to the next.

All manner of problems were handled by the teachers from settling evacuated parents in the country—an impossible job —to serving noon meals to children at school with a V-2 exploding a quarter of a mile away. Returning to the brighter side, Miss Dane described her trip to Canada.

The year is slipping rapidly away but Miss Dane says she is enjoying every minute of her sojourn in Belleville. It is hoped that she will have many happy hours to recall when she returns to England.

Wants Added Life For Committee

By EDWIN B. HAAKINSON

Washington, Jan. 18 (AP) — Chairman Owen Brewster (Rep.-Me.) promised his United States Senate colleagues today "sensational new exposes" if the vote added life for his special was investigating committee.

As the chamber prepared for its third day of debate on the hotly-disputed issue, Brewster told reporters his group already has accumulated "90 per cent of the material" that would make its previous disclosures look like "small potatoes."

Brewster declared that if and when the extension is granted he plans to press the White House for:

1. All details on how the late President Roosevelt and his successor, President Truman, spent some $648,000,000 of secret funds granted them to carry on the war.

2. Disclosure of a "secret mobilization report" which Brewster said Mr. Truman sought when he was chairman of the same committee but "was refused" by President Roosevelt.

Brewster conceded that other committees might be able to take over some of the war investigations but said this would cause too much delay.

"We have a team in the field and ready to go," he said referring to the special committee staff of lawyers and investigators. "It would take a long time to train another."

He added that since the Republican sweep in the Congressional elections "we have accumulated a lot of individual complaints and there's gold in them thar hills."

FOUND DEAD IN BARN

Cache Bay, Ont., Jan. 17 — (CP)—Ten days before he would have celebrated his 21st birthday, Alan Jessup was found dead in the barn behind his parents' home yesterday. A wound in his forehead is believed to have been caused by a bullet from a .22 rifle hanging from a stable beam, but how the shot was fired is unknown.

New President Wants Leon Blum In His Cabinet

Paris, Jan. 18 (AP) — Sources close to France's new president, Vincent Auriol, predicted today he would make every effort to persuade his close friend and fellow-Socialist, Leon Blum, to accept the premiership of the new cabinet.

Auriol, elected to office by the two Houses of Parliament Friday, plunged into the task of sounding out the various parties as to whether they would accept the interim cabinet of Blum and upon what terms.

The new president scheduled conferences with two leaders of the French Communist party, Jacques Duclos and Maurice Thorez, both reported willing to enter Blum coalition cabinet if they get certain posts. Observers say the Communists will seek the foreign ministry.

Blum, however, was reported not too eager to accept the premiership. He is 74 and his health is not good. The last of France's four post-war president-premiers, Blum formally resigned last night, shortly after returning from London where he had conferred with British leaders on a future Anglo-French alliance.

Auriol had hoped to nominate the veteran Socialist leader in the next three days.

Under the French constitution, the President is required to nominate a premier after consulting parliamentary leaders. The premier then drafts a program which he submits to the National Assembly—parliament's lower house. If the assembly approves the nominee's policies, he then sets about choosing men for his cabinet posts.

Butcher Knife Allegedly Used In Stabbing

Chatham, Jan. 18 — (CP) — A 12-inch butcher knife was produced in police court here Friday morning as the weapon which, it is alleged was responsible for the fatal Christmas Eve stabbing of Donald Hastings, 19-year-old South Harwich man, as Leo Duquette, 26, of Blenheim appeared for preliminary hearing on a charge of murder.

The knife was produced before the crowded courtroom by Crown Attorney A. D. Bell, during the testimony of Dr. Luney, pathologist at the University of Western Ontario, who said that death was due "to the incision of the right ventricle caused by some sharp instrument." The wound, he said, was inches in length.

Dr. Luney followed Dr. A. L. Storey, Blenheim physician who told of being called to the Blenheim Hotel at 7 p.m. Christmas Eve and finding Hastings dead, lying with head toward the street, and his feet on the curb. He described the deep wound extending upward from the stomach, and which had entered the heart.

Douglas Kent, proprietor of the Blenheim Hotel told of finding Duquette in the kitchen about 5.45 p.m. and ordering him out. Later, he ordered Duquette and some other youths out of the ladies' beverage room.

About 7 p.m. Duquette and his father were at the lunch counter. Something was said between them, and as a result they were told to get out. He said Archie Ransom handed him a pair of glasses which belonged to Donald Hastings. He said Hastings went out, and a few minutes later someone came in and told him a man had been stabbed.

Asked by Mr. Kerr if there had been a fight in the beverage room Kent said he didn't see it.

ACQUITTED ON CHARGES

Toronto, Jan. 18—(CP)—Norman Cooper, former Ontario securities commission auditor, last night was acquitted on charges of accepting a bribe to hide irregularities in a brokerage office. The charges arose out of investigations into the operations of the brokerage firm of Morgan and Dempsey. The Crown claimed Cooper had received 1,000 shares of Habitant gold mine stock from Kenneth L. Morgan.

WEDDINGS

KEMP—WELLER

The United Church parsonage at Trenton, was the scene of a quiet but very pretty wedding recently, when Miss Laura Margaret Weller, daughter of Mrs. Catherine Weller and the late Mr. Gilbert Weller, Carrying Place, became the bride of Mr. William Ernest Kemp, son of Mrs. Gordon Harvey and the late Edwin Bingham Kemp, Carrying Place, with Rev. J. D. Martin officiating.

The bride was very attractive in a street length dress of turquoise blue with matching hat, and wearing a corsage of red roses and baby's breath. Mrs. Harold Long, of Trenton, as matron-of-honor, wore a dress of grey with fuchsia accessories, and a corsage of tea roses. Mr. Harold Long attended the groom.

Following the ceremony the bridal party dined at the Dutch Mill Inn, the happy couple leaving later on the train for Toronto, Buffalo, N.Y., and other points in the U.S. For travelling the bride wore a muskrat coat, with blue dress and hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Kemp will take up residence with Mrs. C. Weller at Carrying Place.

SLEA—OSTROM

A wedding of considerable local interest was solemnized in Trenton on January 4, when Yvonne, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. Ostrom, of Trenton, became the bride of George Henry, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Slea, of Belleville, with Rev. J. D. Martin officiating.

The attendants were Miss Rosina Ostrom, sister of the bride, and Mr. Garnet Slea, brother of the groom.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served and the happy couple left for a wedding journey to Eastern points. They will later reside in Belleville.

Women's Activities

AIKENS UNITED CHURCH W.M.S.

Ladies of the Aikens Auxiliary of the W.M.S. of the United Church held their first meeting of the year at the home of Mrs. Murney Jeffery with an attendance of 20 members and 6 Baby Band Members.

The president, Mrs. E. Hubble, addressed the gathering, basing her remarks upon the 32nd. Psalm, "I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way that thou shalt go. I will guide thee with Mine eye." She said in part: "These words should be a guide for us as we enter upon the activities of the New Year. Jesus is ready to guide and instruct us, if we will heed His voice and harken unto Him. Let us take stock at this time as we begin a year of work, reviewing the results of the past and forming new resolutions for the future. It is a wise policy in the realm of material things, and it should be far more important in our spiritual welfare. Let us ask ourselves these searching questions: "Where do I stand? What is my course? Whither am I drifting?" As we stand outside the closed door of the old year and open the door of the new we will be conscious of many mistakes, but these are beyond our recall. May they serve to warn us against pitfalls on the road that lies ahead! We cannot retrace our steps, but we can go forward with faith and confidence, remembering the words, "I will instruct thee and teach thee in the way that thou shalt go."

A poem, "My Daily Prayer," was read by Mrs. S. Westover.

During the business period reports were received for the year 1946 from the recording secretary and from the treasurer, $196.00 being raised by this auxiliary. Miss Constance Ward is the missionary for prayer in 1947.

The president thanked the officers and members for their loyal support and the hostess for the use of her home for this meeting. A letter was read concerning the "China Relief Fund."

Mrs. Lee Grills contributed a much appreciated piano solo. The fifth chapter of the study book on "Youth of India" was given in resume by Mrs. C. McMullen and Mrs. Hubble. Mrs. Hollinger followed with a reading entitled "A Good Resolution for 1947."

It was decided to hold the February meeting at the home of Mrs. George Denike, and Rev. H. H. Hillis closed with prayer, after which the hostess and her assistants served refreshments.

AIKEN'S W.A.

3rd Sidney.—Mrs. Murney Jeffrey, the new president of Aiken's Woman's Association, opened her home for the January meeting of organization on Thursday afternoon.

With Mrs. Harleigh Hamilton, at the piano, the meeting opened with the singing of the theme song and a hymn followed by prayer by Mrs. Jeffrey.

The Scripture lesson, part of the 27th Psalm, was read by Mrs. Douglas McPherson, and the meditation on the Scripture was given by Mrs. Wm. Bush.

During the business period, Mrs. Jeffrey welcomed the ladies to her home and extended thanks to the program committee, Mrs. Wm. Bush and Mrs. Ken Bush.

A program of readings, some pertaining to the New Year, a solo by Mrs. Perry Hamilton, along with seasonal hymns, made an interesting program and was enjoyed by the 21 members and one visitor, Mrs. Gummer, of Thurlow, who were present.

After the W.M.S. missionary meeting which followed, Mrs. Jeffrey served delicious refreshments.

By ALICE ALDEN

IF THERE IS one piece of jewelry that twinkles a happy holiday greeting, it is the star of brilliants. Recognizing the beauty of this seasonal emblem, Castlecliffe has designed a collection of radiant stars for gifts and wearing. Fashioned of imported brilliants in a setting of platinum finished Sterling, it is suggested that the stars be worn to suit the fancy, at the neckline of a dress, in the hair, at the ears, or on the lapel of a suit or wrap. They are beautiful anywhere, any time.

GOOD MANNERS

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

When the Wife Signs the Notes of Appreciation

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My husband's father died last week, and I would appreciate your answering a question about thank-you notes. We have very kind neighbors, and all of them sent flowers. In writing thank-you notes to them, should I sign each note "Mary and John Carter", or with only my husband's name?

R. N.

Since you are writing the thank-you notes (and this is, of course, entirely correct), you sign them with your name only, but in the body of the notes include your husband's appreciation. For example, your note might begin, "John and I thank you deeply for your goodness to us, and for the beautiful memorial chrysanthemums you sent to the funeral of John's father. Your kind messages were a great comfort to us."

Are Stork Showers "Approved"?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please answer three questions about Baby Showers? (1) In the first place, are they considered "the proper thing?" (2) If so, when should the shower be given? and (3) who should be invited?

J. R.

1. Some communities have never given, or even considered giving, their stamp of approval on the Baby Shower, the so-called Stork Shower. And in all communities there are usually some mothers-to-be who would not welcome having such a shower planned for them. But in most communities, small towns and big cities, it's approved and accepted for just what it so essentially is —a kind gesture to the guest of honor by a group tof her friends. Therefore, as in all social procedures, it's proper to follow the customs of the locality in which you live.

2. About this question too there is a difference of taste as well as a difference in local customs. when acceptable to the guest of honor, the shower may be given before the baby's birth. Or it may be a shower given when the baby is five or six weeks old. In many communities the shower given after the baby's birth is considered better taste than the "anticipation" shower.

3. Only the intimate girl or women friends of the mother are invited to a stork shower.

Wedding Anniversary Questions

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. We are planning the party to celebrate the wedding anniversary of our parents. We are going to invite about one hundred guests. Do you advise that we give this wedding anniversary party at the home of one of their children, or in a hall or clubhouse, or at our parents' home?

2. To this occasion should the grandchildren (most of whom are pre-school age) be included, or just people near our parents' age?

Reader

1. If it is convenient to have the wedding anniversary party given at the home of your parents, my advice is that it would be much more charming and delightful to give the party in their home background. You and their other children should combine on all the planning, and if necessary or if it is the wish of all you children to have your parents as guests of honor rather than of hosts, make all arrangements for the providing and serving of refreshments. This kind of party given in a hall or clubhouse lacks the warm personality of a home-party; and if the party is given in the home of one of the children, the inference is that that child is the host or hostess and the other sons and daughters are only guests.

2. If the party is to be in the afternoon ,the children may be brought to "congratulate" their grandparents and to stay for a little while, but should not remain all during the party.

V.O.N. NEWS

For those who, on leaving the hospital, still require nursing supervision for dressings, etc., for a short time each day, the Victorian Order of Nurses offer an excellent and very inexpensive service. A nurse will come each day, as advocated by the doctor, and carry out his orders regarding the care of the patient. Thus surgical and medical patients are assured of the necessary professional treatment to supplement the regular home care during convalescence.

Frequently, too, such cases do not require either hospitalization or full time nursing care, but do need daily treatments. The nurse will come at the hour most suited to the individual, will give the special care necessary and will instruct a responsible person at home to maintain adequate care until the nurse's next visit. Such service is available to every one and the fee is very small, measured against the comfort and ease afforded the patient.

Fashion Flashes

IF YOU LIKE pure silk prints, you'll find plenty of frocks in the shops very shortly. Pure silk—printed in a broken circle and floral design in black, white and royal blue—is used for a handsome frock made with cap sleeves that develop into a complete cape in back, the cape split at the centre. Deep neckline, with soft gathers on either side and selftie belt.

Back, way back, go mid-season hats to disclose brow and hairline. Black beaver felt is used for a way-back bonnet with a peaked crown. Deep cocoa brown grosgrain ribbon, with an overlay of gold braid in medallion design, makes the crown band and holds a cocoa-colored ostrich plume. Veil ties with same cocoa brown ribbon, but in a narrow gauge.

Beautiful evening bags of pastel brocade shot with metallic threads and lovely pastel motifs are used with early Spring costumes. Bags are fairly small.

Lots and lots of embroidered coats are being readied for Spring. Midnight blue woollen makes a handsome coat that has voluminous bell sleeves embroidered in flower and jet designs. Front fullness; belted, rippled waistline; pointed revers.

Always in favor is the beret. A nice mid-season choice is a full beret of black, white, pink and gray plaided taffeta posed over a head-conforming little cuff-brim. Pink flower cluster at one side.

Following up the beginning of a demand for gray furs, nearly every house is showing many members of the gray fur family, ranging from fox to kidskin. Gray moire lamb, dyed a silver gray, is used for a nice Spring jacket detailed with lavishly draped fullness for three-quarter-length sleeves made with triangular shoulder yokes.

Young People Should Not Give Up too Much for Parents

No parents like to have their children grow up and leave home for good. When the time comes for sons and daughters to strike out for themselves and be independent personalities, every mother and father feels the same deep sense of sadness and loss.

Where parents differ in this respect, however, is in the way they take the thing. Some accept it as the natural, normal phase of life it is, conceal their own feelings and send the young people off on a note of optimism and cheer. Others fight the breaking of the home ties to the bitter end. They use every delaying tactics in the book in the effort to postpone the moment when they will be forced to adapt themselves to the girls' and boys' departure.

Mother is ill, and it is daughter's duty to stay and take care of her. Dad doesn't make enough to maintain his home on its accustomed scale without his son's earnings. Any excuse is good enough to be used as a tether to prevent daughter and son from straying off the family lot.

But in between these two classes of parents there is a third type. These are the purely thoughtless ones who, because they have never stopped to think, allow their children to give up their own lives and be absorbed into the lives of their parents. Once something has waked them up, made them realize what they are doing, they quickly do their best to remedy their mistake and return to their children the rights they have unwittingly taken away from them.

Somehow I think the father described in the following letter belongs in the third class, and that if his eyes could be opened to the sacrifice his devoted daughter is uncomplainingly making for him, he would find a way to solve his problem without robbing her of her rightful share of the experiences life has to offer.

This daughter, "Miss X", writes:

"I am a girl of 22, and during the war took my brothers' place in working in Dad's store. After the war, my brothers all had different plans, all taking advantage of the G.I.'s Bill of Rights to go to college and take up different trades.

"Dad had his heart set on making a big business with the help of the boys. Now that they have all left him, and he is unable to handle the business alone, I feel it my duty to stay with him. My only trouble is with my boy friends. One wanted to marry me before he enlisted and I put him off. When he came back, he wanted to get married, but I wouldn't, so he married one of my girl friends, even though he understood why I wouldn't marry him. Now there is another young man who wishes to marry me. He has a job that pays pretty well, and insists that we get married. I love him very much, but still I hate to leave Dad all alone. I was thinking about hiring someone for Dad, but there isn't enough money to give him a good salary. What can I do? I've just about given up hope."

Don't you give up hope, "Miss X.", and don't you send this second boy friend away, either. It isn't right for you to throw away your youth, nor for your family to let you do it.

It does seem as though your brothers ought at least to give you a hand in helping to solve this problem. But if they have to be ruled out, and you've got to struggle with it alone, here are a few suggestions:

1. Unless your marriage means that you'd be moving away from your town, couldn't you go on working in your father's store just the same? 2. Or, if you'd have to live too far away, couldn't you get a job wherever you lived and use some of your pay to help hire an assistant for your father? 3. Or couldn't you perhaps find some young man who might be willing to take on the work in the store at a small salary with understanging that he'd become a partner with your father later on and perhaps come into the business entirely when your father wished to retire? Perhaps the small salary might be supplemented by supplying him with the room and board in your father's house that you'd no longer need.

Think these suggestions over and see if one of them might not be workable. If not, write me a personal letter and let me make further suggestions. You mustn't give up this boy you love.

BEAUTY

By HELEN JAMESON

Make face-washing a complexion treatment

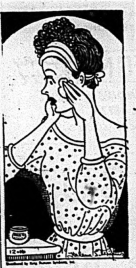
Women who use their heads for purposes other than sporting a chic hair-do and a nifty chapeau, aften hit upon simple beauty aids that serve them well. Now and then one of these writes that she has a good idea, and why not pass it on to the beauty class? Fair enough. Nice girl! She takes time and trouble to assist the sisters.

"I wonder," writes one, "if your readers realize that every time a woman dries her face and neck after using soap and water —twice a day or oftener—she is giving herself a facial treatment in a modified form. At least that is what I believe. And this is what I do. With my two hands in an old soft towel, I begin at the collar bones. I bring the flattened palms of my hands up firmly in little jumps, as it were, to the cheeks bones. Then I start under my chin and define a straight line along the jaw bones. From the tip of my chin I slap and smack upward under the eyes, then across my forehead. Always upward, you understand? The downward stroke, often used when drying the face, is fatal. It drags down the delicate fibres, depletes tissues, and, in time, can actually cause wrinkles to appear.

"Then I treat my eyelids with gentle taps of my fingertips, put on a foundation cosmetic, and play with the make-up kit."

Give this simple treatment a trial. You will find that it brings a glow to the flesh, and that is all to the good. The complexion lives and thrives on brisk circulation. Perhaps, after a time, you can dispense with the rouge compact. You will have home-grown blushes which, after all, cannot be duplicated.

There is that routine of creaming. What is the usual technique? A single sweep from chin upward, forcing the flesh up around the eyes, then the downward half of the circular movement, drawing the flesh to a point near the chin.



Massage is a wonderful help

Watch yourself, lady. That is probably the way you do it, and it is cruel to the complexion which you would have remain youthful of appearance. The rotary motion is the natural one, being the easiest. It is all right too, if the circles are light and don't pull down the flesh.

Massage is a wonderful help. It forces cream into the flesh. It hustles the blood streams. But it must be done correctly. The rained facial operator has in her mind's eye a picture of the interlacing muscles, knows what she is doing when giving a treatment. In home treatments, the best one can do is to tone the fibres by delicate manipulations, especially tapping and slapping.

FOXBORO UNITED CHURCH

Following the close of another year in the various organizations of the congregation, a large and representative gathering met in the Sunday School hall recently. An hour of fellowship was enjoyed around the tables, from which those present partook of a bountiful supper. Immediately after the supper, one of the most encouraging annual meetings ever held was presided over by the minister, Rev. A. Lloyd Shorten.

The opening worship service was conducted by the minister, before the transaction of the business. The meeting was unanimous in its decision to re-elect Mr. M. C. Reynolds as secretary of the congregation. Mention was made of the very fine way in which the secretary has always discharged his duties.

Notable Progress

In his annual report to the congregation, Mr. Shorten reviewed the work of the past year and stated that the financial reports showed loyalty and faithfulness, besides co-operation and hard work. "The year," he said, "had been one of notable progress both in material and spiritual things." Gratitude was expressed to all who had been faithful in office, both as church officials and in the various organizations.

During the year the church lost two members of the Board of Stewards and Parsonage Committee in the death of Mr. John Gowsell and Mr. G. C. Shorey. Also taken in death were Mrs. Leonard Snider and little Marilyn Herbertson. Looking to the months ahead the minister expressed the hope that there might be an ever-increasing influence of the church in the community, and that more people might be reached by its fellowship.

The present membership of the congregation stands at 150, with an increase of 21 over last year. Figures show that there were 8 members received on profession of faith during the year and 18 by letter. There were 3 removals by letter and 3 by death. During the year there had been 23 baptisms on the charge, 8 of these at Foxboro. Four Communion services were conducted.

Encouraging Reports.

In every aspect of the church's work, a year which equalled or surpassed any former years, was reported to the meeting. In his report of the Sunday School, the superintendent, Mr. S. C. Gay, spoke of the attendance which had been consistently good, and the loyalty of the teachers. The secretary-treasurer's report showed a successful year, with a balance of over $24 on hand. Mrs. Geo. Hicks, reporting for the Woman's Association, stated that $327 had been raised, and after all expenses were met, a large balance was on hand. All but $25 of this was placed in the Kitchen Fund, which now has a total of $326. The Woman's Missionary Society, together with the Mission Band, reported through Mrs W. Simmons that the $200 allocation had been reached and surpassed, as a result of a very successful year. Tribute was paid to both of these organizations by the minister.

Young People Unite.

Highlight of the Y.P.U. report was the formation of a joint organization with the Carmel Y.P.U. on the Cannifton charge. The new Union held an impressive installation service in the church in the fall, and has made a contribution of $30 to Missions. The group has a 3-act play ready for presentation shortly. The Young Adult Group, of which Alfred Wickett is the newly-elected president, has been active in the year. Over $40 has been raised and plans are under way for a joint meeting with the Holloway Young Adult group and a similar group at Carmel. This meeting will be held in Foxboro early in February. During the year the Trail Ranger group had 5 of its members at Boys' Camp, and report a year during which several varied and instructive activities were carried on. The newly-organized C.G.I.T. group of girls has been affiliated with the W.M.S. and under the leadership of Miss Marjorie Tummon, the meetings have proved very successful. Some members attended Girls' Camp the past summer.

The report of the church treasurer, Mr. Clare Finkle, given by Mr. S. C. Gay, showed that the finances were in a very flourishing condition. With an income of about $2300 there is a very large balance on hand. Mr. Alfred Wickett reported that the Missionary and Maintenance Fund givings were in excess of last year. With still some funds to be reported for 1946, the givings for Foxboro totals $285, and for the charge over $430. This represents an increase of almost $70 over last year.

Officers.

The elections which followed resulted in the following officers being elected. Elders — Re-elected for 3 years were Mr. S. C. Gay and Mr. Everett Sills. Stewards—Re-elected for 3 years were Messrs. C. H. Wilson, J. W. Daniels, R. A. Christie. Elected for 3 years, Mr. H. Shetlor. Elected for one year, Mr. F. Tummon. Members on the Parsonage Committee were elected as follows: Mr. Geo. Hicks, Mr. Stan Sherry, Mr. J. W. Daniels and Mr. Everett Prindle. The others officers were re-elected and Mrs. J. G. Sills was appointed by the Board of Stewards as Envelope Steward for the congregation.

An expression of appreciation was tendered by Mr. W. E. Tummon to the minister for his efforts and leadership during another year. In thanking those present for such an expression of confidence, Mr. Shorten stressed the need for greater effort on the part of all especially in the field of Christian Education. With the help of all, he felt that plans for the year could be carried out most successfully. The meeting was closed with prayer and benediction by the minister.

Sunday School Officers Elected.

In connection with the annual congregational meeting the Sunday School election of officers was conducted. Tribute was paid by Rev. A. L. Shorten to the faithful service rendered over a long period of years by the superintendent, Mr. S. C. Gay, who was re-appointed to this position. "The success of the Foxboro Sunday School is due in large measure to Mr. Gay's work through the years," stated Mr. Shorten. The attendance is consistently large, both of boys and girls and adults, the latter members of the large Adult Bible Class, which is organized and whose teacher is Mr. W. E. Tummon, and who is deserving of a great deal of credit for his leadership.

The other officers of the Sunday School were re-elected, with the exception of a teacher for the Intermediate Boys' class, which was left to the executive. In a sound financial condition, the result of a generous special offering late in the year, the important work of Christian teaching from Sunday to Sunday has been maintained in a very satisfactory manner. To each officer and teacher the gratitude of the congregation is expressed.

SAVE ELECTRICITY!
Acute Shortage Continues in Southern Ontario

With the critical shortage of power continuing in Southern Ontario, it is most necessary that everyone co-operate in saving electricity. The need is urgent. It affects the welfare of everyone. Do your part by saving electricity by every means at your command.

THE DAILY PERIOD DURING WHICH SAVINGS SHOULD BE EFFECTED IS BETWEEN 8 A.M. AND 8 P.M., AND CONDITIONS ARE PARTICULARLY ACUTE BETWEEN 4 P.M. AND 7 P.M.

HERE ARE SOME OF THE WAYS YOU CAN HELP

IN THE HOME

Turn off lights when not required.
Use the minimum number of lights in the living-room, consistent with good vision.
Use electrically heated water sparingly and check leaking hot water taps.
Do not use range elements on "high" when a lower heat will serve, and turn off all elements as soon as possible.
Cook oven meals as often as possible and avoid the unnecessary use of surface elements.
Turn off verandah and other outside lights.
Turn off all small appliances as soon as possible.
Do not use electric air heaters and grates.

IN STORES AND OFFICES

Eliminate the use of electricity for signs and store windows from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.
Turn off all lights when not required.
Use electrically heated water sparingly and check leaking hot water taps.
Do not use electric air heaters.

IN INDUSTRIES

Switch from day to night operations wherever practicable.
Turn off factory and office lights when not needed.
Turn off motor-driven machines when not required and effect other savings wherever possible.
Avoid the use of all non-essential outdoor lighting.
Do not use electric space heaters.

VIRGINIA SMITH WINS JUNIOR SKATING TITLE

Junior Men's Championship Will Not be Announced Until Points Compiled

By WILF GRUSON
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

Toronto, Jan. 18. (CP)—A little doll-faced 14-year-old miss from the Toronto Skating Club, Vera Virginia Smith, today held the Howard trophy, emblematic of the Canadian Junior Women's Figure Skating Championship, while four contestants in the Junior Men's competition anxiously awaited the proclaiming of one as the new titleholder in that class.

Announcement of the Junior Men's champion was postponed until further compilation today of the four entries' results, necessitated by the unexpected closeness of the competition, but in the Junior Women's event Miss Smith's victory over 13 other contestants was clear cut, and no delay in naming her the new champion was necessary.

Blonde Marlene Elizabeth Smith, 15-year-old entry from the Winter Club of St. Catharines, placed second, coming through with a brilliant exhibition of free skating to place ahead of black-haired Jeanne Matthews, 17, of the Vancouver Skating Club.

The St. Catharines girl, who has been training in Cleveland under Professional Walter Adrian, came through with one of the best performances in the free skating, but her edge in that department was not big enough to allow her to overtake the lead built up by Vera Virginia in the compulsory figures held the previous day.

Make Step Up

Despite her age, Vera Virginia's title-winning performance automatically forces her up into senior competition for the future, since rules of the Canadian Figure Skating Association prevent anyone who either wins a championship event or competes three times in one without winning from competing in that class again.

Bill Lewis of the Vancouver Skating Club appeared headed towards the Junior Men's Crown without any trouble when he starred in the compulsory figures competition of that event.

However, Chunky Gerrard Blair of the University Skating Club, Toronto, who has also been tutored by Adrian, performed brilliantly in his free skating as Lewis faltered to force officials to wait until today to declare the winner.

Blair, also competing in the Senior Men's Singles, was ranked third at the end of the figures behind Lewis and Alain George Pinard of the Minto Skating Club of Ottawa. Finard and Thornton Opie of the Toronto Skating Club, the fourth entry also performed exceptionally well in the free skating.

In his free skating effort for the title, won last year by Walter Diestelmeyer of the Toronto Skating Club, Blair Drew cheers for his sparkling leaps, and when two of the judges, O. M. Patterson of Montreal and Gordon Heffrey of London, Ont., ranked him much lower than the three other judges, the crowd booed the two officials.

Junior Pairs Decided

The Junior Pairs championship was also decided last night, the team of Bette Wrinch and Clifford Opie of the Toronto Skating Club winning the Dysart Cup over Joy Forsyth and Donald Taylor of the University Club. Mary Kinner and Peter Firstbrook another Toronto Skating Club team, came third.

The two premier titles— the Senior's Men's and Women's Singles—will be decided tonight at the end of the free skating parts of each event. The compulsory figures competitions were held yesterday and in the Women's Marilyn Ruth Take of Toronto, runner-up for the last three years, topped three other entries from the Toronto Skating Club with 1,502 points of a possible 1,900.

Suzanne Morrow, 1946 Junior Champion, came next with 1,457 and was followed by Nadine Phillips with 1,449.6. Gloria Lillico trailed with 1,443.9.

Slim Norris Bowden led two other entries in the men's singles, scoring 1,656.6 of a possible 1,900. Diestelmeyer had 1,613.6 for second place and Blair compiled 1,558.7 for third position.

RACE TIGHTENING UP IN THE A.H.L.

(By The Canadian Press)

Every game finds the western division of the American hockey league becoming more like a race and less like the one-team run-away it has been, and this weekend could see the division sporting a double leader.

By winning over Cleveland at Cleveland tonight and over Providence at home Sunday, Idianapolis can bridge the four-point gap that separates it from Cleveland the long-unchallengeable leader in the west and gain a tie.

Buffalo, hard on the heels of Indianapolis Caps, will fight it out tonight with Pittsburgh Hornets who in turn are closing in on Buffalo. Sunday the Bison play Cleveland while the Hornets are idle.

In the east, where Hershey still reigns supreme, the Bears will be host tonight to their mile-behind challenger, New Haven, and on Sunday New Haven will take on cellar-team Philadelphia of the east at home.

In the other games tonight Providence will be at St. Louis and Philadelphia will go to Springfield.

What's Doing in Sport

(By The Canadian Press)

It was announced yesterday at Cincinnati that a franchise in the American Hockey League, has been granted to the Cincinnati Garden Inc., a proposed arena for which ground will be broken next summer.

A report from Hollywood yesterday said there was no development "one way or the other" in the plan of movie magnate Louis B. Mayer to dispose of his vast horse racing interests. A source close to Mayer said he would dispose of his race horses and breeding stock by action.

At New York, Dan Topping, president of the football Yankees of the All-America Conference, yesterday denied published reports that his club had signed Duddy Young, Negro University of Illinois halfback who starred in the Jan. 1 Rose Bowl game against U.C.L.A.

Robert (Bob) Latshaw, who smashed 14 home runs and hit a .289 clip for Baltimore of the International League in 1945, yesterday was named manager of the Richmond Colts of the Piedmont League for 1947.

HAMILTON TIGERS SCORE 17TH WIN IN ROW IN O.H.A.

Defeat Toronto Staffords 6-1 While Pats Beat Stratford 5-2

(By The Canadian Press)

The Hamilton Tigers did it again last night, racking up their 17th consecutive victory in the O.H.A. Senior "A" race against no defeats. This time the second-place Toronto Staffords were the victims of a 6-1 score.

In the night's only other O.H.A. game Hamilton Patricias defeated Stratford Indians 5-2 at Stratford, which put the Pats into a second-place tie with thet Staffords. But Staffords and Hamilton Pats are 10 full games behind the redoubtable Tigers.

The Seniors are idle tonight, but the Junior "A" circuit has eight teams in action—league-leading Toronto St. Mikes at Toronto Young Rangers, Galt at Toronto Marlboros, Hamilton Szabos at Oshawa Generals and Barrie Flyers at St. Catharines Falcons.

At Hamilton last night the Tigers ran gup four first period goals and were held scoreless in the second. In the third frame they scored two more against Stafford's only counter, a goal by Roubell on an assist from McKeown.

Ab Conick got three of the Tiger goals. The others were scored by Liscombe, Brady and Runions.

Tom Smelle of the Hamilton Pats also scored three goals when the Pats beat Stratford Indians at Stratford. Pats came from behind to win this one, Stratford's Steele scoring the only goal of the first period. Powers made it 2-0 for Stratford in the second before Pats got the range, and then Tindal, Smelle and Hollinger scored in quick succession.

With Pats holding a 3-2 lead the third period went scoreless for more than 18 minutes before Tom Smelle ran in his last two goals within a minute and ten seconds.

Sports Roundup

By AL COLLETTI
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

New York, Jan. 18 —(CP)—Their eyes on the 1948 Olympics in London, North America's big-time runners will be burning up the boards shortly as the 1947 winter track season heads into high gear . . . The spotlight perhaps will be on a pair of runners—Gil Dodds, the "Flying Parson," and college star Johnny Quigly—who have dug up their skates, ironed out the kinks from their legs, and decided to see what the comeback trail is like . . . For Quigly the thought of a comeback is remarkable . . . Few believed the onetime New York schoolboy wonder ever would run again after a German shell fragment hit him in the chest while his tank unit was battling in Sicily . . .

Before that there was the North African campaign where he also was wounded, twice taken prisoner, but freed by the Allies in short order . . . When he was discharged from the United States army in 1945 he weighed 215, 55 over his running weight . . . Months of tedious training brought his weight down to where he packs a solid 168 pounds on his muscular five-foot, 10-inch frame. Now a junior at Manhattan College Johnny is ready to defend his pre-war laurels in the 600-yard distances.

Glasses Did It.
